Fargo, May 14.—David E. Morgan, ex-chief justice of the supreme court of North Dakota died at Banning, Cal. Judge Morgan resigned from the supreme bench more than a year ago, owing to a physical break-down. His death was not unexpected. His popularity and reputation is attested by the fact that the Republicans recently nominated him for judge of the supreme court and his nomination was indorsed by the Democratic congressmen. Judge Morgan was born in Pomery county, Ohio, Nov. 8, 1849.

In 1898 he was elected to the state supreme court and was later made chief justice of that body. The remains of Judge Morgan will be brought back to his home at Devils Lake, where the funeral services will be held. No arrangements have been made as yet.

Engineer Killed in Wreck.

St. Louis, Mo., May 14.—Missouri Pacific mail train No. 1, was derailed near Etlah, Mo., 60 miles west. John Linaberry, engineer, of Sedalia, Mo., was killed.

Bolt Causes $460,000 Fire.

Savannah, Ga., May 14.—Ignited by lightning bolt, 20 acres of storage sheds at the Atlantic Coast line railway wharves here were swept by fire, causing a loss of $460,000.

Four Drowned in Big Sioux River.

Sioux Falls, May 14.—The Big Sioux river in this city was the scene of the drowning of four young men. Matt Yost, William Dahl, John Neeham and Guy Beck, the four young men in two boats, two in each, attempted to shoot over the edge of a small dam near the Eighth street bridge.

Aviator Killed in Prussia.

Cassel, Prussia, May 14. — Hans Schmigulski, an aviator, was killed while making an exhibition flight. His machine turned over and fell 100 feet.

9 COUNTIES FAVOR THE COLONEL

HEAVY MAJORITIES FOR COLONEL IS RULE IN MINNESOTA G. O. P. CAUCUSES.

1 TOWN FOR LAFOLLETTE

Vote Is Extremely Light So Far, Save in Anoka County—General Lack of Interest in Primary.

Minneapolis, May 13.—Nine out of the eighty-nine counties of Minnesota, representing the First, Second, Fourth, Fifth, Seventh, Eighth and Ninth congressional districts, in their Republican primaries, gave evidence of a desire on the part of the Republicans of these sections of the state of Minnesota to support Theodore Roosevelt for president, despite the fact that a light vote was polled in many of the country districts, and there seemed little effort on the part of any of the candidates' enthusiasts to get the voters out to the polls. In some of the farming districts caucuses were abandoned without a vote being taken, owing to the lack of attendance, while in other sections heavy rains prevented the caucuses.

Colonel's Majorities Heavy.

In every county but one heard from, Roosevelt was the favorite by a heavy majority. The exception was Swift county, where La Follette carried the town of Kerkhoven, the vote however being very light.

Evidence of strong organizations on the part of any of the candidates was lacking everywhere, although it seemed the Roosevelt men got out to the polls in many of the precincts where the Taft and La Follette adherents remained at home, as was evidenced in several of the smaller towns where the entire vote was solid for the colonel.

Perhaps the strongest turnout for the former president outside the city of Minneapolis was made in Anoka county, which is the home of I. A. Caswell, clerk of the supreme court, who is managing the Roosevelt campaign. This was one of the first counties heard from, and the Roosevelt men in Anoka went to bed happy before midnight, assured that the colonel had carried 71 of the 114 delegates of that county with several more of the strong Roosevelt districts to be heard from.

At New Ulm, the Republicans got together in informal caucus and mutually agreed that the entire delegation from that city to the state convention should support the man from Sagamore hill.

This gave the colonel 27 votes in the Brown county convention out of 110 delegates and Roosevelt leaders in New Ulm predicted that Brown county would send a solid delegation to the state convention instructed for Roosevelt.

Down in former Congressman Tawney's district, notably in Wabasha county, so little interest was shown in the primaries that at midnight everyone in town had gone to bed, and the sleepy operator simply gave the information that Roosevelt had carried the day.

Possibility of a dark horse nomination in the Chicago convention was reflected in the fact that several of the precincts gave Justice Charles E. Hughes scattering votes, one town giving him 11.

Believe Letter Helped.

How far Colonel Roosevelt's open letter to the voters of Minnesota affected the results can only be conjectured, but some asserted last night that this had much to do in getting out the strong Roosevelt aggregation, which in many cases outnumbered the Taft supporters six to one.

La Follette's alleged strength, which members of both the Roosevelt and Taft factions declared might make serious inroads on their final results, did not show itself.

NEW ORLEANS DELUGED

People Behind Strained Levees Are in Panic Over the Downpour.

New Orleans, May 13.—New Orleans withstood the severest rainstorm in her history. All of the lower half of Louisiana was affected and thousands of people who live behind the already terribly strained levees that hold back the Mississippi flood waters, were panicky. The wind ranged from 27 miles an hour at New Orleans to 40 miles an hour at Baton Rouge, and at many points along the river it swept the waves of the swollen stream over the levees.

At New Orleans 5½ inches of rain fell from noon until 10 p. m. and about four inches fell between 7 and 9 o'clock. The Mississippi river here was backed up by the high winds and rose eight inches in two hours, between 8 and 10 o'clock last night, forcing the waters over the levee at several points. eral points.

At 10 o'clock the river gauge at the head of Canal street registered 21.9 feet, or one-tenth of a foot higher than the maximum stage predicted by the weather bureau. The streets of New Orleans were flooded as never in the city's history.

Rebel Casualties 600.

Mexico City, May 13.—Rebel losses when they were routed by the federals at Cuatrocienegas, west of Monclova Coahuila retaken on May 8 were 600 in killed and wounded.

COMMANDER WHITE.

Commander W. W. White, U. S. N., retired, has been engaged in the difficult task of reconstructing the navy of Hayti.

RICHESON NOT PUT IN PRISON

MAY BE KEPT IN JAIL TILL GOVERNOR COUNCIL ACTS.

Mayor of Boston Asks Executive to Let Law Take Its Course.

Boston, Mass., May 13.—When informed by Sheriff Quinn at the Charles street jail that he would be removed to Charlestown state prison, Clarence V. T. Richeson, the former Baptist minister who is under sentence to be electrocuted the week beginning May 19 for poisoning his one-time sweetheart, Avis Linnell, went down upon his knees and begged to be allowed to stay at the jail a few days more.

When the sheriff visited Richeson to tell him of the plan to remove him to Charlestown the prisoner knelt on the floor of his cell and, in the sheriff's words, "He implored me to allow him to remain here as long as I could. He said be would like to spend these last few days in the place where he already had passed so much time. He had been kindly treated here, he said, and wanted to stay as long as possible. It would have been hard to refuse him, and I told him that he would not be removed until tomorrow or Sunday."

The next regular meeting of the governor's council is on Wednesday and, although this is only four days before the date set for the execution, Richeson may be kept at Charles street jail until the council has had opportunity to act, should Governor Foss refer to it, Richeson's plea for commutation of sentence.

Dudley M. Holman, secretary to Governor Foss, said that the governor is in consultation with several eminent alienists regarding Richeson's condition. The governor, Secretary Holman said, feels that the case is so important as to demand the opinion of several alienists who will examine Richeson in Charles street jail, if they have not done so already, and will make their report to the chief executive.

Mayor Fitzgerald sent a communication to Governor Foss asking him not to submit the petition for commutation of Clarence V. T. Richeson's sentence to the executive council. The mayor declared the former clergyman's crime was "one of the most abominable in the history of the country" and merited the extreme penalty."

BRANDT BACK IN JAIL

New York, May 13. —Folke E. Brandt, formerly valet to Mortimer L. Schiff, who was released from Dannemora prison on a habeas corpus decision of Justice Garard of the supreme court, is again in the Tombs and may be returned to prison to serve out the 30 years to which he was sentenced five years ago by Justice Rosalski in the court of general sessions. The appellate decision of the supreme court reversed the decision of Justice Gerard liberating the prisoner, whose case caused much interest early this year when he applied to Governor Dix for executive clemency.

If the decision of the appellate division, which was unanimous, is appealed to the court of appeals, as counsel for Brandt assert it will be, the former valet probably will remain at the appellate division, Judge O'Sullivan, in the court of general sessions, issued a bench warrant for Brandt's arrest and he was committed to the Tombs without bail.

After reviewing the history of the case, Justice Miller, who wrote the opinion, said in part:

"We have nothing to do with the sentence except to determine whether it was in excess of the court's power. Burglary in the first degree is punishable by imprisonment for life.

"The order should be reversed and the writ dismissed, the prisoner remanded to the custody of the defendant, the warden of Cilton (Dannemora) prison."

Mexican Rebels Retreat.

El Paso, May 13.—General Pascual Orozco's advance guard of rebels have be driven back toward Escalon, the central base of insurrectos in northern Mexico.

No Man's Land

A ROMANCE

SYNOPSIS.

Garrett Coast, a young man of New York City, meets Douglas Blackstock, who invites him to a card party. He accepts, although he dislikes Blackstock, the reason being that both are in love with Katherine Thaxter. Coast fails to convince her that Blackstock is unworthy of her friendship. At the party Coast meets two named Dundas and Van Tuyl. There is a quarrel, and Blackstock shoots Van Tuyl dead. Coast struggles to wrest the weapon from him, thus the police discover them. Coast is arrested for murder. He is convicted, but as he begins his sentence, Dundas names Blackstock as the murderer and kills himself. Coast becomes free, but Blackstock has married Katherine Thaxter and fled. Coast purchases a yacht and while sailing sees a man thrown from a distant boat. He rescues the fellow who is named Appleyard. They arrive at a lonely island, known as No Man's Land. Coast starts out to explore the place and comes upon some deserted buildings. He discovers a man dead. Upon going further and approaching a house he sees Katherine Thaxter, who explains that her husband, under the name of Black, has bought the island. He is blind, a wireless operator and has a station there. Coast informs her that her husband murdered Van Tuyl. Coast sees Blackstock and some Chinamen burying a man. They fire at him, but he is rescued by Appleyard, who gets him to the Echo in safety, and there he reveals that he is a secret service man and has been watching the crowd on the island, suspecting they are criminals. Coast is anxious to fathom the mysteries of No Man's Land, and is determined to save Katherine. Appleyard believes that Black and his gang make a shield of the wireless station to conduct a smuggling business. Coast penetrates to the lair of Blackstock's disguise. Katherine enters the room and passes him a note which tells Coast that neither his life or her own are safe. Coast feels that Blackstock suspects him. Appleyard and the Echo disappear. Coast assures Katherine of his protection, and she informs him that they are to abandon the island immediately. The blind man and his coolie servant overpower Coast, who afterward escapes and is met by Katherine, wishing to flee. They discover a yawl but before they can reach it the coolie disables the craft. Black appears and tauntingly states that he is no longer blind. He is overpowered, and Coast and Katherine fly from the spot, and go to a remote part of the island and signal a boat which they see in the distance.

Out of the dusk, in which objects were just perceptible, the bungalow loomed up before them. By common consent they paused, Coast looking back toward the beach, Katherine peering up into his face.

"Are they coming, Garrett?"

"Not yet," he said, perplexity in his tone. "It's as I thought: they know they can lay hands on us at any time. So we can go hang until they're ready to take up our case. . . . "But," he amended, squaring his shoulders and his jaw and infusing his manner with a confidence and decision he had been glad to feel, "we'll fool 'em. It won't be long now."

"You mean before your friend—Mr. Appleyard?"

"Yes. He's sure to be here at almost any minute—he or the revenue cutter."

"But, Garrett . . . what are we going to do in the meantime?"

"We'll have to stick to the open till the Echo comes. Is there a lantern in the house—anything to make a light with?"

"Why—yes," she replied in surprise; "there's a kerosene lantern we used at night, when it was necessary to go to the farm-house. But . . . wouldn't it lead them to us?" Isn't darkness our surest cover?"

"Absolutely; but I've got to have something to signal Appleyard with. We agreed that I should show a light on the sand pit, in event of any trouble; but he'll be counting on the cutter being here by this time, and it won't do to let him make a landing on the beach near the long-boat."

"I understand. Just a minute. . .

"Is there time?"

"Plenty," he said briefly, adding inconsistently: "But hurry."

He followed her into the house and while she disappeared to look for the lantern, found his way to the divan and robbed it of its covering—a heavy steamer rug, which he folded and tucked beneath one arm before Katherine returned.

"You won't want the light now?"

"No. Give me your hand."

They stepped out into unrelieved night: darkness, dense and warm and rendered tangible by its burden of humidity.

In the north arose a confusion of many voices; and in that quarter, likewise, was a firefly show of weaving lantern-lights.

Hand in hand they stole away like thieves, not three minutes before the bungalow was invaded by Blackstock and the crew of the schooner—a loud-mouthed, roystering company, making hideous the night with the clamor of their disputations and their cursings.

Unseen and all unsought (so far as they could say, with no sign given them of either detection or pursuit) they hurried off as warily and fearfully as wild things skirting the haunts of men, skulking silently over hills and down through hollows, over fields and fences, until at length they came without accident out upon the spreading sweep of sand to the east of the long, low-lying spit.

Later they found themselves at the end of this, the northern extremity of the island; and here Coast put down the unlighted lantern and spread the rug in a slight depression between low dunes. . . .

Cimmerian murk encompassed them, abysmal, impassive, penetrated only by dimmed rays of light from the windows of the bungalow, seemingly incalculable miles distant.

Slowly the hours ebbed. They had long since ceased to speak. From the regularity of her breathing Coast believed she slept despite her fears, overcome by thorough exhaustion of every fiber, nerve and faculty. For himself he would not stir for fear of waking her.

The light of a lantern peeped over the ridge, inland, and descended, wavering, through the Cold Lairs to the beach, then became stationary near the edge of the water, over which it shot a long, slender spear of soft radiance.

He understood that a guard had tardily been set over the seine-boat.

From the bungalow came thin, far sounds of voices, now and then a husky shout cacophonous in that hour of calm, immutable peace.

They were drinking up there, forgetful alike of danger and their recent disaster. . . .

Abruptly he saw that the lane of lantern light was shattered and dancing. He jumped to his feet, with a glance above that showed him a faint flash of starlight. He held up his hand and a breath of air blew cool against it—a shiver of breeze out of the southwest. All this meant clearing.

Swiftly the breeze freshened. Vague forms of mist faded before his straining sight. A musical whisper and clashing of waves echoed through the hush of night. And like a curtain the fog fell back and away, and was not.

About two miles offshore, to the northwest, a green light shone like a colored star, with a white light a little above—at about the height of the Echo's masthead. And while he looked the two moved and swung round, until he saw not only green and white, but the red port light as well, all moving steadily toward the island.

Some Sort of Order Was Evidently Evolved.

CHAPTER XX.

In his arms Katherine moved with a stifled moan of weariness, a gasp, and then a stiffening of her body which told him that she was now wide awake and mistress of her wits, in full comprehension of their position.

"Katherine—"

"What is it?"

"The Echo—Appleyard, I think—I'm sure. He'll be here in just a few minutes—ten or fifteen; and you must help me show the light."

"Help me up," she said in a dejected voice.

He rose and took her hands, lifting her to her feet. With one thought uppermost in both minds, they turned toward the sea.

Off to the northwest the red port and white masthead lights of the catboat were slipping briskly shorewards—the green no longer visible—standing in for the beach where the long-boat lay.

A groan escaped Coast.

"Oh, the devil!" he said beneath his breath, exasperated; and aloud, half-frantically: "Hurry! He's taking the other light for my signal. Here"—grabbed up the steamer's rug and thrust it unceremoniously into Katherine's hand—"hold this so, to hide it from the beach, while I light the lantern."

With agonizing slowness the minutes sped, and still the boat held on directly for the beach below the Cold Lairs. Then abruptly the watcher by the long-boat awakened to its approach, apparently for the first time, and sounded the alarm by firing a shot from his revolver. A second later, in desperation, Coast sent a piercing whistle echoing over the waters.

Immediately, at the pistol shot, the Echo swerved sharply off to the west, her red side light disappeared; and for a full minute held on so before she swung smartly on her heel and showed first the green and then the red, bearing straight as an arrow for the end of the sand spit.

On the island, at the same, the results of the report (which, when the catboat came about, was followed by four others in brisk succession) were no less marked. Down the wind from the bungalow floated a wild chorus of shouts and calls. In its vicinity half a dozen twinkling lights studded the darkness on the uplands, springing to life as if by magic, and were whisked hither and thither like so many will-o'-the-wisps, suggesting a stupid, half-distracted ferment of conflicting advice, argument and wills among the smugglers. Presently, however, some sort of order was evidently evolved; the lights converged to a common center and bore swiftly down toward the beach. . . .

Coast put down the lantern on the swelling, rounded summit of a small dune, and took the steamer rug from Katherine, mechanically folding it as he divided troubled attention between the nearing boat and the distant rabble—now streaming headlong down through the Cold Lairs and shouting as they came.

"No more need for this," he said, referring to the rug; "the light won't tell them anything they don't know, now. But . . . " His perturbed voice trailed off irresolutely as he stood, a frowning glance directed down the beach.

Katherine was quick to catch the note of worry in his tone. "What is it?" she asked. "You're not afraid—you don't think—"

"No," he reassured her stoutly; "they're much too far away to catch us now. Only—hark to that!"

There was, in fact, a strange and sinister sound in the yelping of the gang; their cries were indistinguishable, but owned a dull, level pitch of minatory rage, infinitely perturbing, since it seemed so senseless—like the harsh and inarticulate snarling of an infuriated lunatic.

A shiver shot along Coast's spine. He found the woman, trembling, had moved close to his side.

"What does it mean?"

"I don't know," he said—"sounds like a pack of starving wolves. . . . No matter; it can't concern us. In two minutes . . ."

The Echo had drawn near enough for the noise of the motor to be perceptible: she was moving under power only, her sail down but not furled, hanging in stiff and clumsy folds in the lazy-jacks. He could even see the tender trailing astern, and make out a single figure at the wheel. . . . Then the latter bobbed down out of sight for an instant, and the purring of the engine was abrupted. There followed the splash of the anchor, and the little vessel brought up quickly, swinging wide to face the wind.

With a warning cry Katherine stepped quickly away from Coast and swung round, whipping out her small but effective pearl-handled revolver.

"Stop!" she cried in a vibrant voice. "Halt, or I'll fire!"

The Resort Prospectus.

"Going to run daily excursions this year?"

"Oh, yes."

"I notice you don't advertise a gorge any more."

"No; I made it a ravine instead. Some people thought a gorge meant a lot to eat."

MEET AT FERGUS FALLS.

Many Addresses on Program for Annual Convention of Women.

Fergus Falls.—The Women's clubs of the ninth congressional district held their annual convention in this city on Wednesday and Thursday. The principal addresses on Wednesday were delivered by Miss Winnifre Saunders of the Parkers Prairie Study club, on "Child Study"; Mrs. C. M. Lupman of the Matrons' club of Crookston on "Nature Study for the Child"; Mrs. S. M. Sweitson of the Current Events club of Crookston on "The World-wide Peace Movement," and Mrs. C. F. Amidon on "Women and the Pure Food Laws."

The addresses on Thursday were "A Character Sketch of Mark Twain," by Mrs. S. M. Hawver of Barnesville; "Musicians of Minneapolis," by Mrs. Rathburn of the Literary club of Detroit; "Suggestions," by Mrs. Bernard of the Ladies' Reading club of Warren; "Living Conditions of the Working Girls in the Cities," by Miss Elsie Wright of the Women's club of Fergus Falls; "The Club Women and Treaties," by Mrs. Vergel McGregor of the Crookston Women's club; address by Mrs. McDonnell of the Women's Study club of Bemidji; "Rural Problems," by Miss Marie Lovsner, superintendent of schools of Norman county; "Present Day Queens," by Mrs. E. W. Akers of the Current Events club of Crookston; "The Library as a Social Center," by Miss Amy Lewis of the Reading club, Fergus Falls.

A library roundtable was conducted by Miss Clara F. Baldwin of the state library commission, during the afternoon, and the evening address will be before a large public meeting by Miss Josephine Schain of Minneapolis, her subject being "Women and the Franchise."

RAILWAY TO MINE IRON.

Ore Properties of the Hills to be Operated by Auxiliary Company.

Duluth.—It is given out upon the authority of D. M. Philbin, manager of the Hill ore properties, that his principals are not in the market to lease their properties, or any part of them, to other furnace owning and operating companies. The Hill interests will develop properties and engage in the mining business.

"We are going right ahead to develop iron mines on the Hill lands that have been surrendered to us by the steel corporation," Mr. Philbin says. "A company will be organized to control and operate all of the Hill iron lands, just the same as is done by the steel corporation through its Oliver Iron Mining company. We shall be in the market to sell iron ore. It probably will take two years to get going. We shall mine and sell ore in the general market, and the properties are not in the market for lease to any of the ore-consuming interests.

The Hill mines which the steel corporation controls and from which it will meet the further requirements of the lease, are the Leonard, Dale, North Uno, South Uno, Harold, Mace, Mississippi, Hill, Walker and North Star. These are all open-pit propositions except the Mace, Mississippi and Harold. The steel corporation and the Hill interests each own one-half of the fee of the Hill and Walker mines.

ELK RIVER DAM OUT.

Flood Waters Spread Over the Adjacent Country—Loss $15,000.

Elk, River, Minn. — The dam of the Elk River Milling company at this point went out and one corner of the foundation of the mill was undermined and the big building is settling slowly. The loss up to this time is estimated at $15,000. A bridge above the dam has been so weakened that traffic is prohibited and the mill flume has been washed down river.

The mill property is valued at more than $50,000 and is owned by Massachusetts capitalists. The main building is frame. A force of men are working frantically to stay the flood with sandbags and rock and earth and should no more rain fall for several days there is good prospect the building can be saved.

The mill and dam are on Elk river and the flats between them and the Mississippi are partly flooded. No particular damage has been done except to the mill property. The east end of the dam was the first to yield under the pressure of the flood waters. The tributaries of the Mississippi are spreading out over the country and the main river is booming bank-full.

BOY TRAPPERS MAKE MONEY.

Gopher and Wolf Bounties Line Pockets of Wadena Lads.

Wadena. — Hunting and trapping wolves and pocket gophers for the bounty is bringing in much cash to farmers and their boys. One farmer's son has already caught eighty gophers this spring. John M. Zentz of Orton township caught eight wolf cubs and received thirty-two dollars bounty. The cubs were captured in the absence of the mother wolf.

FOUND HUMAN BONES.

Explorers on Trempealeau Mountain Find Also Some Pieces of Pottery.

Winona. — The Indian mounds at Trempealeau have from time to time attracted attention. Another visit of exploration was made there last week by Rev. F. A. Gilmore of Madison, Attorney E. F. Hensell of Whitehall and E. D. Pierce of Trempealeau. They opened one of the mounds near the summit of Trempealeau mountain and found that it was a Crain mound, with the sides built of stone, a rare variety of construction which is met with but seldom in this region.

At the depth of two feet a femur bone in a good state of preservation was found and under the edge of the stone wall a skull was unearthed intact. In all, the excavators exhumed six skulls and innumerable bones from the small bones of the feet and hands to the larger bones of the pelvis and trunk.

No ornaments were found and no trinkets of adornment but a few pieces of pottery were dug up.

ST. PAUL ELECTIONS.

Republicans Win All Three City Offices.

St. Paul.—The reports of the election confirm the re-election of Mayor H. P. Keller by a plurality of 423, W. C. Handy as city controller and S. A. Farnsworth as city treasurer, all these being republicans. The official count of the ballots will be made soon and it is said that no contests will be made by any of the defeated candidates.

The commission plan of government carried by a large majority and the amendment to the charter spreading assessments for improvements over a period of five years also went through.

One of the features of the returns shows that 4,000 less votes than were recorded at the primary election were registered on election day.

It is understood that as soon as Mayor Keller resumes his work, after a week's rest that the way will be paved for the civil service plan under the commission plan of government.

R. R. WILL MINE IRON.

President Hill of the Great Northern Optimistic as to Ore Situation.

Hibbing.—President Louis W. Hill of the Great Northern, D. M. Philbin, superintendent of the Great Northern ore properties, and A. M. Chisholm of Duluth are on a tour of the range to look over the Great Northern ore properties.

"We expect to be in the mining business on the range ourselves before long," Mr. Hill said. This is interpreted as meaning that with the cancellation of the lease on Hill mines with the steel corporation next year, the great Northern will go into the ore handling and ore market business. Mr. Hill said he would not say the Great Northern would acquire a fleet of boats to carry its ore down the lakes.

Mr. Hill takes an optimistic view of the iron mining situation, and says the Great Northern will handle in excess of 12,000,000 tons from the Mesabi range this year.

AUTOIST DIES AT WHEEL.

Charles Rice of Hamline Dies Suddenly of Heart Disease.

Cannon Falls. — Charles Rice, a traveling salesman living at Hamline, died suddenly of heart failure while driving an automobile into Cannon Falls. Mrs. Rice was with him and noticed that he had lost control of the machine, which ran into a telephone pole. The automobile was going slowly and neither occupant was injured.

Normal School Shows Growth.

Winona.— The annual catalogue of the Winona Normal school shows an enrollment of 990, including students in the elementary department. This is a hundred more than were listed the previous year. The special courses providing three years of work beyond the high school and leading to special diplomas are being taken by eighteen.

Fort Ridgely Defender Dies.

St. Peter.—Dennis O'Shea, a resident of Nicollet county for more than fifty years, died at his home near Fort Ridgely. He was born in Ireland eighty years ago. He served in the army during the Civil war and was one of the defenders of Fort Ridgely against the attacks of the Indians in 1862.

Cutworms Again Menace.

Winona. — Farmers say the cutworms will be a greater menace this year to gardners and agriculturists than last year. The ground is said to be full of the worms. Various methods have been advanced for eradicating scourge. William Nesbit, residing near Fremont, declares that common dry sulphur was used effectively on his farm and in his garden last year. A cornfield was alive with the worms, he asserted, but after he sprinkled the sulphur about the stalks every trace of them was lost.

MAKES DARING TRIP

W. P. Edwards of Reclamation Service Has Thrilling Adventure.

Government Enabled to Build Huge Tunnel Five Miles Long from Gunnison Canyon as Result of Remarkable Feat.

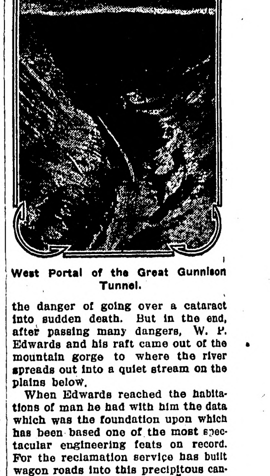
Denver, Colo.—One of the most daring feats that has been accredited to the men of the reclamation service in their battles of converting the deserts of the west into productive farms was the original trip through the swift waters of the Gunnison canyon.

In the years previous to the time when the reclamation service went into Colorado and determined upon the diversion of the waters of the Gunnison river, that the arid lands of the Uncompahgre project might be reclaimed, man had never passed alive through the Gunnison canyon. There were many tales of adventurous Indians and white men who had attempted the dangers of this canyon, but none of them had succeeded and lived to tell the tale.

W. P. Edwards was the first man to accomplish this feat. He did it on a rubber mattress, inflated with air. Boarding his raft at the headwaters of the Gunnison, he started on the wild ride through its canyon with the idea of prospecting for a possible opportunity to divert its waters and get them upon the desert.

This raft of air and rubber was believed to be immune to the shocks that it would meet in plunging headlong down the currents of this stream. To a large extent, it proved worthy of the confidence that was placed in it. To be sure, it lost upon occasion much of the form which it had in the beginning. It was punctured and mended and reinflated on many occasions. At times it became merely a flabby bag that was thrown over the shoulder of the voyager as he waded down stream over the rapids. At other times it became merely a life-preserver that kept him afloat in deep eddies.

At still other times the raft and its operator clung to the sides of rocks and fought the currents in the face of the danger of going over a cataract into sudden death. But in the end, after passing many dangers, W. P. Edwards and his raft came out of the mountain gorge to where the river spreads out into a quiet stream on the plains below.



West Portal of the Great Gunnison Tunnel.

When Edwards reached the habitations of man he had with him the data which was the foundation upon which has been based one of the most spectacular engineering feats on record. For the reclamation service has built wagon roads into this precipitous canyon and from a point at its bottom has driven a great tunnel for five miles through solid rock and through that tunnel has diverted the frothing waters and set them to the business of making crops grow upon the desert.

WOMAN LOSES HER VOICE

Trainer of Wild Beasts in Terror When Caged Grizzly Bear Attacks Her Husband.

San Francisco.—Mme. Ricardo, a lion trainer, known as the "singing girl in the tiger's den," is speechless as the result of an attack upon her husband by a bear at Oakland. The woman was one of the few in the gathering at the circus who realized her husband's peril.

When the grizzly bore her husband to the ground the woman screamed for assistance. Ricardo remained quiet, covering his head and face with his arms.

Mme. Ricardo attempted to sing the next day, but found that she had lost her voice. Physicians fear it may not return. Ricardo escaped injury.

Yale Receives a Prehistoric Chair.

New Haven, Conn.—Yale university museum has received from Ecuador, South America, an interesting prehistoric relic in the shape of a large stone chair, carved as a crouching human figure holding up a stone seat. The chair is of a kind of stone found nowhere in the world except on some of the Ecuador hills. The donor is Charles C. Brown, Yale, 1903.

FISH SUPPORT TOWN

Anchovy Found in Large Quantities in Holland.

Fact Is Not Widely Known—Supposition That Mediterranean Sea Has Monopoly of Industry Is Erroneous.

The Hague, Holland.—The coat of arms of Enkhuizeu, one of the dead cities of the Zuyder zee, bears three silver fishes, which, it is explained, are anchovies; for Enkhuizen owed a great part of its prosperity to the anchovy fisheries.

It is generally supposed that the anchovy is caught exclusively in the Mediterranean sea, so it comes as a surprise to most people to hear that it is so largely caught off the coasts of Holland. Dutch fishermen have been familiar for ages with the fact that the anchovy comes up in great shoals at certain times of the year and enters the Zuyder zee to spawn.

There have, however, been considerable lapses of time when no anchovies at all appeared, and when it was feared that the Dutch fisher folk had lost their means of earning a livelihood, then, suddenly, without any apparent reason, the shoals of fish again became regular visitors. These last few years the anchovy has been particularly plentiful. Many a Zuyder zee fisherman has made his living for the whole year during the anchovy season, which lasts from six to eight weeks, and as much as 1,000 florins ($400) worth have been known to be taken in a single day.

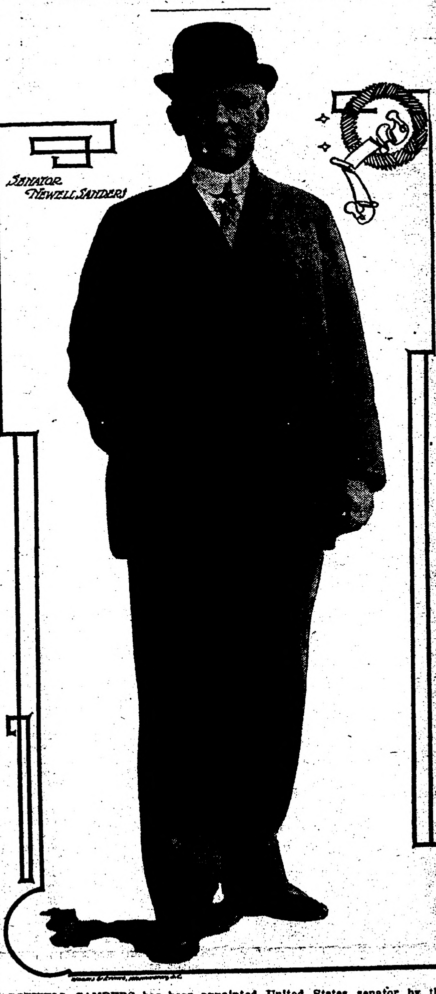
Formerly the method of capturing a shoal of anchovy consisted in stretching an enormous net with small meshes between two boats. This net touched the sea bottom. Then the boats hoisted sail and the more wind there was the better pleased were the fishermen. They sailed on for a while and then when the net was lifted it contained thousands of silvery fishes. Later on they preferred to fish with stationary nets, because more fish could be caught in that way. Each fisherman places his own nets in a certain part of the sea, and after a while comes to see whether they have been filled with fish.

The anchovy brings plenty of work for many another category of persons than the regular fishermen. For the fish have to be cleaned, salted and packed into casks. The cleaning is done almost exclusively by women and children, the salting occupies the "salter" and the making of the many casks employs a little army of coopers. Then the packing is also done by experienced hands in such a way that the anchovy can be kept for many years without spoiling.

The herring fishers also often secure millions of anchovy near the coasts of Holland. For as soon as they perceive a shoal coming their way they will fix anchovy netting into their herring nets, and so often secure almost miraculous hauls.

The anchovy is a small fish, the full grown specimen being only fifteen centimeters (5.9 inches) long. The back of this fish is bluish and the under parts are white, glistening like silver in the sunshine.

NEW SENATOR FROM TENNESSEE



NEWELL SANDERS has been appointed United States senator by the governor of Tennessee to fill the unexpired term of the late Robert Love Taylor, and has been sworn in and taken his seat.

LARGEST MAP IN THE WORLD

It Is Intended to Show Every Building in London—Is 580 Feet Square.

London.—If all goes well and there are no serious delays, three or four years hence the London county council will have completed what it is believed will be the most wonderful map in the whole world. Seventeen years have already been consumed in its preparation and $85,000 has been expended on research and labor connected with it. A further expenditure of about $25,000 is looked forward to with equanimity by the authorities.

The great map will really constitute a twentieth-century London edition of England's famous Doomsday Book. For it will show practically every building in the 116 square miles that go to make up greater London, setting forth, as far as possible, the most important owners.

It has often been said that London was owned by a few great landlords, such as the Duke of Westminster, Lord Howard de Walden, Lord Cadogan, the Duke of Bedford and the Dude of Norfolk. That is, of course, true in a general way, but this map shows that there are no fewer than 36,600 private owners who each possess enough property to make a notable showing on its face.

The map will not be issued to the public, but is really being prepared for the use of the county council itself. It is being drawn to the scale of five square feet to the square mile, so that the completed map, which, of course, will be made in sections, will measure 580 feet by 580 feet, or 1-32d of a square mile in area.

Walks Ten Miles Asleep.

Lakeview, Ore.—Miss Nellie Porter, twenty years old, arose from her bed and while still asleep walked ten miles, and was found at 3 o'clock in the morning, when she fell exhausted upon the porch of the Glidden residence in New Pine Creek, fifteen miles south of here.

She did not know how she had reached the Glidden home. The last she remembered was going to bed at the home of the family for whom she worked, three miles away. Her tracks were followed through the fields, woods, over rocks and through creeks which she had forded.

Ireland's Wealth in Peat

Country Has Abundant Supply in Its Bogs.

Attention Is Turned to It as Result of Coal Strike—May Result in Development of Resources Now Little Used.

Dublin.—The coal strike in Great Britain has sent up the price of coal to such an extent in Ireland that the idea of turning to peat fuel as a substitute for coal is being seriously considered. A considerable quantity of turf is consumed in Dublin at present, not indeed as an alternative to coal, but as an auxiliary to it. The poor use it instead of firewood to light their fires in the morning, and it is also used chiefly by bacon curers, who find that turf smoked bacon has an agreeable flavor. A new aesthetic taste also accounts for the consumption of a further small quantity.

Many Dublin people who have been caught by the glamor of the Irish language movement and have spent holidays in Irish speaking districts in the south or west of Ireland in the summer get a whiff of the countryside in their own drawing rooms in Dublin during the winter by using turf instead of coal in their fires. There are quite a number of houses of which this is true, not only in Bublin, but even in so-called Orange Belfast.

However, all this consumption of peat is a mere trifle compared with the consumption of coal. What is now being discussed is the possibility of using peat as a substitute for coal. Ireland would be the wealthier by thousands of millions of dollars if its peat bogs could be turned to account on a sound commercial basis. The area of bog in Ireland is nearly 1,000,000 acres, or about 5 per cent. of the surface of the country. The Bog of Allen stretches across the great central plain, and in the west of Ireland there are districts in which peat covers from 20 to 30 per cent. of the entire surface.

Most of this peat area is at present lying waste. Two or three companies make peat moss litter in comparatively small quantities, and in very remote districts the turf is cut and used as fuel by the farmers. With the exception of the more or less artificial use of turf already referred to, these are the only uses to which peat is applied in Ireland.

The methods of preparing peat for fuel are very primitive and would have to be changed completely to make peat fuel a real competitor with coal. An attempt was made some years ago to make turf briquettes, but the scheme, though it promised well, did not turn out as successfully as was expected and the company, like the turf itself, crumbled to pieces. The moisture was squeezed out of the peat by compression and the briquettes when fresh seemed to be just the thing that was wanted, but whatever defect there was in the preparation of them they were not able to stand the knocking about they got in the railroad wagons and canal boats.

The problem of making peat briquettes that can travel by train without falling to pieces has, however, since been solved in Sweden and in other countries and this fact has given encouragement to Irishmen to take the matter up again. The coal strike has brought the question within the range of practical things as nothing else could have done.

MONKEYS BURNED TO DEATH

Menagerie Burns and Animals, Unable to Escape From Cages, Huddle Together and Are Smothered.

London.—Ten valuable monkeys and two dogs were the victims of a fire in a menagerie in Hackford road, Brixton.

Shut up for the night in cages (three or four in each), the animals had no opportunity of escape, and, although the fire brigade were on the scene within a few minutes and the fire quickly put out, it was too late to save them. When the fire was extinguished the dead monkeys were brought out, still in their cages, and placed in the yard. They presented a truly pitiable sight. Lying in the blackened straw in a huddled mass—several in each other's arms—they seemed to have collected together as if seeking protection from an unknown foe.

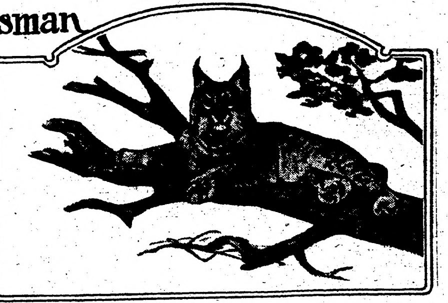
Shoe Picks Up Diamond.

Worcester, Mass.—Miss Dorothy B. Durkee, of No. 10 Perkins street, a student at the Normal school, found a diamond in a small hole in her shoe after walking all day. The gem is flawless, admirably cut and of pure color.

The LYNX AND HIS HABITS

by Frank Mossman

COPYRIGHT BY OUTDOOR LIFE



Lynx in the Snow

IN the early '80s I settled in Mason county, Washington. My home was near the foothills of the famed Olympic mountain range, where the largest elk on the American continent roam today. When I first settled on Totten's Inlet, as this arm of the great Puget Sound sea is called, there were deer, bear, mink, otter, cats of three kinds, cougar and ducks and birds by the thousands. From my home west to the Pacific ocean, an hundred miles away, there was a dense wilderness of great green trees. The game of the claw variety had roamed for ages through this wilderness and the bear and cat trails were as well defined as the streets in our cities (as were also those of the elk and deer).

My first experience with our whiskered cat came shortly after I began hunting in the blue hills of Mason county. Through the kindness of a friend in Tacoma I secured a white dog, half bull and half hound. One day he ran and treed a large old tom. I fired and broke a leg. The cat came down a little lame, but full of fight, and Don was a pretty sore dog before I killed the cat for him. This dog was about a year old at the time and for twelve long years after he was a cat and cougar treer. He would rather run a cat than eat; and when your humble servant had an hour to spare it was spent on the trail of the cat. When I look back over the long vista of years I spent hunting, I can truly say that I love cat hunting better than any other sport, and I may add that it is the hardest work of any game hunting on the coast. You see, the lynx is a great traveler and he does most of his traveling after nightfall.

We will suppose you are ready for a little cat hunt. You take your dogs and start out in the morning. They hit off on a cat trail and go yelping through the forest. "Fresh track," you say. "They will put him up soon." Presently there is a confused murmur of hound yelps; then none at all. "Treed," you think. But no! Here comes old Don, racing on the back trail "Back-tracking," you think. Don's clarion bay calls the other dogs and they go baying the other way. They go a mile or so, when they lose the track altogether. The last scent was on an old cedar log. Back and forth for half an hour go the dogs, but they cannot hit the trail. You look around, and find the cat's trail where he had back-tracked, and away they go. This is a fine country to travel in. The underbrush is just a little thicker than the hair on a bird dog's tail. You run into a big log. It is so thick you could not see it. You stop to listen. You hear the hounds working over here—the next ridge. The salal brush is higher than your head. Above it is other brush, so thick you cannot see the sky. The brush is wet and you sweat like a pack horse. Dripping wet, you travel mile after mile and go over hill after hill, and yet old Don talks in a very enticing manner to a tired hunter.

Wanda strikes another cat and trees it after a short run. Turk does the same—but Don, Sport, Little Boy and Naida hang onto their first love. You stop on the break of a hill. You hear old Don talking loud, long and clear, about cats in general and this one in particular. You reach the tree and at the same time get your first sight of your game—a big, brown, bulldog-headed animal with long Dundreary whiskers. You let the dogs shake him when killed, and then you pet them. You gaze on a far-off hill and find you are about six miles from home, in a country which is no skating rink even if the timber was off. About midnight a hunter and five or six tired hounds lift the latchstring at "Home, Sweet Home," vowing never to run another cat (at least that night!).

When morning comes you take your gun; your dogs are eager for the chase (and you are the same). It may be but a short chase or it may be as described above. That is lynx hunting in western Washington, a sport which I followed for fifteen years. Hardly a week passed in that time that I did not take a day or two off cat-hunting, and I sometimes hunted them every day for months. I studied them from a hunter's point of view first; later because I became so interested in them that it became a hobby with me in tracking them with dogs.

Their every move on a hunt could be observed by following the dogs closely. I have had as many as six at my home alive at one time—usually young, half-grown kittens. Now and again one that was tame and very sociable would eat from your hand, while others would eat off your hand or foot if you came within reach.

I well remember one morning an old Indian hunter who came to my home. This Indian knew all about wildcats—(that is, some cats). I had one kitten at this time that was very tame. I also had a nearly full grown female, mother of the kitten. The Indian was playing with the kitten, which was on the ground near the wire netting that kept the old lady captive. The old Indian had on a pair of tight short pants that some lady had given him as her son had outgrown them. In stooping down he got against the wire netting. The old cat had been growling her disapproval of the Indian handling her kitten for some time, so when Klan-Soup-Billie backed his rear-guard into the netting she reached for Willie with both hands, and she got him, too, and Klan said something that sounded like "Gul-dub-to-de-cat!" and jumped about 15 feet the first leap. Now, the cat cage was of wire netting, just braced with small wooden sticks, so, when Willie jumped, the cat hung on, and the cage, cat and Willie stuck together. Willie started down the beach toward the Indian reserve yelling bloody cats. This woke the hounds up, and when they saw Wilie stealing their cat they put after him, and it was the finest mix-up I ever saw in my life. Willie, as became a great chief, scorned to sit down for weeks after this, but stood in a dignified way before his wickiup. A slight hiss would cause Bill to jump clear over his tepee for weeks after.

But Bill is just like a great many men whom I know. They will be out hunting when their dog will strike a cat trail, and tree the cat in no time. Then Mr. Man proceeds to tell what he doesn't know about cats—how easy they tree—dogs tree them in no time, etc. That may be true—if the cat has just dined; then he trees easily. But along in the summer months an old tom is worse than a bear to run. Then they not only run, but they keep a-running. When there is a light snowfall cats are tracked and killed pretty easily. Then they travel around in the snow at all hours rabbit hunting. They don't seem to care much for rabbits, except in the winter season.

Out of the stomach of hundreds of cats which I examined in spring and summer months I never found the remains of a dozen rabbits, but found the remains of grouse and different birds. About 75 per cent. of the cats' food was mountain beaver, or "sewelle." This little animal is about the size of our common rabbit, with no tail to speak of, dark gray in color, with large teeth and long claws. They live in holes in the ground like the prairie dog. Their food is shrubbery in hot weather. They will cut bushes and cover their holes up. They feed in early morn, eve and night. This peculiar little animal is found nowhere in the world save on a strip along the Pacific coast from southern British Columbia to northern California.

In traveling around these cats travel on logs altogether, save when taking a little side hunt. Then they travel under or alongside of logs if they can. Through our forests in western Washington you will see great tree trunks blown down by passing storms. Where one lies so it points from tidewater to the distant blue-green hills, examine it closely, and you will see thousands of tiny holes, and worn smooth save for these tiny holes. This tree trunk has lain for scores of years, and it is our cat's highway from the hills to the settlements below. In the latter part of February or first of March a tom will start out of the hills, get on a runway, and go clear down into the settlements, five or six miles away, and back up into the hills again, all in a night—providing he does not make a kill on the way. If so, he will pick out a thicket and crawl in and lie all day, providing he eats his kill.

There are cats of both sexes traveling up and down these runways. It is at this time that cat hunting is one continual round of hound yelps and the dropping of cats, to the hunter who knows the game. Nine weeks from the time Thomas has met Susan on the trail she brings forth her young. Eighteen out of twenty times, two is the number, occasionally three, and sometimes four, this last number being very rare, I having noted it but once.

When the old female is training her kittens the cat hunter can capture all of the young ones he cares to without the least danger or trouble. You need a slow hound with a clarion voice—slow so you can note his actions around different trees. The old cat, as a rule, when she hears the dog, gets her kittens up a tree. Then she waits till the hound is close, and then gives him a chase for a little while—then trees herself. Sometimes she will fight a little, then tree near her kittens. A green cat hunter when following his dog on a cold cat trail will suddenly hear the hounds open out in long and clear bays that denote the cat is started. He follows madly after the hounds, who finally tree her, and he kills a big female cat on whose breast hangs the milk for her young.

He has not the remotest idea where those young are, this green cat man; but not so with the man who hunts and studies the game at one and the same time. He notes that his hounds are sometimes trailing 50 to 70 feet apart and all have a good trail, and when they begin to warm up he strains every muscle in his body to keep near. When the final jump-up comes and the woods ring with the music of the hounds on a hot trail, the hunter notes the particular bunch of trees from where the jump took place. He pays no attention to the running hounds, but goes to this grove. Often he will find his best hound is there, baying up a small, thick tree; but more often he hears them barking "treed" some distance away. He knows that cat is safe—that the dogs will keep her there. They know their master is attending to business all right. Have they not hunted long enough to know him and trust him to come when game is treed? The hunter looks the trees over very carefully—young cats have a way of getting out on limbs and hiding, as still as death when found. The hunter takes a forked stick with a noosed line attached, slips it over the kitten's body, gives a smart pull, and the kitten is soon in the canvas bag made for this purpose. After all are secured or (if out of reach) are shot, the hunter then proceeds to do last what Mr. Green Man would have done first—he goes and shoots the old cat.

Sometimes dogs will tree a single cat, then strike another cat trail and away they go. Mr. Green Man follows his hounds blindly—but not so with a cat-hunter. He keeps his weather eye peeled. He notes the various changes in the actions of his hounds, their bays, etc.—"I don't know where he has gone"—bay—"I think he has treed"—bay—"I am a son-of-a-gun if I know where he is"—bay. The cat man notes the trees all along behind the hounds, for if the cat is running along t runway there are always cats turning up unexpectedly. Then, the dogs may be running two cats; one hops up a tree, the other keeps on with the pack at his heels. These things a cat-hunter knows, and he delights to have something turn up he was not expecting on a cat hunt. To have his hounds run into a family of skunks is another diversion that sometimes occurs.

With good voiced and intelligent hounds there is nothing that beats cat-hunting in Washington. There are three kinds of cats here. The first, which is not very common, is the Canada lynx, the fellow with long whiskers and tassels on his ears; the next is smaller in size and very plentiful, being called the bob-cat or bay lynx; the next is a long-tailed fellow, with a tail as long as his body, very spotted. The finest specimen of this animal I have ever seen is owned by Mr. Allie Bell, formerly auditor of Mason county, Washington, to whom I presented the specimen several years ago. I afterward killed several of these animals. I considered them freaks of nature as those treed by hounds were the first known of here.

I may add in conclusion that I take no credit for all the cats I killed in the past 20 years. I heartily give all the honor to my noble hounds, who treed the cats and made it possible for me to kill them. These noble dogs are now dead and gone—I hope to a hunter's paradise.

Surely So.

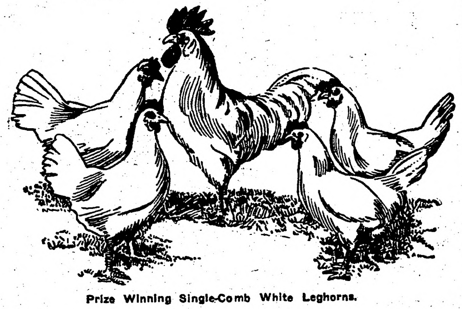
"Why so?"

"From the way they keep on damming the cotton mills."

STANDARD BREED OF POULTRY MOST PROFITABLE TO FARMER

Erroneous Idea to Think That Mongrel Chickens Offer Any Advantage Over Pure-Bred Stock—Many Improvements in Laying and Meat-Producing Qualities of Birds.



Prize Winning Single-Comb White Leghorns.

(By OSCAR ERF.)

Pure-bred animals are those that produce their form, habits or other distinctive qualities with uniformity. In order that we may get offsprings like the parent and like each other we must have animals whose ancestors for many generations back have been of one type. The more generations of such uniformity, the more certain it will be that the young will possess similar quality.

The wild animals of any one kind or species in one locality have been of similar type for many generations and may be considered as pure-bred. By the law of natural selection, individuals not suited to live in that particular locality have been weeded out.

When animals are domesticated, and moved to other climates, and are fed different foods, only such individuals will live and produce young as are suited to the new conditions. But another factor changes domestic animals more rapidly. Men breed only such specimens as please their fancy; and this artificial selection replaces natural selection. During the many centuries of domestication the chickens of different parts of the world have developed into different types. When these radically different types are brought together and crossed we have produced young that are very different from the parents and from each other. Nor can these young be depended upon to reproduce offspring like themselves. They are said to be cross-bred, or, if the mixing be for several generations, they are known as mongrels. By selecting from cross-bred or mongrel stock such chickens as are desired, and breeding these together for many generations, new breeds may be established.

One strain of chickens may be selected for uniform color of feathers, another for a certain size and shape, another for laying large eggs of a certain color, and yet another strain for being producers of many eggs. Each of these strains might be well-bred in these peculiar traits, but would be mongrels when the other considerations were taken into account. Breeders of pure-bred stock, in making their selection of breeding animals, try to consider the desirable qualities in due order of their relative importance. Thus, with trotting horses speed is given prominence above everything else, while in the case of swine or beef cattle attention has been given to the qualities of growth and fattening that make for the profitable production of meat. Only such uniformity of color and minor points are demanded as will serve to distinguish the breed and give uniformity of appearance. The standards adopted by breeders of this class of animals give relatively small consideration to fancy points, whereas poultry breeders consider about one-half of the value of their birds to depend on color of feathers alone, while the judgment of shape is based upon the outline produced by the feathers and not on the true body shape. The standard bred poultry fanciers have not been mainly concerned in producing breeds of chickens for the use of the farmer or practical grower, as have been the breeders of cattle and swine. Men who pursue animal breeding for pleasure alone do not choose large, slow-breeding animals, such as cattle; neither do animals wholly worthless from other standpoints receive much attention from breeders. But the hen, variable in form and color, inexpensive to secure, readily reared and capable of producing in brief time large numbers of offspring, and yet withal capable of paying her way in food products, has rendered possible the development of the fancy or standard-bred chicken business into the most universal and important fancy or artistic-breeding business in the world.

From the attention that has been given to the breeding of poultry for the show room, many people wrongly infer that standard-bred poultry is no better than mongrel stock for commercial purposes.

The mongrel chicken is a production of chance. Its ancestry represents everything available in the barnyards of the neighborhood, and its offspring will be equally varied. In the pure breeds there has been a rigid selection practiced that gives uniform appearance.

The size and shape requirements of the standard, although not based on the market demands, comes much nearer producing an ideal carcass than does chance breeding. Ability to mature for the fall and winter shows is a decidedly practical quality that the fancier breeds into his chickens. Moreover, poultry breeders, while still keeping standard points in mind, have also made improvements in the laying and meat-producing qualities of their chickens. Considering these facts, it is an enormous idea to think that mongrel chickens offer any advantage over pure-bred stock for meat or for eggs.

MANY MISTAKES MADE AT START

Those About to Begin With Poultry Should be Advised to Begin With Good Stock or Eggs.

How often have you stopped to think how much better off you would have been and how much time you would have saved had you started in with a pair or a trio of good breeders instead of the flock of cull chickens which you purchased and which even the most experienced poultryman would have found difficult in handling?

How often have you thought about advising those about to start in with chickens to put their money in good stock or eggs at the outset instead of fretting with worthless stock for two or three seasons before realizing their mistake?

How often have you given this advice to a deaf ear, become provoked and then got in a good humor again when you thought of the fool you had been and of the time you had in making up your mind to the necessity of starting in all over again, after devoting a couple of years to a flock that no one could have made to pay for its feed?

When we look back upon the many mistakes we made in getting a start we wonder how we managed to stay with it. It is then we realize why it is so many go in for chickens and fail, and begin to wonder how it happens that more did not give up at the outset.

Advantage With Ducks.

One advantage in duck raising is that there is very little loss from disease and they are not bothered by vermin.

RAISING CROPS FOR THE SILO

Ground Should be Selected on Which to Grow the Largest Possible Yield of Corn.

Now is the time to make arrangements for the silo. Ground should be selected on which to grow the largest possible yield of corn, and as conveniently located as possible, for it costs money to haul green corn long distances.

If the old alfalfa sod was plowed last fall for planting to corn this spring, so much the better; if not, plow as early as possible this spring, and plow deeply, using a dressing of well rotted manure to plow under if it can be had. Corn is a crude feeder and will give good account of any fertilizer you may have.

It is not too much to expect twelve to fifteen tons of green corn per acre at harvesting time, so the silo can be built to accommodate the area of corn grown! but be sure and build large enough; for when once used it will grow in favor, and the chances are the area of corn planted and the number of animals fed will be increased when the practise is once established.

Paralyzed Hens.

Hens that cannot stand and have no use of limbs, but seem to be otherwise healthy, are probably paralyzed. Little can be done for such birds and it is best to dispatch them quickly.

Eggs for Hatching.

Eggs must be from good, strong stock, fertile and fresh to hatch well. They must not be subjected to chills, jarring, impure air or too great heat.

Guardians of Forest

FIRE IN BLACK HILLS NATIONAL FOREST

THE latest word in the protection of the forest from fires comes from the Black Hills, where by means of a lookout on a high peak, who locates incipient fires by means of a map and telephones their exact location to various ranger stations, hundreds of thousands of acres of fine timber lands are made immune from the scourge that threatens the nation's lumber resources, says a writer in the New York Tribune.

The national forests of the Black Hills have been the scene of many disastrous fires in recent years. The country is sparsely settled, and it is difficult to get sufficient help to fight a fire that has gained any headway. On that account the forest service has been bending every energy to catch fires in their incipiency.

The first step toward solving the fire problem was the selection of a lookout station. A station was established on Harney peak, the highest point in Harney National forest, at an altitude of 7,242 feet above the sea level. The peak itself is a barren rock, from which a clear view can be had on every side. The approximate forest area which can be seen from the lookout station is 400,000 acres, and it is estimated that the amount of standing timber in this area is 1,200,000,000 feet. The radius of a circle which can be covered from any lookout station depends entirely upon the topography of the surrounding country, the weather conditions and the condition of the atmosphere. Fires have been definitely located from the Harney lookout station twenty-five miles distant. Some of the area thus covered is in the Black hills forest and some is outside national forest boundaries.

Useful Maps and Phone System.

Telephone connection is maintained between the lookout station and various ranger stations in the national forests. In fact, without an adequate system of telephone lines the lookout station would be of little value. But after sighting the smoke of a distant fire the lookout steps to the telephone box on top of the barren peak and is soon in communication with the nearest ranger station.

To describe the exact location of a fire, even when it is sighted from the peak, afforded a pretty problem. In most cases the smoke from the fire would not be visible to the rangers. The rolling hills, covered with the heavy growth of timber, effectually shut off all signs of distant fires. It would not do to depend entirely on general instructions, as there are few trails through the forest. The exact location must be described if an effective fight was to be made against the fire.

The solution was worked out by providing the forest officials with maps. On sighting a fire the man at the lookout station figures out its exact location on the map of the forest. He then telephones the location to the chief ranger, who is familiar with all the roads and trails in the forest and knows instantly how he can best reach the fire.

On receiving a fire warning from the man at the lookout station, with the map location of the blaze, the fire fighting force departs for the scene of the fire, armed with shovels, axes and other fire fighting paraphernalia. The effectiveness of this plan was shown last summer in a unique way. The lookout descried a column of smoke arising from a certain part of the forest and called up headquarters, describing the location on the map. The fire fighters were rushed to the scene of the fire in wagons and found it in a gully only a few hundred yards from a ranch house. Yet so well screened was the smoke from those at the ranch house that it had not been seen there, and the farmers were amazed when a fire fighting crew descended on the ranch with the information that a fire threatened destruction almost at the very door of the farmhouse.

Great Saving at Small Cost.

Besides being connected with the office of the former supervisor and with the various ranger stations in the forest, the Tarney forest lookout is also connected with the ranger stations on the Black hills forest. A shelter is constructed at the top of the peak for the use of the lookout. The guardian of this immense forest area lives a lonely life, but his wants are well provided for. He has a tent at the base of the spire of rock which forms the top of the peak. All his supplies and water have to be carried to him. He gets a salary of $75 a month, but is required to pay for his own supplies and the transportation of the same. Transportation of forest service equipment to and from the station is furnished, but that expense for a season does not exceed $25. It is difficult to estimate the amount of money saved by the establishment of this permanent lookout, but the sum is very great. The only other feasible method of patrol would be to select a number of less important peaks and establish lookout stations on them.

This would multiply the expense by at least four, but would result in no better service. To increase the number of guards would mean a heavy expense, and probably would not give as good results, for the reason that the heavy forests on the lower hills act as a screen, which makes it practically impossible to descry fires at a distance.

Between July 12, 1911, when the station was ready for use, and September 30, 28 forest fires occurred in the Harney forest. Seventeen of those were reported by the guard at the lookout station, and in only two cases where the lookout reported fires had a previous report been received. Six fires were reported from the lookout station which were within the Black hills forest, and one fire was outside forest boundaries. In every case the rangers were able to get to the scene promptly and to extinguish the fire before any appreciable damage had been done.

It is probable that the success of the Harney lookout will result in the establishment of similar stations in other forests. The old adage that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure seems particularly applicable to Uncle Sam's fire threatened timber reserves.

Always Leap Year in New Guinea.

So far as proposals of marriage are concerned in New Guinea it is always leap year, for in that island the men consider it beneath their dignity to notice women, much less to make overtures of marriage. Consequently the proposing is left to the women to do. When the ebony belle falls in love with a man she sends a piece of string to his sister, or, if he has no sister, to his mother, or another of his lady relatives. Then the lady who receives the string tells the dusky Adonis that the particular damsel is in love with him. No courting follows, however, for it is considered bad form to waste time in such a pursuit. If the man thinks he would like to wed the lady, he meets her alone, and they decide straight away whether to marry or drop the idea. In the former case the betrothal is announced. The man is then branded on the back with charcoal, while a mark is cut into the woman's skin. No breach of promise actions are possible in New Guinea, though if the lady is jilted her friends may hunt her lover up and "go" for him.

Question of Grammar.

The ready wit of the late Eugene V. Ware, author of "The Washerwoman's Song" and other poems, is shown in the following story:

He was giving a dinner, says Lippincott's, at his home in Kansas City, Kan., the place to which he had retired after he resigned from the office of pension commissioner at Washington under Roosevelt.

The guests were equally divided between Missourians from the twin city across the line and Kansans. All present had imbibed the spirit of their genial, humorous host.

Said a Missourian: "You Kansans always have your brass bands going and your flags flying. We from Missouri get tired of your cocksureness. Tell me, what have you decided about the hen, for instance; does she sit or does she set?"

"We don't bother about things like that," flashed Ware. "What concerns us, when she cackles, is has she laid or has she lied?"

Retribution.

J. Henry Peck emerged from the voting booth with a triumphant smile.

"This equal rights stunt is a great business," he remarked to a friend.

Then, glancing around carefully and drawing nearer, he whispered: "I voted against my wife."

SCIENCE AND INVENTION

TO BUILD TELEPHONE LINES

Farmers in Any Community Can Construct Own Communication at Very Little Expense.

The cost of a mile of telephone line, exclusive of the poles and labor which can be supplied by the farmers themselves, is about $7. This is a line using 30 poles to the mile and for the construction of which about 12 miles of wire are required.

For a full metallic system the cost is about $14 per mile, and the cost of each subscriber's instruments and equipment is about $13 more.

Telephone Is Convenient.

Chestnut or cedar make the best poles because they last longer in the ground. For a light line, poles 26 feet in length and five or six inches in diameter at the top are suitable.

For a grounded system, only two strands of wire are needed, and these are supported by 12-inch oak brackets, which should be nailed to the pole before it is set into the ground.

If the calls are too frequent, and the wires too heavily loaded, another pair of lines may be run on the same poles, but where two sets of lines are used a switching station must be located in some central house to allow for connection of one line to another.

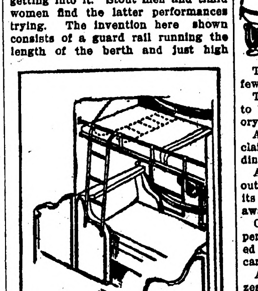
Farmers in any community can form little companies of their own and build their own lines at very little cost. They can obtain full instruction as to the erection of the line, and its operations from the manufacturers who supply them with wire and equipment.

The patent on the Bell telephone ran out years ago, and telephones are now manufactured by many persons. How did we ever get along without it?

NEW GUARD RAIL FOR BERTH

Invention, Sadly Needed in Railroad Trains, Recently Patented by New York Inventor.

An invention that was sadly needed is the guardrail for upper berths in railway trains, patented by a New York man. Among the numerous objections to the top berth is the opportunities for rolling out and dropping into the aisle and the difficulties of getting into it. Stout men and timid women find the latter performances trying. The invention here shown consists of a guard rail running the length of the berth and just high enough to prevent falling out, yet not high enough to be an annoyance. Pivotally mounted at one end of this rail is a ladder, which normally lies back across the berth, but which can be lowered to a vertical position when the owner of the bunk desires to climb into it, which he or she can do with ease.



New Berth Guard Rail.

Cause of Glacial Periods.

Another suggested cause of glacial periods is that they have been due to the shifting of the Milky Way, such as is known to have occurred. Assuming that much of the earth's heat comes from the stars, Dr. Rudolf Spitaler finds that the change of position in relation to the Milky Way might have given a very different distribution of temperature from that existing at the present time. The stars are not only crowded in the region of the Milky Way, but many of them are of the hottest type.

MOVING PICTURES IN LIGHT

Trick Is Simple and Consists Merely of Preventing Sun From Shining Directly on Screen.

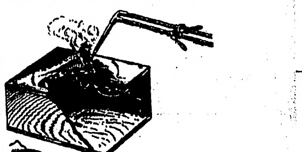
Stereopticon pictures either fixed or moving for use in ordinary daylight or in a brightly lighted room are now made in France. The trick is simple and consists merely of some device to keep the light from shining directly on the screen on which the picture is shown. In the Cinema palace, Paris, this is effected by arranging heavy curtains around the screen at proper positions and distances. The lantern, for protection, is at the opposite end of the hall, as is now usual. In another device the pictures are thrown on a sheet of ground glass forming one end of a large black box, whose opposite end is open to view. In this case the lantern is not in the same room with the spectators, and the picture resembles that seen on looking at the ground glass of an ordinary photographic camera. As the screen in both these cases is sheltered from the diffused light of the theater or hall, it is not necessary to extinguish or lower the lamps, although, of course, these should not be brilliant enough to dazzle the eyes. In describing these "full daylight" devices it has been wrongly stated by some writers that they depend on special brilliancy in the lantern or on some arrangement of reflectors. This is incorrect. The only things necessary are to keep the light away from the screen and out of the spectators' eyes.

MAKE SOLID GOLD CASTINGS

Dentists Have Clever Method of Securing Piece of Metal Which Is Free from All Blowholes.

(By ALBERT F. BISHOP, in the Scientific American.)

Dentists have a very clever method of making solid gold castings. A train of gears is employed, which revolves a spindle that carries two jointed arms. The outer end of one arm has an inclosure where the little mold is placed, while the other arm carries a counterbalance. Just in front of the mold is a fireclay block, hollowed to receive the gold which is melted with the blowpipe. The gearing is rapidly worked by hand, revolving the melted gold, which is forced very quickly into the mold. Owing to centrifugal force, a very solid and clean-cut casting is made, which is free from blowholes.



Casting Gold Centrifugally.

In making the mold, it is necessary for the dentist first to make a pattern. This is done by filling the cavity in the tooth with wax. A wire attached to the pattern holds it in place while the clay mold is being made, as shown in one of the figures. When the mold is complete, the wax is melted out. Another figure shows a section of the mold as when placed on a rotary arm, also the block in which the gold is melted.

A BLESSING IN DISGUISE

Nervous Breakdown Is a Warning That You Must Heed to Avoid Something Worse.

Nervous exhaustion, or breakdown of the nerves, is more often a blessing than anything else. The nerves have rebelled and you should be thankful it is no worse than it is. Let it serve as a sharp warning to relieve the strain and to take a treatment that will build up your nerves.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a real nerve tonic. They supply plenty of nourishing red blood to the exhausted nerves and do not excite and urge them on to do work which they have already shown they cannot do. Medicines which whip on the tired nerves do more harm than no medicine at all. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People not only start in immediately to give relief but continue to strengthen the nerves until they are able to do their work once more.

Mrs. J. E. Udelle, whose address is Box 130, R. F. D. No. 1, Osseo, Minn., says: "I was so completely worn out from overwork and nervousness that I was unable to continue at my work as dressmaker. I was very weak and my back ached continually. My stomach was so weak that I could eat nothing but light food and even then I would have pains like cramps. Gas formed on my stomach. I was short of breath and had palpitation of the heart. I was in bed for three months. At Davenport, Iowa, I was under doctors' care but received only temporary relief so gave it up. I then used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. When I began using the pills I had no strength at all and had lost a great deal in weight. I did not have to take the pills long before I felt better. I gave the pills a fair trial and was entirely cured."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are guaranteed to be free from any harmful or habit-forming drugs. They have given the most gratifying results in nervous headaches, neuralgia, nervous dyspepsia, St. Vitus' dance, and even in partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia. Write for the free booklet, "Diseases of the Nervous System."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

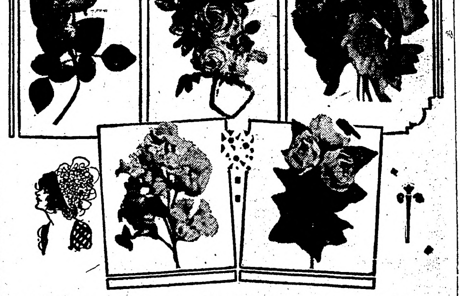
New Flower Arrangements



FLOWERS are used in such profusion and in so great a variety of ways, on all sorts of shapes, that they can hardly be unfashionably placed. But certain new arrangements are popular and very effective on the shapes for which they are intended. First of all, those stiff, upstanding and compact branchings, known by the matter-of-fact name of "stick-up," hold first place as good sellers. They are used as a finishing touch with or without other flower trimming. Often a crown is entirely covered with blossoms, clambering over it in the most natural manner, following its outlines exactly, but such a crown is invariably finished with a "stick-up," such as those shown in the picture here, or with one made of ribbon or feathers.

Roses, as always, lead all other flowers in demand. The sweet pea follows closely, the lilac and the violet have a great vogue, and large daisies promise much prominence for midsummer. But it is to be remembered that all the flowers that grow (and some that don't) are to be found among the displays which make the millinery shops places of gay and inspiring beauty.

Large picture hats for midsummer show the water lily, with single, lifelike blossoms, set at intervals about the base of the crown or on the brim. The ox-eyed daisy in white, yellow and sometimes in black, is set flat to brims and crowns, either single blossoms or in groups of two or three. Big single daisies having each petal outlined with a hair line in black make a captivating trimming on wide brimmed hats for midsummer, for they possess much distinction and are among the "exclusive" novelties. One who is clever with water colors and brush should be able to take the plain white or yellow daisy, outline the petals with a thread-like line of black, and place these ordinary daughters of the field among the distinguished and exclusive visitors. They are very fine on lingerie hats and on all the big midsummer straws.

One thing must be borne in mind in using flowers or any other trimming this season. In all hats the shape's the thing. Outlines must not be obliterated or lost sight of. Decorations must not interfere with lines, but either call attention to them, accentuate them, or modestly keep out of their way. For this reason we see small, flat bows, little wings, diminutive fancy-feathers posed as if trying to find the most inconspicuous position for themselves. On long, sweeping aigrettes and feathers, as well as flowers, placed so as to continue and prolong the line of the curving brim edge. Either this poise, or the straight and rigid "stick-up," which appears to be trying to take up as small space as possible, with leaves and blossoms completely drawn together and only broadening out at the top when the outline of the crown has been passed, are stylish.

Millinery is gay with flowers. On those street hats without flowers bright colors are provided, in facings and brim coverings of silk, or in bands and ornaments of lace over bright foundations. Primrose and vivid greens, cerise and gold are the favored colors.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

COLORED FLOWERS OF SILK

All Designs and Colors of These Millinery Adornments Seem to Have Found Favor.

On girdles and at the fastening of fichus and bodice drapery the silk flower is almost ubiquitous. Large roses, wound around hard cotton-padded centers, are made very successfully now. Others have their petals cut out and bound with narrow satin ribbon.

The double petal is sewed on the wrong side, turned and stitched again on the edge of the right and gathered in at the base. Five or six of these make a lovely flower, clustered around a center of yellow stamens, bought at the millinery counter.

There are flowers that are made of round petals and some of pointed and oval petals. Pond lilies are enjoying great favor; camellias and gardenias are next; the rose is always in high popularity.

On hats, a single handmade flower of large size will grace millinery. Clusters of them will be used on lace and linen caps for babies, and the little straw bonnets for tiny tots will be just as highly favored as ever.

What is prettier than a lingerie hat with a colored flower of silk?

Not for the Bird Lovers.

Many of the feather fashions of this season will be bitterly opposed by the bird lovers, and there are happily many women who have the courage of their convictions and who will ignore the decrees of Mme. la Mode and frankly show their preference for the graceful floral aigrettes now being made.

Flowers are suggested as a substitute for feathers that have been procured by cruelty, but it may not be out of place to point out to the gentle dames who wish to protect bird life that it is at least equally their duty to see that in the modes they are ready to adopt they are not simply encouraging the sweatshop evil. Silken roses and velvet pansies may entail as great hardships as the aigrette or the osprey.

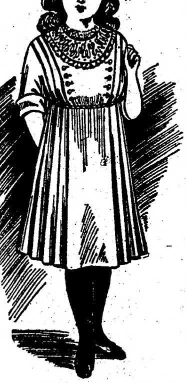
Untrimmed Hats.

Paris has set its seal of approval on the untrimmed hat. This novel fashion is illustrated on hats of small size or of picture dimensions, the only attempt at trimming being a narrow line of velvet which covers the joint between brim and crown. In hats of picture style, carried out in velvet or plush, the no trimming idea is very charming, the draped material, especially the plush, being sufficient trimming in itself.

White Monogram.

The newest handkerchiefs are very small and of some vivid color, says the New York Herald. But the monogram is always embroidered in white.

For Small Girl



A smart little dress of cream serge is shown here. It has an empire bodice trimmed with three tucks each side; buttons and braided loops trim the inner tuck; the yoke is braided and edged with a narrow silk frill; lace fills up the space at neck.

The skirt is entirely plaited; a thick silk cord hides the joining of bodice to skirt.

Materials required: Three yards serge 46 inches wide, one dozen buttons, one-half dozen yards braid, three-fourths yard cord.

New Bags and Purses.

Red hand bags and purses are expected to be extremely popular this spring and the shops show many varieties, both in shape and material. A very popular shape is an unusually flat envelope with two long leather straps. The bag is not large and is almost square. It is of long grain morocco in the brightest red. A flat envelope strap bag has a metal rim. For more sober taste there are charming brown suede or seal bags and envelopes. A very flat dull seal bag with what is called a gate frame, a contrivance which keeps the bag much flatter, mounted in gilt, is $5. Black suede bags and envelopes are extremely fashionable for women who wear black at all. Long, flat bags of this sort are mounted in silver or silver gilt.

The Largest Bells.

"Great Paul," the bell of St. Paul's Cathedral, in London, weighs nearly 17 tons and is nearly 30 feet around. The first "Big Ben" of Westminster was cast more than 50 years ago and weighed more than 14 tons. But "Big Ben" had a crack and was cast over, losing some weight, and the clapper was made smaller, now being about 600 pounds instead of a ton. The great bell, "Peter of York," cost $10,000, weighs about 13 tons and is 22 feet in diameter.

The largest hanging bell in the world is in the great Buddhist monastery near Canton. It is 18 feet in height and 40 feet in circumference, being cast of solid bronze. This is one of the eight monster bells that were cast by command of Emperor Yung Lo about A. D. 1400. It cost the lives of eight men, who were killed in the process of casting.

Surgeon in Ancient Times.

High honorariums were paid surgeons in ancient times. When Darius, the son of Hystaspes, sprained his foot Damocedes was called in, another surgeon of renown having failed to effect a cure. Damocedes was successful, and the king took him to his harem and introduced the doctor to the ladies of the court. The ladies filled a vase of gold with money and precious pearls, which a eunuch was ordered to carry to the doctor. The eunuch let fall the vase, and the careful historian tells us that slaves gathered up the pearls.

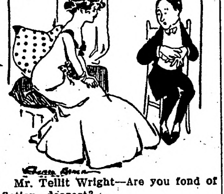
The One Sure Thing.

"We can always be sure of one thing," said the wise man.

"What is that?" asked the foolish one.

"That we are never sure of anything."

SHE WAS WISE.



Mr. Tellit Wright—Are you fond of fiction, dearest?

Miss Cutting Hintz—Yes; but don't tell me I'm the only girl you have ever loved.

Milky Way Causes Glaciers.

Innuendo.

"What's Cholly so angry about?"

"Oh, some rude girl asked him if he was a suffragette."

They Saved His Life.

Does it pay to stop your motor car after an accident and go back to see what has happened? Two young motorists on the south side believe it does.

With a green chauffeur these two boys were trying out a new model touring car. They were sitting in the back-seat when the greenhorn at the steering wheel gave it a twist and came within an ace of hitting an old man at a crossing. The victim was so shocked that he fell to the pavement, and a crowd gathered in an instant.

Looking back, the motorists decided that things looked bad, but that they had better go back and see whether the old party was killed. Finding him all right, but winded, they took him for a nice ride around the parks. So pleasant did they make it for him that when they took him home to his wife he introduced them as "The two young men who saved my life."

They are now thinking of applying for Carnegie medals.

All He Wanted Was Just Plain Eggs.

A youth entered one of the "ham-and-row" cafes on Grand avenue and ordered eggs. "Up or over?" asked the man behind the counter. "I just want eggs," replied the prospective diner. "But do you want them up or over?" repeated the waiter, and again the guest asserted that he desired "only eggs." The third time the party of the second part insisted on his query, whereupon the patron, with a sigh of despair, said "I guess I'll take a steak."—Kansas City Star.

If You Like a Little Quiet Fun

Ask some pompous person if Grape-Nuts Food helps build the brain.

Chances are you get a withering sneer and a hiss of denunciation.

Then sweetly play with the learned toad.

Ask him to tell you the analysis of brain material and the analysis of Grape-Nuts.

"Don't know? Why, I supposed you based your opinions on exact knowledge instead of pushing out a conclusion like you would a sneeze."

"Well, now your tire is punctured, let's sit down like good friends and repair it."

The bulky materials of brain are water and albumin, but these things cannot blend without a little worker known as Phosphate of Potash, defined as a "mineral salt."

One authority, Geohegan, shows in his analysis of brain, 5.33 per cent total of mineral salts, over one-half being Phosphoric Acid and Potash combined, (Phosphate of Potash) 2.91 per cent.

Beaunis, another authority, shows Phosphoric Acid and Potash (Phosphate of Potash) more than one-half the total mineral salts, being 73.44 per cent in a total of 101.07.

Analysis of Grape-Nuts shows Potassium and Phosphorus (which join and make Phosphate of Potash) is considerable more than one-half of all the mineral salts in the food.

Dr. Geo. W. Carey, an authority on the constituent elements of the body, says: "The gray matter of the brain is controlled entirely by the inorganic cell-salt, Potassium Phosphate (Phosphate of Potash). This salt unites with albumin and by the addition of oxygen creates nerve fluid or the gray matter of the brain. Of course, there is a trace of other salts and other organic matter in nerve fluid, but Potassium Phosphate is the chief factor, and has the power within itself to attract, by its own law of affinity, all things needed to manufacture the elixir of life."

Further on he says: "The beginning and end of the matter is to supply the lacking principle, and in molecular form exactly as nature furnishes it in vegetables, fruits and grain. To supply deficiencies—this is the only law of cure."

Brain is made of Phosphate of Potash as the principal Mineral Salt, added to albumin and water.

Grape-Nuts contains that element as more than one-half of all its mineral salts.

Every day's use of brain wears away a little.

Suppose your kind of food does not contain Phosphate of Potash.

How are you going to rebuild today the worn-out parts of yesterday?

And if you don't, why shouldn't nervous prostration and brain-fag result?

Remember, Mind does not work well on a brain that is even partly broken down from lack of nourishment.

It is true that other food besides Grape-Nuts contains varying quantities of Brain food.

Plain wheat and barley do. But in Grape-Nuts there is a certainty.

And if the elements demanded by Nature, are eaten, the life forces have the needed material to build from.

A healthy brain is important, if one would "do things" in this world.

A man who sneers at "Mind" sneers at the best and least understood part of himself. That part which some folks believe links us to the Infinite.

Mind asks for a healthy brain upon which to act, and Nature has defined a way to make a healthy brain and renew it day by day as it is used up from work of the previous day.

Nature's way to rebuild is by the use of food which supplies the things required.

FROM THE EDITOR.

He Forgot That He Had a Stomach

Talking of food, there is probably no professional man subjected to a greater, more wearing mental strain than the responsible editor of a modern newspaper.

To keep his mental faculties constantly in good working order, the editor must keep his physical powers up to the highest rate of efficiency. Nothing will so quickly upset the whole system as badly selected food and a disordered stomach. It therefore follows that he should have right food, which can be readily assimilated, and which furnishes true brain nourishment.

"My personal experience in the use of Grape-Nuts and Postum," writes a Philadelphia editor, "so exactly agrees with your advertised claim as to their merits that any further exposition in that direction would seem to be superfluous. They have benefited me so much, however, during the five years that I have used them that I do not feel justified in withholding my testimony.

"General 'high living,' with all that the expression implies as to a generous table, brought about indigestion, in my case, with restlessness at night and lassitude in the morning, accompanied by various pains and distressing sensations during working hours.

"The doctor diagnosed the condition as 'catarrh of the stomach,' and prescribed various medicines, which did me no good. I finally 'threw physics to the dogs,' gave up tea and coffee and heavy meat dishes, and adopted Grape-Nuts and Postum as the chief articles of my diet.

"I can conscientiously say, and I wish to say it with all the emphasis possible to the English language, that they have benefited me as medicines never did, and more than any other food that ever came on my table.

"My experience is that the Grape-Nuts food has steadied and strengthened both brain and nerves to a most positive degree. How it does it I cannot say, but I know that after breakfasting on Grape-Nuts food one actually forgets he has a stomach, let alone 'stomach trouble.' It is, in my opinion, the most beneficial as well as the most economical food on the market, and has absolutely no rival." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

KNOWS NOW

Doctor Was Fooled by His Own Case For a Time.

It's easy to understand how ordinary people get fooled by coffee when doctors themselves sometimes forget the facts.

A physician speaks of his own experience:

"I had used coffee for years and really did not exactly believe it was injuring me although I had palpitation of the heart every day. (Tea contains caffeine—the same drug found in coffee—and is just as harmful as coffee.)

"Finally one day a severe and almost fatal attack of heart trouble frightened me and I gave up both tea and coffee, using Postum instead, and since that time I have had absolutely no heart palpitation except on one or two occasions when I tried a small quantity of coffee, which caused severe irritation and proved to me I must let it alone.

"When we began using Postum it seemed weak—that was because we did not make it according to directions—but now we put a little bit of butter in the pot when boiling and allow the Postum to boil full 15 minutes which gives it the proper rich flavor and the deep brown color.

"I have advised a great many of my friends and patients to leave off coffee and drink Postum, in fact I daily give this advice." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Many thousands of physicians use Postum in place of tea and coffee in their own homes and prescribe it to patients.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

THE CHILDREN

LITTLE TAD GAINED HIS WAY

Squad of Dirty Street Urchins Were Fed in White House by Lincoln's Son, Despite Cook.

Both the steward and the cook had remonstrated with "Master Tad" upon bringing into the kitchen of the White House "such squads of poor, dirty, hungry street urchins to be fed," and at last Peter said that Mrs. Lincoln must be told, says Wide Awake.

Tad flew into a rage, ran upstairs to see his mother himself, and on finding her out, searched the place for his busy father.

Meanwhile, the small objects of his charity waited at the lower door—for Peter had absolutely refused to let them "step inside."

The indignant boy spied his father just crossing the yard with bowed head, eyes to the ground, talking earnestly to Mr. Seward as they walked to the department of state together. He cried out to him at once:

"Father, father! Can't I bring these poor, cold, hungry boys home with me whenever I want to? Isn't it our kitchen?"

By this time Tad had his father by the hand, who stopped to listen to the frantic appeal.

"Can't I give them a good warm dinner today? They're just as hungry as beasts, and two of 'em are boys of a soldier, too!—and, father, I'm going to discharge Peter this minute if he doesn't get out the meat and chickens and pies and all the things we had left yesterday. Say, mayn't I? Isn't it our kitchen, father?"

Secretary Seward was shaking with laughter. Mr. Lincoln turned to him with a twinkle.

"Seward, advise with me. This case requires diplomacy."

Mr. Seward patted Tad on the back and said he must be careful not to run the government into debt, and the president took Tad's little brown hands in his own big one, and with a droll smile bid him to "run along home and feed the boys," and added:

"Tell Peter that you are really required to obey the Bible by getting in the maimed and the blind, and that he must be a better Christian than he is."

In less than an hour, Mr. Seward said, they passed through the yard on their way to the cabinet meeting, and no less than ten small boys were sitting with Tad on the lower steps, cracking nuts and having a "state dinner."

Mr. Lincoln remarked that the "kitchen was ours."

SLOT MACHINES NOT MODERN

Found in Alexandria Century Before Christian Era, According to Hunter of Curious.

A hunter of the curious tells us that slot machines, very far from being a modern invention, were found in Alexandria, a century before the Christian era, says the Springfield Republican. According to a historian of that time, there was in existence a sacrificial vessel from which water would flow only when money was dropped in the slot. Now we want to know whether the ancients had chewing gum.

Turned the Subject.

Eddie, who has been punished for eating green apples, is again in the garden, indulging his appetite for the forbidden fruit, when papa approaches silently, and stands frowning down upon him. Eddie hangs his head, with the half-eaten apple in his little fist thrust behind him. Then, suddenly, the trembling lip stiffens, he looks up into the stern face, with a guileless smile, and pipes: "Papa, is dreen apple pie made out of turrants?"

Hard on the Pioneer.

"Now, Johnnie," said the teacher, "tell me what an engineer is?"

"He is a man that works an engine," replied Johnnie.

"Correct," said the teacher. "Now, Tommy, can you tell me what a pioneer is?"

"Yes, sir," answered Tommy; "he's a man that works a piano."

One on Willie Smith.

Mother—"What? Smoking again? Why don't you try to be like Willie Smith? He never smokes." Jimmie—"If it made me as sick as it does him I wouldn't neither."

AMUSING GAME OF BASEBALL

Apparatus Invented by Brooklyn Man Whose Mechanism Is Controllable by Skill and Chance.

In describing an apparatus invented by D. J. Bebon of Brooklyn, N. Y., the Scientific American says:

The engraving is a perspective view showing the game apparatus complete. The invention relates to an apparatus whose mechanism is controllable partly by skill and partly by chance for playing an indoor game having more or less analogy to baseball. It comprises parts representing a baseball diamond or field, and various bases disposed about the same, the parts being disposed so that the balls may be rolled from base to base, and various other provisions being made for "strikes," "balls," "home runs," "base hits," and "putting out." The apparatus further comprises means whereby a ball (representing a player) reaches a base, it may have the effect of liberating other balls lodged upon other bases and located more or less distant from the ball which liberates them.

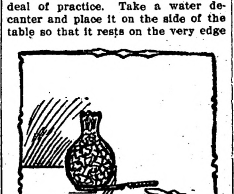
NEAT LITTLE PARLOR TRICK

Knife Is Made to Leap Up and Make Half-Circle, Falling Into Decanter—Requires Practice.

Here is a very good trick which may be performed by boys after a good deal of practice. Take a water decanter and place it on the side of the table so that it rests on the very edge (see illustration). Then take an ordinary dessert knife and place the rounded end of it between the table and the decanter, pushing it about the quarter of an inch under the decanter, or just far enough to make the knife stick out horizontally. When all is ready, strike a sharp blow with the finger beneath the handle of the knife. If the right force is given to the blow, the knife will leap up and make a half-circle in the air in the direction of the mouth of the decanter, into which it will fall, handle downward, if rightly done. It requires a good deal of practice to accomplish the feat, and when practicing it is well to use a large-mouthed decanter till you are sure of your blow. After you have become expert at the trick you can toss the knife into a medium-mouthed bottle with ease. While practicing cover the table and your lap with heavy cloth so as to protect both from the sharp edge of the knife should it fall wide of the mark.



Parlor Trick.

Boiling Things Soft.

There are many things, such as eggs, that can be boiled hard, and other things that can be boiled soft, and one of them is the potato.

The potato belongs to a class of foods called starchy, because it is almost entirely composed of grains of starch. These grains are contained in a stiff woody sort of covering, which will not expand, as it is not elastic. If the potato were left in the ground, it would need this starch for its future existence, but when it is dug up and boiled something happens to the starch.

The hot water soaks through the hard woody covering and gets to the grains of starch, which immediately begin to expand, and as the hard covering cannot expand with it, there is nothing for it but to burst, and by the time all the hard part of the potato has been broken up in this way and a quantity of water has been absorbed the potato is quite soft.

The Parson—How did you get that black eye, Tommy?

Tommy—Fighting.

The Parson—I'm sorry to hear that. Don't you know that it is wrong to fight?

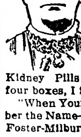
Tommy—Yes, sir. That's what I told your kid when he licked me yesterday.

Small Boy's Interpretation.

"I was much mortified today to have Gerald say to me, before company: 'Shut up, ma.'" "How discouraging!" "I have done my best to teach the boy to say: 'Mamma, pray be quiet!' when he desires me to cease speaking, but it seems I have labored in vain. What am I to do?"

COULD HARDLY MOVE.

Kidney Trouble Caused Terrible Misery.



Mrs. J. S. Downs, 219 N. Sixth St., Chickasha, Okla., says: "My back across my kidneys became so lame I could hardly move. My limbs cramped and stiffened and I felt completely worn out. Nervousness and headaches kept me in an unstrung condition and frequent passages of the kidney secretions added to my discomfort. I was soon relieved, however, after I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and when I had used four boxes, I felt like another woman."

MRS. SELBY AND PRIZE BABY

"I have always used Cuticura Soap and no other for my baby and he has never had a sore of any kind. He does not even chafe as most babies do. I feel sure that it is all owing to Cuticura Soap, for he is fine and healthy, and when five months old, won a prize in a baby contest. It makes my heart ache to go into so many homes and see a sweet-faced baby with the whole top of its head a solid mass of scurf, caused by poor soap. I always recommend Cuticura, and nine times out of ten the next time I see the mother she says: 'Oh! I am so glad you told me of Cuticura.'" (Signed) Mrs. G. A. Selby, Redondo Beach, California, Jan. 15, 1911.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

NO ONE STRONGER THAN HIS STOMACH.

The celebrated Dr. Abernethy of London was firmly of the opinion that disorders of the stomach were the most prolific source of human ailments in general. A recent medical writer says: "every feeling, emotion and affection reports at the stomach (through the system of nerves) and the stomach is affected accordingly. It is the vital center of the body * * * * ." He continues, "so we may be said to live (through) the stomach." He goes on to show that the stomach is the vital center of the body. For weak stomachs and the consequent indigestion or dyspepsia, and the multitude of various diseases which result therefrom, no medicine can be better suited as a curative agent than

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Mrs. Mureen.

"Several months ago I suffered from a severe pain right under the breast-bone," writes Mrs. G. M. Mureen, of Corona, Calif. "Had suffered from it, off and on, for several years. I also suffered from heart-burn, did not know what was the matter with me. I tried several medicines but they did me no good. Finally, I was told it was my liver. I did not dare to eat as it made me worse. Whenever I swallowed anything it seemed that I would faint—it hurt so. I grew very thin and weak from not eating. Was told to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took five bottles of it, and could feel myself getting better from the first dose. I could eat a little without pain and grew strong fast. To-day I am strong and well and can do a big day's work with ease. Can eat everything and have put on flesh wonderfully. I will say to all sufferers write to Dr. Pierce. He has my undying gratitude."

Before Allowing an Operation

Please Read These Two Letters.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before. Then after all that suffering Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored her health.

HERE IS HER OWN STATEMENT.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement—I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for several months without much relief, and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. To-day I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise every woman who is afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. Orville Rock, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Mich.

"THERE NEVER WAS A WORSE CASE."

Rockport, Ind.—"There never was a worse case of women's ills than mine, and I cannot begin to tell you what I suffered. For over two years I was not able to do anything. I was in bed for a month and the doctor said nothing but an operation would cure me. My father suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so to please him I took it, and I improved wonderfully, so I am able to travel, ride horseback, take long rides and never feel any ill effects from it. I can only ask other suffering women to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation."—Mrs. Margaret Meredith, R. F. D. No. 8, Rockport, Ind.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Minnesota, too, belongs to Teddy.

Wonder if Adolph O. Eberhart still thinks himself a man of destiny?

As lieutenant governor Sam Gordon clipped the wings of those precious birds that have long ruled in Minnesota's political barnyard. Let him, as governor, finish the job.

The old republican machine of Minnesota was just as rotten as any ever operated in Illinois or Pennsylvania. Like the machines in those states, it has also succumbed to the big stick and is dead so far as national politics may be concerned. It may still struggle for a while in state politics, but its real finish is coming this year.

Cupid's Lucky Move

By

OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

Senator Elias Lansing wanted to get married again. So did Mrs. Marsh. That is, Senator Lansing had not dreamed of marrying until he saw Mrs. Marsh, and Mrs. Marsh had no desire to assume matrimonial vows for the second time until she met the senator.

They had met at a reception at the Italian legation one afternoon, and as soon as the senator had made his best bow to the bright little woman in the stunning gown and hat of king's blue Cupid began to get in his work. The blue velvet hat on the soft golden hair made her look very girlish, and the senator, looking from her to the slender girl beside her, wondered if he had heard aright when presented to her daughter.

Mrs. Marsh and Isabel met the senator often at teas, dinners, theaters and balls. Washington began to look wise and nod its head when the senator took to dropping into Mrs. Marsh's box after the first act, or walking home from church with the widow and her daughter. And Mrs. Marsh was always wearing violets these days—huge bunches—with the usual orchid.

The man was in love with the widow. But the trouble was this: He was poor—poor, as senators go. Having no one to support but himself, he was able to afford the show the world demands of a senator. He had an apartment that was all that an apartment should be. And his clothes, his servants and his car came up to the public demand. Until now he had resisted marriageable daughters, debutantes and widows.

On the other hand, Mrs. Marsh, after ten years' absence, had come back to Washington, taken a small house with a huge rent, and she and her daughter wore gowns which were the envy of every woman in the capital. It was true the gardener did run the electric car for them and the same maid was always in evidence, but what of that! Such gowns and such well-kept house seemed to signify an ample supply of money to the senator's simple mind.

"I won't marry any woman who can't live on my income," he said over and over again to himself. "Even if she has her own money I've got to feel I can keep her. No. It's no use; so I guess it's home to Wexford county for Elias when the session's over. Anyhow, it'll be good to get back to the old house and Jeremy will be glad to see me—good old dog—and Allen and his wife and the horses. Oh, the simple life for me; and yet things somehow won't seem just as they did before. Allen and Sarah do make me comfortable, that's sure; and Jeremy dog is a good old scout enough, mornings hunting and nights by the fire, but if there was just somebody to—"

That somebody wasn't so vague as it sounds. There was a clearly defined vision always before his eyes. But, strangely enough, instead of wearing blue velvet she was always clad in blue ginghams—sometimes with a dainty white apron and smiling at him across the breakfast table. Somehow he liked her in the gingham. He grew absent-minded and morose.

One night to get away from everything—at a debutante's ball—he hid behind some palms in the conservatory. The dance music, soft and dreamy so far away, and the faint splash of a fountain were soothing. He had his dreams to himself. Mrs. Marsh and Isabel were both at the dance, but both were in demand. He had danced two with the former, and there was a long interval until the next with her. He had none between. But if he couldn't have his lady love, or at least be with her, he was becoming contented with this vision of his—the lady in blue gingham.

The music and fountain became fainter and slowly stopped. The senator's head nodded and he slipped just over the edge of day-dreamland into real dreamland with the same sweet golden lady leading him on. He did not know the difference until he heard her voice behind him on the other side of the palms.

"Mercy, Isabel! I should have died if I hadn't had this chance to rest. Just think, Annie and I finished all that huge ironing and here I am dancing. Tell me, dearie, you don't think momsy is an old goose, do you, for really liking a good time so well?"

Senator Lansing gripped the arm of his bench aid started to rise. No—he couldn't! One step and they would see him, and he would not dare let them know he had heard. The situation was frightful for him, but there was no help for it. He must stay. He did not hear Isabel's low answer—it might have been a mere kiss. Then Mrs. Marsh went on.

"Well, anyway, dearie, it's about all ended isn't it? Are you quite sure we will have enough money left to pay O'Hara and Annie and get back decently to Claytonia after we sell the car?" Again Isabel's low tones answered inaudibly, but Mrs. Marsh's distinct voice could not be ignored. "Anyway, dearest, I'm glad we came and so, so sorry to go, but the money is all gone and we've got to. I am glad Charley knows about our poverty. Oh, Isabel, you ought to be the happiest girl in the world. I am so glad for you and to have you so happy is worth coming for."

Then Isabel answered more plainly and with a happy laugh. "And I do not believe anyone knows we make nearly all our own gowns and every hat we wear. No one would blame us, dear, for wanting to have one last good time, even if it did take our last cent to do it. I really think people like us. They seem to."

But what was that! Mrs. Marsh sobbing, by the gods! The senator gasped. Then Isabel's voice: "There, momsy; don't, oh please; please don't. Yes, I guessed it. I know all about it, and he is an old dear, too. But why he doesn't say something I can't understand. There, there, dear, that is better. That's it. Put your head down here. It is too bad we can't just live here, on your account, momsy dear. But maybe we can come again sometime, and maybe he will be here then, too."

A few more broken words: "Much hurry—this dance with so and so—he'll be hunting the town for me—there momsy—no your nose isn't red—the idea!" Their voices moved away.

Senator Lansing was trembling with joy. Surely there was no mistake. They could only have meant one person—himself. And their secret—now his—should die with him.

It seemed hours before time for his dance. Mrs. Marsh, radiant in pale blue satin and not in the least looking tired, was willing to sit out the dance in the conservatory.

The senator wasted no time. "I want to ask you a funny question, Mrs. Marsh, if you don't mind. Do you ever wear blue gingham dresses?"

"Why, yes, you funny man. I live in them at home, and what is more, there is nothing I like better."

"I know it, Laura. Laura, dear, I love you. Will you marry me tomorrow? You must."

And Laura said simply, "Yes, Elias, dear, I will." And although she did not say, "This is so sudden," she thought so.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs Alkenbach and Mr. and Mrs Von Wald visited at the hospitable home of P. F. Cuddigan east of town on Sunday afternoon.

The Holt ball team played a game at Middle River last Sunday and lost by a score of 12 to 2. They say it was a great game—for the first two innings. Next Sunday a team from Excel is expected to play here.

Holt Will Celebrate

The glorious Fourth of July will be properly celebrated in Holt this year unless the weather man puts up a too strenuous interference. There was a meeting held Wednesday evening to consider the matter, and the celebration was decided upon. Dr. Nelson, S. S. Kolden and B. L. Backe were chosen as a committee to take charge of the arrangements and enough money was pledged to assure success. The celebration will be thoroughly advertised and all the neighbors invited to attend. Begin now to make plans to spend July 4th in Holt. There will be no doubt of having a good time.

S. S. Kolden spent Sunday at Nielsville with his brother L. S. Kolden. He returned on Monday and brought with him two of the Payne children who have been making their home with their grandparents there

PUZZLES FOR THE FISHERMEN

Nature Is Playing Queer Pranks on the Fishing Grounds Off Massachusetts.

The otter trawler, Ripple, which with two sister boats reached T wharf this morning, ran into immense shoals of herring ninety miles southeast of Highland light. The herring were not the ordinary isolated school of a few thousand fish, but a whole collection of schools. The fish were large, too, and they judged that a netter could have made a year's stake all at once if all the fish could have been rounded up.

To back up this story the Ripple had physical proof that nature is playing strange pranks on the fishing grounds. The steamer brought in a sturgeon, one of the largest ever landed at the dock, and as far as could be learned the first specimen ever landed here in midwinter. Dressed, the sturgeon weighed 175 pounds, but as caught with head, tail and fins it tipped the scales at over 400 pounds. Sturgeon, like mackerel, is a warm weather fish, and just what this old fellow was doing out in freezing weather was a matter of conjecture. With a fresh sturgeon in and herring sighted in the offing T wharf wouldn't have been surprised this morning to have heard that mackerel were schooling in the Frog Pond.—Boston Globe.

LONE DOG KILLS WILDCAT

Battle Royal in Oregon in Which Canine Accomplishes Unprecedented Feat.

Punch, the four-year-old hound dog owned by F. J. Steward, established an unprecedented feat this week when he whipped a full-grown wildcat in a battle royal. H. C. R. Akin, who is the owner of the ranch which is managed by Steward, while walking across his ranch was accompanied by the hound, when the hound took up a trail which he discovered in the light fall of snow.

The trail led up to an old burned tree snag. Upon coming up with the dog Akin found that the latter had treed a wildcat. Akin was unarmed, but managed to get the fierce animal where the dog could get at him. The wildcat and dog "mixed" immediately and the battle that followed was fierce. Both wildcat and dog were nigh well exhausted when the dog, revived by another spurt of strength, obtained a hold on the cat which finished the latter after a few minutes' additional struggle.—Sheridan correspondence Portland Oregonian.

OHIO THE NEXT BATTLEGROUND

REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRATIC VOTERS NAME CHOICE FOR PRESIDENT TUESDAY.

LIGHT VOTE PREDICTED

Ballots of Both Parties Are Large and Complicated.—Fight Between Wilson and Harman.

Columbus, May 21.—All the presidential candidates now in Ohio rest ing after their whirlwind week leading up to the primary election and the campaign managers began a final effort to instruct the voters how properly to mark their ballots. Both Republican and Democratic ballots are large and complicated.

On the Republican ballot there will be three sets of candidates for delegates named in each of the 21 districts. These are pledged respectively to President Taft, Colonel Roosevelt and Senator La Follette. The names of the presidential candidates will not appear on the ballots. The six delegates-at-large will be named by the state convention here in June.

In addition to voting for delegates, the Democratic voter will have a special ballot on which the names of Governors Harmon and Wilson will appear.

The victorious candidate will name the six delegates-at-large.

Both ballots are complicated by carrying full county tickets, names of candidates to county, judicial and state conventions and congressional candidates.

The Socialists will have a complete national and state ticket in the field and expect to poll a larger vote than at any previous primary.

Special elections for bond issues in many counties are also to be held at the primary Tuesday and in a few counties voters will be required to mark three separate tickets. The primary will open at 5:30 a. m. and close at 5:30 p. m., but on account of the complicated nature of the ballot it is expected that the returns will be slow in coming to the county boards of election.

Although the interest aroused by the campaign of the presidential candidates of both parties has been intense, it is not believed that an extraordinary vote will be polled as the voters are required to give their political affiliation before securing a ballot and this, it is claimed, together with the complexity of the ballot in many counties, will tend to keep voters from the polls.

CONVICTS LAW LEAGUE

Object Is to Promote Prison Reforms and Abolish Crime.

Phoenix, Ariz., May 21.—Two hundred convicts in the Arizona penitentiary at Florence, have organized themselves into a so-called "law and order league," the constitution of which sets forth the belief of the members in prison reforms and names the purpose of the league to be the promotion of better morals and the abolishments of crime.

Anthracite Strike Ended.

Wilkes Barre, Pa., May 21.—By a vote of 323 to 64, the anthracite mine workers in convention ratified the agreement entered into by their subcommittee with the coal operatives and ordered the 170,000 men and boys employed in and about the mines to return to work. The advance gained is 10 per cent and, with the old sliding scale abolished, the increase will net the men about 5½ per cent. Another concession provides for grievances committees to meet officials of coal companies to adjust complaints.

Grief Overcomes Queen.

Copenhagen, May 21. — Dowager Queen Louisa was so affected when placing flowers on the late king's coffin that she fainted. When revived, the queen abandoned herself to her grief. She wished to remain beside the body and King Christian and others had much difficulty in persuading her to leave the chapel.

Lynch's Majority About 8,000.

Chicago, May 21.—Latest returns of the International Typographical union show that James M. Lynch will have about 8,000 majority for president over Fred Barker of Spokane, Wash. Returns from 427 unions give Lynch 19,000 and Barker 13,000.

Closing of Window Fatal to Child.

Duluth, May 21.—A little West Duluth maid's curiosity regarding a big match factory there proved fatal when 6-year-old Irene Klug was boosted into an open window by her young companions. The sash fell on her back killing her.

Another Town Flood-Swept.

Baton Rouge, La., May 21. — The town of Melville, threatened since the present flood began, was inundated when the levee on the west bank of the Atchafalaya river, 16 miles north broke.

Collar Button Fatal to Child.

Caledonia, Minn., May 21.—The 1-year-old son of V. L. Mangus, superintendent of the public school, while playing on the floor, picked up a collar button, placed it in his mouth, and choked to death.

CLAIMS OF RIVAL CANDIDATES

WILSON, CLARK BOTH NEED MANY MORE DELEGATES.

Not Likely That Either Will Be Nominated On the First Ballot.

Washington, May 21.—With more than two-thirds of the delegates to the democratic national convention elected, control of the Baltimore gathering remains as much in doubt as it did several weks ago.

Claims made by the managers of the different candidates at the headquarters in Washington, made it clear that none of them expects to control the convention through instructions on the first ballot. The democratic convention will consist of 1,094 delegates. Under the two-thirds rule applying to presidential nominations, 729 votes will be necessary for any candidate who secures the nomination. With about 320 delegates still to be selected, the strength of the respective candidates was given by their headquarters as follows:

Clark: Claimed instructed, 323; pledged 68, total, 391. Conceded to Wilson, 80, not including South Carolina's 18, where the convention indorsed Wilson. Conceded to Underwood, 84; to Harmon, 2; to Baldwin, 14; to Marshall, 30; to Burke, 10; Considered doubtful, 127.

Wilson: Claimed as instructed, 243; Kansas, 20 (Clark), and North Dakota's 10 (Burke) claimed as favorable to Wilson; total of Wilson's claimed strength, 273. Conceded to Clark, 236; to Underwood, 82; to Harmon, 4; to Foss, 36; to Baldwin, 14; to Marshall, 30; to Burke, 10. Considered "uninstructed and doubtful," 136.

Underwood: Claimed as instructed, total delegations of Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Mississippi and six from Tennessee; total, 90. No other claims made.

Convention Officers Chosen.

Chicago, May 21.—The sub-committee on arrangements of the Republican national committee has selected Lafayette B. Gleason of New York to be temporary secretary of the national Republican convention. William F. Stone of Maryland was chosen for sergeant-at-arms and Milton W. Blumenberg to be official stenographer.

PIONEER LIMITED WRECK

First Section of Milwaukee Fast Train Derailed Near Winona.

Winona, Minn., May 21.—The first section of train No. 1, on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, known as the Pioneer Limited, was derailed at about 3:20 a. m., near Homer, eight miles east of here. Two sleepers, a baggage and buffet car are in the ditch and are partially submerged in the Mississippi river, as the track runs parallel to the river at that point.

The wreck was caused by heavy rains which washed out the roadbed and let the train slide from the track.

One passenger, William West, a traveling salesman, was caught in the washroom when the train went over, and had to break his way out of the window to keep from drowning. He was brought to the hospital here, but his injuries consist only of lacerated hands and arms.

Duluth Car Men Issue Ultimatum.

Duluth, May 21.—After taking a postal card vote a strike committee of the streetcar conductors' and motormen of the Duluth Street Railway company has issued an ultimatum to the company, stating that 200 men will strike if an increase in wages is not forthcoming. The conductors and motormen receive the same rate of wages, from 21 to 25 cents an hour. The men demand an increase of 5 cents an hour; that students be paid 10 cents an hour pending regular positions; that not less than ten hours constitute a day's work, and that sanitary waiting rooms be provided for the men.

Submarine Tuna Floated.

Atlantic City, N. Y., May 21.—The submarine Tuna was floated at high tide and proceeded north in tow of the United States collier Lebanon. The boat was slightly damaged and is proceeding to Bridgeport, Conn., with her full crew on board.

$1,000,000 Fire in Houston.

Houston, May 21.—Fire in Houston's upper business district caused a loss of approximately $1,000,000.

Abandons Search for Titanic Dead.

Halifax, N. S., May 21.—Word was received by the White Star officials that the steamer Montmagny had been unable to find any more bodies from the Titanic disaster and that she had abandoned the search and was returning to Halifax.

Iowa K. of C. Initiate 50.

Webster City, May 21.—The Knights of Columbus initiated a class of 50 here yesterday, including many prominent business and professional men from over central and northern Iowa.

EUGENE DEBS LEADS THE SOCIALISTS

EMIL SEIDEL IS NOMINATED AS CANDIDATE FOR THE VICE-PRESIDENCY.

WOMEN ARE CANDIDATES

But Are Not Voted Upon—Convention at Indianapolis Takes Stand Against Violence.

Indianapolis, May 20.—Eugene Victor Debs of Terre Haute, Ind., was nominated as a candidate for the presidency of the United States by the national Socialist convention. Emil Seidel, former mayor of Milwaukee, was named for the vice-presidential nomination.

Mr. Debs was not in the hall when the result of the ballot was announced, but Mr. Seidel, in a few words, thanked the delegates and promised that he would make the campaign "as lively as the capitalist parties had ever seen."

Mr. Debs was opposed for the presidential nomination by Mr. Seidel and Charles Edward Russell of New York. After the result of the first ballot, which was, Debs, 165; Seidel, 56, and Russell, 54, had been given out, Mr. Seidel moved that the nomination be made unanimous and it was seconded by Mr. Russell.

Many candidates, including Kate Richards O'Hare of St. Louis and Anna Mahley of Seattle, Wash., were named for the second place, but only three, Mr. Seidel, John W. Slayton, Pennsylvania and Dan Hogan, Arkansas, remained to be voted upon. Mr. Seidel, on the first ballot, received 149 votes; Hogan, 73, and Slayton, 24.

Job Harriman of California and Duncan McDonald of Illinois, were nominated for the presidency, but declined to let their names stand.

Emil Seidel.

Under the rules of the convention, no nominating speeches were allowed.

Stand Against Violence.

Aside from the nominations, the only other business of the convention at the last session was the adoption of a section of the constitution which places the party as taking a decided stand against "violence as a weapon of the working classes." The session was the most heated of the convention and the section hours of debate, which many times ran into personalities.

The section was opposed by the "direct action" forces who have been espousing the cause of the Industrial Workers of the World and was favored by the so-called "yellow" or conservative faction in the party. Bernard Berlyn of Chicago, in speaking in favor of the section, denied he was "yellow," related his experiences in Colorado where he was sent into various sections which he said were "regarded as unhealthy" for socialists and concluded by saying: "I would go to hell if told to make a Socialist speech there." He said violence did not gain the working classes anything.

Blow at I. W. W.

Congressman Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee declared those who opposed the section belong with Emma Goldman and are trying to hide behind "political action."

"There is no bridge between socialism and anarchism," said Congressman Berger. "Those who stand for political action' are not for the bomb thrower and the dagger wielder. The trouble is, there are anarchists in the party who are trying to hide under the guise of the I. W. W."

Stranded Submarine Intact.

Atlantic City, May 20.—The revenue cutter Itasca and the collier Lebanon, sent to the aid of the stranded submarine Tuna all lying close to the little craft, ready to pull the Tuna into deep water at high tide. The two government vessels reached the scene of the accident to attempt to release the vessel. A hawser was run from each vessel to the stranded craft, but it was found that the tide had receded so far that any attempt to haul the Tuna off last night would be futile.

WHEN A TONIC IS NECESSARY

If You Are Run Down and Debilitated the Health Can Only Be Restored by Building Up the Blood.

When the body is weak and the blood thin it is sometimes difficult to find the cause unless a wasting illness has preceded the decline in health.

Obscure influences, something unhealthful in one's surroundings or work, may lead to a slow impoverishment of the blood and an enfeeblement of the whole body. When a serious stage has been reached there seems to be nothing that will account for it.

In such cases a complete change of climate or of work will sometimes effect a cure. It takes a long time, however, and for the great majority of sufferers is out of the question.

Mrs. G. P. Boutwell, of Clear Water, Minn., whose husband is a hardware merchant there, says:

"About two years ago, when I was living at West Union, Iowa, I was all run down through hard work and worry. I called a doctor who said I was suffering from general debility. He treated me for some time but was unable to do much for me. I had cold chills all of the time and seemed to be nearly bloodless. I could not keep anything on my stomach and lived on eggs and milk for some time. My stomach was sour and the gas on it kept me from getting much sleep at night. The doctor's medicine made my stomach feel worse.

"My father had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with benefit and advised me to try them. After a week or so I could notice a change. I soon became stronger, my appetite came back and the headaches disappeared. I was then able to eat without distress and began to do my work. I had a good color and gained in flesh. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cannot be praised too highly."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a general tonic and are useful in all diseases arising from poor blood or weakened nerves, such as sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, pale and sallow complexions and many forms of weakness.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. A booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent free upon request.

ONLY ONE OF EACH.

Howell—I don't see why Tom Watson always has "of Boston" after his name.

Powell—Neither do I; it is no more necessary than it was in the case of John L. Sullivan.

HEALTH FOR THE CHILD.

The careful mother, watching closely the physical peculiarities of her children, soon learns that health is in a great measure dependent upon normal, healthy, regular bowel action. When the bowels are inactive, loss of appetite, restlessness during sleep, irritability and a dozen and one similar evidences of physical disorder are soon apparent.

Keep the bowels free and clear and good health is assured. At the first sign of constipation give the child a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at bed-time and repeat the dose the following night, if necessary. You will find the child will quickly recover its accustomed good spirits, and eat and sleep normally.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is far preferable to salts, cathartics and purgative waters which are harsh in their action. Syrup Pepsin acts on the bowels easily and naturally, yet positively, and causes no griping or discomfort. Its tonic properties build up the stomach, liver and bowels, restoring their normal condition.

Druggists everywhere sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in 50c and $1.00 bottles. If you have never tried this remedy, send for a sample to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. He will gladly send a trial bottle without any expense to you whatever.

The Plain Truth.

"Has that man a mania for osculation?"

"No, he's a plain kissing bug."

You may have noticed that about the time a shoe begins to feel comfortable it looks like a candidate for the refuse wagon.

SYNOPSIS.

Garrett Coast, a young man of New York City, meets Douglas Blackstock, who invites him to a card party. He accepts, although he dislikes Blackstock, the reason being that both are in love with Katherine Thaxter. Coast fails to convince her that Blackstock is unworthy of her friendship. At the party Coast meets two named Dundas and Van Tuyl. There is a quarrel, and Blackstock shoots Van Tuyl dead. Coast struggles to wrest the weapon from him, thus the police discover them. Coast is arrested for murder. He is convicted, but as he begins his sentence, Dundas names Blackstock as the murderer and kills himself. Coast becomes free, but Blackstock has married Katherine Thaxter and fled. Coast purchases a yacht and while sailing sees a man thrown from a distant boat. He rescues the fellow who is named Appleyard. They arrive at a lonely island, known as No Man's Land. Coast starts out to explore the place and comes upon some deserted buildings. He discovers a man dead. Upon going further and approaching a house he sees Katherine Thaxter, who explains that her husband, under the name of Black, has bought the island. He is blind, a wireless operator and has a station there. Coast informs her that her husband murdered Van Tuyl. Coast sees Blackstock and some Chinamen burying a man. They fire at him, but he is rescued by Appleyard, who gets him to the Echo in safety, and there he reveals that he is a secret service man and has been watching the crowd on the island, suspecting they are criminals. Coast is anxious to fathom the mysteries of No Man's Land, and is determined to save Katherine. Appleyard believes that Black and his gang make a shield of the wireless station to conduct a smuggling business. Coast penetrates to the lair of Blackstock's disguise. Katherine enters the room and passes him a note which tells Coast that neither his life or her own are safe. Coast feels that Blackstock suspects him. Appleyard and the Echo disappear. Coast assures Katherine of his protection, and she informs him that they are to abandon the island immediately. The blind man and his coolie servant overpower Coast, who afterward escapes and is met by Katherine, wishing to flee. They discover a yawl but before they can reach it the coolie disables the craft. Black appears and tauntingly states that he is no longer blind. He is overpowered, and Coast and Katherine fly from the spot, and go to a remote part of the island and signal a boat which they see in the distance. Appleyard and the Echo appear.

Coast, as prompt to take alarm, had instantaneously imitated her action. Wheeling, weapon poised, he discovered the shadowed shape of a man running toward them—or, rather, staggering, for he seemed badly winded—leaping and reeling through the undulations of the low, formless dunes, whose soft and yielding substance had deadened the sound of his approach until he was almost upon the two.

At Katherine's call he flung up one hand as if to signify a peaceful intent, but came on at unabated speed.

"Don't shoot!" he pleaded hoarsely. "I'm unarmed—"

Both knew that voice too well. The woman's figure straightened to rigidity. "Stop!" she repeated, imperative, inflexible. "Stop, Douglas, or—"

Coast threw out a hand and deflected the muzzle of her weapon. "Don't," he said aside; "if it comes to that, let me attend to him! . . . Blackstock!" he cried curtly. "Stand where you are!"

At this the man pulled up at a distance of a few feet, within the radius of lantern light. "Steady!" he begged between gasps. "I've . . . beaten 'em out. . . . Plenty of time. . ."

"What's your game now?" demanded Coast coldly, his attention distracted by the comforting sound of dipping oars and squealing rowlocks behind him.

"Game!" The man's eyes caught a curious glint of light from the lantern as they shifted swiftly, glancing sidelong. "Game!" he iterated in broken and hollow tones. "I'm in no shape for games now! For God's sake don't be hard on me. I've come to give myself up—to surrender."

His announcement fell like a thunderclap. Momentarily Coast discredited his sense of hearing. "Surrender?" he muttered, incredulous. "You?" He cast a quick, cautious look round. There was no one else within the limits of his vision—not a figure nor a moving shadow. His gaze returned to the huge, quaking shape before them: Blackstock in a panic, trembling with fear and exhaustion, his plump face turned a pasty, unwholesome shade and largely blotched with dull, burning red, eyes like knots showing too much white and rolling restlessly, loose mouth a-quiver, hands shaking, breath coming and going with a sound resembling the exhaust of a skipping motor. "The devil!" said Coast to himself; and aloud in accents hard and unrelenting: "You'd best explain . . .?"

With a sudden movement, the woman touched his arm.

"Don't trust him, Garrett!" she exclaimed. "You don't know him—don't, don't trust him!"

"I've no intention—" Coast began.

Incontinently they were treated to the incongruous spectacle of Blackstock on his knees, humbling himself first to the woman, then to the man he had wronged, fat, mottled, tremulous hands imploring them. "No!" he prayed, coarsely pitiful. "Don't say it! Have a little pity! My God! don't you know I'm dying? Don't leave me here to die like a dog, in the name of mercy!"

"Dying . . ." Coast repeated, while Katherine bent forward, peering steadily into the man's face. "What d'you mean by 'dying?' "

"Don't you understand—can't you see?" The plump, spotted hands fumbled at his throat; for the first time Coast remarked that it was bandaged, and began to comprehend what frightful fear was bringing the man to his feet. "That damn' dog," Blackstock breathed convulsively—"he's' done for me, if I don't get help—medical help—quick. He's torn my throat to tatters," he whispered; "I'm poisoned, poisoned! If you leave me here, I'll go mad and die mad—hydrophobia! Good God, have pity!"

He broke down completely for a moment or two, whining and blubbering and wringing his hands. It was plain that he was badly frightened, and not without reason.

Coast glanced at Katherine; she wore a face of doubt mirroring his own perplexity, but when she caught his eye upon her, responded with a nod and a shrug.

"I think we'll have to . . ." he said, tentative.

"Of course," she answerd listlessly.

"Look here, Blackstock!" At Coast's sharp and frigid address, the man quieted abruptly, and apparently coming to a realization of the spectacle he was making of himself, got slowly and shame-facedly to his feet. "If we agree to take you off the island, you know what it means? I'll turn you over to the police, first place we stop."

"I don't care," Blackstock asserted eagerly. "I don't care a damn. I'll go anywhere, do anything—go to the chair, if I have to—work out my life in the pen—anything but stay here and go mad. I've been a cur, I know, but for the love of God don't leave me to die like one—"

"Hel-lo!" Behind the trio the keel of a rowboat grated on the sand, and Appleyard jumped briskly ashore, trotting up, painter in hand. "What's this?" he demanded briskly. "Hello, Coast! Madam, your servant. . . . Now, what's the row?"

He put himself in the center of the group, bright watchful eyes diagnosing one expression after another on the countenances round him; with something in his pose and manner singularly suggestive of an exceptionally intelligent and inquisitive magpie.

Coast dropped a hand affectionately on his shoulder. "Thank heaven, you're here at last," he said. "And here's your prisoner—take him in the name of the law and for the sake of peace. He's been badly bitten first by a dog and then by fright, and he wants to give himself up and be sent to a hospital."

"Oh, that's it, eh? I heard a bit of the confab while rowing in, and it listened uncommon' interestin'; but I couldn't figure out what was at the bottom of it all. Well, well, Mr. Blackstock!" The little man rubbed his hands. "I'm glad to come up with you. This is more fun than a goat, for sure. Come!" He jerked his perky little head toward the tender. "Jump in, and I'll hurry you to market."

A sullen look replaced the terror that had masked Blackstock's face. He sighed and with a brief, uncertain nod, apparently directed at Coast, collected himself and trudged heavily toward the boat, entering which he squatted silently in the stern.

Appleyard's eyes sought Coast's. The younger man lifted his shoulders, disclaiming honor or responsibility. "When the devil was sick," he quoted in disgust, lowering his tone. "Keep an eye on him."

"Wel-l, rawther," Appleyard drawled. "But he won't try any monkeyshines aboard the Echo—or I never saw a man afraid of his sins before. . . . Madam," he added, turning with a curious little courtly bow to the woman, "if you'll step in"—his glance traveled past her down the beach—"we'll beat that pack to the mainland. I see," he said, "they're launching a long-boat. What kind of a yarn explains that, please?"

Coast recounted with exceptional brevity the wrecking of the schooner, at the same time stepping into the boat and placing himself at the oars, on the middle seat. Katherine sat forward, behind him, and Appleyard, pushing off, scrambled aft and dropped down beside Blackstock, who sulkily moved to one side to make room for him.

"Look lively, Mr. Coast," he little man advised pleasantly. "We really haven't got a minute to spare—those chaps are laying to their oars as if they really wanted to scrape acquaintance with us. Or perhaps," he suggested with a look askance at Blackstock, "my cheerful prisoner can account for this apparent mad anxiety of theirs to bid their dis—, I mean extinguished leader a fond farewell."

Blackstock, fumbling nervously at his bandaged throat, made no answer. Coast, bending all his strength to the oars, drove the dory swiftly toward the Echo.

"Blackstock," said Appleyard, ironic, "what you got in that neat little bag between your feet? The conventional pyjamas and toothbrush, what?"

The tormented man at his side grumbled something inarticulate.

"Did I understand you to imply it's none of my business? How extraordinarily rude, Mr. Blackstock! Besides being untrue—quite a naughty fib. In addition to which it's uncalled for; I know."

"You know?" Blackstock turned to him with a scowl.

"Sure. I can put two and a millstone together and make a hole in a ladder just as easy as take a silk purse out of a souse's ear. It wouldn't be you, Mr. Blackstock," Appleyard continued without giving his victim time to analyze this astonishing statement—"it just wouldn't be you if you didn't try to hand your friends the double-cross. That bag's stuffed with loot—the best part of the truck they were running this trip—jewelry, for a dollar. And that's why, you see they're so infatuated with the idea of shaking your hand and wringing your neck before you get away; they've just discovered your perfidy. But don't you fret. Here we are and long before they can drive that seine-boat this far we'll be sailing merrily away."

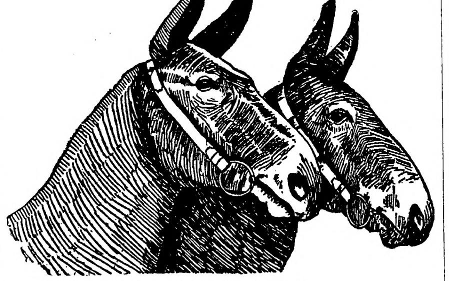
The Test of Sixty.

What about the hour when you find yourself in the 60s, an old man—far, far worse, an old woman? To have to consider yourself "out of it," as regards all the most interesting affairs of life; to realize that you have had your day and ceased to be, as a necessity or a power, or a treasure of the world; that your place is on the shelf, with old-fashioned, worn out, discarded things; that you have eaten your cake to the dry crumbs and can expect no more—nothing but to grow daily feebler and uglier and more obsolete and superfluous, declining to that death which at least is inescapable—what an awful pass to come to! It is the time when the society queen, her prestige and beauty gone, retires to a convent; when religion, whatever the patterns of it may be, is called upon to justify itself once and for all. In those popular oleographs which depict Faith as a woman clinging to a cross in a raging sea, the figure should have been that of an old hag and not a fair young girl, for it is when all else fails that the church offers itself as the last, only, and sufficient buttress against despair.—Atlantic.

ANIMALS FOUND EFFICIENT FOR ALL-ROUND FARM WORK

Some Farmers Prefer Mule on Account of Hardiness, Less Fastidiousness in Appetite and Its Value in Garden Work—Man of Moderate Means Should Keep the Horse.

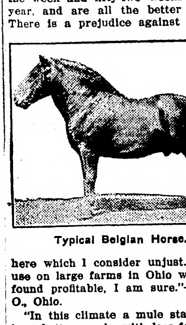


Team of Prize Winning Mules.

The following letters have been received from farmers located in various sections of the country on the merits and demerits of the mule and the horse.

"I have had thirty years' experience in working horses and mules on a tobacco, wheat and corn farm, and I prefer the mules. Their feet are smaller and they injure very little of the tobacco and corn; they are less liable to disease, less fastidious in appetite, will endure greater hardships, are longer-lived, and worry the plowman less, as they are more steady. Not one horse is used for farm work to ten mules, in this section of the country."—W. E. E., Kentucky.

"On large farms where there is steady work and lots of it, I have found the mules the most profitable. They can do a certain amount of work at a less expense for feed, are tougher, and, in proportion to weight, stronger than horses. While they stand neglect and ill-treatment better than horses, they appreciate kindness just as well. Mules are ready for work six days of the week and fifty-two weeks in the year, and are all the better for it. There is a prejudice against mules here which I consider unjust. Their use on large farms in Ohio would be found profitable, I am sure."—W. E. O., Ohio.



Typical Belgian Horse.

"In this climate a mule stands the heat better, works with less feed, and stands the treatment he is sure to get from the negro hands, better than a horse. A mule lives longer, too. I have seen mules doing service at 25 years of age. As a farm animal he is unexcelled in the south."—W. H. G., Georgia.

"The mule has a number of important advantages over the horse in farm work. A good mule is a treasure on the farm. He is tougher, stands the heat and hard work better; he is not so susceptible to disease as a horse. I know mules which, in plowing in a garden will step over hills of potatoes or other vegetables with as much care as the gardener would ask. I never saw a horse that would try to avoid stepping on a hill, and in some instances they seem to make a point of trampling down everything in reach of their big feet."—L. W. C., Tennessee.

"Our experience with mules leads us to believe they are hardier than horses; they are seldom sick, their shoulders hardly ever become sore and they are more easily taught what is expected of them. We have never yet known of a mule being injured in any respect from over-feeding. They know when to quit eating. For steady work and hard knocks we prefer the mule every time. The farmers of the west are beginning to appreciate them at their true value, as the number of mule teams now in use, compared to what there was a few years ago, fully attests."—H. C. S., Kansas.

"Forty years' experience with mules has satisfied me that they will not compare, in a financial way, with horses, not being adapted to saddle or carriage, nor will they bring any increase, as a horse does. They are mischievous, breachy and will often kill young stock if turned in with them on pasture. A farmer of moderate means should keep horses every time."—H. M., Illinois.

"Where farming operations are carried on, on a large scale, and animals are kept solely for farm work, and not for alternate work and driving to buggy, I prefer the mule to horses. Mules endure a warm climate better than horses, largely because they do not over-feed or over-exert themselves in hot weather. No animal can take the place of the mule in the south. The mule is very valuable in garden work, from his close-stepping habits, which make it easy to work small plants in narrow rows without damage. As to feeding, while a mule will keep at work on coarser food than a horse, I have never found that a hard-worked mule team would keep in fine condition on less than a similar team of horses. Never buy a long-legged mule. A big, "gangling," long-legged mule is the meanest "critter" on earth. Whether heavy or light, see to it that he is compactly built."—W. F. M., North Carolina.

GIVE CHICKENS BEST OF CARE

Birds of All Ages Should Be Examined During the Hot Months for Little Mites and Lice.

(By M. B. BERNARD.)

All the old birds, and young, too, should be examined frequently during the hot months because then it is that the lice and mites thrive.

If cut bone or chopped meat is fed during the summer extra precautions must be taken to have it perfectly fresh.

Many birds die from eating bone and meat scraps which have been allowed to lie around exposed to the heat and the flies.

In feeding chickens, always remember that they are provided for to produce fresh eggs for human feed and therefore their own feed should be just as pure as that we eat ourselves.

The hot sun will cause young goslings and ducklings as well to topple over and die. Provide shade for them until they are strong on their pegs.

Care of Stallions.

A stallion shut up in a dark stall without the companionship of other horses often becomes moody and savage. Some English stallioners ride a pony while leading their horses for exercise, and the horses become so attached to the ponies that they become fretful and uneasy when they are not near. At night the ponies are given a stall next to the horses. Of course, some horses are too savage in nature to permit their being led in company of a pony, but if broken to this treatment when young stallions can be handled in this way.

COVERING WALLS WITH WISTARIA

Common Purple Variety Is Best Adapted to Hide Great Vacant Spaces—Needs Pruning.

(By WALTER B. LEUTZ.)

We seldom see great wall spaces covered with wistaria, yet it is to our eye the most beautiful flower for that purpose that grows.

The Japanese wistaria is not so well adapted to this purpose as the common royal purple flower of America. To get the best results the vine must be constantly pruned and kept back for two or three years, else it will run in long streamers and the flowers will hang straight down. The vines must be trained to run in all directions.

We can never forget the wall of a large old house in Richmond, Va., that is covered witih this beautiful flower. The wall is about seventy feet high and is one soft mass of ravishing beauty. In this climate the vine needs no attention after it has once been well started, and blooms early and late.

What Nitrate of Soda Will Do.

It is estimated by experts who have conducted experiments with nitrate of soda that under ordinary conditions 100 pounds per acre, applied to crops named below, will produce yields as follows:

Barley, 400; corn, 280, oats, 400; rye, 300; wheat, 300, potatoes, 3,000; hay, 1,000; cotton, 500; cabbage, 5,000; onions, 18,000; strawberries, 200 quarts; asparagus, 100 bunches; celery, 30 per cent.; sugar beets, 4,000; beets, 4,000; sweet potatoes, 900.

God's First Question

By Rev. Parley E. Zartmann, D.D.,
Secretary of Extension Department Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—And the Lord God called unto Adam and said unto him, Where art thou?—Genesis 3:9.

This is God's first question so far as we have any record. He is the great questioner, and a study of his interrogations is most instructive. Sometimes he asks a question to awaken us, sometimes to discover to us our greatest need, sometimes to encourage our wavering faith, and sometimes to give us a greater confidence in himself.

This first question occurs in the first great tragedy of the human race. It began with the devil's insinuating question arousing doubt in the mind of Eve, and ended, so far as Adam and Eve were concerned, with their expulsion from the Garden of Eden.

1. Environment is not proof against temptation. The story of Eden is the unfailing and satisfactory answer to that theory. Sometimes the greatest sinners have the least excuse for their misdeeds. Thank God we have a Gospel, and a Savior, and a grace which can make the foulest clean, and which is equally effective in the case of the most cultured and refined.

2. Eve was doomed as soon as she began to discuss the matter with the serpent. Had she said "Get thee behind me, Satan," what misery would have been saved the human race.

3. Self-deceit is an early step toward ruin. When Eve was trying to convince herself that her sin was pleasant, she opened the door to a troop of evil thoughts, and made sin's progress easy.

4. One sinner helps to make another. It is bad enough, and sad enough, that our sins entail suffering and misery on ourselves, but how much sadder is it that in going down we take others with us.

Adam and Eve had to choose, and they made a wrong choice. God pity them, and pity us, for wrong choice is sin. The greatest lesson of the tragedy is that sin always defeats the purposes of the soul. "There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death."

Results of Sin.

1. Shame and fear. "And the man and his wife hid themselves from the presence of God." It is always so with the sinner, and there are two reasons for this—God's holiness and man's sinfulness. No, hiding will not cover sin nor end it, and continuance in sin ultimately brings a harvest of shame and fear. Though you may hide behind false hopes, though you offer a thousand excuses for your transgression, though you boast of your self-righteousness, though you blame your environment for your sin, God hunts you out and says "Where art thou?"

Are you ashamed of your sinful condition, and are you afraid of God? There is only one end to the misuse of Eden and that is:

2. Separation and isolation. This is sin's worst effect. It sent the prodigal into the far country, and cast him off from his father's house. Finally sin separates us from the holy, and isolates from heaven. "For know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God, be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolators, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with men, nor thieves, nor covetuous, nor tricksters, nor revilers, nor extortionists shall inherit the kingdom of God."

These two things make hell. For we can think of no worse condition than the conscious shame and fear, and the eternal separation and isolation of the soul. A converted miner was asked, "Where is hell?" He said, "At the end of a Christless life." But that whole life has all these characteristics.

Oh to have no hope in Jesus
How dark this world must be.

The best part of the story is left until the last. The question really shows us God's heart. He is not a policeman hunting us out that he may punish us, but a loving father, sad without us and loving us with an everlasting love. He is seeking us by his mercies, by the wooing of the spirit, by the ministry of the Gospel, by the providences which surround our lives, by a thousand things which tell us of God, and heaven, and eternity. Who can tell all that is meant by God as a seeker, going after the erring one and saying, "Where are thou?" The sinner is the lost sheep.

"But none of the ransomed ever knew
How deep were the waters crossed,
Nor how dark was the night that the Lord passed through
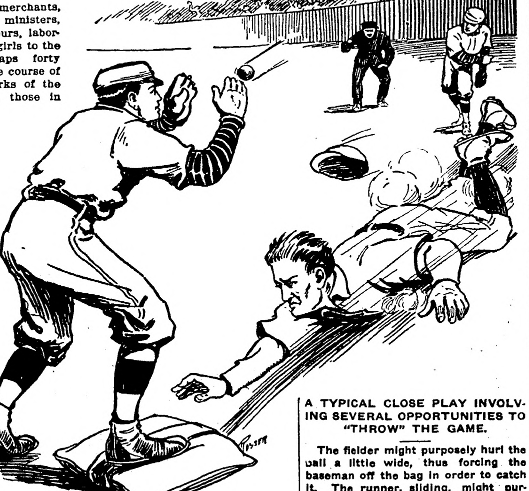
Ere He found His sheep that was lost."

But there is a ray of hope in the story—the promise of a Redeemer: "I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; he shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel."

HONESTY MAKES NATIONAL GAME HUGE SUCCESS



A TYPICAL CLOSE PLAY INVOLVING SEVERAL OPPORTUNITIES TO "THROW" THE GAME.

The fielder might purposely hurl the ball a little wide, thus forcing the baseman off the bag in order to catch it. The runner, sliding, might purposely fail to touch the base by the fraction of an inch. The baseman might purposely fumble the ball or fail to touch the runner by a hair's breadth. The umpire might decide that the runner beat the ball, or the ball beat the runner, by the tenth of a second, and the cloud of dust would cover the "error" of judgment or skill, which is the worst a "fan" would call it, in each case; so confident is the public of the honor of our big league players.

WHEN they say that virtue is its own reward they do not refer to baseball. Not necessarily. When bankers, merchants, physicians, ministers, lawyers, professors, chauffeurs, laborers, office boys and chorus girls to the aggregate number of perhaps forty million pay admission in the course of one season to the ball parks of the United States of America, those in charge of the sport find that honesty is remunerative, lucrative—nothing less, in fact, than a big paying proposition.

Baseball barons of the present day have become such because the public believes the national game is conducted on the principle of a fair field and no favor. They look on the players as being as true to the interest of their clubs as the needle to the pole.

Baseball did not always bear the charmed life that it now seems to possess. A time there was when to be a professional baseball player was to be relegated to the rear in the public regard. Baseball then was an excuse for betting. Crooked play followed gambling as the night the day. Women did not flock to ball games then. Even the wives and daughters of the players preferred not to be seen at the ball grounds. When they did attend a game they applauded in whispers from behind the clubhouse door. The bar at a ball park used to be the center of interest. Bets were placed on its slippery surface, and there the odds, together with various degrees of illumination, were collected.

Pitchers, shortstops, even the captains of teams were not too exclusive to patronize the betting facilities of the bar. On their way to the field before the game players used to deposit with the bartender such wagers on the outcome as they felt they had a moral right to risk in view of their duty to their families. It is now history that sometimes these players would bet on the invulnerability of the opposite side. The opposite side often won. A classic illustration of the unlovely possibilities of such a system is the case of a pitcher who was seen to divide $700 with two of his able supporters. The money was counted out before the game on a hotel bed. If the players had been less able, perhaps, they could have been secured for a smaller amount, but $700 was their price for throwing a deciding game.

To buy a ball player sometimes cost more than this. A pitcher of the first rank of that day—so rank that in these times of sober purity in the pastime such a man would not be allowed to carry bats to the railroad station—went to the mound with $500, his figure for turning traitor, in his trousers pocket. It would have been less embarrassing to the pitcher, as events turned out, if he had buried the money in his garden, at least slipped it under the front doormat. When the pitcher began to show signs of caving in or doing what is now described by the sporting writers as an Orville Wright act, somebody placed the facts of the case in the manager's care. The manager called the game for a minute and, not stopping to pick any grass or do any sidestepping on the way, visited the pitcher in his box. "I just want to say," said the manager to the pitcher, merely loud enough for the pitcher alone to hear, "if you lose this game I'll have you undressed in the dressing room and take that money off you before the whole team." Everyone noticed how much good a few kind words from the manager had done for his star pitcher at a critical point in the game. The pitcher won the game.

It was a reckless sport in those days to bet without first getting wind of the way the players, especially the stars, were placing their money. This was in the early 70's. The game was traveling the pace that kills. Why did it not go the way that racing has gone? What saved it from the punch that put professional boxing in the sporting bread line?

Along about 1875 ministers spent almost as much time preaching against baseball as against dancing and the liquor evil. Reformers made reputations and adherents to their cause because of the bitterness with which they assailed baseball. They had no great difficulty in proving that the game as conducted was crooked.

In 1875 a revolt, led by W. A. Hulbert, owner of the Chicago club, was organized. It had one object,—to make the game a clean, honorable sport, free from gambling. The strong rule against gambling was disregarded by the New York and Philadelphia members of the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs. They went out of the organization and for seven years New York and Philadelphia were without league baseball.

The championship was in Louisville's grasp about this time. Four players were found to be taking bribes to throw a game. They were catapulted out of the league. They never came back. "Nix, forever" was the decision of the directors of the new anti-gambling outfit when these men made numerous appeals for reinstatement. One man sent his wife to Hulbert. She said that the league had reduced her and her children to hunger. "Here's a hundred dollars; take it and eat," said Hulbert. "Come to me again if your husband doesn't get work. I will never reinstate him."

It was strong medicine, but it saved the game. The lesson burned its message on the minds and hearts of the players everywhere. Gambling was taken by the hand and led to the entrance of the ball park and accorded less than fifteen seconds to go away. From that day the league has regarded gambling as the cancer of the game.

Undoubtedly the players as a class are today the cleanest body of professional athletes in the new world. In the 70's the fans used to say: "Aw, they threw the game." When does one hear a serious charge of that kind now?

During the desperate pennant race in the American league in 1908 a single decision by Sheridan on a play at the plate killed the hopes of St. Louis and a day later a decision in the first inning, a ball which the White Sox insisted was a strike, ended Chicago's hopes. In that same season Fred Clarke was called out at third base on the last day of the National league season at Chicago, and Pittsburg lost the pennant by that decision. But there was not a whisper of criticism respecting the umpire, whose decisions blasted the fondest hopes, perhaps, that baseball players can know.

If the honesty of the game were not so universally and cheerfully recognized, the numerous situations always manifesting themselves where the old-fashioned crooked work could do the trick so easily would lead to doubts in the minds of the fans and the game would die. Except for the spirit that pervades the promoters and players of the game, that they must be constant as the northern star, the opportunities for a weak man to be tempted would be so many and might be made financially so advantageous that it would not be a cause for surprise if a cog slipped now and then.

As baseball is played today it is practically impossible for questionable operations to creep into the maneuvers of the diamond. Since the great leagues eliminated gambling the banker and office boy know that at the ball park they will find a relaxation as nearly flawless from a moral point of view as it is possible to obtain in an imperfect world. The lemonade may be largely imagination, but the virility and honor of the gladiators in the arena below they know are above criticism. An umpire may not walk to suit them, but the fans, notwithstanding their insulting verbal assaults during the heat of battle upon his honesty of purpose, never feel any deep doubt concerning his unpurchasable allegiance to the square deal. If umpires were less spotless objects the fact that they are czars from 3:30 until the game is called on account of darkness would, of course, make their irregularities worth a great deal of money. A naughty umpire might make thousands of dollars for rendering a wrong decision. He would have to render a string of them over a very brief period to profit much by trickery, because as soon as his acts became identified he would have to spend his earnings in another climate.

For instance, it is within the power even of one umpire to make or unmake an entire season, to change the results of scores of games by a word. Hank O'Day called Merkle out on the Polo grounds at the close of the season of 1908 when he failed to touch second base. When Bridwell made the hit that should have won the pennant for New York thousands of frantic "fans" leaped upon the field to congratulate the Giants. O'Day saw Merkle run to the clubhouse and, throwing down his protector, he ran into the diamond, saw Evers hold the ball on second base and, above the tumult, called Merkle out. Five thousand men were swarming madly around O'Day and the Chicago players, only partly understanding the cause of the excitement. Men struck at O'Day, struck Chance and struck Pfiester; but the umpire shouldered his way along, brushed angry men aside to get his protector and walked through the crowd to his dressing room.

Suppose O'Day had been lacking in scruples! His easiest course by far was to call Merkle safe.

The most responsible player on the team, of course, is the pitcher. He comes pretty nearly knowing the weak spots in the batters who face him. He knows that certain batters like to connect with a slow ball, others despise a spit ball, etc. If the unsusceptibility of these men to the buzzing of would-be bribe givers was less pronounced how easily the pitcher might throw a deciding game! Yet no one believes a pitcher capable of other than loyal, hard working effort to advance the fortunes of his team. The result is that baseball is one of the most prosperous industries as well as our national sport. It is estimated that at least forty million persons saw the games of about fifty baseball leagues this season. Baseball has been systematized and combined; been reduced a science and business.

The National and American leagues have each a president, a secretary and a board of directors, as thoroughly equipped as those of the sugar trust, and with, apparently, a better appreciation of how to acquire popularity with the public. Merely from a business standpoint baseball is entitled to a leading place in national affairs. A commercial institution with an income of $10,000,000 is regarded as of noteworthy importance in American life. We have such an institution in baseball. It does a strictly cash business, and that does not minimize its popularity among the trade. Take just one item—that of balls. The two major leagues pay $2,500 cash each week for balls. Some enthusiasts of the sport declare that before many years, instead of forty million persons, two and three hundred million paid admissions will be taken at the box offices in this country alone each season. In that case expenses will go up—the managers will have to buy more balls.

Apparently nothing can stop the growth of the industry, or sport, whichever you care to call it, except the creeping into it of something dishonest to kill the public's enthusiasm. The game has all the elements of strength; the American people rejoice in clean athletic contests, and baseball somehow has the power in an unusual degree to shake the kinks out of a man's mind, make him at heart a boy again and send home in an optimistic mood the person who left the office, study or laboratory pitifully pessimistic two short hours before.

GERMANS LIKE TRAVEL BY AIRSHIP

ALIGHTING FROM A GERMAN AIR-LINER

BERLIN.—Despite the many accidents that have befallen the airships of the Zeppelin type, the passenger season for these huge dirigibles has opened auspiciously. Several of them are making regular trips, and there is never any lack of men and women to take passage in them. The German people seem to prefer them to aeroplanes.

A ROMANCE OF WAR

Death Recalls an Incident That Occurred in 1863.

Mrs. Alexander Klaucke, Native of Carroll County, Dies in Germany Long After Marrying a Soldier Who Appealed to Her for a Drink.

Westminster, Md.—Information has just been received in this city of the death of Mrs. Alexander A. C. Klancke, a native of this county, at her home in Weisbaden, Germany, an event which calls to the minds of some of the elderly residents of the county an interesting romance in connection with her marriage to Mr. Klancke. Mrs. Klancke's maiden name was Mary Freeze, and she was related to some of the leading people of this county.

In the summer of 1863 she was visiting her aunt, Mrs. Joshua Smith, mother of the late Judge John E. Smith, on East Main street, this city, when the Sixth corps of the United States army passed through here on its way to Gettysburg. Two officers of the corps, one of whom was Mr. Klancke, halted at the Smith residence and asked for water to quench their thirst, and it was Miss Freeze who handed a glass of water to the man who afterward became her husband. As it was the dinner hour, Mrs. Smith hospitably invited the officers to dine with her family, an invitation which was accepted with alacrity, especially by Mr. Klancke, who had promptly fallen in love with the pretty maiden from whose hand he had received the water. The sequel proved that the admiration of the officer was reciprocated, and ere he resumed his march he had won Miss Freeze. Though it was a case of love at first sight, the lovers were faithful, and soon after the close of the Civil war they were married in Ascension Episcopal church, this city, by Rev. Dr. James W. Reese.

Mr. Klancke was for a time a government official in one of the departments at Washington, but soon after his marriage resigned and with his American bride sailed for his home in Germany. It had then transpired that he was a gentleman of wealth and noble family, one of his near relatives having married a German princess. He lived but a few years and died childless.

Devoted to her husband's memory, Mrs. Klancke made her permanent home in Weisbaden, where she was near his grave. She occasionally visited her relatives here and always kept herself well posted on local affairs in this county by correspondence and by subscribing for a county newspaper.

7 BROTHERS ARE REUNITED

First Time in Thirty-Five Years All Children of Family Have Been Together.

Belvidere, N. J.—A reunion of seven brothers, the first in thirty-five years, took place here when Winfield and Adam Widenor arrived from Cuba and John Widenor from Omaha, Neb., on a surprise visit to their four brothers—George, Frederick, Ambrose and William—prominent business men of Belvidere. Although separated many years, the brothers kept up a regular correspondence and were in close touch with each other. A short time ago John wrote his two brothers in Cuba, proposing that they take a trip to Belvidere and surprise the others. The absentees met at Philadelphia according to the arrangements.

CUT OFF FOOT BY WIRELESS

Gulf Operator Told How to Perform Operation by Doctor on Ship 420 Miles Away.

New Orleans, La.—How a laborer on Swan island, a lonely wireless station in the gulf, sustained a crushed foot; how the wireless operator on the island communicated with a ship 420 miles away, raised the surgeon and got him to explain the proper way to amputate, and how the operator's assistant performed the operation, is a story told by the manager of a big shipping firm. New Orleans physicians describe it as "surgery by wireless."

On Swan island is a wireless station, one of the links in the United Fruit chain to the tropics. When a laborer hurt his foot in a tram car accident the wireless operator concluded an operation was imperative. There were no medical books at hand, and no one at the station ever had hacked at a fellow being. Then the operator had an "inspiration." He called a fellow craftsman on a ship passing 420 miles below into the Caribbean sea. The situation was explained to the ship's surgeon, and detail by detail he explained just how the amputation should be handled.

After the arteries had been tied and the wound dressed the patient recovered his senses and insisted on pressing at the wireless key to express his thanks. At last accounts he was getting well.

Yes, That's One.

England Has New Rifle

Will Be Easier to Handle and More Effective Than Present Model.

London.—The British troops are to be armed with a new rifle.

Ever since its introduction in 1903 the Lee-Enfield rifle, with which the British forces are now armed, has been the subject of fierce controversy. The shortening of the barrel was the point chiefly criticized, and as the rifle has not been able to hold its own against the longer weapon with which the territorials have been equipped the controversy has never died down.

The idea underlying the adoption of the short rifle was to have a weapon which would be easily handled by both mounted and dismounted troops. To suit the cavalry five inches was taken off the rifle and the reach of the infantry soldier with the bayonet was thus shortened. Attempts have been made to restore this lost advantage by the issue of a longer bayonet, but the developments of the modern high power cartridge have intensified the defects of the short barrel as regards fire efficiency. A longer barrel is necessary for accuracy and ease.

The barrel of the new rifle will not have the full five inches restored, but about one-half of that. A change of considerable importance will be made in the caliber, which in the new rifle will be .276 instead of .303.

An advantage in velocity is expected from this change, as the bullet will be lighter. The chamber of the new rifle being larger and the breech mechanism stronger the explosive to be used will possess very high power; and it is not improbable that the velocity will be 3,000 feet a second, as against 2,450 of the rifle and ammunition now in use. This would give Britain an advantage of 100 feet a second over the nearest rival, and with the alterations the bullet should never travel higher than the height of a man.

The principle of the aperture sight, which makes aiming partially automatic, has been accepted, and the loading also will be much quickened by the new methods of feeding cartridges into the chamber. The new rifle will be a few ounces heavier than the present Lee-Enfield. It is expected that trials will be made with it by selected troops this summer.

REVERE BELL'S TONGUE OUT

It Falls From City Hall Tower, Bath, Me., and Makes Hole in Roof—No Curfew Rung.

Bath, Me.—For the first time the Paul Revere bell in city hall tower did not ring out the curfew a few nights ago. When it rang for the noon hour, as has long been the custom, its 15-pound tongue fell out and smashed a hole in the roof of the city building. The bell is the genuine Paul Revere and nearly a century ago hung in the steeple of the old North church in Bath.

Famine in Chorus Girls.

Los Angeles, Cal.—A chorus famine is on, and as a result fixture men report a dull season. There are no chandeliers to repair.

ALASKA AS A GARDEN

GARDEN AT EAGLE

ACCORDING to meteorological experts there was a complete change of climate in Alaska last winter, which may be permanent. The change was caused by the switching of the Japan current toward the shores of that country. This is likely to cause a great change in the raising of agricultural products and will, perhaps, open up new fields of endeavor. Records show that it was Alaska's warmest winter. Capt. Harry S. Knapp, the government's chief hydrographer, declares that the Japan current probably has been switched from its former course to a position very near the Alaskan coast by recent earthquakes in the Aleutian islands. Scientists are now at work on the problem endeavoring to ascertain whether their suppositions are correct.

The Alaska known to the tourist, says the Philadelphia Record, is a strip of land and a fringe of islands about 425 miles long by 100 miles wide. This extends north to Mount Saint Elias and is about one-twelfth of the country. The main territory, beginning at Saint Elias, stretches northward about 700 miles to the Arctic ocean and the same distance westward to the Bering sea. The total area is probably about 590,884 square miles.

Heretofore, the climate of Alaska has varied in different parts of that country. The impression is general that the Alaskan climate is arctic in its severity, but this impression is misleading. There is no typical Alaskan climate any more than there is a typical European or American climate. The extremes of latitude and longitude in Alaska find their parallel in Europe between Norway and Sicily.

Equable Climate.

The Aleutian isles are favored by most equable temperatures through the influences of the Pacific ocean. These modifying oceanic influences affect the northern Alaskan coast to the peninsula, and at Sitka and the country thereabouts is found a northerly extension of the temperature conditions of the California and Washington coast region. The Sitkan archipelago has a humid equable climate, with cool summers, warm winters and frequent falls of rain and snow. Of the coast stations Sitka is typical, its mean of 33 degrees for the coldest month, February, is practically identical with the January mean of Saint Louis. Extremes are rarely known there.

In the Saint Elias region westward to the Alaskan peninsula the winters are usually considerably colder. Farther to the northward the coasts are washed by the Bering sea, a cold body of water with an average temperature of about 39 degrees. In consequence of the cold sea and its adverse winds, it is natural to find a harsher climate on the northwest coast.

In the interior of Alaska the climate becomes continental, with great ranges of temperature between the short, comparatively hot summers and long, cold winters. Within 100 miles of the coast the oceanic influence largely disappears.

Whether the greater nearness of the Japan current would change this interior is not known. The southwest coasts of the territory would be affected most. The agricultural supply, which would be influenced by a milder climate, has in the past been valuable only for supplying the local market. Heretofore views of all kinds, optimistic and pessimistic, have been advanced on the possibilities of successful agriculture in Alaska. A number of successful farmers live there, all in well-chosen localities, in the vicinity of towns of considerable size.

On the outlying islands, such as Baranof, where Sitka is situated, and Kenai, grain has been a failure for the most part, except when cut for hay. At Sitka, where potatoes do well for some years, they fall off in size and quality, and other vegetables are raised only with care and in favorable seasons.

Farms Now Cultivated.

As one enters the valleys of southern Alaska the agricultural possibilities improve. Potatoes and other vegetables have done well in the past, but as a rule grains fail to ripen and are valuable only for feeding stock. Farther north, in what is known as Copper valley, conditions are more favorable for vegetables, and quite a number of good gardens and small farms are now cultivated. The growing season heretofore has stretched over six months or more in the islands and the inlets of southeastern Alaska. It decreases to five months at Skagway, and is about four in the interior.

While the Seward peninsula and the arctic coast have no agricultural possibilities, yet considerable parts of the Yukon basin are suitable for gardening to a degree astonishing to the uninformed. The best-known instance of successful farming is that at the Holy Cross mission, on the Yukon, 62 degrees north. There cattle have been raised for 12 years and more, and the products of the land under cultivation excite astonishment in all visitors. All through the valley of the Yukon potatoes and vegetables mature when proper ground is chosen and skilled attention given.

At Fort Gibbon, at the junction of the Yukon and the Tanana rivers, and at Fort Egbert, near the arctic circle, the military garrisons have raised large quantities of vegetables, potatoes being especially successful. Even at Coldfoot, within the arctic circle, at 68 degrees north, potatoes, cabbage, peas, turnips, rhubarb and berries are grown of large size and good flavor.

Truck farming and hay farming are flourishing industries in the lower Tanana valley, where it is said that more than 30,000 acres of land have been homesteaded. While grain will ripen only under favorable conditions, potatoes, with other vegetables, do very well, and the native and selected foreign grasses are productive of good crops.

That the productivity of Alaskan agriculture is important, both in quantity and in value, is clearly indicated by the diminution of the shipment of potatoes from the United States to Alaska, which dropped in two years from 211,215 bushels to 167,033 bushels. In the same length of time the value of all vegetable shipments fell from $696,928 to $483,855, a decrease of more than 30 per cent.

A warmer climate in Alaska would, no doubt, cause these figures to diminish rapidly and soon disappear. In fact, it is not an extravagant statement, according to men who have investigated the subject, to say that the switching of the Japan current may mean that Alaska will forge ahead in its agricultural products until its exports will be the very things which in the past were imported.

What Horse Power Means.

Very few people realize just what a horse power, as expressed in engineering terms, really means.

When it is stated that the world's largest Curtis steam turbine, which drives an electric generator in the Waterside station, New York, develops 30,000 horse power the meaning is vague and incomprehensible. Imagine this term reduced to man power and almost every one can grasp its full meaning. If it takes twelve men to equal one horse power then this mammoth turbine engine develops 12 times 30,000, or the working energy of 360,000 men. If these men worked in eight-hour shifts each day it would require the services of 1,080,000 men every twenty-four hours to produce the working energy of this turbine unit.—Electric News.

BREEDING FOR PERFECTION IN CORN QUITE PROFITABLE

If Your Seed Is Right, the Soil of Proper Character, the Crop Is Pretty Sure to Be of Value Far Above Ordinary Kind—Stable Manure Makes Best Kind of Fertilizer.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

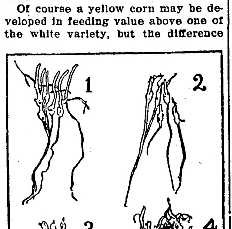
Breeding corn today has for its object more than the development of an increase in yield. It has been clearly proven that by proper selection, varieties of corn can be secured which have a feeding value far above the ordinary kind grown. This means an increase in oil content and more especially an increase in protein.

It is possible and highly probable that in the future when corn will be more largely used for commercial purposes than at present, sales will be made on the basis of protein content, just as milk is sold today on the basis of fat content.

In fact, some of the large glucose factories have already adopted this plan. It is evidently unfair to the man who produces corn with 12 per cent. protein to receive no more than the man who markets an 8 per cent. article.

There has been much misunderstanding in regard to the importance of coloring matter in corn. Some farmers hold that yellow corn is the better feed, others maintaining the opposite. But in the light of recent investigations, these theories do not hold water.

Of course a yellow corn may be developed in feeding value above one of the white variety, but the difference will not be because of any difference in color, but entirely protein and oil.



Showing how four hills of corn from the same lot showed, after being in the ground two weeks.

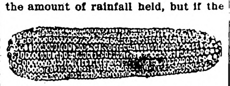
The farmer who starts in to breed his own seed should have the seed plot entirely separate from other corn. This should be placed in a corner of the field at least 40 rods from any other corn, and if it could be surrounded with grass instead of other grain, so much the better.

The preparation of the ground is, of course, very important, and it must be put in the very best possible condition. It means deep plowing, thorough manuring and fining before planting.

It has been found that very small increases come from the use of commercial fertilizers, particularly in the great corn growing sections, and nothing has been found better for this purpose than stable manure. In certain sections where lime must be used, it should be applied in connection with a liberal use of stable manure, but lime should never be used for corn except when it is positively known that the soil is in need of it.

All clay soil should be plowed in the fall, in order that the frosts of winter may break up the hard ground and make it more easily worked in the spring.

Early plowing in the spring tends to conserve the soil moisture, both by preventing evaporation and increasing the amount of rainfall held, but if the land is sod or cover crop, early plowing decreases the amount of organic matter, which would be incorporated by late plowing.



Champion ear, Iowa corn show, raised by D. L. Pascal, sold for $150. The ear was 10½ inches long, 7⅞ inches in circumference, at a point 3 inches from the butt, and 6⅞ inches at a point 2 inches from the tip.

It weighed 19 ounces and carried 20 rows of kernels. It was raised on land that was in corn the fifth year. It is Reid's Yellow Dent and has been grown on the same farm for a number of years.

Late plowing also destroys the growth of many weeds, and is generally followed throughout the corn belt.

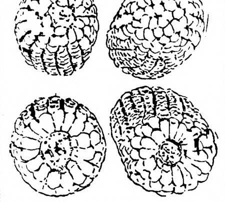
Subsoiling is not commonly practiced, and experiments show that it is profitable only in exceptional cases, particularly in the humid regions.

Fall plowed land should be thoroughly pulverized in the spring by plowing or disking and harrowing and rolling. While it is desirable to have a loose seed bed without clods, it does not need to be as fine as for wheat.

The best time for planting, of course must be judged by the farmer himself, according to the season. It is useless to plant corn while the ground is cold and wet, as it will only lie ungerminated and too often rot. It is better practice to wait until the ground is warm, say about 60 degrees, at the depth of which the seed is to be planted.

In Illinois and Iowa, planting runs from May 10 to June 10 at the latest. Indiana runs about a week earlier. In Kansas the planting usually begins about the last week in April, but it is sometimes continued up to the last of May. In the southern states planting begins of course two or three weeks earlier.

Testing the seed is the most important step before planting. There is no one thing which will do so much to increase the yield as in being absolutely sure that the seed planted is sound and possesses the vitality to germinate a strong, healthy plant.



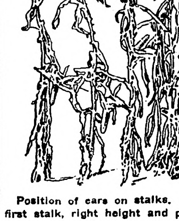
A score card butt. A poor butt. A score card tip. A poor tip.

After the corn is tested, all mixed kernels should be removed, and then the tips and butts should be shelled off, in order to give uniform size to all the corn that goes into the planter. The planter should be tested and the proper place made for each grade. After the planter is tested and it is known what grades are needed, the seeds should be shelled, put into sacks and labeled. All this work should be done before the rush of spring work begins.

The grading of the seed is essential, because it enables the farmer to drop exactly the right number of kernels in each hill, by adjusting the plates of his planter to fit the different grades. In no other way can a perfect stand be obtained than by the most careful seed selection, testing and grading.

How often do we find in a single hill two or three different grades of corn? A good ear, perhaps, then a nubbin, and next a medium ear.

Ten feet from this hill we find another which has produced two or three perfect ears—butts and tips filled out, grains plump, well placed, ears hanging downward from the stalk, and all just as we would like to have it.



Position of ears on stalks. Ear on first stalk, right height and position. On second stalk, ear is not too low, but shank is too long. Stalk No. 3 carries the ear about six feet from the ground and ear is held in upright position, which makes it undesirable. The fourth stalk has several suckers.

Why do not all hills in the same field, with soil and cultivation the same, produce similar results? Simply because we have neglected the work of selecting seed, germinating it and testing it.

The corn in a 100-acre field may produce on the average a very good crop of corn, but when this entire field could be made to produce an almost perfect crop simply by the exercise of good judgment and a few days spent in the selection and preparation of seed, then we can begin to realize what this kind of work means and can figure out its advantages in dollars and cents.

Carob Beans.

It is principally used in the manufacture of cattle food, and large quantities are shipped from Cyprus, Crete, Italy and Portugal to the United Kingdom for this purpose. Italian manufacturers lay great stress on the quality of the bean, and practically all that is produced in the islands of Asia Minor is shipped to Italy. The product of this country is of superior quality and brings 15 to 20 per cent. more in price than that grown elsewhere. Owing to the strong, sweet smell of the bean, it is a difficult article to ship, as the article taints whatever other merchandise may be in the same vessel. Shipments are made in bulk.

Dairy Demonstration Farms.

The University of Missouri is preparing to establish dairy demonstration farms in different parts of the state. A traveling instructor will teach farmers the use of the Babcock test, selection of animals and other dairy secrets.

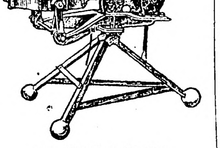
The ELECTRICAL WORLD

SAND SCREENED BY A MOTOR

Labor-Saving Machine Will Do as Much Work in One Hour as Two Men Can in Ten.

The tedious method of riddling sand by hand has been superseded by the electrical method at the foundry of a Cleveland manufacturing concern.

The electric riddle oscillator is a small, compact machine weighing but 175 pounds. There is no dead center, so the motor is not subjected to shocks nor overload and will run from the ordinary lamp socket.



Sand Riddling Machine.

The machine will riddle as much sand in an hour as two men will in ten hours. It accommodates the ordinary 18-inch foundry riddle and when in motion it is interesting to watch it, as it operates with the same graceful and effective motion of the molder riddling sand by hand, but with the steady and untiring energy of a half horse-power motor.

ALARM FOR THE JEWEL BOX

Pendulum, Hanging Perpendicular, Closes Electric Circuit, Giving Warning to Owner.

A jewel box provided with an electric alarm has recently been patented and has already been placed on the market in Paris. In the bottom of the box is a dry battery, a magnet, and a system of levers, the whole forming a device not unlike a telegraph instrument in appearance. In the center of the bottom of the box is a small opening in which a pendulum is suspended. As long as the box is stationary this pendulum hangs perpendicular, and does not close the electric circuit, but the slightest movtment of the box causes it to close the circuit and sound the alarm. Once the pendulum drops down the alarm cannot be silenced except by opening the lid of the box and shifting a lever.

LIGHT FOR THE BLACKSMITH

Accompanying Illustration Shows How an Enterprising Man Provides Illumination for Shop.

The accompanying illustration shows how an enterprising blacksmith provides illumination in his shop so that the light will fall where most needed, says the Popular Electricity. Recesses in the wall contain each an incandescent lamp. The wires for these are run in conduit laid in the wall. It was necessary to place a wire netting over the wall recess to keep the horses from biting and breaking the lamps.

Determine Longitude.

Several determinations of longitude have of late been made by means of wireless messages, but the most ambitious attempt of this nature has just taken place between Paris and Tunis wireless signals connecting two clocks, one at the Eiffel Tower and the other at Bizerta, Tunis, the comparison of which decided the longitude. The signals traveled the whole distance in .007 second, which works out at nearly 200,000 miles a second.

New Task for Electricity.

Every day electricity is set some new task. Now it is asked to magnetize a great steel disk to be used in conveying a cargo of nails from the bottom of the Mississippi; or it must supply power to dredge the Alaskan sands for gold, or to drive the huge mechanical shovels to dig a new and better canal across the Empire state.

Wireless Intelligence Tower.

An agreement has been reached by the Italian government and one of the largest Italian wireless companies for the erection of a large and powerful station in the suburbs of the city of Rome for the transmission of intelligence. It will have six towers, two of them being 240 feet high.

GREAT IS WIRELESS SYSTEM

Conversation Successfully Carried on Between San Francisco and Island of Hokushu, Japan.

Marconi rejoiced when, in 1897, he succeeded in sending a wireless message a distance of three miles. By 1907 he had established regular wireless communication across the Atlantic. Since then vessels have been "picked up" at sea from shore stations at distances of from 2,000 to 4,000 miles. In November last Marconi sent a message from the Coltano station, in Italy, to the Glace Bay station, in Nova Scotia, 4,000 miles. The San Francisco operator, a month earlier, conversed for a period of 15 minutes with the Japanese station on the island of Hokushu, a distance of 6,000 miles.

Wireless communication, it is expected, will be opened up between Italy and Argentina, says the American Review, with the completion of the new station at Buenos Aires. The air-line distance between these stations will be 7,000 miles. The installation of wireless apparatus on ships is being gradually extended. Until recently few vessels outside of warships and steamers of the liner class have been so equipped. Now various countries are, by legislation, compelling many smaller passenger-carrying craft to install such apparatus. Great Britain is reported to be planning the establishment of a chain of wireless stations to encircle the globe. There is to be a subsidized system under the control of the postoffice department. Such a chain of stations would give England wireless connections with her colonial possessions in various parts of the world, making her independent of cables, which are liable to be cut in time of war.—Exchange.

SMALL BATTERY RUNS LAMP

Vest Pocket Arrangement Has Just Been Placed on Market in France—Actuates Toys.

What the inventor claims is the smallest practical storage battery in the world has just been placed on the market in France in connection with a vest-pocket electric light. The battery which actuates the light weights 1⅜ ounces, is but two-thirds of an inch thick, two inches high and 2½ inches wide, and has current sufficient to provide light for six hours continuously and for a much longer time, if used intermittently, says the Popular Mechanics. The battery and light are placed in a receptacle that is not much larger than an ordinary watch and can be carried in the vest pocket. The battery can be used to actuate small mechanical toys as well as to light the pocket flashlamp.

ELECTRICAL NOTES

Over 50 lightships are stationed around the English shores.

Forty thousand wireless telegrams reached the coast of Great Britain last year.

Ball bearings for every movable part feature a new electric automobile.

Weather reports are sent from Gibraltar to London daily by wireless telegraphy.

Through telephone service between New York and Los Angeles is promised by November.

London has 200,000 telephones and the daily number of calls averages one and a quarter million.

An electrically driven machine that weighs less than 50 pounds has been invented to scrub floors.

Austria-Hungary has the least telephone service, in proportion to population, of any European country.

Electric lighting has been vastly improved. New lamps have been produced and old processes improved.

More than 11,000 of the 50,000 passenger cars in use on the railroads of the United States are now electrically lighted.

The government of New Zealand is replacing its wooden telegraph poles and letter box posts with reinforced concrete ones.

The electric zone of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad is to be extended, indicating that its operation has been successful.

No task is too little or too large for electricity and no man can truthfully say what it will yet perform when we have learned it better.

Wireless telegraphy has been developed until messages are being received between San Francisco and Japan, or across the Pacific ocean.

A bill has been introduced in the New York legislature to provide for co-operation between New York and Ontario in the matter of illuminating Niagara Falls.

Acetylene automobile headlights have been provided with an attachment with which the gas may be lighted by short circuiting the sparking system with a switch from the driver's seat.

Children of Memories

SEEMS kind of childish, making all this fuss about the work horse parade," said the pretty young matron, snapping off the short end of her thread and reaching for the spool. "Uncle Will got all worked up over it last week—wouldn't eat a bite of breakfast Monday morning, or even look at the paper, but just stamped off to the public library building to find the boys and talk it over. I told him it was so silly, for the horses were only going to march south of Thirty-fifth street or something like that, and they wouldn't interfere with Uncle Will's old parade, not even the least little mite. But he couldn't see it that way a bit. He sputtered and got red in the face and said a lot of things about the spirit of commercialism and baseball—irreverent generation and baseball—it was so funny. Well, I see they've given in now, and it seems too bad, too. Those big, fat work horses are so dear and sassy. You've got to humor people when they get old, of course, but—oh, well, I s'pose it's all right."

The little gray-haired lady looked at the pretty matron with a queer expression around her eyes. Then she smiled.

"Yes, you do have to humor us, dear," she said. "We get childish—"

"Oh, but I didn't mean you!" flashed the pretty matron.

"Well, we're all alike," the gray-haired lady went on calmly. "Sometimes I wonder if we don't all live too long. We're always wanting the world to make a fuss about us, when goodness knows the world has enough to think about without bothering over the old people. Well, if Husband were with me—"

"He died just a year ago, didn't he?" interrupted the pretty matron softly.

"A year ago tomorrow."

The gray-haired lady let her sewing fall to her lap and gazed absently out over the roofs and chimneys. In the apartment building next door a phonograph was playing "Steamboat Bill." Two voices, a boy's and a girl's, joined in the chorus, and the pretty matron began tapping the floor with her foot in time with the music. Then she checked herself suddenly, for the gray-haired lady was smiling again.

"Did I ever tell you how I met Husband?" she asked. "It was the first year of the war, and we were living in a little town in York state. There were five of us girls, sisters, and four brothers. The boys had all enlisted with father, and there we were, left all alone in the big house. Father had quite a lot of money for those days.

"Oh, but we had good times, too. We were just silly girls, you know, and we thought it was the most glorious thing in the world to have men relatives and men friends who were fighting for their country. We used to have starvation parties and sewing parties all the time to make things for the soldiers at the front. We used to knit wristbands—oh, we knitted and knitted and knitted—and we used to write our initials and the name of our town on little slips of paper and put them inside, and tell the boy who got the wristband to guess who it was from. Sometimes they guessed right, and—

"Well, I was going to one of these parties one day when I met Husband. My, but he was a handsome man! I didn't know him from Adam, dear, but

"Did I Ever Tell You How I Met Husband?"

I knew he was a stranger in town and that he had really been at the front (most of the boys in town hadn't), and that was enough.

"That night he came to the house. They were strict in those days, with all the men folks away, and I couldn't get out, but I called him around to the rain barrel at the side of the house, and we talked through the rain water pipe. First I would talk to him and then I would put my ear down to the pipe and he would talk to me. Before he left town we were engaged.

"He fought all through the war, dear. He was captured once, and I heard he was sent to Andersonville. For nine whole weeks I didn't hear a word from him, until there was an exchange of prisoners. That was a pretty hard time. Then, after Appomattox, he came back and we were married. So many years ago, and it seems like yesterday!"

Every one fell silent for a moment while the sun, low over the tops of the apartment buildings, broke slowly from behind a cloud and threw a long shaft of light over the rug and the scraps of cloth and the bits of thread.

A woman with something white in her lap broke the silence.

"Childish things do happen sometimes," she said. "John was telling me yesterday what happened one Memorial day down in Pennsylvania where he lived before we were married. Every one of the Civil war veterans in the town had died except one, an old fellow who never did anything except sit out on his daughter's porch and watch people go by.

"Well, the paper came out that year and announced all the preparations for the Memorial day celebration. There was to be a parade, with a band from a bigger town near by, and the militia, and everything, but no provision was made for the G. A. R. You see, they thought there wasn't any, with just that one old man.

"But the old man wrote to the committee and told them they had forgotten something. So the put 'G. A. R.' down in the place of honor. When Memorial day came the old man went off alone to the town hall and sat down in one of the chairs for a moment. Then he stood up and called the roll, and after each name he said, 'Mustered out,' until he came to his own name, and then he said, 'Present.' After an hour or so the parade formed and the old man took his place in the front, behind the band. John said that was the last time he ever saw him, marching there behind the band, all alone, standing as straight as any of the militia boys, with a look on his face that told John he was living in the past again. Poor old fellow!"

"Did you ever hear the rest of that story?" said the gray-haired lady. "Husband and I were living there then, and we were out at the cemetery that very day. We saw the old man come marching into the grounds, and when the militia lined up beside the graves he came to a halt a little way from them, by himself, and stood there as stiff and straight as a ramrod while the service was being held.

"He didn't seem to be listening at all, but when the bugler stepped forward and sounded 'taps' I saw his face change a little and heard him mutter to himself, 'That's right. That's right. Taps. We need the rest.' Then he just crumpled up and lay there on the grass, right where he had been standing.

"Of course, somebody called out for water and they all tried to revive him, but Husband never moved. I guess he understood, for he just said, 'It's all right. It was taps, you know,' and then we went back to the village."

The gray-haired lady smiled apologetically.

"We do get a little childish about Memorial day," she said, "but you mustn't mind us, you know." She picked up her sewing and piled it into her work basket, for the sun had gone down and it was getting too dark to see.—Sheppard Butler in the Chicago Record-Herald.

BELONG TO PAGE OF HISTORY

Everlasting Wreath of Laurel Has Been Woven for All the Hosts That Fell.

We are approaching a nation's holiday. The sound of martial music fills the air, and we pause in the midst of life to consider death.

Not for ostentatious reasons do we gather in "God's Acre" once a year. In the minds of brave mothers who can still remember and of daughters who have inherited the knowledge of a tragedy, there is no Decoration Day. To spread a flag and to lay a wreath is not to decorate. One day is set apart as a memorial of a country's dead, and we observe it yearly, not to harrow up the feelings of the living, but to include, with the departed soldier, those others who have gone before. Our memorial to all the missing, whether we strew the little mound with ivy or myrtle or with garden flowers, is as good as "Any wreath that man can weave them!"

Theirs is an immortal crown. We only mark each separate spot so that we may remember—or so that we may forget. Time has softened the sorrow of a nation and placed a halo over the brow of the holy dead, and history has woven her laurels into an everlasting wreath for all the hosts tha'

SPECIAL SESSION IS CALLED FOR DIRECT PRIMARIES AND OTHER REFORM LAWS.

Republican State Convention Selects a Straight Roosevelt Slate of Delegates.

Minneapolis.—Governor A. O. Eberhart will call a special session of the legislature to meet June 4. His statement was made shortly after he heard the news from the Minneapolis armory, where the republican state convention directed the republican state committee to provide for a popular vote on governor.

The governor was in Minneapolis but not at the convention holl. He was notified by telephone of the action, and after consulting with his manager, E. E. Smith, he prepared his statement. He declared that the session will be called to pass a direct primary law for state officers, a stringent corrupt practices act, and legislative reapportionment. The governor has no power, however, to restrict the legislature in the subjects it takes up, or the time it will remain in session.

The republican state convention at the Minneapolis armory, adopted a brief set of resolutions, instructing the delegates elected to vote for Roosevelt indorsing the progressive principles of Roosevelt and La Follette, demanding repeal of the Canadian reciprocity treaty, a more complete corrupt practices act, and instructing the republican state committee to provide for a direct primary vote on governor.

The resolutions brought on the only real contest on the convention floor. They were represented by E. H. Canfield of Luverne, while A. D. Stewart of Redwood Falls offered a minority report, declaring for the physical valuation of railroads, the initiative, referendum and recall, and instructing for La Follette as second choice. The convention first adopted the majority report resolutions. Then it struck out the La Follette second choice section from the minority report. The vote on the minority report as amended was close and a roll call was demanded. The report was lost, 490 to 610.

Delegates-at-large elected at the state convention, with alternates-at-large and presidential electors are:

Delegates-at-Large—Moses E. Clapp, St. Paul; Milton D. Purdy, Minneapolis; J. F. Jacobson, Madison; E. K. Roverud, Caledonia; O. J. Larson, Duluth; A. L. Hanson, Ada.

Alternates—W. W. Rich, St. Paul; C. F. Waterbury, Minneapolis; William O'Brien, Eden Valley; A. B. Coburn, International Falls; J. J. Rachac, Faribault; A. F. Charest, Clay county.

Presidential Electors-at-Large — J. W. Wright, Litchfield; W. H. Putnam, Red Wing; Emil G. Hage, Brown county. Electors chosen from districts—E. H. Smith, Mower county; L. C. Churchill, Cottonwood county; C. A. Rohrer, Sibley county; George Thompson, St. Paul; H. V. Jones, Minneapolis; E. E. McCrea, Alexandria; A. V. Ricke, Fairfax; John Rundquist, Kanabec county; W. A. Marin, Crookston.

LAWS CONSTITUTIONAL.

Elliott Road Act and Commission Government Are Approved.

St. Paul.—The right of a county to assess a fourth of country road costs against the abutting property and the right of a city to frame a home rule charter with a commission form of government were both upheld by the supreme court.

The Elwell road law was passed in 1911 and provides that the county in constructing permanent roads can assess one-fourth of the cost of the improvement against the abutting property, giving the property owners fifteen years to pay for it.

In a suit brought in the name of George T. Simpson, former attorney general, against the officers of the city of Mankato to test the validity of the commission form of government established there, the court holds the home rule provisions of the constitution permit such a form.

TO SHORTEN ROAD.

Commercial Club of Ely Takes Steps To Help the Town.

Ely.—The commercial club has taken steps to secure a shorter road between Ely and White Iron. Years ago the road was built along section lines, over a steep and rugged hill, over which it was almost impossible to draw a heavy load. With the rapid development this road has proved inadequate and the club and county commissioners will build a new road for about a mile that will shorten the distance between the two places.

The Duluth & Iron Range railroad has made a valuable addition to its transportation facilities here. By making the evening train both from here and Duluth a mixed train, it has given Ely the equivalent of an additional train.

MINERS ARE RESCUED

Six Removed Alive From Ironwood Shaft—Seven Perish.

Duluth. — Six men were taken alive from the Oliver Iron Mining company's mine at Ironwood. Two bodies of dead miners have been recovered. Thirteen men were intombed in the mine when the roof fell in at the 2,000 foot level. Seven of the men were killed and the others were huddled into a narrow passage. A pipe was driven through the earth

REDS ARE EXAMINED.

State and Government Unite in Work —Clash Is Expected.

Park Rapids.—The state of Minnesota and the national government have specialists at Ponsford examining the Indians. Several cases of eye disease have been found among them. Drs. H. W. Hill of the state board and R. H. Mullin of Minneapolis represent the state, and Dr. S. Clark of Evansville, Ind., and Dr. Harrison of the same state represent the government. These physicians are not in perfect harmony and it is rumored their report will contain sensational features.

The government claims that not more than one-fifth of the Indians are wards of the United State, that the others are citizens of the state and that the government has been bearing an expense for years that belongs to Minnesota.

Dr. F. D. Cook, the resident physician, considered the most successful government physician the Indians have had, resigned yesterday. He clashed with the government authorities and particularly with the present inspectors, who he thinks are too officious. He will continue the practice of medicine at Ponsford.

The inspectors visited the Park Rapids schools for the purpose of determining if the Indian disease had spread into this community. No sign of the disease was found here. They will continue the examination among the white settlers in the vicinity of Ponsford until all families come under inspection.

COLLEGE CELEBRATES

School at St. Peter Will Observe Fiftieth Anniversary of Its Founding.

St. Peter.—Commencement week at Gustavus Adolphus college this year will be the most important event in the history of the institution. During the week the college will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of its founding, and delegates to the annual meeting of the Minnesota conference of the Swedish Lutheran church, which will be in session, will elect a successor to Dr. P. A. Mattson, who resigned the presidency last July.

Ceremonies of commencement begin with the opening of the conference next Thursday night, and the jubilee observance will take place on Tuesday, May 31. Gustavus Adolphus college was founded in 1862 by Dr. E. Norelius for many years president of the Augustana synod. Its first seat was at Red Wing. Later it was moved to East Union, and in 1875 was brought to this city. In the half century that has elapsed it has grown from an inconspicuous parochial school into the most important educational institution supported by the conference.

When the semi-centennial is held one of the principal addresses will be delivered by Dr. E. Norelius, the founder. Other speakers will be Governor A. O. Eberhart, who is an alumnus of the institution, and by Dr. George E. E. Vincent, president of the University of Minnesota.

On the Thursday morning following 83 students will receive their degrees or diplomas.

ROAD CLAIMS INLAND

Rocky Point Island Occupant Sued at Winona for Trespass.

Winona.—Who owns Rocky Point island, close to the Minnesota line in the Mississippi river between this city and La Crosse, a favorite spot for many fishermen and campers of Minnesota and Wisconsin?

That is a question Judge A. H. Snow of Winona, in the district court, must decide. Litigation was started at the instance of the St. Paul Railway company, and makes George Alcorn, the occupant of the island, the defendant. Recently the railway company demanded damages from Alcorn for trespass, charging that he cut trees on the island. Alcon refused to pay the claim or to vacate. Carried to the court, the railroad company produced tax receipts to prove its contention of ownership, while Alcorn claimed right of title by adverse possession. He contended in the court yesterday that he had made his home on the island for nineteen years, made all of the improvements, and that the railway company never asserted the right of ownership. His counsel holds he has thus become the owner, despite of the fact that the railway paid the taxes.

The court yesterday took the matter under advisement.

Breckenridge Opens New Library.

Breckenridge.—A public library for the city was opened with a reception and an address by Miss Baldwin, state librarian. The movement was started six months ago by the Commercial club and has been ably assisted by the Woman's Study club. The association starts with between 500 and 600 volumes. The reception was given by the Woman's Study and the Commercial clubs, assisted by the P. E. O.'s.

Children Killed by Explosion.

White Earth.—Two children were killed when a can of gasoline was overturned and exploded at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. Wardlow in this city. Their five-months-old and two-year-old daughters were the victims. The mother, in trying to save her babies from death, was herself seriously injured, and may die. The shock of the death of her children, and the terrible burns which she had received, have been responsible for Mrs. Wardlow's condition, and it is not believed she can recover.

ALL THEY WANTED WAS PIE

Something of a Pity That All Labor Troubles Cannot Be Settled as Easily as This.

In the course of some light-hearted comment on the decision of the authorities of a woman's college in western Massachusetts, to banish pie from the girls' midday meal, the New York Sun recalls the following incident of an earlier day in a neighboring region:

Some twenty years ago a New York contractor was employed to build a fine country house in the Berkshire hills. The laborers, who were recruited from the neighboring villages, were boarded at near-by farmhouses. Before long they all went out on strike. The superintendent in charge was powerless. The contractor hurriedly took an express train for the Berkshires, and on arriving, immediately demanded an interview with the leaders of the strike.

"What's the matter" he demanded. "What's your grievance?"

"We're underfed," said the spokesman. "You can't expect us to work on empty stomachs. The company has got us here. It ought to see that we are decently fed."

"The company pays enough to have you properly fed," said the builder. "What is the trouble?"

"We don't get pie but once a day," said the spokesman.

"Abominable!" agreed the builder. "You shall have pie three times a day." And they did, and there was an end of that strike.—Youth's Companion.

PHYSICIAN ADVISES CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Four years ago I had places break out on my wrist and on my shin which would itch and burn by spells, and scratching them would not seem to give any relief. When the trouble first began, my wrist and shin itched like poison. I would scratch those places until they would bleed before I could get any relief. Afterwards the places would scale over, and the flesh underneath would look red and feverish. Sometimes it would begin to itch until it would waken me from my sleep, and I would have to go through the scratching ordeal again.

Our physician pronounced it "dry eczema." I used an ointment which the doctor gave me, but it did no good. Then he advised me to try the Cuticura Remedies. As this trouble has been in our family for years, and is considered hereditary, I felt anxious to try to head it off. I got the Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills, and they seemed to be just what I needed.

"The disease was making great headway on my system until I got the Cuticura Remedies which have cleared my skin of the great pest. From the time the eczema healed four years ago, until now, I have never felt any of its pest, and I am thankful to the Cuticura Soap and Ointment which certainly cured me. I always use the Cuticura Soap for toilet, and I hope other sufferers from skin diseases will use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Irven Hutchison, Three Rivers, Mich., Mar. 16, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

44 Bu. to the Acre is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Edmonton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from 40 acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Reports from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 4,000 bushels of wheat from 120 acres, or 33 1-3 bu. per acre. 25, 30 and 40 bushel yields were numerous. As high as 132 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.

The Silver Cup at the recent Spokane Fair was awarded to the Alberta Government for its exhibit of grains, grasses and vegetables. Reports of excellent yields for 1910 come also from Saskatchewan and Manitoba in Western Canada.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emptions of 160 acres (at $3 per acre) are to be had in the choicest districts. WOMAN SICK TWELVE YEARS

Wants Other Women to Know How She Was Finally Restored to Health.

Louisiana, Mo.:—"I think a woman naturally dislikes to make her troubles known to the public, but complete restoration to health means so much to me that I cannot keep from telling mine for the sake of other suffering women.

"I had been sick about twelve years, and had eleven doctors. I had dragging down pains, pains at monthly periods, bilious spells, and was getting worse all the time. I would hardly get over one spell when I would be sick again. No tongue can tell what I suffered from cramps, and at times I could hardly walk. The doctors said I might die at one of those times, but I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got better right away. Your valuable medicine is worth more than mountains of gold to suffering women."—Mrs. BERTHA MUFF, 503 N. 4th Street, Louisiana, Mo.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

MORE ARCHBALD TESTIMONY

BROTHER OF AUTHOR OF THE CHARGES IS HEARD.

Declared Attorney Said Judge Should Be Paid $15,000 for Alleged Special Services.

Washington, May 20.—C. G. Boland, of the Marion Coal company, of Scranton, Pa., brother of W. P. Boland, author of charges against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court, was a witness before the house committee on judiciary inquiring into the charges against the jurist.

Boland gave testimony relating to negotiations participated in by Judge Archbald to settle out of court, litigation between the Marion coal company and the Lackawanna railroad, and to dispose of the interests of the Bolands in the Marion Coal Co. to the railroad company. In this connection Boland declared that George M. Watson, a lawyer, who led in the negotiations, had declared that Judge Archbald should be compensated for his part to the extent of $10,000 or $15,000.

Boland told of his refusal to discount a note for $500 signed by Judge Archbald for Edward J. Williams while litigation of the company was pending in the commerce court. Later he said Williams had told him he had made a mistake is refusing to discount the note, and that he could have saved the Marion Coal company court costs had he acted differently.

The witness said that the Bolands sought to dispose of their interests in the company to get rid of litigation and that Judge Archbald offered to help them settle their difficulties out of court and aid Attorney Watson to dispose of their interests. They authorized Watson to offer their interests for $100,000, Watson to get $5,000 commission.

A conference was arranged Boland said, by Judge Archbald with officials of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western at which Watson raised the price to $140,000 or $160,000 which President Truesdale of the railroad company, refused to pay, ending the negotiations.

As to Watson's reasons for increasing the price $40,000 or $60,000 in excess of the Boland's offer, the witness said Watson told him certain persons had to be paid if the deal went through, among them Judge Archbald.

Indian Bill Is Postposed.

The house committee on Indian affairs has been unable to take up the Steenerson bill yet, but it is expected to report the measure, which provides primarily for a confirmation of title to all the White Earth lands not now being challenged in the courts within 90 days, next week. The Steenerson bill has become unusually important because of the amendments which the committee proposes to make to it, revising the Clapp amendment so as to give any Indian complete control of the title of his land, who has not 50 per cent or more white blood. The amended bill will also provide for the making of a new roll of the White Earth Indians to show those who would be entitled under this new application of the Clapp amendment to do as they pleased with their lands.

Cotton Report Date Changed.

The senate passed the house bill changing the date of issuance of the cotton acreage report by the department of agriculture to the first Monday in July of each year. Heretofore the law required that it be issued in June.

Miners Argue Wage Scale.

Des Moines, May 20.—Delegates attending the thirteenth district convention of the United Mine Workers of America engaged in heated debate over the adoption of the new wages scale agreement submitted to the convention by the subcommittees of the miners and operators. The agreement, which carries an increase in wages of 5.26 per cent, was bitterly attacked by those opposing its adoption, the chief complaint being against the finihg clause, which opponents say should be eliminated.

"ONE MILLION LEAGUE FOR MANITOBA."

The purposes of the "Million for Manitoba League" are set out in the fact that Manitoba wants more people. Today the population is less than five hundred thousand, and the determination of the representative men of the Province to devote their best energies to increasing this to a million is a worthy one. There is already a widespread interest in every municipality; committees are appointed, whose duties are to secure such a thorough knowledge of local conditions that, whether the applicant for information be a laborer for the farm, a would-be tenant, a probable homesteader, the buyer of a small improved farm or the purchaser of a large tract for colonizing farmers, the information is at hand, free.

The advantages that Manitoba possesses are many, and with the exploitation that will be given them by the birth of this new acquisition to the settlement and immigration propaganda that is being carried on by the Dominion Government, there is no doubt that the establishment of the bureau will very soon bring about the results looked for. Manitoba is practically the gateway of the great grain belt of the West. Its farm lands have demonstrated time and again that they have a yielding value that practically makes them worth over one hundred dollars per acre. Added to the yielding value of the land, there is an increased value on account of its nearness to markets, and the matter of freight rates is carefully considered by the cautious buyer. But the information more valuable to the incoming settler is that it still has an immense amount of vacant fertile land open for homesteads. This dispels the idea that free homesteads in Manitoba are about exhausted. In addition to this, the territory recently added to the Province will open up a homesteading area which when filled should fully satisfy the "Million for Manitoba League." Within the old boundaries there is an area of 47,360,000 acres, less than six million acres of the 16½ million acres occupied being under cultivation. At present there are over 20 million acres of available land capable of being put under the plough. If in every one of the 195,000 vacant quarter sections of the Province an average family of four persons were placed, there would be added a rural population of nearly 800,000. So there is room for additional hundreds of thousands on the farms of Manitoba, without any possibility of congestion. The population per mile in Iowa is 39.4, in Minnesota it is 23.5. That in Manitoba is only 7.1.

A glance at the map, copies of which will be forwarded upon application to any Canadian Government Agent, shows that Manitoba is wonderfully well supplied with railways. There are but few farms that are more than ten or twelve miles from a railway line: elevators are convenient, and markets are always good. The growing of grain, while a big feature in the inducements held out, is well reenforced by the great possibilities that exist in all portions of the Province, for the raising of stock, for dairying, for hogs, and for a successful class of mixed farming, and what gives additional interest is the fact that there is so much land in the Province open for free homesteading that improved farms in almost all of the 98 municipalities can be purchased at very low figures. Many of the owners of these have made sufficient upon which to retire and are becoming residents of the cities. In addition to the export market for the produce of the farm, Manitoba has a number of large cities and towns providing a splendid local market. Truck and garden farming are highly profitable branches. Winnipeg is a city bordering on 200,000. Brandon is a splendid centre, Portage la Prairie is the hub of an excellent district, and Yorkton, Minnedosa, Dauphin, Morden, Manitou and a dozen other towns are important help as consumers.

The Dominion and Provincial immigration officials are working in strong sympathy with the "Million for Manitoba League," and in addition to the general literature sent out by the Government, the League has prepared pamphlets giving useful and concise information, which on addressing the Secretary, Million League, Winnipeg, Manitoba, will be forwarded free.

Jewels in a Flower Bed.

The recovery of a quantity of stolen jewelry from a flower-bed was described at Kingston-on-Thames police court the other day, when a general servant was charged with theft from her mistress, a resident of Ivydene, Southborough road, Surbiton, London. The lady had missed a pearl pin and a pearl and diamond ring. Thinking she might have lost the jewels in the street, she issued printed notices offering a reward for their recovery. When she lost a number of other things she placed the matter in the hands of the police. The detective said that from what the prisoner told him he searched the garden, and in one of the flower beds found some of the jewelry. The rest he found in the prisoner's bedroom.

Be a booster—not a knocker.

Who wants to make any wagers that Taft will be re-nominated? His campaign managers are busy looking for some compromise candidate so as to head off Roosevelt, if they can.

Ohio, Taft's home state, went for Roosevelt by a twenty thousand majority at the presidential preference primaries held on Tuesday. This is almost strong enough to make one suspect that some democrats took a hand in the voting.

Crop losses in other states have held the prices of farm products considerably higher than a year ago. Crop prospects in Minnesota are excellent and, with the high prices that seem almost certain, our farmers have reason to feel pretty good.

Clarence V. T. Richeson, who at one time was privileged to write the prefix "Rev." before his name, paid the death penalty in the electric chair at the Boston jail on Tuesday for the murder of his sweetheart. Outside the immediate members of his family, there seems to be little grieving over his fate.

Governor Eberhart has called an extra session of the legislature, and says he wants a new law passed to extend the primary elections so as to include state officers. He steadily refused all winter to call an extra session, but the Roosevelt landslide last week showed the weakness of the machine to which he belongs, so he hurriedly dropped his arrogance and is trying to make a death-bed repentance. If he wants this extra session to do him any good, he will be very careful with his recommendations—and the veto power.

MOON-STRUCK FISH.

Moon madness and star gazing is a bad habit of squids that gets a great many of them killed by running aground, where they wiggle-waggle, squirting out their ink bags in vain attempts to get back into the sea. Squids flirt and squirt under the rays of the beauteous moon even as dogs sit and bay in her glorious soft, tender light, and the Chinks first got wise to it, and fire set along shores of New England and the Gulf of St. Lawrence is man's moon, the imitation of the old Chink way to catch squid for bait, squid being always in demand in our northeast as bait for cod.

SOMETIMES HAPPENS THAT WAY.

"Shykes, how long have you been living in this bustling, roaring trade center?"

"Ever since I bought this house and lot for an 'attractive suburban home.' But how long have you been living on the prairie, Glizzard?"

"Ever since I invested in property there that was 'sure to become one of the great business districts of the city.'"

NIGHT SIGNALS FOR AIRMEN

Illuminated Captive Balloons Used in Germany to Guide Aeronauts by Night.

The progress of aircraft in Germany is well indicated by the fact that illuminated captive balloons are now being used for the purpose of guiding aeronauts by night. One of these has lately been placed at Treplow, between Berlin and Stettin. The balloon, which is 2½ meters (about eight feet) in diameter, is of a red color and carries an electric light.

It is visible for a great distance at night, and is easily distinguished from any other light. In case of fog, when the light could not be seen, an electric bell is caused to ring by means of a hygrometer attached. In this way it is possible for a person in charge to ascertain the height of the fog zone and cause the balloon to ascend into a less moist and clearer atmosphere, when the bell will cease ringing.

NOT A PROMOTION

"I see that our military friend was sent to jail."

"Yes; he's doing time instead of marking time."

MOST PRECIOUS GIFT.

Of all the gifts that have been bestowed upon mortals it is probable that that of laughter is one of the most precious; and yet we do not know why we laugh, though one clever man recently took it upon himself to tell us the reason. He asserts, for instance, that we laugh "when some one falls down in the street," and argues that we are amused at the unfortunate individual's "mechanical elasticity."

As a matter of fact civilized persons do not laugh when they witness an accident; rather do they rush forward to see if they can help. We may, if we are fortunate enough to have retained some of the child in us, laugh to tears when the policeman in a play trips over the clown, because we know it is make-believe; but we are humane enough nowadays not to see anything risible in a fall which may result in a broken leg or a dislocated shoulder.

The causes of laughter are one of the tests of a high civilization.

ORE DEPOSITS DUE TO EROSION.

A new theory covering the formation of deposits of gold supposes that certain regions under similar geological conditions owe their endowment to the greater or less activity of the erosions which have reached the deeper strata of the terrestrial crust. Similarities in type of deposits of metal are found in regions where geological conditions are the same. It is not by chance that certain regions are exceptionally rich in gold "leads" while in other regions no "leads" can be found.—Harper's Weekly.

PERHAPS THIS EXPLAINS IT.

"What are you shutting off the electric heat for?" demanded the passenger in the elevated railway railway car.

"I'll tell you, mister," said the guard in a stage whisper, "if you won't say anything about it; this is the rush hour, an' we need all the juice for runnin' the trains."

A MILITANT DEBUTANTE.

"Going to give your daughter a coming-out ball?"

"No."

"Not going to give her a coming-out ball?"

"No; she's a militant suffragette; keeps me busy giving bail."

BRIEF BUT TELLING.

"What does your father do for a living, my lad?"

"Suckers."

There was a ball game played here Sundey between the local team and a bunch from Thief River Falls. It was quite a running contest and the visitors won by a score of 14 to 10, or something like that. There is some comment regarding the conduct of some of the visitors that is not altogether complimentary.

HAD TO MARRY OR PAY TAX

In England, Not Very Long Ago, Bachelors Contributed to the Revenues of the Country.

This is leap year, but the meaning is not so vital now as it once was. For instance, says the Kansas City Star, in England in the old days, there was taxation for the man who avoided marriage, either from choice or necessity.

In Sir John Sinclair's "History of of the Public Revenue of the British Empire" we find that in the time of William III (1644-1702), taxes were imposed on marriages, burials, births, bachelors and widowers. Tables of the rates imposed on different classes are given, showing that a duke, for the privilege of remaining unmarried, was required to pay an annual tax of £12 11s ($61.08); a marquis paid £10 1s ($48.94); an earl, £7 11s ($36.73); a viscount, £6 6s ($30.66); a baron, £5 1s ($24.59); a baronet and Knight of the Bath, £3 16s ($18.45); a knight bachelor £2 11s ($12.38); the king's sergeant-at-law, £5 1s ($24.59); other sergeants-at-law, £3 16s ($18.45); esquires, £1 6s ($6.31); gentlemen, 6s ($1.44); doctors of divinity, law and physic, £1 6s ($6.31); persons of £250 ($1,217) per annum, or £600 ($2,922), personal estate, 6s ($1.44); persons not otherwise charged, 2s ($0.48). The aggregate revenue derived from this source was an average of £51,618 ($251,380) per annum, which was an important item at a time when the revenue of the kingdom was only about five and a half millions ($27,500,000) per annum.

WHAT KILLED HIS TRADE

Undertaker Gives His Reasons Why Business in His Town Is No

"Yep, I've decided to move away from this town. There's no business here for an undertaker any more."

"What's the cause? Do the people all go away to die?"

"The trouble with 'em is that they've practically quit dyin'. It was all right before the temperance cranks got so blamed fussy that the druggist had to give up runnin' a blind pig."

"You don't mean to tell me that you think folks who don't drink whisky never die? That would mean that all the women and children must have been addicted to the habit, along with the men."

"Oh, no, I don't want to try to set up no argument of that kind. You see it sort of worked both ways. The men shortened their lives by drinkin' whisky and the women done the same thing for theirselves and the children by takin' drugs and dosin' the young ones. So when the druggist was druv out of town I was the one that had to suffer. It beats all the way some folks keep forever interferin' with other people's business."

Thief River Press Sold

The Thief River Press, the oldest newspaper in Thief River Falls, was purchased last week by M. C. Cutter and consolidated with the News, of which Mr. Cutter also acquired ownership recently. The Press passes out of existence and the News-Press is the name of the consolidated publication issued from the Mews office.

The Press was started by C. C. Knappen some 25 years ago, and it seems to have had as many different owners as its founder had newspapers in that eventful quarter of a century. The Press has been owned by about a dozen different parties, and is now dead. Its founder, Mr. Knappen, has since launched at least a dozen different newspapers in Minnesota and the Dakotas, and passed over to join the great majority a little over a year ago. Among the papers he started or owned in this state were the Thief River Press, the Crookston Press (started by Mr. Knappen as the People's Press at Fosston in 1897 and moved to Crookston in 1898), the Fisher Bulletin and the Turtle River Pine tree. He was publisher of the Standard and postmaster at Sisseton, S. D., when he died about a year ago.

CANADA'S PROSPERITY.

The New York Times of March 23, 1912, in an article dealing with Canada's progress, says:

"At the present moment eight shiploads of European immigrants are afloat for Canada, while there are signs that the outward movement which is customary with us during labor troubles will be marked this year. There is no such startling record of our loss to Canada. Our citizens quietly slip over the border in groups or trainloads, but their going is not advertised.

"There is no mystery why Canada is the 'good thing' the United States used to be. It is because Canada is following in its neighbor's footsteps that it is repeating the fortunate experience which its neighbor is envying, even while deliberately turning its back on the teachings of the past. A fortnight ago the Dominion budget speech reported the unprecedented surplus of $39,000,000, and on Thursday the Government passed through the Committee on Supply credits of $38,000,000 for railways and canals. With this assistance the railways themselves are both enabled and compelled to increase their facilities. Accordingly we find a single road allotting ten millions for work of its own. Naturally the Canadian newspapers contain announcements calling for fifty thousand men for construction work. This influx is apart from those Americans who go with money in their pockets obtained by cashing in their high-priced American lands.

"A St. Paul dispatch says that within a fortnight two thousand carloads of farm animals and machinery have passed toward Canada, the property of men who expect to pay for their farms with the first crop."

BABY'S ECZEMA AND BOILS

"My son was about three weeks old when I noticed a breaking-out on his cheeks, from which a watery substance oozed. A short time after, his arms, shoulders and breast broke out also, and in a few days became a solid scab. I became alarmed, and called our family physician who at once pronounced the disease eczema. The little fellow was under treatment for about three months. By the end of that time, he seemed no better. I became discouraged. I dropped the doctor's treatment, and commenced the use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and in a few days noticed a marked change. The eruption on his cheeks was almost healed, and his shoulders, arms and breast were decidedly better. When he was about seven months old, all trace of the eczema was gone.

"During his teething period, his head and face were broken out in boils which I cured with Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Surely he must have been a great sufferer. During the time of teething and from the time I dropped the doctor's treatment, I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, nothing else, and when two years old he was the picture of health. His complexion was soft and beautiful, and his head a mass of silky curls. I had been afraid that he would never be well, and I feel that I owe a great deal to the Cuticura Remedies." (Signed) Mrs. Mary W. Ramsey, 224 E. Jackson St., Colorado Springs, Col., Sept. 24, 1910. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

GOVERNOR PRAISES COLLEGES

ADDRESSES STUDENTS AT GUSTAVUS ADOLPHUS.

Dr. Vincent Urges Education For Training Mind and Fostering Spirit.

St. Peter.—Observance of the semicentennial of Gustavus Adolphus college drew a throng of visitors to St. Peter. Scores of former students at the institution traveled a long distance to attend the fiftieth anniversary, and during the exercises the college auditorium was crowded to its capacity. Just before the program opened the procession of speakers and distinguished visitors marched down the main aisle of the auditorium. The first man to ascend the platform was Erick Norelius of was one of the original class of 11 phus and closely following him came John Olson of Sioux Falls, S. D., who was one of the original class of 11 pulpils to enroll at the school when it was established at Red Wing in 1862.

The old master and his gray-haired pupil were warmly applauded as they stood for a moment facing the audience. Dr. Norelius asked the invocation and Dr. J. P. Uhler acting president of the college introduced Governor Eberhart as the first speaker. In doing so he told of the chief magistrate's early struggle when he entered Gustavus Adolphus a penniless youth and in a trifle more than four years worked his way through the institution. The governor said in part: There are a great many problems to solve and we must have Christian institutions like Gustavus Adolphus to help solve them. The problem of our large cities and the problem of making country life attractive are two of the important questions of our time.

It is in these that the influence of schools like Gustavus Adolphus college is needed. This particular school is in need of larger endowment and I would call upon the alumni to start a fund of at least $250,000. In working for the advancement of the institution to which we owe so much we will be working for the advancement of everything that is good and pure and clean in American citizenship.

Dr. George E. Vincent's address was scholarly and brilliant. He said: This is a birthday occasion, a jubilee, a fiftieth anniversary. A college is like a man. A man must have character, must have a permanent steady set of emotions, ideas and habits. A college must be solidified by principles and ideals and a dominant purpose. You stand for a type of education which embraces the training of the education of the whole man, that which looks to his spiritual growth as well as his intellectual development. Any sectarian institution can be of service to the commonwealth by reason of its support of its fragment of God's truth. You should indeed pay homage to that great manager, Norelius. He had courage and he had imagination, and he dreamed a dream. C. G. Schultz of St. Paul, state superintendent of public instruction, brought greetings from the public schools of Minnesota and Dr. John N. Kildahl, president of St. Olaf college from the minor colleges of the state.

$85,000 FOR MACALESTER

Unnamed Benefactors Make Liberal Contribution.

Minneapolis.—Gifts to Macalester college amounting to $85,000 from two unnamed benefactors, were announced at the annual dinner given at Wallace hall by President and Mrs. T. M. Hodgman. Announcement was made by Dr. H. C. Swearingen of the board of trustees, who said that the two gifts of $50,000 and $35,000 are made part of an endownment of $250,000 conditional on the remainder being raised by June 1, 1913. A fund of $467,000 was completed last July, $160,000 going into new buildings and $307,000 being invested as endowment, but deficits still come owing to the growth of the institution. The dinner was a farewell occasion for the senior class and for Professor Frank D. Scott, who leaves at the end of the college year to enter the ministry.

DEMONSTRATION PLOTS

Cass Lake.—Ray W. Labbit of St. Paul, who is connected with the Great Northern railway agricultural extension department, has been in Cass Lake vicinity looking over the territory tentatively with a view to locating later in the season about four demonstration plots under the system plots by the owners of the tracts un which the Great Northern has of paying a premium for the handling of the plots by the owners of the tracts under the supervision of the road's experts. Cass Lake citizens are enthusiastic over the proposition. Mr. Labbitt was shown various suitable tracts and the owners all expressed a desire to cooperate in the work.

NEW MILL CITY BANK.

T. B. Walker and H. J. Burton Back National Organization.

Minneapolis. — Minneapolis is to have a new national bank, backed by T. B. Walker and H. J. Burton interests. It will be located in the vicinity of Sixth street and Hennepin avenue, efforts now being made to procure the ground floor of the Masonic temple. It will be capitalized at $250,000 with a paid-up surplus of $125,000. There is no bank in this part of the city.

ANNEX MINING TRACT

Virginia City Seeks to Acquire Land With $12,000,000 Valuation.

Virginia.—The city of Virginia is contending that it has the right to annex a 1,280 acre tract lying east of the city. This is iron mining property and has an assessed valuation of $12,000,000. The Oliver Iron Mining company which is the largest owner of this property is fighting annexation. The city commenced the proceedings in a quiet way and had the annexation petition certified by the court auditor before the mining company knew what was contemplated. To annex the property it was found essential that some part of it should have at one time been platted. It was thought none of this had ever been platted until recently, it was discovered by accident that a part was platted 18 years ago. Now the Oliver Iron Mining company has filed notice of an application to the district court to have the plat vacated in order to block the city in annexing the property which would require the Oliver Iron Mining company to pay $100,000 or more per year in city taxes. The company now asserts that it pays 87 per cent of the taxes in Virginia and under the conditions with the property annexed would be paying 98 per cent of all the city taxes.

GIRL TREED BY BEAR.

Runs Onto Mrs. Bruin, With Two Cubs, While Hunting a Cow.

Duluth.—A hostile she bear, who imagined that her cubs were in peril from Miss Mary McInness, 15 years old, who came upon the animal suddenly while hunting for the family cow, near Kinney, Messabi range, treed the girl and caused her much suffering from several hours of exposure.

The bear, with two cubs was in a thicket and when the girl went into it to seek the cow, Mrs. Bruin started for her with an ominous growl. The girl fled and the bear pursued and the girl climbed into a small tree. The branches came low down and she got out of reach of the animal quickly. The bear remained in the vicinity for several hours and night came on.

The father and brother of the girl searched for her with lanterns and she heard their calls and answered them. The bear did not leave the vicinity of the tree until the men appeared.

BY BUTTER PRODUCTION.

Dairy Shipments This Year Will Exceed All Records.

Henry D. Weber, dairy agent of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, says that the production of butter for Minnesota this year will probably exceed 120,000,000 pounds.

Mr. Weber's business takes him through the dairy country of the northwest and he said that the shipments of butter so far this year are in excess of 3,500,000 pounds more than for the corresponding period in 1911. He predicts that although the price of butter is now high that it has reached its highest point and that within a short time it is due for a drop.

His explanation of the high price of dairy products is that most of the big storage plants of the east have been cleaned up and the demand has kept the supply well used up. This also accounts for the heavy shipments to eastern centers of Minnesota butter.

First Section of Milwaukee Fast Train Derailed Near Winona.

Winona—The first section of train No. 1, on the Milwaukee railway, known Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, known as the Pioneer Limited, was derailed at about 3:20 a. m., near Homer, eight miles east of here. Two sleepers, a baggage and buffet car are in the ditch and are partially submerged in the Mississippi river, as the track runs parallel to the river at that point.

The wreck was caused by heavy rains which washed out the roadbed and let the train slide from the track.

One passenger, William West, a traveling salesman, was caught in the washroom when the train went over, and had to break his way out of the window to keep from drowning. He was brought to the hospital here, but his injuries consist only of lacerated hands and arms.

SLAYER IS CAPTURED.

Man Suspected of Pillager Crime Is Caught After Chase.

Brainerd. — Tony Schnider, alias John Kropel, the alleged murderer of Mrs. F. J. Page, of Pilager, was caught after a hard chase on the streets of Crosby by Mike Rail, a neighbor of the Pages, who, with Sheriff Armstrong of Morrison county, had trailed the man to Ironton. Mrs. Page was assaulted and killed Sunday while on her way from church to her farm.

LOVE OF WORK IS FATAL

Aged Rushford Man, to Keep Busy, Paints and Has Fall.

Winona.—Ole Glenna of Rushford is dead as the result of a fall from his house, which he was painting. He had recently moved to Rushford from a farm. Though aged he was energetic, and not liking to be idle, started painting. Not being accustomed to working at a height, he los his balance and fell on a cemen walk and was internally injured.

WHITE PLAGUE LESS DEADLY

Decrease in Death Rate From Tuberculosis Means Saving of 27,000 Lives in Ten Years.

In the decade from 1901 to 1910, the death rate from tuberculosis in the United States declined from 196.9 for each 100,000 persons living to 160.8, a decrease of 18.7 per cent, while the general death rate, including all causes of death, declined only one-half as fast, or at the rate of 9.7 per cent, from 1655.0 to 1495.8, according to figures given out by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. The figures are based on data abstracted from the reports of the United States Bureau of the Census, and cover the registration area in this country. According to the statement, the tuberculosis death rate has declined steadily since 1904, when it was 201.6. On the other hand, the general death rate shows a fluctuation downward in general trend, but not as steady as the tuberculosis rate. The decline in the tuberculosis death rate in the last ten years means a saving of 27,000 lives at the present time.

Genuine Maple Sugar.

There are few people outside the maple sugar making districts, says a writer in the Country Gentleman, who really know what the genuine article tastes like. The superior flavor thus spoken of is probably due in a degree to the same causes that make strawberries eaten off the vine and cherries consumed on the tree so delectable. The writer quoted, however, puts some of the blame for the poor flavor of commercial maple sugar on the "wily wholesale dealer and mixer."

Manila to Play Tennis.

The city of Manila is building ten tennis courts for the use of the public in the sunken gardens opposite the city hall. The courts will have the accompaniments of baths, lockers and reading rooms, which will be made by transforming the bastion near Victoria gate into an up-to-date club.

Against So Many Surgical Operations. How Mrs. Bethune and Mrs. Moore Escaped.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have any one move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

SERIAL STORY

No Man's Land

A ROMANCE

By Louis Joseph Vance

SYNOPSIS.

Garrett Coast, a young man of New York City, meets Douglas Blackstock, who invites him to a card party. He accepts, although he dislikes Blackstock, the reason being that both are in love with Katherine Thaxter. Coast fails to convince her that Blackstock is unworthy of her friendship. At the party Coast meets two named Dundas and Van Tuyl. There is a quarrel, and Blackstock shoots Van Tuyl dead. Coast struggles to wrest the weapon from him, thus the police discover them. Coast is arrested for murder. He is convicted, but as he begins his sentence, Dundas names Blackstock as the murderer and kills himself. Coast becomes free, but Blackstock has married Katherine Thaxter and fled. Coast purchases a yacht and while sailing sees a man thrown from a distant boat. He rescues the fellow who is named Appleyard. They arrive at a lonely island, known as No Man's Land. Coast starts out to explore the place and comes upon some deserted buildings. He discovers a man dead. Upon going further and approaching a house he sees Katherine Thaxter, who explains that her husband, under the name of Black, has bought the island. He is blind, a wireless operator and has a station there. Coast informs her that her husband murdered Van Tuyl. Coast sees Blackstock and some Chinamen burying a man. They fire at him, but he is rescued by Appleyard, who gets him to the Echo in safety, and there he reveals that he is a secret service man and has been watching the crowd on the island, suspecting they are criminals. Coast is anxious to fathom the mysteries of No Man's Land, and is determined to save Katherine. Appleyard believes that Black and his gang make a shield of the wireless station to conduct a smuggling business. Coast penetrates to the lair of Blackstock's disguise. Katherine enters the room and passes him a note which tells Coast that neither his life or her own are safe. Coast feels that Blackstock suspects him. Appleyard and the Echo disappear. Coast assures Katherine of his protection, and she informs him that they are to abandon the island immediately. The blind man and his coolie servant overpower Coast, who afterward escapes and is met by Katherine, wishing to flee. They discover a yawl but before they can reach it the coolie disables the craft. Black appears and tauntingly states that he is no longer blind. He is overpowered, and Coast and Katherine fly from the spot, and go to a remote part of the island and signal a boat which they see in the distance. Appleyard and the Echo appear. Blackstock comes rushing to the boat, claiming he is dying.

With this assurance Appleyard rose, catching the Echo's side as Coast shipped his oars and the dory glided smoothly alongside the larger vessel. "Steady on!" he said. "Coast, you first, and give a hand to Mrs. Blackstock. Now, you"—to Blackstock, when Coast had helped Katherine into the cockpit—"and step lively! Your companions in crime are a bit too close for comfort. . . . Coast, I'd suggest that Mrs. Blackstock step below until we get under way; there's apt to be a bit of shooting, I'm afraid, if we don't look sharp."

Katherine sought Coast's eyes; he nodded a grave affirmation into hers. "Only a few moments," he said, offering her his hand. Without a word she accepted it and let herself down into the dark interior of the cabin.

"Now, Coast, the anchor—lively!"

Coast straightened up hastily. Blackstock was in his way, standing in the corner of the cockpit between the cabin-trunk and the coaming, while Appleyard was hurriedly taking up the engine-pit hatch. So the younger man stepped unsuspiciously to starboard across the center-board trunk into the very arms of calamity.

What followed fell like a bolt from the blue and passed with its rapidity.

Appleyard stood to port with his back to Blackstock, in the act of putting the hatch aside. Coast on the seaward side was on the point of lifting himself to the top of the cabin, with intent to go forward and cast off the anchor. There was crossing his mind the veriest hint of a suspicion that the blackness in the shadow of the unfurled canvas, above the cabin, was more dense and tangible than it should be, when this shadow, seemingly with a single movement, rose above him like a cloud, towering as huge and terrifying, its black human bulk blotting out the blazing stars, as the fabled jinnee of the fisherman's bottle; loomed menacingly above him in the enormous nakedness of Chang, and fell upon him with the fury and ferocity of a panther.

For a few chaotic seconds he remained conscious, feeling himself crushed and borne down irresistibly to the deck, then lifted like a bag of grain and hurled directly into the black, gaping maw of the companionway.

Something came in painful contact with his skull, and the world went up in a blaze of crimson flame. . . .

CHAPTER XXI.

Through the empty murk of the blasted, blackened world strange ghosts of thoughts, cares, strange blind weeping faces of things that he had known scurried like mice through the night of an empty house, came out of darkness, passed into darkness, and returned, plucking at him with weak, futile hands, crying importunately for heed and recognition; but when he tried to know them, they were gone. leaving only the ache of effort. . . .

Then suddenly he was conscious, lying at the bottom of a pit of everlasting midnight, his limbs constrained in unnatural positions, his head racked by splitting pains, but singularly, softly pillowed, his face gently bedewed with drops of moisture, soft and warm.

He struggled to rise, stirred, murmured incoherently, and slid back into insensibility.

When again intelligence returned to him, there was light—a strong and yellow glare flooding the cabin of the Echo from the lamp rocking in its gimbals overhead. A face bent above his—Katherine's; his head lay in her lap; and another face, Appleyard's, was close beside that fairer one. On both he read anxiety, compassion and solicitude.

"Hello," he said weakly.

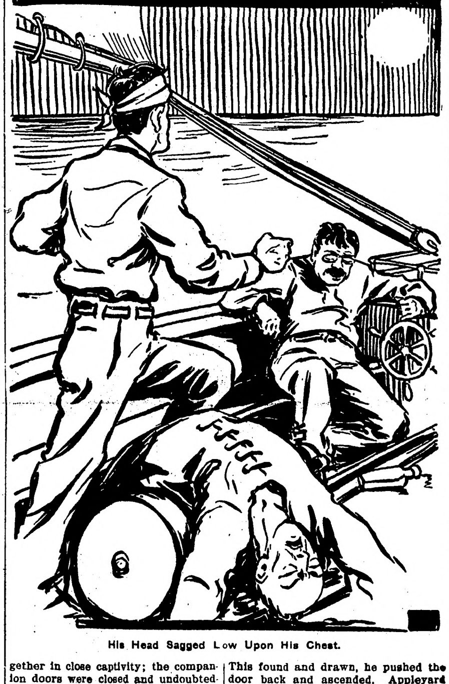
"Feeling better?" asked Appleyard.

"Some." Coast essayed a smile, and made a failure of it, then with a sudden return to memory put forth an effort that cost him the agony of feeling a jagged tongue of flame lick through his brain, and sat up. "What's happened?" he asked thickly.

"A little something of everything unpleasant," said Appleyard. "You had a nasty fall and pretty nearly cracked that solid ivory skull of yours. I've had a bit of a shake-up, extremely detrimental to the admirable poise of my nervous system; and Mrs. Blackstock has experienced a shock and a fright that didn't do her any particular amount of good."

"Yes . . . but . . ."

Coast reviewed their position in a comprehensive survey of the cabin. They three were prisoners, huddled together in close captivity; the companion doors were closed and undoubtedly locked—since otherwise Appleyard would long since have had them open; for the air in the cabin was hot and oppressive. Katherine was looking pale and worn, Appleyard bright but distinctly worried. Coast himself was suffering severely from the blow on his head and a broken scalp, which Katherine had bandaged as best she could with two handkerchiefs. Insofar, their condition was unpleasant and uncomfortable; external circumstances rendered it distressing and apparently dangerous.



His Head Sagged Low Upon His Chest.

"Blackstock jumped me," Appleyard explained—"I had my back turned, you know—just as the Chinaman dropped on you like a load of brick. Before I knew what was up, the brute had me in a hold I couldn't break—both arms pinioned. Then he snatched my gun out of my pocket and threw me after you—t'other side of the center-board. I lit on my feet, but the doors were slammed and bolted before I could turn round, and it was all over but the shouting. . . . There was plenty of that, for Blackstock wasted a lot of valuable time trying to start the motor before he told Chang to hoist the sail. By then the long-boat was close in and Blackstock warning her to keep off, or he'd shoot. Right then somebody in the boat started something—the bullet lodged in the side, by the sound of it. The long-boat bumped us, and there was the dickens of a shindig going on overhead. I gathered that Chang distinguished himself with a boathook, using it as a flail, and Blackstock must have had another gun besides mine from the way he kept a-popping. The other gang kept busy, too; but they hadn't the heart for it Blackstock and Chang had, and after a bit they sheered off and gave it up. . . .

"Somehow or other Chang got the sail up, and we began to move. There was some groaning overhead, and then a fall, with Blackstock cussin' moderate, but steady, but we skimmed along as steadily and prettily as you please. That was over an hour ago—say an hour and a half; and ever since then this lunatic business has been going on. I lighted the lamp and attacked the door with a screw-driver—the only crowbar I could find—bent that out of shape and yelled myself hoarse without any result. My private opinion is that both of 'em were pretty well shot up before they got away, and are now in no shape to go pleasure-boating."

"That sounds reasonable," said Coast, preoccupied. He reviewed the situation briefly, then bent over and with the twisted screw-driver pried up one of the deck planks, which had been left unnailed, though tightly fitted, to facilitate the placing of ballast. In the aperture revealed a number of bricks of lead lay against the center board trunk, in a thin wash of bilge water. Coast picked one up, balancing it in his hand while he replaced the plank. The bar of lead was solid and very heavy—of the shape and weight technically known as a "fifty-six."

"Right," commented Appleyard; "that may do the trick. Come over on this side, if you please, Mrs. Blackstock," he added, as Coast rose and facing the door balanced himself as carefully as the scant headroom of the tiny cabin would permit; "if the door should hold by accident, that thing's liable to bounce back like a rubber ball, only much more so. You might as well keep out of the way."

When Katherine had quietly complied, Coast, the fifty-six poised near his shoulder, waited until the Echo momentarily rode with an even keel, then with all his might sent it crashing against the panels of the starboard door. They yielded like paper, leaving a ragged hole, through which he thrust an arm, groping for the bolt. This found and drawn, he pushed the door back and ascended, Appleyard following.

To his immense astonishment, both sky and sea were stark and bright with moonlight.

Behind him he heard the little man's quiet and courteous voice: "Better not come up just yet, Mrs. Blackstock. A little later. . . ."

At their feet, blocking the cockpit with his huge body and long, massively proportioned limbs, Chang lay supine and inert, half across the engine-pit, into which one limp arm dangled. What time the shadow of the sail and swinging boom did not blot it out in inky blackness, the moonlight struck cold and hard upon the evil, grinning mask of death that was his face.

Swaying drunkenly, Blackstock occupied the wheel-box, his fat white hands loose of grasp upon the spokes and moved by rather than controlling it. His head sagged low upon his chest, swinging heavily from side to side as the catboat rolled.

He, at least, could not be dead, as Chang unquestionably was—a fact Appleyard presently verified by the most brief of inquests, discovering in the Chinaman's naked torso no less than three bullet wounds, all indicating the perforation of a vital spot.

Laughter.

Here's to laughter! The sunshine of the soul, the happiness of the heart, the heaven of youth, the privilege of purity, the echo of innocence, the treasure of the humble, the wealth of the poor, the bead on the cup of pleasure; it dispels dejection, banishes blues and mangles melancholy, for it's the foe of woe, the destroyer of depression, the enemy of grief; it is why kings envy peasants, plutocrats the poor, the guilty the innocent; it is the sheen on the silver of smiles, the ripple on the waters of delight, the glint on the gold of gladness. Without it humor would be dumb, wit would wither, dimples would disappear and smiles would shrivel, for it's the glow of a clean conscience, the voice of a pure soul, the birth cry of mirth, the swan song of sadness. Laughter!

Beauty—real beauty—is more than skin deep. No cosmetic in the world can give the wholesome color, the bright eyes, the clear, transparent skin that is the natural result of pure blood, proper diet and hygienic habits of daily life.

It sounds easy and it is easy for a woman to have the beauty which health alone can give. A safe and efficient tonic if the blood is weak, thin or impure (Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are especially recommended), the avoidance of foods which will cause eruptions, and regular bathing of the skin. That is all and it is the only way. Most ladies, and especially young mothers, will be interested in the following statement:

"After my baby was born," says Mrs. Etta Estes, of No. 338 South Lawndale street, Kansas City, Mo., "I did not gain in strength as I should have. I did not have any color and kept losing in flesh until I was almost a skeleton. I had severe headaches and pains in the side, arms and shoulders. I finally gave up the doctor's treatment in order to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They helped me immediately and I became stronger each day, soon got a better color and am now in the best of health. I am convinced that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do all that is claimed for them and advise any woman who is suffering as I did to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once and not wait another day."

Write to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Box 176, Schenectady, N. Y., for a free booklet, "Plain Talks to Women." It is an outspoken but perfectly proper little book and should be read by every woman and growing girl. A free sample of the new laxative "Pinklets" will also be sent you. Should you be unable to obtain Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in your locality they will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, fifty cents per box, six boxes for $2.50.

Best Business Creator.

As a business creator, what is there better than advertising? Have you ever asked that question of yourself? The millions that advertising has made for merchants are uncountable, yet there are business men who even now don't believe in advertising, just as there are people who still think it is safer and more convenient to travel in a prairie schooner behind a pair of slow oxen than in a Pullman palace car. Yet this type of business man is seldom rated in commercial rating books.—Exchange.

The Suffragette's Answer.

"And where, my fellow citizen," appealed the political speaker, "can we find an instrument so fit, so delicate, so adjustable, and at the same time so unassuming and popular that it will unlock every department of state for the benefit of its readers?"

"The hairpin!" shrieked an enthusiastic suffragette in the audience.—Judge.

The Farmer's Son's Great Opportunity

Why wait for the old farm to become your inheritance? Begin now to prepare for your future prosperity and independence. A great opportunity awaits you in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, where you can secure a Free Homestead or buy land at reasonable prices.

Now's the Time —not a year from now, when land will be higher. The profits secured from the abundant crops of Wheat, Oats and Barley, as well as cattle raising, are causing a steady advance in price. Government returns show that the number of settlers in Western Canada from the U. S. was 60 per cent larger in 1910 than the previous year.

Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop.

Free Homesteads of 160 acres and pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. Fine climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates; wood, water and lumber easily obtained.

For pamphlet "Last Best West," particulars as to suitable location and low settlers' rate, apply to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to Canadian Gov't Agent.

Editor and Publisher.

Published every Friday at Holt, Marshall County, Minnesota.

Subscription Price: $1,00 per year, strictly in advance.

Entered as second-class matter Sept. 22, 1911, at the post office at Holt, Minnesota, under the act of March 3, 1879.

Be a booster—not a knocker.

Taft is reported to have been losing weight lately, both physically and politically.

Governor Eberhart's calling of a special session of the legislature at this time is regarded by a lot of people as the prize bungle of his decidedly bunglesome administration.

Governor Eberhart is out with a vicious attack on Sam Y. Gordon, and charges that Sam is responsible for the defeat of reapportionment and other beneficial legislative measures at the last session of the legislature. Evidently Adolph considers Sam as his most dangerous opponent, and in this we are of the opinion he has guessed right for once.

Duluth Herald: If, as seems likely now, both the Republicans and De-Democrats nominate progressive candidates, there won't be much for the standpatters in both parties to do but take to the woods. Let them. They have carried the burden of government long enough, and they have a good long rest coming. The people will get along very nicely without them.

Roosevelt carried New Jersey also, and his managers now claim that he is certain to have more than 600 delegates to vote for him on first ballot when the national convention meets in Chicago. On the other hand, Taft's manager claims that he will be nominated on the first ballot without fail. There is some difference in the admission of the Taft side now from what they claimed a couple of months ago.

NOTED BEAST JOINS MAJORITY

Indian Rhinoceros, After Long Term in Captivity, Is Dead of Old Age.

One of the most famous animals in the world has passed away in the person of Jim, the gigantic Indian rhinoceros of the zoological gardens, Regent's park, London.

Jim was never conquered, and at certain seasons of the year he would fight madly with his cage. He never seriously hurt himself, but he ended by covering his head with extraordinary callosities which made him an object of terror to children.

He was a ruler's gift, having been presented by the predecessor of the present Maharajah of Cooch Behar, and a naturalist has undertaken to convert his hide into walking sticks. For a week before he died Jim was unable to get upon his feet. Never before had a keeper ventured into his cage. He felt no malice in the matter—he simply felt it was his duty to attack keepers. On his deathbed he tolerated them, and even took food from their hands.

He died from sheer old age, after 25 years in Regent's park. Examination showed that Jim's teeth had failed him. Unlike the horse, these do not continue to grow, and when they are worn away the rhinoceros must die. Man is as old as his arteries, and the rhinoceros as his teeth.

MONEY AND CHURCHES.

The amount of money spent upon their churches is always some gauge of a people's devotion. People do not spend great sums of money on their churches, and rob themselves of the luxuries and even the necessities of life, unless they believe in their religion and the things for which it stands. In every Russian village the church is the great building of the region. With its golden domes and its curious double crosses, it towers above all the homes and stores and factories. The village may consist of squalid huts, but the church is often stately, or, if more humble, is embellished with gold and silver ornaments and icons framed in jewels, while the priests are gorgeous in cloth of gold and rich embroidery.—Dr. Francis E. Clark, in Christian Churches.

WORLD'S LARGEST PICTURE.

The largest picture in the world has just been completed, in Rome. The huge panel, the work of the artist Sartorio, is destined for the hall of the Parliament building. The work is 13 feet high and 400 feet long, and represents the history of the deliverance of Italy, and contains 285 figures of persons of an average height of nine feet nine inches. This enormous painting is longer than the famous paneling of the Pantheon. The artist spent thirty-one months on the work.

Fred Nagel came up from Blakely to look after matters on his fine homestead in section 1, of Agdar. He is talking of putting in a power outfit and breaking a lot of his land here this summer.

John Petterson, receiver of U. S. Land Office at Crookston, and Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner at Thief River Falls, were here on Tuesday calling on friends. They went out by automobile to visit at the Moiland home, east of Mud Lake and reported having had a highly interesting, if not exactly comfortable ride.

Holt Defeated Excell

(By an eye-witness.)

The Holt Base Ball club won in a closely contested game with Excell players, Sunday, June 9th, by a score of 0 to 8. The only faults we find with the Excell bunch of enthusiasts are they at different stages of the game ignored the decisions of the umpire and were not cheerful losers; in fact, laid down in the 8th inning when the Holt boys scored a succession of runs making the score 9 to 8 with only 2 men out and no prospects for getting any more out. The most interesting feature during the game was when our right fielder Ludvig Monson, after swatting the leather cover for a two bagger, made a desperate attempt to locate the second base in the jungles while making a bee line for third base. However our worthy umpire, J. O. Lein, placed him on the right course before the ball was recovered. Our pitcher, John Johnson, together with a couple of our infielders loosened up a bit in the sixth inning and before the fusilade could be stopped, the Excell bunch had crossed the home plate five times. This was the only inning which at any stage looked bad for the home boys. The scores and outs are as follows:

Rochester, N. Y.—"I have a daughter 13 years old who has always been very healthy until recently when she complained of dizziness and cramps every month, so bad that I would have to keep her home from school and put her to bed to get relief.

"After giving her only two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound she is now enjoying the best of health. I cannot praise your Compound too highly. I want every good mother to read what your medicine has done for my child."—Mrs. RICHARD N. DUNHAM, 811 Exchange St., Rochester, N.Y.

Stoutsville, Ohio.—"I suffered from headaches, backache and was very irregular. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and before I had taken the whole of two bottles I found relief. I am only sixteen years old, but I have better health than for two or three years. I cannot express my thanks for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I had taken other medicines but did not find relief."—Miss CORA B. FOSNAUGH, Stoutsville, Ohio, R.F.D., No. 1.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for their daughters have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

WELL POSTED.

A California Doctor With Forty Years' Experience.

"In my forty years' experience as a teacher and practitioner along hygienic lines," says a Los Angeles physician, "I have never found a food to compare with Grape-Nuts for the benefit of the general health of all classes of people.

"I have recommended Grape-Nuts for a number of years to patients with the greatest success and every year's experience makes me more enthusiastic regarding its use.

"I make it a rule to always recommend Grape-Nuts, and Postum in place of coffee, when giving my patients instructions as to diet, for I know both Grape-Nuts and Postum can be digested by anyone.

"As for myself, when engaged in much mental work my diet twice a day consists of Grape-Nuts and rich cream. I find it just the thing to build up gray matter and keep the brain in good working order.

"In addition to its wonderful effects as a brain and nerve food Grape-Nuts always keeps the digestive organs in perfect, healthy tone. I carry it with me when I travel, otherwise I am almost certain to have trouble with my stomach." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Strong endorsements like the above from physicians all over the country have stamped Grape-Nuts the most scientific food in the world. "There's a reason."

TAFT TOTAL IS 72 DELEGATES

NEW AWARDS, 8 IN ARKANSAS, 12 IN FLORIDA AND 28 IN GEORGIA.

TEDDY'S CONTESTS FAIL

Indiana Cases May Come Up Before Board at an Early Date—Violence and Fraud Are Charged.

Chicago, June 11.—Forty-eight delegates given to the Taft account by the Republican national committee in its decisions in the Arkansas, Florida, and Georgia contests, makes seventy-two additions to the Taft total.

No cases have been won by the Roosevelt contestants.

Ten of the Georgia districts, 20 delegates, went to Taft in one blanket decision, both sides agreeing to their being decided upon the arguments as had served in the case of the four delegates-at-large, which had just been given to Taft. The two remaining Georgia districts with their two apiece soon went the same way.

The cases passed upon were those of:

Arkansas—Third, Fourth, Fifth and Seventh congressional districts, two delegates each, eight in all. The Sixth district was not contested; the delegates are listed as "uninstructed."

Florida—The six delegates at large and all three districts—the entire state representation, 12 in all.

Georgia—The four delegates at large and all of the 12 congressional districts, each with its two delegates, 28 in all.

This clears the docket for the taking up early this week of the cases upon which the Roosevelt people are laying far more stress than upon those from the South, such cases, for example, as those from Indiana, which probably will be taken up early.

There still remain, in alphabetical order before these, the cases of six delegates at large from Arizona and two delegates of the Fourth congressional district of California.

The Indiana contest cases involve the four delegates at large and two each from the First, Third, Fourth and Thirteenth districts.

In every case thus far decision has been reached after full hearings of the facts in the cases; and in only one instance did the Roosevelt leaders ask for a full test of strength.

In the Fifth Arkansas district where charges of violence and fraud were made by both sides, Committeeman Burnam of Kentucky asked that both delegations be seated with a half vote each.

He secured ten votes for his motion; those of Knight of California, Burnam of Kentucky, Wight of Louisiana, Kellogg of Minnesota, Littauer (representing Flanigan of Nevada), Duell (representing Ward of New York), Capers of South Carolina, Thorson of South Dakota, Loose of Utah Rogers of Wisconsin.

On roll call, of the others who hitherto had usually voted with the anti-Taft contingent, Dupont of Delaware voted with the Taft people and Lyon of Texas and Bieber of the District of Columbia were recorded as "present, but not voting."

Not all of the viva voce votes were unanimous. Negatives were heard on many of these, but there was no way of surely identifying the voices. In such other cases, when the roll call was asked for, especially by the Taft men, it was desired in order that the committee might go unanimously on record in favor of the seating of the delegates.

HONOR CUBAN WAR DEAD

Memorial Erected at Washington in Presence of Thousands.

Washington, June 11.—A memorial field mass in honor of the dead of the Spanish-American war was celebrated on the Washington monument grounds in the presence of Cardinal Gibbons and a throng of people that numbered thousands. The service was held under the auspices of the Admiral George Dewey camp, United Spanish War veterans.

Oddities of Justice.

That the whole theory of penal codes is practically unsound and opposed to the modern conceptions of the relation of the state to crime, is the contention of Eugene Smith of the New York bar, writing in the May number of Case and Comment, the lawyer's magazine. Illustrating the absurdity and disparity between penalty for crimes in different states, Mr. Smith says: "The average sentence for perjury in Florida is ten years, in Maine one year; for larceny, in Delaware ten years, in the District of Columbia ten months; the penalty for arson in Pennsylvania is twice that of burglary, but in Connecticut the guilt of burglary is twice that of arson; the guilt of counterfeiting in Ohio is twice that of perjury, but in Rhode Island the guilt of perjury is twice that of counterfeiting.

IT IS CRIMINAL TO NEGLECT THE SKIN AND HAIR

Think of the suffering entailed by neglected skin troubles—mental because of disfiguration, physical because of pain. Think of the pleasure of a clear skin, soft, white hands, and good hair. These blessings, so essential to happiness and even success in life, are often only a matter of a little thoughtful care in the selection of effective remedial agents. Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a postal to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston, will secure a liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on skin and scalp treatment.

"'Oh,' his opponent said, 'the mere fact that a worm writhes and wriggles when impaled on a hook is no proof that it is actually suffering pain.'

"'No, oh, no!' said Mr. Coleridge, sarcastically. 'Beyond doubt that is just the worm's way of laughing at being tickled.'"

"I have one trouble there. It's just this, my wife has been preparing angel food every day for dinner."

GOV. WILSON GETS MINNESOTA

LYNCH INDORSED FOR NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN.

Effort to Stampede Duluth Convention for Bryan Is Failure.

Duluth. — The Minnesota Democrats elected a delegation to the Democratic convention at Baltimore instructed for Woodrow Wilson, and indorsed Frederick B. Lynch of St. Paul for national committeeman.

Former Mayor Daniel W. Lawler, opposed to Lynch, and a candidate for United States senator, succeeded in preventing the indorsement of any other candidate for the senate.

An effort to stampede the convention for the Nebraskan met with the opposition of the men closest to Bryan, and did not receive the support of delegates.

The following delegates to the Baltimore convention were selected:

Delegates-at-Large.

S. A. Stockwell, Minneapolis.
W. F. Weis, Le Sueur.
T. J. Knox, Jackson.
H. L. Buck, Winona.

COLDWATER AUTO TOUR

Prohibition Party Begins Five Months Cross-Country Campaign.

Minneapolis.—The prohibition party in Minnesota launched its active campaign by sending out its campaign automobile on what is designed to be the longest automobile political tour ever undertaken. The trip will last five months and a day and will include nearly all the principal towns of the state and hundreds of small communities.

W. G. Calderwood, chairman of the prohibition state committee, prophesied a good year for the party. "Because," he said, "there has never been a time when the general public has been so stirred on the liquor question as it is today, and the brewers are being called to account for their hand in the politics of the state."

The automobile carried the spellbinders of the party, who for the present are W. G. Calderwood, Stanley B. Roberts and J. H. Morse, to Afton, Lakeland, South Stillwater, Stillwater, Marine Mills, Scandia and Forest Lake. Later, Wyoming, Chisago City, Lindstrom, Center City, Stacy, North Branch, Harris and Rush City will be visited.

SONS OF THOR MEET.

Festival of Song and Music in Program of "Sognagalet."

Owatonna.—Many were here to attend the Norwegian "Sognagalet," the convention of the Sons of Thor of five states, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa and Wisconsin. Ample accommodation had been made for all guests.

A brilliant festival of song and music is conducted during the sessions of the "Sognagalet," and Scandinavian musicians of national reputation always are present. Local arrangements were in charge of O. E. Williamson, secretary of the association. All halls in the city were used by the convention.

Mayor in Role of Cupid.

Crookston. — Crookston's socialist mayor, H. L. Larson, is in receipt of a letter from Captain J. F. Ryan of Portland, Ore., in which the captain asks the mayor to hunt up a wife for him. The mayor, who is a widower, says he feels keenly for the gallant sea captain. He says his efforts for Captain Ryan also may come in handy personally, as he is too bashful to announce himself a candidate. The captain wants a widow 45 or 55 years old, without incumbrance.

SOIL EXPERTS BUSY

Agricultural Train Draws Crowds of Farmers to Bemidji—Trip Ends Thursday.

Bemidji.— The agricultural train operated under the supervision of the Minnesota State Agricultural college by the Northern Pacific, continued toward the north, after having been here three days. The train stopped at Ten Strike and Black Duck.

Sunday was spent by the soil experts in tours around Bemidji in automobiles furnished by the Commercial club, and almost without exception the visitors expressed surprise at the agricultural developments in this vicinity. So much interest was manifested by the farmers here in the train, exhibits and lectures that the departure had to be delayed several minutes.

The train is made up of eight cars, one filled with blooded horses, cattle and hogs, a poultry car containing also incubators with broods hatching, eggs and market devices, a machinery car, an express car for storage, two lecture cars and a business car. This is an increase over the original train, the unexpected popularity making the added cars necessary.

The following lectured to the farmers here: H. Scribner, dairyman of the United States agricultural department at Washington; R. M. Washburn, professor of dairying, University of Minnesota; O. M. Olson of the State University; A. E. Hosteter, market expert of the Duluth Commercial club; C. E. Brown, poultry expert at the state experiment farm, Crookston; N. E. Chapman, W. P. Tomhave, C. C. Welsh, J. V. Vye, P. J. Maxfield, W. R. McKenzie, secretary of the Northern Minnesota Development association.

The train finishes its trip at International Falls Thursday.

HONOR SOO PRESIDENT

Edmund Pennington Predicts Great Future for Duluth.

Duluth.—Five hundred citizens of Duluth attended the complimentary dinner in the Spalding in honor of Edmund Pennington, president of the Soo railroad. W. A. McGonagle, president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, was toastmaster. Other Soo line officials here were W. L. Martin, Geo. A. Huntington, A. H. Bright, E. F. Potter, C. W. Gardner, W. R. Calloway, F. H. Kalk and J. R. Michaels. Probably a more representative gathering of the business and transportation and manufacturing interests of Duluth had never been assembled before.

After expressing his great appreciation of the honor which Duluth people were extending to the officials of the Soo line, Mr. Pennington said in part: "During the past five years the Soo line has built 654 miles of road leading to Duluth and has spent $29,134,000 in constructing the lines and terminals. It goes without saying that we have great confidence in Duluth and the Northwest. Three hundred new stations have been opened on the 654 miles of new road leading to Duluth, and the lines have opened great timber territory which, after the timber is gone, will afford excellent agricultural opportunities.

"Duluth has every advantage in the matter of growing tributary country and natural resources of all kinds in it. If the city does not make use of them, it is its own fault. There are five million people within a night's ride of Duluth. The Northwest is developing in a healthy and substantial manner, and it has a future which even those who know it best perhaps can only guess, but it is a magnificent future."

TO BRING LAND SUITS

Cases Against Purchasers of Indian Allotments.

Minneapolis.—According to M. C. Burch, special attorney for department of justice the government will enter more than 500 more suits against owners of former Indian lands purchased under the provisions of the Clapp act. Mr. Burch at the West hotel said that agents of the Indian bureau had reported the sale by full-blooded Indians of more than 1,800 allotments of land. Suit has already been brought against approximately 1,200 owners of these lands.

Mr. Burch has been in Minneapolis for two weeks to prepare the government's side of the cases. He said the first of the 1,200 suits would be heard in the district court at Fergus Falls within two or three weeks, and that they probably would reach the circuit court of appeals sometime this autumn.

In all the suits, the government claims that the land was not sold by mixed-blooded Indians as provided in the Clapp act. The present owners of the land, Mr. Burch said, must prove that the Indian owners were not full-blooded as contended by the government.

Treasury Official Resigns.

Washington, D. C. — James Knox Taylor, supervising architect of the treasury department, tendered his resignation to the secretary of the treasury, to take effect June 15.

TRIPLETS IN MILL CITY

Three Girls Weigh Four, Six and Seven Pounds.

Minneapolis.—Triplets—all of them girls—were born to Mr. and Mrs. William Irvine. They are the first triplets reported to the city health department in more than two years and that all are girls is declared unusual. The babies weigh 7, 6 and 4 pounds and all will live. Mrs. and Mrs. Irvine have four other daughters.

RAINS END HAVANA RIOTING

WHITE MAN AND SEVERAL NEGROES INJURED IN DISORDER.

Gomez Silent When He Learns That American Warships Are Bound for the Island.

Havana, June 11.—Heavy rains that drove everybody indoors, relieved the city of Havana of the dreaded peril of an uprising of the whites against the negroes. The streets of the capital were deserted, save for patrols of mounted rurales, regular infantry, the police and home guards. There was not the least indication of disorder.

The riot while extending to all parts of the city and causing general excitement and alarm, resulted in few casualties.

One white onlooker was fatally wounded and several negroes were injured. The disturbance lasted only a short time, but was considered serious as indicative of the bitter animosity of whites toward the negroes, which has been largely fomented by reports of assaults upon white women.

Rumors are still insistent here that intervention by the United States immediately, is still pending.

President Gomez, upon being informed that American warships had been ordered to Havana, declined to make any statement.

Senor Ramirez declared that the government had 14,000 troops in Oriente province and that the insurgent bands were being broken up.

More Ships to Key West.

Washington.—The navy department, acting under instructions from the state department, ordered Admiral Osterhause to proceed forthwith from Key West to Havana with one dispatch ship and one other ship.

VOLCANO IN ALASKA.

Mt. Katmai Breaks Into Violent Eruption.

Seward, June 11.—Passengers on the mail steamer Dora, which arrived from the westward, after passing through a hail of ashes from Katmai volcano, believe that several small fishing villages on the shores of Shelikof strait have been destroyed by the eruption. The revenue cutter service at Unalaska has been asked to send assistance.

Those on the steamer were nearly suffocated by poisonous gases, as she passed through the falling ashes.

The Dora was in sight of Katmai when the eruption began and those on the vessel witnessed a brilliant spectacle. It was 1 o'clock in the afternoon and the mountain was in plain view. Subsequent earthquakes disturbed the water of the strait, when suddenly a terrific explosion occurred in the mountain and a great mass of rocks was thrown into the air. The first explosion was followed by others in quick succession, each seemingly more terrific than the one preceding. Soon a steady stream of rock and ashes poured from the peak and spread far over the surrounding country, obscuring the sun and shutting the troubled mountain from sight.

Gases Wake Passengers.

At 4 o'clock, when the Dora was 70 miles from the volcano, total darkness came, and ashes began to fall upon the deck in thick clouds, covering it with a white layer, three inches deep. The stifling atmosphere made the passengers violently ill. Throughout the night the Dora steamed through the dust-laden air and was rocked by the earthquakes that lashed the water, while the mountain thundered menacingly in the distance.

The volcanic disturbance is the most violent ever recorded in Alaska. It was estimated that an area of 300 square miles, much of it fertile territory, has been covered to a depth of several inches by the volcanic ash.

First evidence that the volcano was preparing to free itself from the rocks and lava that had choked its throat for many years came when the Alaskan peninsula was rocked by a violent earthquake. At that time the Dora was at Cold Bay, only 15 miles from the volcano. When the eruption began she had crossed the Shelikof strait to Kodiak and was proceeding on her course.

Shocks Felt in Seattle.

Seattle.—Three slight earth shocks were recorded on the seismograph at the University of Washington, indicating that volcanic disturbances in southwestern Alaska, which have agitated the instruments in observatories throughout the United States in the last three days, still are in progress.

The volcano disturbance has completely paralyzed wireless communication in the north and it is impossible to get definite information concerning conditions of Kodiak, Raspberry and Afognak islands, the three most important islands in southwestern Alaska.

Taft Awarded Indiana.

Chicago, June 11.—Taft won Indiana delegates-at-large.

May Postpone Perjury Cases.

Chicago, June 11.—Grand jury action against witnesses who testified in the recent federal trial of the Chicago meat packers, who were acquitted on a charge of violating the criminal section of the Sherman law last winter, may not be taken until next fall. The special grand jury, which will be sworn in before United States District Judge Carpenter, will, it is said, not take up the alleged charges of perjury against certain witnesses whom the government attorneys had under investigation.

FINAL RESULT OF IMPURE BLOOD

The System Is Left Weak, Run Down and Helpless Against the Attacks of Disease.

If you need strength, if your blood is thin, your digestion disordered, it will pay you to investigate the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the remedy that has transformed so many weak, anæmic, dyspeptic, ambitionless people into strong, healthy, hungry men and women.

Mrs. Lena May Roberts, whose address is R. F. D. No. 3, Aberdeen, So. Dakota after several months of suffering finally found the right tonic in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says:

"For months after the birth of my baby, I suffered terribly from a general breakdown in health. I was in bed for three months and after that was able to be up only part of the time. I was sick all over, being pale, weak and thin. My appetite was gone and my head ached most of the time. Oftentimes there seemed to be a rush of blood to my head and I would faint away. I was very nervous and was not strong enough to do any work.

"As the treatment I was taking did not help me, I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which a friend said had helped her. After taking a few boxes, I began to get well rapidly. I continued using them for a time and am now as well and strong as ever in my life."

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in general debility lies in their direct response to the needs of the blood. Their work is to make new blood. That they do this well is shown by the gradual disappearance of the symptoms and the return of color and health. They lay the foundation for permanent health in the future.

For the same reason these pills have cured anæmia, after-effects of the grip and fevers, rheumatism, indigestion, and nervousness, dizziness, neuralgia and St. Vitus' dance, and are recommended wherever a tonic for the blood and nerves is needed.

A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," containing fuller information about rheumatism and other diseases of the blood will be sent free upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

800 Bushels from 20 acres of wheat was the thresher's return from a Lloydminster farm in the season of 1910. Many fields in that as well as other districts yielded from 25 to 35 bushels of wheat to the acre. Other grains in proportion.

LARGE PROFITS are thus derived from the FREE HOMESTEAD LANDS of Western Canada.

This excellent showing causes prices to advance. Land values should double in two years' time.

Grain growing, mixed farming, cattle raising and dairying are all profitable. Free Homesteads of 160 acres are to be had in the very best districts; 160 acre pre-emptions at $3.00 per acre within certain areas. Schools and churches in every settlement, climate unexcelled, soil the richest; wood, water and building material plentiful. 89

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

This is the age of research and experiment, when all nature, so to speak, is ransacked by the scientific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides during the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine comes that of Therapion, which has, we understand, been used with great success in the French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder or nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., we think there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists, that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who are interested and would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say—miraculous cures, have only to send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. Le Clerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether The New French Remedy, "THERAPION," is what they require and which they may have been seeking in vain during a life of untold misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness.

Be a booster—not a knocker.

The old republican steam roller is being run so hard at Chicago that it is liable to explode.

Governor Eberhart perpetrated a special message on the senate and it was received by an outburst of uproarious laughter and gently laid away in a pigeonhole—or the waste basket—and the people applaud the action of the senate.

Richard Croker, one time politician of New York, has said that he wants to adopt Anna Kellermann, an Australian female who is a professional swimmer. If Anna looks anything like some of the pictures of her we have seen in some newspapers Richard is very welcome to have her.

"Nothing but death," said President Taft. That remark was intended to show the unalterable purpose of the president to try for the nomination again. At this time it might almost be said that the national committe will stop at nothing short of murder in order to help him secure a re-nomination.

The special session of the legislature has so far resulted in ratification of the proposed amendment to the constitution of the United States which provides for the election of U. S. senators by direct vote of the people. It is to be hoped that other proposed amendments may also be ratified without loss of time.

Fergus Falls Journal: The "extraordinary condition" which has now arisen to justify the calling of a special session is the danger that Eberhart might be defeated by the other candidates combining against him in the state convention. They can not combine against him in the primary, so the state will pay the costs of an extra session in order to secure a primary election law.

ALL THE BREAKFAST FOODS.

"What kind of breakfast food have you?" the dyspeptic inquired of the waitress at Cherryvale inn who stood before him with her arms akimbo.

"We got all the reg'lar kinds," said the waitress, who was a Cherryville girl. "Ham an' eggs, fried steak, brook trout, doughnuts an' apple pie. You can have 'em all, if you like, an' a cup o' coffee an' griddle cakes. We calculate to charge so folks can eat all they want."—Youth's Companion.

UNSYMPATHETIC ATTORNEY.

Mike Kelly had been a habitue of the court house for fifteen years and at every criminal trial had occupied a front seat, listening with evident admiration to the speeches of the prosecuting attorney.

"Ben," he said one day, after the prosecutor had ended his remarks, "I've heard you speak again and again, but never, on my soul, have I heard you say a good word for the poor devil on trial."—The Popular Magazine.

Holt Boys are Leg Weary

Holt Boys won by a score of 53 to 1 in last Sunday's game against a select team of young athletes from west of Town. The visiting tean put up a good game of ball, had us outclassed in running, but their batterery was weak. In their first inning one of their men landed on the ball for a three bagger and came home on an overthrow to third base. After that our boys lit after flys, grounders, liners, like a hound after a rabbit and they never had a ghost of a show thereafter. In the seventh inning John Johnson smote the ball a terrible whack. The ball rose in the air, kept rising, took a good look at the ball game at Thief River Falls and then struck a cross road and bounced some fifteen rods more beyond the reach of any fielder on the face the earth at that time, with the result that said Johnson crossed the four plates without stopping to take lunch. In that very same inning, our boys crossed the home plate 23 times. P. L. Anderson knocked a 3 bagger and would have made home if he had not slacked up to make a survey as to the lay of the ground.

One improvement which was especially noticeable was the batting of the Holt team. None of them had any hankering notion of being put out. Hence explanation for general pile up of scores.

FOUND A REFUGE AT LAST

Experience of a Colored Woman In Tulsa, Okla., With the Gas Bill Collector.

Glen T. Braden of Pittsburg and Oklahoma runs several big natural gas and oil companies in Oklahoma. He was in his office in Tulsa one day when a collector came in and told him this tale of woe:

It is the custom with the natural gas companies in Tulsa, as elsewhere, to shut off the gas when the gas bills are not paid by the tenth of the month. This gives them a reasonably sure thing as to the collection of their bills, as gas is almost universally used as fuel.

The collector had a gas bill in the negro district. He went to the house and the negro woman he met disclaimed responsibility, saying she was merely a roomer. The collector insisted on payment.

The woman saw a moving van on the street and shouted: "Say, you, come over hyar an' move me; dey done gwine shet off de gas."

Her belongings were stored in a dilapidated trunk and she was soon on her way. The collector shut off the gas. As the collector continued on his way he came upon the same woman in a house in the next block where she had moved in.

He asked for payment and it was refused. He started to shut off the gas.

"Fo' de Lawd's sake, you gwine to shet dis place off, too?" wailed the woman. The collector was obdurate.

The moving van was still in sight. The woman hailed it, threw her trunk in, moved two doors below, and as the collector was passing she yelled to him:

"Now, drat you, shet dis off—we's burnin' coal hyar!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Representative Prince gave notice he would fight the army appropriation bill conference report adopted by the senate.

The senate territories committee ordered favorable report on amended house bill to create a legislative assembly in Alaska.

The senate Indian affairs committee recommended the Gore bill to allow Apache prisoners of war at Fort Sill to return to New Mexico.

The senate rejected the amendment to the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill providing for maintenance of commerce.

Senator Lorimer of Illinois plans not to speak in defense of his seat in the senate until practically all other speeches on both sides have been presented.

Senator Bacon introduced a resolution declaring there was no authority for the use of the army and navy in any foreign territory except in emergency.

Senator Williams introduced a concurrent resolution to instruct the Mississippi river commission to prepare a plan to control floods in the Mississippi river.

The house adopted Representative Berger's resolution directing the judiciary committee to investigate charges against Federal Judge Hanford of Seattle.

The house ways and means committee reported the metal tariff revision bill, but refused to agree to an amendment for the repeal of the Canadian reciprocity law.

Senator Poindexter moved that the interstate commerce committee be discharged from further consideration of his bill to abolish the commerce court, but no action was taken.

The house agriculture expenditures committee continued its investigation into drainage division of the Department of Agriculture, with Engineer J. O. Wright of Florida testifying.

Representative Underwood, democratic leader, indicated no recess would be taken for the Chicago convention, but a three-day recess would be taken for the Baltimore convention.

Senator Lodge's attempt to obtain unanimous consent to agreement whereby only morning business would be transacted during national conventions period failed because of objection of Senator Culberson.

General.

Col. Roosevelt, according to returns, will have a solid delegation from South Dakota.

"Political brigande" is Roosevelt's comment on the outcome of the Ohio republican state convention.

Several strikers and police officers were injured in a riot at Middleton, Conn.

One Alabama delegate says he will vote for Roosevelt in spite of his instructions for Taft.

Rowdy scenes marked the delivery of Andrew Carnegie's rhetorical address as lord rector of the university at Aberdeen, Scotland.

The lower house of the Minnesota assembly adopted, by unanimous vote, a resolution ratifying the amendment to the federal constitution providing for an income tax.

The strike of several thousand employes of the Boston Elevated railway for a minimum wage and recognition of the union has settled down to a question of endurance.

Mexican Consul E. C. Llorente filed at El Paso a charge of embezzlement of public funds of Mexico against Conzalo Enrile, Late financial agent of the Mexican revolution.

Fifty-nine field laborers were burned to death while asleep in a barn near Tamboy, central Russia, on a property belonging to Count Orloff Davydoff. The cause of the fire not known.

Legislation providing for a general parcels post throughout the United States and its possessions except the Philippines, is practically certain to be enacted by the present congress, in the opinion of Postmaster General Hitchcock.

The Minnesota senate ratified the amendment to the state constitution providing for the direct election of the United States senators.

The Baltimore convention has already several candidates for vice president to consider. The latest to shy his hat into the ring is Congressman W. C. Redneld of Brooklyn.

Impeachment proceedings were inaugurated in the house against Federal Judge Hanford of Seattle.

Robert H. Moore, aged sixty-seven years a pioneer newspaper man died at Ottumwa, Ia., following an operation.

Gov. Harmon will not accept second place on the democratic ticket.

The democratic national committee has only a few contests to settle.

Baltimore is decked out in preparation for the democratic national convention.

The president is expected to veto the bill abolishing the court of commerce.

Extensive damage is thought to have been done by volcanoes in Alaska.

Roosevelt denounced with vigor the action of the national committee at Chicago.

A witness in the money trust inquiry says J. P. Morgan saved the day during panic times.

Californians are much wrought up over the action of the republican national committee.

The Cuban government is wrought up lest after all the United States may see fit to intervene.

The headquarters of Colonel Machado, commanding the marines at Guantanamo, Cuba, have been fired upon.

Fire at Lapear, Mich., caused a property loss of approximately $90,000 in the business district of that city.

Cedar Rapids was chosen for the 1913 convention of the Iowa liquor dealers' association at the closing session.

Ohio's fourth constitutional convention completed its work and recessed until August 6, the date set for sine die adjournment.

The senate judiciary committee favorably reported the Simmons bill prohibiting interstate transportation of prize fight films.

Kansas will have an "insane" Fourth of July this year, but the State Board of Health is prepared for any accidents that may result.

Five men who control the New York clearing house association constitute, according to Samuel Untermeyer, the nation's money trust.

The house voted 72 to 47 not to include in the sundry civil appropriation bill the money necessary to continue President Taft's tariff board.

The senate agreed to a program of three days' recesses from June 17 to July 1, covering the period of the republican and democratic national conventions.

Lou Rider of Rock Island, Ill., murdered his wife with a razor at an upriver amusement resort and then attempted to commit suicide. A twelve-year-old daughter witnessed the murder.

President Taft, in a special message to congress asked for an appropriation of $100,000 to be expended by the revenue cutter service in caring for volcano victims, near Kodiak, Alaska.

At the suggestion of Senator Hitchcock, the senate committee on territories has adopted for Alaska a model of legislative machinery now in American government.

United States Senator James Reed of Missouri, according to some of Speaker Clark's friends, has been definitely chosen to nominate the speaker for president at the Baltimore convention.

Oscar Wenderoth of the firm of Carrere & Hastings of New York, was selected by Secretary MacVeagh as supervising architect to the Treasury department to succeed James Knox Taylor, who resigned.

C. V. Stewart, chairman of the state democratic committee of Montana, is being boomed for the nomination for governor to succeed Edwin L. Norris, who has announced his intention to retire at the end of his term.

Semi-official figures from Tuesday's primaries from thirty-six out of sixty-one counties in South Dakota give in round numbers the following results: For Roosevelt, 25,000; for La Follette, 15,000; for Taft, 7,000.

To prevent the production by moving pictures of the Johnson-Flynn prize fight July 4, the house committee reported favorable the bill of Representative Rodenberry prohibiting the shipment of films between states.

Rear Admiral Benjamin Pfeiffer Lamberton, U. S. N., retired, who, as Admiral Dewey's chief-of-staff, received the surrender of the Spanish fleet at the battle of Manila, died suddenly at his home in Washington.

Personal.

Alabama and Arkansas were put in the Taft column.

Roosevelt men say there will be no bolt, even if Taft is nominated.

Colonel Roosevelt says all he wants of the republican national committee is justice.

The Cummins boom took form at Chicago with the arrival of Senator Kenyon.

Colonel Roosevelt has written an article on "A Naked Issue of Right and Wrong."

It is said Senator Cummins will not accept second choice on the republican ticket.

Indiana contest cases were decided in favor of Taft.

Senator Fall has been re-elected senator from New Mexico.

Mr. Bryan will be a "looker-on in Venice" at the republican national convention.

James J. Hill resigned as chairman of the board of directors of the Great Northern.

Admirers of LaFollette say he holds the balance of power in the Chicago convention.

Senator Kern said there was a mass of money passed around at the time of Lorimer's election

HEARINGS END; TAFT GIVEN 235

PRESIDENT GETS 62 DELEGATES ON LAST DAY NATIONAL COMMITTEE SITS.

T. R'S. TOTAL IS NINETEEN

Washington's 14, 26 From Texas and Virginia's 20 for Eexcutive—Negro Voters' Claims Turned Down.

Chicago, June 18.—Its closing hours attended by exhibitions of tense partisian and personal feeling among its members, the Republican national committee concluded the hearing of the contests involving 254 seats in the national convention which is to assemble Tuesday.

The sum of its work is: Taft, 235; Roosevelt, 19.

President Taft in the final session received 62 delegates; Colonel Roosevelt, 6.

How They Went.

All of Washington's 14 went to the president, against the protests of Senator Poindexter that the "country would judge the case." Out of Texas he secured 26 of the contested 30, over the prostrate form of Col. Cecil A. Lyon, who declared "you may depose me now, but I will be back four years from now when many of you will not."

Virginia Awarded to Taft.

In Virginia, where the issue was drawn between negro voters and the regular state organization, the president received the entire contested delegation of 20. The District of Columbia, he won two, Committeeman Sidney Beiber going to defeat with the Roosevelt delegation.

The finish of the long contest hearings was marked by incidents more strongly indicative of the division between the Taft and Roosevelt forces than any in the preceding days.

In the end Col. Lyons was called upon to fight a resolution for an investigation and reorganization of the whole structure of the Republican party in Texas. Presidented by Thomas L. Devine of Colorado. It proposed a sub-committee of three from the national committee to attempt a change in the Republican organization of the state that would destroy the system of county representation described by the Taft attorneys as a survival of the "rotten borough" methods of England.

The Washington cases which continued almost to the last to engage the committee's attention before the conclusion of its ten days' work, were preceded by a threatened personal combat between Francis J. Heney and Committeeman Kennedy of North Dakota, which was prevented only by the interference of their associates.

JUSTICE HUGHES BOOMED

New York Friends Think Former Governor Would Run.

Chicago, June 18.— A movement in behalf of Justice Charles E. Hughes of the United States supreme court as a compromise candidate for president has taken definite form. Several supporters of the justice came on from New York and spent the day in the hotel lobbies and quarters of various state delegations, sounding the sentiment of delegates and political leaders.

DIES, EVADE SENTENCE.

Death By Strychnine Follows Conviction.

Minneapolis, June 18.—Fear that he would be sentenced to the workhouse for ninety days was believed to have been the motive for the suicide of Peter Blar, old time Minneapolis saloonkeeper, who ended his life by taking strychnine. He left a note written in Italian, and found by his 17-year-old daughter, Pia, in which he said he wanted to "end it all."

Tawnely Says Taft Will Win.

Winona, June 18.—Ex-Congressman James A. Tawney, who, for five days up to Thursday's adjournment, sat as a member of the Republican national committee in session at Chicago by virtue of proxies he held, has returned to Winona, confident that Taft will win the nomination on the first ballot at the national convention this week. Taft will have at least 555 votes on the first ballot, according to Mr. Tawney, fifteen more than is required for nomination.

Uncle Joe Explains.

Chicago, June 18.—"The difference between Taft and Roosevelt is the difference between a carbuncle and a boil." That was the message "Uncle Joe" Cannon sent.

Three Shot in Chicago Melee.

Chicago, June 18.—A shooting affray on a darkened street car resulted in the wounding of three men, two of whom may die. The trouble started between a union newsboy and nonunion newspaper wagon drivers.

Oklahoma Village Wrecked.

Aklahoma City, June 18.—Four persons were killed and a number injured in a tornado which swept the little village of Nelagony. The storm came suddenly and almost entirely wiped out the town.

GOVERNOR HADLEY

Herbert S. Hadley, governor of Missouri, won his fight before the Republican national committee and the Roosevelt delegates at large headed by him were seated.

SOCIALISTS OPEN THEIR FIGHT

EUGENE V. DEBS AND EMIL SEIDEL MAKE ADDRESSES.

Speaker Declares There Are But Two Parties and One Issue in Field.

Chicago, June 18.—The first campaign in which the Socialist party has had a complete ticket in every state in the nation has just opened. Eugene V. Debs and Emil Seidel, the Socialist candidates for president and vice president of the United States made the chief addresses. Both candidates spoke at a meeting in an amusement park.

Mr. Debs said in part:

"In this campaign there are but two parties and but one issue. The so-called Republican and Democratic parties are substantially one in what they stand for, opposed to each other on no question of principle but purely in a contest for the spoils of office. They stand for capitalism, for the private ownership of the means of subsistence, for the exploitation of the workers and for wage slavery.

"We have before us in this city at this hour an exhibition of capitalist machine politics which lays bare the true inwardness of the situation in the capitalist camp. Nothing that any Socialist has ever charged in the way of corruption is to be compared with what Taft and Roosevelt have charged and proved upon one another. They are both good Republicans, just as Harmon and Bryan are both good Democrats, and they are all agreed that Socialism would be the ruin of the country.

Taft and Roosevelt Hit.

"Taft and Roosevelt in the exploitation of their boasted individualism and their mad fight for official spoils have been forced to expose the whole game of capitalist class politics and reveal themselves and the whole brood of capitalist politicians in their true role; mere puppets bought, paid for and owned by the powers that are exploiting this nation and enslaving and robbing its toilers.

The speech of Emily Seidel, vice presidential candidate, was devoted largely to showing the powers of the capitalist system and to pointing out what he asserted to be the remedy.

Clapp May Try for Vice-Presidency.

Chicago, Junue 18.—In connection with the coming of Senator Clapp are many rumors of the part he is expected to take, should the convention become a stampede for Roosevelt. It is possible that his friends will urge his name for vice-president. In that event, Frank B. Kellogg might become a candidate for United States senator in Minnesota on a Roosevelt platform to succeed Senator Clapp. Mr. Kellogg's friends are also suggesting the name of the St. Paul attorney as a vice-presidential candidate.

Deposits Halt Rescue Tug.

Karluk, Kodiak Island, Alaska, June 18.—The relief tug Redonda arrived here from a cruise along the mainland at the foot of Katmai volcano and reported that she was unable to make a landing in that section because of the extremely heavy deposits of sand and ashes. No sign of life was seen and those on the tug were unable to recognize the locations of the fishing villages which were scattered along the coast line before the eruption last week. It is believed all the settlers have perished.

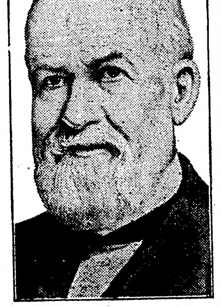
Women Pick Dark Horse.

Chicago, June 18.—A "dark horse" seemed the sure thing to a number of women talking together here on the political situation. Leading in the conversation was Mrs. Thomas Thorsen, wife of the national committeeman from South Dakota.

Rebels to Hang Foreigners.

Chicago, June 18.—The rebel General Julio Antomarchi, has announced his intention of hanging all foreigners in the El Cobre coffee district within the next twenty-four hours.

DR. T. J. BURRILL



With the close of the present collegiate year Dr. Thomas J. Burrill, vice-president of the University of Illinois, severs his connection with that institution and retires to private life. Since going to the university in 1868 Dr. Burrill has acted in the capacity of professor of botany, vice-president and acting president, dean of the college of science and dean of the graduate school, and has found time to do important work as a man of science.

STRIKERS ARE SHOT DOWN

ONE KILLED, SEVERAL WOUNDED, IN NEW JERSEY.

Searchlights Aid Deputies in Battle Against 2,000 Entrenched Workers.

Perth Ambroy, N. J., June 16.—Two thin lines of deputy sheriffs, heavily armed, held at bay 2,000 strikers who tried to storm the $5,000,000 plants of the American Smelting & Refining company and the Barber Asphalt works adjoining, while searchlights at the tops of high towers played on the rioters. Two hundred shots or more—deadly, soft-nosed bullets from repeating rifles and automatic revolvers—were fired by the deputies at the mob which gathered behind the ten-foot embankment of the New York & Long Branch railroad. Firing continued for hours, long after the first detachment of 50 deputies had reached the storm center. When it ended one man, a strike sympathizer, lay dead and several of the mob were injured. These were cared for by friends.

The net result of the day's rioting stood at three dead and several injured. Of the dead, one was a striker, one was a man at work, and the third was the night watchman at the Perth Amboy Tobacco company plant. The injured are all strikers except Sheriff Bollschweiller, who was stoned as he was patrolling the district in his automobile.

Six men are under arrest, charged with carrying concealed weapons and inciting a riot.

PEEK-A-BOO STOCKINGS.

Old So-called Waist a Coat of Mail Beside Them.

New York, June 16.—Hail the peek-a-boo stocking! Of all devices that have proved a boon to mosquitoes, the peek-aboo hosiery that is about to twine its negligible filaments about shapely ankle and classic calf strikes the final chord.

The interstices, or the peek-a-boos, are about an inch square, and will stretch farther. They need no darning. The peek-a-boo stocking is on view at a West Thirty-ninth street store.

It is really no stocking at all. The peek-a-boo waist is a cloak of mail besides it. She who wears it may know in her heart that she pulled on her stockings, but others who look without the aid of strong glasses will know nothing about it.

President Wins Delegation at Large.

Chicago, June 17.—The republican national committee decided the fifth Texas district contest in favor of the two Taft delegates. The committee also seated the two Taft delegates in the seventh Texas district.

Taft delegates-at-large from Texas, with eight votes, were seated by the republican national committee after a spirited contest which followed the declaration of Cecil Lyons that the Taft managers had failed to file credentials for their delegation within the time limit required. The Roosevelt managers were overruled by the chair. A motion to seat the Roosevelt delegates-at-large was defeated, demands for a roll call being refused.

Decision on the contest was followed by a scene of disorder outside the committee room where the wild cheering of several hundred Taft men mingled with hooting and groans by the Roosevelt supporters.

RIVAL RALLY PLANNED.

Held on Same Night as Roosevelt Meeting.

Chicago, June 16.—John Hays Hammond, president of the national league of Republican clubs, is planning a Taft demonstration meeting for next Monday night, the same night of the Roosevelt meeting. He announced that hundreds of members of the league who will be here, would launch a "Taft Boosters," club at the Monday night meeting.

THE PEEVISH CHILD NEEDS TREATMENT

When a child sulks drowsily, or is fretful, it is usually due to some slight disorder of the digestive organs, and a mild laxative is very often all that is necessary to restore cheerfulness and buoyancy of spirits.

In cases where the use of a gentle, effective laxative stimulant is indicated, many of the best physicians are now prescribing Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This preparation is admittedly the perfect laxative, being mild, yet positive in its action on the bowels, and far preferable to violent cathartics and purgative waters. It is very pleasant to the taste and is an ideal remedy to regulate and strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels. Its easy, natural action makes it especially desirable in the case of children, a dose at bed-time being sure to have the desired result next morning, with no attendant unpleasantness or discomfort.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold by druggists everywhere in 50c and $1.00 bottles. If you have never tried this splendid remedy, write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., for a sample. He will be very glad to send a trial bottle without any expense to you whatever.

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

Doctors Could Not Help Mrs. Templeton—Regained Health through Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Hooper, Nebraska.—"I am very glad to tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me. For five years I suffered from female troubles so I was scarcely able to do my work. I took doctors' medicines and used local treatments but was not helped. I had such awful bearing down pains and my back was so weak I could hardly walk and could not ride. I often had to sit up nights to sleep and my friends thought I could not live long. At my request my husband got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I commenced to take it. By the time I had taken the seventh bottle my health had returned, and I began doing my washing and was a well woman. At one time for three weeks I did all the work for eighteen boarders with no signs of my old trouble returning. Many have taken your medicine after seeing what it did for me. I would not take $1000 and be where I was. You have my permission to use my name if it will aid anyone."—Mrs. SUSIE TEMPLETON, Hooper, Nebraska.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

RHEUMATISM A DISEASE OF THE BLOOD

The Treatment Which Is Most Successful Is Directed Toward Building Up and Purifying the Vital Fluid.

That rheumatism is a disease of the blood is shown by the fact that it is hereditary in certain families, and that there is a marked thinning of the blood immediately following its attack.

In the following brief statement are described symptoms which every patient will recognize and the means by which a cure was effected in this case is described with equal fidelity.

If you are suffering from any form of rheumatism with loss of flesh and strength, and thinning of the blood, the remedy that was so effective here deserves a thorough trial.

"About fifteen years ago," says Mrs. Rhoda Pettit, of Louisville, Neb., "after exposure to dampness and wet and being in a run-down condition from overwork, I began to suffer from inflammatory rheumatism. Both my father and mother were sufferers from the same disease. My right side was afflicted and had I no use of my right limb. The cords of the limb seemed to be drawn up. Often the pains would shift from one part of the body to another and, while they were worse in my right limb, they were very severe through the small of my back. There was a sensation as though I was being cut with a knife. My limbs and feet were swollen so that I could not put on my shoes. I suffered intense agony all of the time and when the attacks were severe I was confined to bed for weeks. My stomach was in bad shape. I was troubled with heartburn and gas. I lost weight and my strength was all gone.

"I took medicine from a doctor and tried several other remedies and liniments but nothing helped me until I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had taken them only a short time before I could feel the new blood and after a fair trial I was able to walk. The pills made me a strong, healthy woman and I am entirely cured of the rheumatism. I know I would not be living today if I had not tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. The genuine are sold only in packages bearing the full trade-mark.

ECZEMA DISFIGURED BABY

"Our little boy Gilbert was troubled with eczema when but a few weeks old. His little face was covered with sores even to back of his ears. The poor little fellow suffered very much. The sores began as pimples, his little face was disfigured very much. We hardly knew what he looked like. The face looked like raw meat. We tied little bags of cloth over his hands to prevent him from scratching. He was very restless at night, his little face itched.

"We consulted two doctors at Chicago, where we resided at that time. After trying all the medicine of the two doctors without any result, we read of the Cuticura Remedies, and at once bought Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Following the directions carefully and promptly we saw the result, and after four weeks, the dear child's face was as fine and clean as any little baby's face. Every one who saw Gilbert after using the Cuticura Remedies was surprised. He has a head of hair which is a pride for any boy of his age, three years. We can only recommend the Cuticura Remedies to everybody." (Signed) Mrs. H. Albrecht, Box 883, West Point, Neb., Oct. 26, 1910. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

SWINDLE IN WEIGHTS

MADE IN WISCONSIN AND FOUND IN USE IN MINNESOTA AND IOWA—ONE PROSECUTION.

POCKET DEVICE USED.

Ingenious Invention Increases or Decreases Scale Load Up to 10 Per Cent—Can me Used in Moment's Time; Hard to Detect.

The most ingenius and pernicious device for the purpose of fraud that ever came to its notice, most difficult of detection and found to be operating to create false weights on scales in Minnesota and Iowa, has been discovered by the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse commission, which has issued a description of it, as a warning to farmers, livestock receivers and shippers, grain elevators, railroad station men and others to be on the lookout. It is a small piece of steel, like the blade of a pocketknife. To what general use it has been put the commission is unable to say, but the fact that it can be carried in a vest pocket and used to increase or decrease the weight of a scale load, according to how placed under the scale beam, prompted the commission to lose no time in making known the facts.

J. H. Foster, general superintendent of the Milwaukee road, while at Ortonville, Minn., two months ago, discovered the use of the "shrinker," as it is called. He immediately notified Judge Ira B. Mills of the state railroad and warehouse commission, who called his associates, Charles F. Staples and C. E. Elmquist, into conference, and Charles Watson, special agent for the commission, was started through Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois and South Dakota on an investigation. The nature of the device, the inserting of it at time of weighing and the possibility of immediately withdrawing it and slipping it into the pocket made it extremely difficult to find instances where it could be positively stated that it had been used, even where there were other indications, but Mr. Watson reported that he found it in use in Iowa and that it is made in a small Wisconsin town.

of weights and measures, then made a test of the "shrinker." The effect, he reported, was to make a difference of 2½ to 5 per cent, either way, in use on ordinary scales and a 10 per cent difference on the new form of stock scales.

C. E. Elmquist, member of the commission, said that in the Ortonville case the evidence was sufficiently strong to justify prosecution, in his opinion, and this case will be presented to the attorney general for action. Mr. Elmquist said that at present the offense was only a misdemeanor, but that he favored a law making it a felony.

APPEAL TO PRESIDENT.

Women Not Satisfied With McNabb Decision.

Minneapolis, Minn.,—The sentence of three months in prison and a fine of $1,000 imposed on Matthew McNabb by Federal Judge Smith McPherson on a white slavery charge has aroused a storm of protest from the federation of women's clubs and other kindred organizations, who declare rank prejudice was shown. McNabb was charged with taking a young girl from Champaign, Ill., to St. Paul and living with her in a hotel under the guise that she was his daughter. McNabb pleaded guilty last week to violating the federal law agaist white slave traffic.

Members of the committee say that they could obtain no satisfaction from the judge and they therefore make informal petition to President Taft that he see to it that appointed judges be in sympathy with the law enacted for the control of the white slave traffic.

Jury Awards $16,000 Damages.

Elbow Lake.—The jury in the case of J. J. Kloppenburg against the Soo railway brought in a verdict for plaintiff for $16,000. The plaintiff was shipping poultry and alleges that in November, 1910, while in the car at Barrett, it was unnecessarily and violently bumped; that he was thrown to the floor and sustained an injury to his knee that has developed into myelitis; that at best he can live but a few months longer. The defense was that he was not injured as asserted, and that he is suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis.

Minnesota Girls Honored.

Auburn, New York. — Wells college graduated 39 young women, the largest class in its history. Mrs. Grover Cleveland, '85, took prominent part in the ceremonies. Degree was awarded Margna Cum Laude to Louise E. Wyman of St. Paul. Brenda Ueland of Minneapolis won the English prize. Amy Pierce of Minneapolis won the biblical prize.

Minneapolis Prohibitionists.

Minneapolis. — The Hennepin county Prohibitionists want State Representative E. E. Lobeck of Alexandria, for governor of the state. In convention in the assembly room of the court house, they unanimously instructed the 68 delegates which Hennepin county will have in the state convention, which meets in Minneapolis, July 4 and 5, to support the name of the Alexandria man, Mr. Lobeck is a state legislator of experience, having served several terms in the house.

FIREMEN END A GOOD TIME

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF FLAME FIGHTERS ADJOURNS.

Thief River Falls Gets Presidency and Meeting Next Year.

Minneapolis. — The fortieth annual convention of the Minnesota State Firemen's association has adjourned. Counter-attractions in Minneapolis were so great that the delegates shunned the dull routine of listening to seven topics which had been assigned for reading and discussion.

"There are too many counter-attractions here for the boys," said Statistician Kelly. "They want to see the town and don't care to spend any more time in the Auditorium than they have to."

Chief Ira C. Richardson, of Thief River Falls, first vice-president, was automatically elected president and the 1913 convention follows him to Thief River Falls. Chief H. M. Serle of Fairmont was elected first vice-president and in the ordinary course Fairmont will entertain the delegates to the 1914 convention. As the convention follows the home town of the president and it is the custom of the association to advance its first and second vice presidents to the presidency, competition in the election of second vice president was keen, as it determined where the convention would be held in 1915. After a hot fight Chief J. M. Collins of Pine City landed the office and the convention.

Minneapolis women made good when they turned out to assist in entertaining the visiting firemen at the ball given in the Armory. There were three thousand present.

ATTACK MEASURE LAW.

Act's Constitutionality Questioned in Trial of Grocer.

Minneapolis. — The constitutionality of a section of the act establishing a weights and measures department, passed by the legislature in 1911, was attacked in municipal court by George Leonard, attorney for a grocer, charged with selling a carton of butter that weighed 14 ounces. The charges was that the grocer had advertised that the butter weighed a pound.

The attorney insisted that if the clause in the weights and measures act were held to be related to the rest of the act, which he asserted it was not, all advertisers in the country would be put in predicament such as would make advertising a farce and the advertisers subject to many absurdities. The case was continued.

TO PROTECT MILK.

Dr. Lankester Would Have State Legislation regulate Shipments.

St. Paul.—Milk will be brought to St. Paul in refrigerator cars and will not be permitted to stand in the sun on station platforms, if the legislature next winter will take the viewpoint of Health Commissioner Lankester, who is urging legislation covering the shipment of milk.

At present milk which has been cooled in a dairy is permitted to stand on a platform, often in the sun. Then it is placed in a hot, ill-smelling car. When it reaches St. Paul it is often allowed to stand for an hour or more in the station.

Dr. Lankester will press his ordinance for the bottling of all milk sold at retail in cities.

NORWEGIAN LUTHERANS.

One Thousand Hear Rev. Range of Norway.

Thief River Falls, Minn.—About 1,000 people were present when Rev. Hans Neilson Hauge was introduced as a special messenger from the church and the king of Norway. Rev. Hauge said that the church of Norway rejoices to witness the great work done by the Norwegian Lutheran Chuhch association in America. Rev. E.E. Gynild from Fargo was elected president of the Free Church.

Babies Enjoy Picnic.

Minneapolis. — Twenty babies from two months to thre years old gathered in front of the library building at the University of Minnesota for the first university baby party. Every youngster was the offspring of an alumnae who had graduated from that institution since 1904. They were brought together that the mothers might compare notes as to their intelligence, beauty and good nature, and methods of caring for them.

Loses Leg Stealing Ride.

Minneapolis. — James E. Clayton, 21 years old, of Estherville Ia., lost his right leg stealing a ride on a Minneapolis and St. Louis freight train at Waconia. He fell off the bumpers. He was taken to St. Barnabas hospital.

Fish With False Teeth.

Cap Wilson, the inventor of as many different kinds of spoons as there are fish that will take them, has discovered a new lure for catfish. He was on an outing among the sloughs of the Sacramento river, when one of his companions found him on the deck of his launch, roaring loudly.

"What's the matter?" he inquired.

"Matter? Huh! There's a $20 catfish down under this boat, an' I'm a-goin' to get him if I have to seine him out."

"How do you figure a catfish worth twenty dollars?"

"This way: I was standin' right here a-cleanin' my new set of false teeth, when he come up to the top, looked at me an' opened his mouth. I grabbed for the boathook to gaff him an' dropped the teeth. Plumb they went right square into his mouth. Now he's down there crackin' crabs with my teeth, an' I got to eat clam chowder outen a salmon spoon."—Saturday Evening Post.

OUTDOOR LIFE.

Will Not Offset the Ill Effects of Coffee and Tea When One Cannot Digest Them.

A farmer says:

"For ten years or more I suffered from dyspepsia and stomach trouble, caused by the use of coffee (Tea contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee), until I got so bad I had to give up coffee entirely and almost give up eating. There were times when I could eat only boiled milk and bread; and when I went to the field to work I had to take some bread and butter along to give me strength.

"I doctored steady and took almost everything I could get for my stomach in the way of medicine, but if I got any better it only lasted a little while. I was almost a walking skeleton.

"One day I read an ad for Postum and told my wife I would try it, and as to the following facts I will make affidavit before any judge:

"I quit coffee entirely and used Postum in its place. I have regained my health entirely and can eat anything that is cooked to eat. I have increased in weight until now I weigh more than I ever did. I have not taken any medicine for my stomach since I began using Postum.

"My family would stick to coffee at first, but they saw the effects it had on me and when they were feeling bad they began to use Postum, one at a time, until now we all use Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ten days' trial of Postum in place of coffee proves the truth, an easy and pleasant way.

Be a booster—not a knocker.

The governor says he did not care to intimidate the legislature. Clearly the senate has another laugh coming.

The republican national convention convened in Chicago on Tuesday. So far it appears to be the rottenest political gathering ever held in the country.

One of the importent items of business done at the special session of the legislature was the appointing of a senate committee to investigate conditions as to brewery interests in saloons and blind pigs. A careful investigation by that committee will undoubtedly bring good results at the next regular session.

The extra session of the legislature terminated on Tuesday and the people at large are handing the members neat compliments on their having made the session brief and business like. A lot of needed laws were passed and there was practically no bickering. The three principal laws enacted were the new primary election law, the corrupt practises act, and the railroad gross earning tax bill, which increases the rate of taxation on railroad property in the state. The corrupt practises act is decidedly strngent and will do much to eliminate the rotten political conditions which have heretofore existed in the state.

Now would be a mighty good time for all the country editors to make up their minds to refuse acceptance of any campaign plate matter furnished free by the plate houses at the expense of the national committees. The very recent, we might say present, unpleasantness in the ranks of the republican party has demonstrated that millions are available for the prosecution of a national campaign. If the national committee wants to reach the people through the local newspapers, let them pay the publishers of those papers instead of the giant plate octopus. Under present conditions the average country editor gets not a cent for the space used in this manner, but it's the biggest kind of a graft for the plate houses.

Notice of Contest.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
United States Land Office.
Crookston, Minnesota, June 10th, 1912.

To Edwin Fjeld, of Middle River, Minn., Contestee:

You are hereby notified that Hans A. Madsen, who gives Hannah, N. D., as his post-office address, did on May 10th, 1912, file in this office his duly corroborated application to contest and secure the cancellation of your homestead Entry, Serial No. 05174, made April 8th, 1910, for W 1-2 NW 1-4 Sec. 29, and Lots 9 & 10, Section 30, Township 157 N., Range 41 W., Fifth meridian, and as grounds for his contest he alleges that said Edwin Fjeld has wholly abandoned said land for a period of more than six months last past and next prior hereto; that he never established his residence thereon; that said land is in a state of nature, wholly wild and uncultivated.

You are, therefore, further notified that the said allegations will be taken by this office as having been confessed by you, and your said entry will be cancelled thereunder without your further right to be heard therein, either before this office or on appeal, if you fail to file in this office within twenty days after the FOURTH publication of this notice, as shown below, your answer, under oath, specifically meeting and responding to these allegations of contest, or if you fail within that time to file in this office due proof that you have served a copy of your answer on the said contestant either in person or by resistered mail. If this service is made by the delivery of a copy to the contestant in person, proof of such service must be either the said contestant's written acknowledgement of his receipt of the copy, showing the date of its receipt, or the affidavit of the person by whom the delivery was made stating when and where the copy was delivered; if made by registered mail, proof of such service must consist of the affidavit of the person by whom the copy was mailed stating when and the post office to which it was mailed, and this affidavit must be accompanied by the postmaster's receipt for the letter.

You should state in your answer the name of the post office to which you desire future notices to be sent to you.

Notice of Contest.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
United States Land Office.
Crookston, Minnesota, May 22, 1912.

To Frank Schulz, of Foldal, Minnesota, Contestee:

You are hereby notified that Halvor L. Tollum, who gives Thief River Falls, Minnesota, as his post-office address, did on March 30, 1912, file in this office his duly corroborated application to contest and secure the cancellation of your homestead, entry No. 8233, Serial No. 03102, made April 12, 1905, for the NE¼ Section 35, Township 156 N., Range 41 W., 5th prin. Meridian, and as grounds for his contest he alleges that said Frank Schulz has never resided upon, cultivated or improved said land; and more specifically, that he has not during the six months last past, resided upon, cultivated or improved said land, that his absence from said land is not due to his employment in the army, navy or marine corps of the United States.

You are, therefore, further notified that the said allegations will be taken by this office as having been confessed by you, and your said entry will be cancelled thereunder without your further right to be heard therein, either before this office or on appeal, if you fail to file in this office within twenty days after the FOURTH publication of this notice, as shown below, your answer, under oath, specifically meeting and responding to these allegations of contest, or if you fail within that time to file in this office due proof that you have served a copy of your answer on the said contestant either in person or by registered mail. If this service is made by the delivery of a copy of your answer to the contestant in person, proof of such service must be either the contestant's written acknowledgement of his receipt of the copy, showing the date of its receipt, or the affidavit of the person by whom the delivery was made stating when and where the copy was delivered; if made by registered mail, proof of such service must consist of the affidavit of the person by whom the copy was mailed stating when and the postoffice to which it was mailed, and this affidavit must be accompanied by the postmaster's receipt for the letter.

Miss Gotham—I have just been reading an article entitled "Have We Ever Lived Before?" I sometimes fancy we have.

Mr. Rowtham—Indeed!

Miss Gotham—Yes. I frequently find myself moved by a weird transcendental emotion which seems to be the unquenchable struggling consciousness of a pre-existence. But if I have lived before, where could it have been?

Mr. Rowtham—Judging from the kind of emotion you have described, it must have been near Copley square, Boston.—Puck.

Holt's Big Valuation

Holt's board of equalization met on Monday to review and adjust the assessment rolls. They found that assessed valuation of the real estate this year is $100,688.00, and that of personal property $30,952.00. The valuation is said to have increased about 100 per cent in the past two years, which is the best kind of evidence of the progress the community is making.

John Nelson, aged about 45 years, died very quickly from a hemorrhage of the lungs at Swan Carlson's place in East Valley township on Tuesday. His home was in Chicago and he had come to northern Minnesota in search of relief from tuberculosis. He had been here about three months and seemed to be improving in health. His wife was notified in Chicago and she issued instructions to have the body shipped home for interment, which was done on Wednesday

Seemed Willing to Murder

Holt residents were considerably worked up yesterday over what appears to have been an earnest effort to commit murder, which failed only because the victim kept out of sight until the man with the gun had given up the chase.

The stories told concerning the near tragedy and those concerned in it are most disgusting, and the real facts are hard to get. It appears that the man with the gun quarreled with his wife over her alleged intimacy with the other man, who was present. The woman answered back and charged her husband with being too intimate with other women. Then the husband slapped her face and the alleged paramour pasted the husband one or two and then took to the brush. Another man who was present discovered one eye of the said alleged paramour before he got away, and Mr. Goodhusband sent several revolver shots after him as he sped into the friendly night. (They do say that, for a somewhat hefty fellow, he ran like blases.) Then the husband loaded his revolver, got an electric flashlight, and started to find and kill the other fellow. But the other fellow had decided not to be found and killed—and he wasn't.

Yesterday morning the male principals talked about warrants, while the woman is said to have talked of suits for slander against several parties who are alleged to have been gossiping about her for some time. It is devoutly to be hoped that some of them will start something in the courts. It will give the authorities something tangible to go on in order to stamp out rotten moral conditions and get rid of objectionable characters. We will gladly publish facts, and names of the guilty, without fear or favor. The innocent and virtuous need have no fear.

ALBIN KNAUF, Owner,

CHANGED HIS CHALLENGE.

"I read a story in the 'Tales of the Town' column of the Free Press the other day about a man who entered a saloon and said he could lick anyone in the city, state or county, and who when he got licked excused himself by saying that he took in too much territory," began a traveling salesman the other day. "Here is a better version of the same story:

"The man was drunk and entered a bowery dance hall in New York. He took a position in the middle of the floor and shouted at the top of his voice: 'I can lick any man in this room.' No one paid any attention to him, but one man finally got sore, and started to pound him.

"Did the drunk get sore and say that he took in too much territory? He did not. He jumped to his feet, placed his arm across the shoulders of the man who had given him a beating and shouted: 'Me and this man can lick any other two men on the floor.'"—Milwaukee Free Press.

NEWS EPITOME THAT CAN SOON BE COMPASSED.

MANY EVENTS ARE MENTIONED

Home and Foreign Intelligence Condensed Into Two and Four Line Paragraphs.

Congress.

The house voted to buy a new seal—the first since 1830.

The house adopted the conference report on the army appropriation bill.

The Archibald case was taken up in executive session by the house judiciary committee.

The senate Titanic investigating committee heard suggestions for improvement of conditions at sea.

The senate passed the legislative, executive and judiciary appropriation bill which now goes to conference.

The army appropriation conference report, legislating General Wood out of office, was taken up in the house.

President Taft sent a message asking an appropriation of $1,250,000 to protect Imperial valley, California, from floods.

Chairman Fitzgerald of the appropriations committee, bitterly attacked President Taft, charging him with having misused the presidential traveling expense fund.

The house adopted senate amendments to the reslution for an international maritime conference.

Former Treasurer Thompson, of republican national committee, before committee investigating campaign contributions, testified he had received no contributions during his short term of office.

The house has passed a bill which provides "that all pending homestead entries made in good faith prior to September 1, 1911, under the provisions of the enlarged homestead laws, by persons who, before making such enlarged homestead entry, had acquited title to a technical quarter section of land under the homestead law and therefore were not qualified to make an enlarged homestead entry, be and the same are hereby validated, if in all other respects regular, in all cases where the original homestead entry was for less than 160 acres of land."

Congress will be in almost a total exclipse during the next fortnight. The senate, perfunctorily meeting a few minutes every third day, will transact no business. The delay in enactment of a dozen annual appropriation bills which provide for the operation of the government will make it necessary for both houses to pass a concurrent resolution about July 1, continuing the present supply bills into the next fiscal year, for a brief period, with probable later extensions of the period. The last similar embarrassing situation was in the fifty-third congress, almost twenty years ago.

General.

Col. Roosevelt, according to returns, will have a solid delegation from South Dakota.

"Political brigande" is Roosevelt's comment on the outcome of the Ohio republican state convention.

Several strikers and police officers were injured in a riot at Middleton, Conn.

The Argentine government introduced into the house of deputies a bill to establish a wireless telegraphic service.

The Norris bill validating disputed title along the Union Pacific right-of-way in Nebraska, Kansas, Wyoming and Colorado, was passed by the senate judiciary committee.

By unanimous vote the house directed a sub-committee of the judiciary committee to go to Seattle, Wash., and other places to investigate charges against Federal Judge Cornelius Hanford.

At Zanesville, O., two were killed and a score more injured when a cyclone struck that city, toppling the steeple of the St. Thomas Catholic church through the roof while services were being heard.

Three men were killed and more than a dozen injured by the premature explosion of six pounds of dynamite in the Clearwater tunnel of the Los Angeles acqueduct near Saugus, thirty-three miles north of Los Angeles.

The Milwaukee Physicians' association will prepare a bill for the next legislature intended to stop the practice of kissing and stamping the habit as a blot on civilization and a menace to health and decency.

E. W. Smith, a Chicago sporting writer, was selected referee for the Johnson-Flynn championship battle at Las Vegas July 4. This decision was reached at a conference between Jack Johnson and Jack Curley, the latter representing Jim Flynn.

The Mare Island navy yard will build the river gunboat Monocacy, 190 tons, as its bid of $141,000, was far below any private concern.

Mail advices received at New Orleans from Bluefields says that many people are dying from famine in the interior of Nicaragua. Lack of crops is given as the cause.

"What is this?"

"As you see, it is a badge demanding votes for women."

"You wearing such a badge?"

"Yes, I."

"But you always told me you could never see any reason for women's suffrage."

"Yes; but I didn't know it was going to become a rather stylish fad."

Only One Fault to Find.

Lambert Kaspers, Chicago attorney, told the following story, at a recent Y. M. C. A. banquet:

A Kansas farmer, a Dane, applied for naturalization papers. The judge asked him: "Are you satisfied with the general conditions of the country?"

"Yas," drawled the Dane.

"Does the government suit you?" queried the judge.

"Yas, yas, only I would like to see more rain," replied the farmer.

The First Consideration.

At St. Andrews some years ago an old farmer and his plowman were carting sand from the seashore. They were behind the target on the rifle-range, but hidden by a bank of sand from a party of volunteers, who were then on foot, at practice. A stray bullet struck the plowman on the leg, and he immediately dropped, exclaiming: "I'm shot!"

Without more ado the farmer scrambled up the bank and, waving his hands to the volunteers, shouted:

"Hey, lads, stop that, will ye? You've shot a man, and it micht hae been the horse!"—London Tit-Bits.

That Was Different.

A stern father who had repeatedly told a young man who was paying his addresses to his daughter not to visit the house again without his permission, which he never intended to give, was surprised when he answered a ring at the doorbell late one evening to see the young man waiting on the step.

"Sir," said he in anger, "didn't I tell you not to call again, eh, sir?"

"Yes," said the young man. "I know, but I didn't call to see your daughter. I came on behalf of our firm about that little bill."

"Oh—er—er—" stammered the stern father, "call again, will you?"

LIFE SAVERS.

Second Shark—We'll have to eat him or he'll drown.

DOCTOR'S SHIFT.

Now Gets Along Without It.

A physician says: "Until last fall I used to eat meat for my breakfast and suffered with indigestion until the meat had passed from the stomach.

"Last fall I began the use of Grape-Nuts for breakfast and very soon found I could do without meat, for my body got all the nourishment necessary from the Grape-Nuts and since then I have not had any indigestion and am feeling better and have increased in weight.

"Since finding the benefit I derived from Grape-Nuts I have prescribed the food for all my patients suffering from indigestion or over-feeding and also for those recovering from disease where I want a food easy to take and certain to digest and which will not overtax the stomach.

"I always find the results I look for when I prescribe Grape-Nuts. For ethical reasons please omit my name." Name given by mail by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The reason for the wonderful amount of nutriment, and the easy digestion of Grape-Nuts is not hard to find.

In the first place, the starchy part of the wheat and barley goes through various processes of cooking, to perfectly change the starch into dextrose or grape-sugar, in which state it is ready to be easily absorbed by the blood.

The parts in the wheat and barley which Nature can make use of for rebuilding brain and nerve centers are retained in this remarkable food, and thus the human body is supplied with the powerful strength producers, so easily noticed after one has eaten Grape-Nuts each day for a week or ten days.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Minneapolis. — The value of good roads to the farmer grain dealers of country stations was one of the important subjects taken up by the National Association of Managers of Farmers' Elevator companies, which met in Minneapolis Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. George M. Palmer of Mankato, was one of the leaders in this discussion. He delivered an address Thursday afternoon.

This was the first convention of the newly organized national association. The sessions were held in the assembly hall in the courthouse. Hotel headquarters were at the Rogers.

John G. McHugh, secretary of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, talked on "The Value of Grain Exchanges to the Farmer Elevator Companies." Terminal market conditions were discussed and the question of grain weighing in Minnesota was another subject. The handling of live stock by men in the elevator business was touched upon.

Edward W. Decker, president of the Northwestern National Bank, Minneapolis, talked on "The Responsibility of the Bankers at Terminal Markets During the Crop Moving Session."

LEEB CRITICISES CODE.

Up-to-Date Drug Law Needed, He Says.

Winona.—At the opening business session of the Minnesota Pharmaceutical association here, President Theodore Leeb gave credit to the Commercial Travelers' auxiliary and its officers in helping place the treasury in better condition. Speaking for the association, President Leeb gave his indorsement to the members of the state board of pharmacy in their campaign against the offenders of the cocaine law, and assured the board of active support. Concerning the pharmacy code, he said the present patched-up affair should be superseded by an up-to-date law.

NELSON BREAKS SILENCE

Senator Will Announce Shortly If He Will Enter Senatorial Race.

Washington, D. C. — Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota will announce in a day or two if he will be a candidate to succeed himself, when his term expires on March 4. Washington was interested in a report that the senator was about to announce his retirement from public life, but to all inquiries, the senator replied that a statement he would make later would answer that question.

LAD PINES FOR FATHER.

Little Boys' Health Is Affected by Parent's Absence.

Duluth, Minnesota. — Charles Nolan, a coremaker, who for two years was employed at the Clyde Iron works, has been missing since May 8. His wife is frantic for news of his whereabouts. Their 5-year-old son pines constantly for father so that his health is being affected. The child cries much of his waking hours for his father and it is feared that he will grieve himself to death.

Praise for New Prison.

Stillwater. — Albert Garvin of Cheshire, Conn., who formerly was warden of the Minnesota state prison, said of the new prison, near South Stillwater, which is rapidly nearing completion, that of all of the prisons in this country and many of the prisons in Europe he had seen none that could in any way compare with the arrangement of the one the state of Minnesota is building.

St. John's Graduates 76.

Collegeville.—At the closing exercises of the fifty-fifth academic year of St. John's university held in the college auditorium, the presentation of class awards, diplomas and degrees was made by President Abbot Peter Engel. Diplomas and degrees were conferred on seventy-six students of the seminary, with classical and commercial courses.

Pastor to be Evangelist.

Mankato.—Rev. C. B. Osgood has resigned his pastorate to the Christian church in this city in order to assume the duties of state evangelist for the church.

Bishop Bockmann Is Heard.

Minneapolis. — Biship Bockmann of the Norwegian Lutheran church of Trondhjem, Norway, addressed a gathering of several hundred Norwegians from all over the Northwest attending the fifth annual convention of the Tronderlaget, an organization of Norwegians born or raised in the province of Trondhjem, Norway. H. Bendeke, Grand Forks, Norwegian consul, was re-elected president of the Tronderlaget. Professor Durrum of Fergus Falls was elected secretary and treasurer.

STONE LAID WITH POMP.

Crookston Cathedral Scene of Very Impressive Services.

Crookston. —One of the most impressive scenes ever witnessed in Crookston was enacted, when thousands of persons witnessed the laying of the corner stone of the new cathedral. Bishop Timothy Corbett officiated, with Rev. Father Tapin of St. Anne's parish, Crookston, acting as deacon, and Rev. Father Joseph Wurm of the pro-cathedral parish, subdeacon, and Rev. Father Default, assistant to Father Wurm, acting as master of ceremonies.

The Catholic Order of Foresters and Knights of Columbus, marched from the Cathedral High School, followed by the bishop and his attendants, all in full regalia, to the interior of the walls, where the services were held, with special services around the corner stone, when it was formally blessed by the bishop.

Following the ceremonial, Bishop Corbett made an address on the history of the church and what it stands for. At the close of his address the bishop struck the corner stone, as did also his assistants, the Knights of Columbus, Foresters, and others who desired, each striking the stone with the small hammer provided. More than one thousand persons participated in this ceremony.

Market Day a Big Success.

Karlstad.—Market day here was one of the biggest events of its kind ever held in the county. People were present from all parts of Roseau, Kittson and Marshall counties. Otto Norland of Lancaster, wrestled Al Bethcer of Thief River Falls for the championship of the north star state and threw him. Lancaster and Halma played ball and the former won 2 to 1. Besides these attractions there were foot races, a free auction, and special bargains.

Honor For Former Winona Boy.

Winona.—Austin W. Lord, a former Winona boy, has been appointed architect to the Isthmian canal commission and will sail for the isthmus on the first of July. His work will include the planning of the entire architectural scheme in connection with the administration and maintenance of the canal over its entire length of about fifty miles.

Road Machinery Ordered.

Pipestone.—At a meeting of the members of the Pipestone County Automobile association it was decided to change the name of the organization and hereafter it will be known as the Pipestone County Good Roads and Automobile association. Two King drags have been ordered and will be put into commission as soon as they are received.

Socialists Lose Fight.

Brainerd.—Upon the adoption of the report of the credentials committee of the State Federation of Labor convention came the first test of strength between the socialists and the other delegates. Many believed the vote would be much closer than it was, but the anti-socialists cast two votes for every one the opposition could muster.

Gustafson Funeral Held.

Fridley.—The funeral of John F. Gustafson, who died from injuries received in an accident, took place in the Swedish chapel here. Gustafson had been employed in the Swanson factory for thirty years and was highly regarded by his associates and employees, the funeral being one of the largest ever held in this town.

Posses Fail to Find Theif.

Moorhead.—A team of farm horses valued at $500 was stolen from Gust Running, a farmer residing south of the city. The team was stolen while hitched in front of a business house in the center of town. Five minutes later posses were organized and started in pursuit. No trace of the robbers could be found.

Musicians Form Organization.

Pipestone.—An organization of the musicians of Rock and Nobles counties, with jurisdiction in Pipestone county, has just been formed and the following officers elected for the ensuing year: President, Wilburton Goulde; vice president, W. C. Harris; secretary, E. J. Jones.

State "Drys" to Meet July 4.

Minneapolis.—The prohibitionists of Minnesota will celebrate the Fourth of July with a varied program on the state fair grounds. The afternoon of the Fourth the Prohibition state convention will be called into session.

Confer Degrees In Hastings.

Hastings. — About three hundred Masons from Minneapolis, St. Paul, Red Wing and other towns conferred degrees in Masonic hall, with W. N. Brown, worshipful master, in charge. Governor Eberhart was unable to attend as expected. A. M. Hayes, the Governor's private secretary, together with G. W. Vore, C. M. Stroud, W. G. Stroud, F. A. Thompson, L. A. Voight, D. M. Countryman and others from Minneapolis, all former Hastings residents were here. The delegation was served dinner.

"How," said a lawyer to a witness, "how can you possibly bear such testimony against this man who you say is your friend?"

"Sir," said the man, "he is my friend, and I love him, but I love Truth more."

"You should be ashamed," replied the lawyer, "to turn your back on a friend for one who is a perfect stranger to you."

BURNING ITCH WAS CURED

"I deem it my duty to tell about a cure that the Cuticura Soap and Ointment have made on myself. My trouble began in splotches breaking out right in the edge of my hair on the forehead, and spread over the front part of the top of my head from ear to ear, and over my ears which caused a most fearful burning itch, or eczema.

"For three years I had this terrible breaking out on my forehead and scalp. I tried our family doctor and he failed to cure it. Then I tried the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and used them for two months with the result of a complete cure. Cuticura Soap and Ointment should have the credit due, and I have advised a lot of people to use them." (Signed) C. D. Tharrington, Creek, N. C., Jan. 26, 1911.

Itching Scalp—Hair Fell Out.

"I will say that I have been suffering with an itching on my scalp for the past few years. My hair fell out in spots all over my head. My scalp started to trouble me with sores, then the sores healed up, and crusts formed on the top. Then the hair fell out and left me three bald spots the shape of a half dollar. I went to more than one doctor, but could not get any relief, so I started to use the Cuticura Remedies. I tried one bar of Cuticura Soap and some Cuticura Ointment, and felt relieved right away. Now the bald spots have disappeared, and my hair has grown, thanks to the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I highly recommend the Cuticura Remedies to all that are suffering with scalp trouble." (Signed) Samuel Stern, 236 Floyd St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 7, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

The Shorter Route.

Lady Duff-Gordon, at a luncheon at Sherry's in New York, told an anecdote apropos of the divorce evil.

"Two girls," she said, "were chatting over a cocktail and a cigarette.

"'Marriages are made in heaven,' said the first girl, and she blew a cloud of smoke into the air and regarded it with dreamy eyes.

"The second girl with a light laugh replied:

"'Yes, that is true; but, thank goodness, to unmake them we have to go only as far as Reno.'"

NERVOUS HEADACHE

And Numbness in the Hands and Arms.

This Iowa Woman Was In a Serious Condition and Her Cure Will Interest Many.

A cure of unusual interest and importance is related by Mrs. J. H. Morgan, of Correctionville, Iowa. After being a hopeless sufferer from sick headaches, she is now entirely free from attacks. She tells of her cure by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as follows:

"Some years ago I was in a terribly nervous and run-down condition and suffered greatly from nervous headaches. I was treated for three months by a specialist in Chicago, who advised me to wear glasses, but he did not help me. My head seemed as though it would burst, and I had frequent dizzy spells. I was in despair of getting well until I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and began taking them. A few boxes cured me and since then I have used them as a family medicine.

"Before the birth of my last child I suffered untold agony with pain and numbness in my hands and arms up to the shoulders. My hands were so swollen and the muscles so sore that I could hardly dress myself. For a time I could not close my left hand. During the day if I kept moving the pain did not seem to be so bad, but my hands were always numb. I again used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and found them good for this trouble also, as they entirely relieved me."

Unless properly treated sick headache is a disease of many years duration, as it occurs before the twentieth year in two-thirds of the cases and recurs with more or less regularity until the fiftieth year or later. It is usually hereditary and is probably directly caused by a defect in the process which changes the food we eat into blood. Most sufferers are troubled with obstinate constipation which makes it necessary to use a laxative.

An ideal combination treatment is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and the new laxative pills, Pinklets. This treatment is fully described in a little booklet, "The Treatment of Sick Headache," which is free on request, together with a sample of Pinklets, the little laxative pills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are for sale at all druggists, or will be mailed to any address, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Needed No More Help.

An American gentleman got acquainted with a Frenchman who was very anxious to acquire the English language. The American in order to help him said that if he would send his exercises to him he would willingly correct them.

Nothing was heard from the Frenchman for some time, but finally a letter came couched in the following choice English:

"In small time I can learn so many English from his text-book and her dictionary as I think I will come at the America and to go on the scaffold to lecture."

IOWA WOMAN WELL AGAIN

Freed From Shooting Pains, Spinal Weakness, Dizziness, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Ottumwa, Iowa.—"For years I was almost a constant sufferer from female trouble in all its dreadful forms; shooting pains all over my body, sick headache, spinal weakness, dizziness, depression, and everything that was horrid. I tried many doctors in different parts of the United States, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors. I feel it my duty to tell you these facts. My heart is full of gratitude to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my health."—Mrs. HARRIET E. WAMPLER, 524 S. Ransom Street, Ottumwa, Iowa.

Consider Well This Advice.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for nearly forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

TAFT GETS IN ON FIRST BALLOT

HAS 21 MORE THAN MAJORITY—SHERMAN HIS RUNNING MATE.

ROOSEVELT IN BOLT

Rump Convention Nominates Colonel And Plans For "Regular" Meeting Some Weeks Later.

Convention Hall, Chicago. — With nearly 350 of the Roosevelt delegates declining to vote and hastening away at adjournment time to tender to Colonel Roosevelt the nomination of a new party, the 15th Republican national convention at the end of a long and tumultuous session renominated Wm. Howard Taft of Ohio for president, and James Schoolcraft Sherman of New York vice-president.

President Taft received 561 of the 1,078 votes in the convention, or 21 more than a majority. Vice President Sherman's vote was 579.

The decision of the Roosevelt people under direction of their leader, to refrain from voting, left no other candidate near the president. The announcement of the Taft victory was greeted with cheering from his adherents and groans and hisses from the opposition.

Agreed on Sherman.

When it became absolutely certain that Mr. Taft would be nominated without great difficulty, the leaders in control of the convention decided to give him as a running mate his companion on the ticket in 1908.

All others dropped from the race and Mr. Sherman was the only candidate regularly placed before the convention. A motion from New Hampshire to make the nomination by acclimation was declared out of order. There were many scattering votes on the roll call that ensued.

William H. Taft.

The convention, amid much confusion, adjourned sine die.

At no time was there any indication of a walk-out of Roosevelt delegates. They expressed their revolt by silence. The revolt was open from the moment the permanent roll containing the names of contested delegates was approved.

A "valedictory" statement was read in behalf of Colonel Roosevelt, asking that his name be not presented and that his delegates sit in mute protest against all further proceedings.

Roosevelt Forces Divided.

A great majority of the Roosevelt delegates in the Illinois and all in the Missouri and Idaho delegations declined to follow this advice, but Colonel Roosevelt's sway over the delegations from California, Kansas, Maine, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, South Dakota and West Virginia was all but absolute.

Most of the delegates from these states announced their purpose of helping to give Roosevelt an independent nomination, at another hall later in the evening.

The split in the convention occasioned no surprise. It was but a fulfillment of predictions that had been made during the past several days.

The closing scenes of the convention were marked by counter demonstrations for President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt.

The first test vote after the announcement of the Roosevelt valedictory came on the adoption of the party platform. The affirmative vote was 666. Roosevelt delegates present and not voting numbered 343. There were 53 nays, 36 of them from the La Follette states of Wisconsin and North Dakota.

The name of Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin was placed before the convention, but Colonel Roosevelt's wishes were carried out by his followers and they remained silent during the call of the state for nominations.

COL. THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Many of the delegates, however, carried out their primary instructions and voted for the colonel.

On the voting for president the Roosevelt delegates again as a rule remained silent. The detailed vote was: Taft, 561; Roosevelt, 107; La Follette, 41; Cummins, 17; Hughes, 2; not voting, 344; absent 6.

In the confusion just before adjournment a resolution was adopted giving the national committee power to declare vacant the seat of any man on the committee refusing to support the nominees of the regular convention of 1912.

Former President Theodore Roosevelt was nominated for president on an independent ticket, in the dying hours of the Republican national convention in which he had met defeat.

The followers of Colonel Roosevelt gathered in Orchestra hall, less than a mile from the Coliseum and pledged their support to the former president.

In accepting the nomination Colonel Roosevelt appealed to the people of all sections, regardless of party affiliations, to stand with the founders of the new party, one of whose cardinal principles, he said, was to be "Thou shalt not steal."

The informal nomination of Colonel Roosevelt was said to be chiefly for the purpose of effecting a temporary organization.

Beginning with a call to be issued for a state convention in Illinois, the work of organization will be pushed forward rapidly, state by state. At a later time, probably early in August, it is intended that a national convention shall be held. Colonel Roosevelt, in accepting the nomination said he did so on the understanding that he would willingly step aside if it should be the desire of the new party, when organized, to select another standard bearer.

Prendergast Makes Speech.

The speech nominating Colonel Roosevelt was made by Comptroller William H. Prendergast of New York, who was to have presented the colonel's name to the convention.

Dean William Draper Lewis of the university of Pennsylvania law school, who was to make one of the seconding speeches, delivered the address, which he had prepared for the Republican convention.

Representatives of 22 states composed the notification committee which informed Colonel Roosevelt of his nomination, and in a sense stood as sponsors for the movement.

The committee consisted of Comptroller W. A. Prendergast of New York, Meyer Lissner of California, former Congressman Richmond Pearson of North Carolina, Frank Knox of Michigan, Matthew Hale of Massachusetts, A. R. Garford of Ohio, David Browning of Kentucky, Evard Bierer, Jr., of Utah, Walter Thompson of Vermont, Judge Oscar R. Hundley of Alabama, Judge Ben F. Lindsay of Colorado; Andrew Rahn of Minnesota, Judge Stevens of Iowa, Judge Lowder of the North Dakota, William Allen White of Kansas, John C. Greenaway of Arizona, ex-Governor John Franklin Fort of New Jersey, Col. E. C. Carrington of Maryland, Pearl Wight of Louisiana, Lorenzo D. Dow of Washington, Walter Clyde John of Illinois, and Frank Frantz of Oklahoma.

Although refusing to discuss the matter in detail, Senator Borah made it known that he would stay on the party reservation. Next to Senator Dixon of Montana, he was the leader of the Roosevelt forces in the preconvention battles. He was officially announced as the faction's choice for temporary chairman of the convention and at the last moment its strength was thrown to Governor McGovern of Wisconsin, who was defeated for the place by Senator Root. Whether this fact had anything to do with Senator Borah's change of front could not be determined.

Clothes and the Man.

A colporteur in South Carolina, walking many miles through mud, accosted a passerby and suggested the purchase of the Bible. He was refused. The next day, says the Record of Christian Work, after a night's rest and cleanup, he set up his stand in town and had the pleasure of selling a Bible to the very man who had refused to purchase the day before. "I met a muddy man yesterday with Bibles," said he, "who looked like a Methodist tramp. When I buys a Bible I buys it from a Baptist gentleman."

Be a booster—not a knocker.

Col. Roosevelt and his friends say that we shall have a new political party, and that it shall have its ticket in the field this fall. The old party papers, on both sides, are doing their best to discourage the idea, and, with almost suspicious unanimity, they claim that the progressives should play a waiting game and so, possibly, get control of one of the old parties four years hence. Their arguments would certainly appeal to the purely selfish politician, but the masses can see no good reason why they should submit to being plundered and cheated for those four years. The Republican convention has made it plain that there is little hope of the old parties ever again becoming honest, or even attaining moderation in dishonesty, so the new party will be welcomed now, and the time has passed when the voter allows the city papers to do his thinking for him.

Taft and Sherman again. Well, just hold your nose and try to forget that national un-republican convention.

There is peace and harmony in the ranks of the "regular" republican party now; there not being enough left of it to start a scrap.

This dog kicking business is liable to lead to serious results when several millions of American citizens are lined up in the class that gets the boots.

Sam Gordon has had the courage of his convictions, and has declared that, even though he be the republican nominee for governor of Minnesota, he can not and will not support the men nominated at Chicago last week. In this Sam is taking the popular course in this state where the Taft vote this year will not take long to count.

The Chicgo News, an independent newspaper, says: The Republican national convention that ended last Saturday night was unique that it showed no band wagon rush. The victor at the end was as lonely as Robinson Crusoe. He had been renominated by representatives of a minority of the republican party. He has been given a majority of the delegates by unscrupulous work on the part of the old national committee, now dead. Much of this work was so scandalously bad that it could not be condoned by the Progressives who were its victims. Most of them declined to participate in the proceedings of the convention from the moment of its permanent organization.

LOOKED LIKE SILVER COINS

Indianapolis Postal Service Has Trouble With Gold Pieces "Plated" With Metal Polish.

In the days when countertfeiters used to gild 25-cent pieces and nickels and pass them off as gold coins, there was frequently considerable trouble over a genuine coin that "was not what it seemed." In the Indianapolis postal service recently there was a little extra work on account of two gold pieces, which turned up with the appearance of silver coins. These had been taken in at the postoffice from a resident of the city, who explained that his wife had been carrying the coins—a five and a ten dollar piece—in her purse together with a small bottle of metal polish, which was principally mercury. The bottle had become broken in the purse, he explained, and the gold coin was thus "plated." The money was accepted, but was turned back on the postoffice by a bank, which refused to credit the postoffice with the money. The services of Capt. Tom Halls of the United States secret service then became necessary. The secret service man, after a visit to a drug store, brought back the coins, and Assistant Postmaster Rathbone, taking the money again, exclaimed: "Well, she looks like real government money again all right."

MAN IN HIS EARLIEST DAYS

He Was Inferior to Lowest Type of Modern Savages and Was a Cannibal.

In a concise summary of what is now known of the early history of mankind Professor Voigt has recently stated that there is no longer any doubt that man existed in Europe contemporaneously with extinct species of the elephant, mammoth, rhinoceros and hippotamus; and at the time when the Straits of Gibraltar, of Dover and the Dardanelles (as also the island of Sicily to Africa), were still united by isthmuses; when there was a sea of ice covering the whole of the low levels of North Germany and Russia, when the Sahara desert was covered with water, and Finland, Norway and Sweden was an island.

He also maintains that man, in his earliest conditions, was in a savage state, inferior even to the lowest type of modern tribes in Australia, Africa or New Guinea, and that they were cannibals, as well. The civilization of Europe he asserts to have been derived not from Asia, as generally supposed, but from Africa; the cultivated plants of even the comparatively modern period of the Swiss lake dwellings being of African, and especially of Egyptian, origin.—Harper's Monthly.

RADIUM'S WONDERFUL POWER.

Suppose that the energy of a ton of radium could be utilized in thirty years, instead of being evolved at its invariable slow rate of 1,760 years for half-disintegration, it would suffice to propel a ship of 15,000 tons, with engines of 15,000 horsepower, at the rate of 15 knots an hour for thirty years—practically the lifetime of the ship. To do this actually requires 1,500,000 tons of coal.—Sir William Ramsay in a London Address.

Big Crowd at Celebration

The 4th of July celebration at Holt was very well attended, people coming from far and near to participate and witness the many doings of the day. Never had Holt in its history had such a large crowd. Fair and cool weather helped materially to bring the crowd out and there enough of varieties of stands, lemonrde and ice-cream parlors, to make the day pass pleasantly for all.

The outdoor exercises were good but not so well attended as was expected. The speech of the day was a rousing one by Mr. Kjomme, patriotic and one long to be remembered by the ones fortunate to be there The medley of national airs sung by the Holt choir was also well rendered. In the afternoon, there were various races and horse races, all of which were strongly contested. The ball game, Holt vs New Folden, was not so spectacular as was expected. The scores and innings were uncountable and in order not to prolong the game too long, the umpire decided the same in favor of Holt. In fact, Newfolden got cold feet and refused to play, claiming as their excuse that Holt had a couple of hired players. We know of no law nor customs anywhere within the United States except Newfolden which prohibits a ball team from hiring players, in fact they had the same chance if they wanted to make use of it. This was the only part of the programme that marred the happiness of the day.

The most interesting feature of the day was a ball game, Girls vs the School Boys, the latter winning by a score of 8 to 5. The people crowded the base lines and formed a back stop entirely around the catcher so the pitcher for the girl's team at times failed to designate the rightful catcher; probably it was the similarity to the audience around altho they say it was a girl. It is a general hearsay that the first baseman was a girl but I must say that this is the first time I have seen a girl with a beard and mustache like she had. The crowds cheered strongly for the girls and think the umpire ought to have awarded the game to the girls for neatness in attire if not for actually winning the game.

The grand display of fire works in the evening with its many different kinds of colors, ear piercing skyrockets, shower of stars, wheels, was both spectacular and enjoyable. The big Bowery Dance in the evening was a decided success and the orchestra music rendered, made both youug and old, weary and lost, feel like kicking up to the moon.

In short, we must say that the celebration was a success and many thanks are due the committee for their untiring efforts in its behalf. The sense of the celebration was to make it as good as possible, invite the surrounding towns to participate and later when they celebrate we would turn out to them. It is too much work and too much of a thankjob to have a celebration like this every year at one certain place and we hope the reader will see it in the same light and turn out to whatever neighboring town has the celebration next year.

"Well, say, is there any difference between bristles and hair?"

"No."

"Then I will tell you what to do. You take that lot of tooth brushes from which you sold me one yesterday and guaranteed that the bristles would stay in, and soak them for a week or so in your 'Scalperina, or whatever it is.'"—Chicago Post.

COLORING FISHES.

Flowers can be artificially colored, we know, with more or less success by chemical agency. Animals generally escape counterfeiting, with few exceptions. The latest in counterfeiting is the carp.

In Sicily it is said that by introducing into the water chalk, iron and a little peat, colors will be imparted to the carp. After treatment in a bath of these concomitants for a fortnight the fish is given another chemically prepared bath, into which is introduced iron and tan. By increasing or diminishing the quantities the colors can be either accentuated or diminished. The process is somewhat hazardous, but we learn from a Paris contemporary that in the end an apparently new species of ornamental fish is produced, which commands a high price.—London Globe.

HITS IT AT LAST.

"What is it?"

"It's a bit of concealed mechanism that sticks a pin in a street urchin's hand when he tries to sound the squawker of an automobile."

GHOSTS EVER BOTHER YOU?

If So, Southern Negro Folks Say These Simple Precautions Will Chase 'Em.

As a part of the folklore of the negro folks the superstitions of slavery days are of great interest. The following are some of the negro's beliefs about ghosts:

To feel a hot breath of air strike you at twilight signified the nearby presence of a ghost. Should you wish to avoid him, stop and turn your coat and trousers and hat wrong side out and the spirit cannot encounter you.

If, however, he is a pugnacious sprite and approaches despite the change, turn and address him thus: "In the name of the Lord, what do you want?" Whereupon he will tell you his business upon earth, then depart and never, never trouble you again. If, on the other hand, it is a prowling ghost who crawls under the house, bumps against the floor, makes strange sounds, and whispers in the midnight hours, you have only to put in a new floor and he will do so no more.

Some ghosts are obtrusive and will not only prowl about the house, but creep in through the crack of the door in the wee small hours of the night, and, once inside, expand to vast proportions. To spare yourself any disturbance in this way, sow mustard seed all about the doorstep just before going to bed, or place a sieve on the doorstep.

Before entering, the spirit will have to count all the holes in the sieve or all the mustard seeds, and by this time daylight will come and he will have to go. As the counting for one night will not do for another you are always safe.—Southern Workman.

ALMOST FRANTIC WITH ITCHING ECZEMA

"Eight years ago I got eczema all over my hands. My fingers fairly bled and it itched until it almost drove me frantic. The eruption began with itching under the skin. It spread fast from between the fingers around the nails and all over the whole hands. I got a pair of rubber gloves in order to wash dishes. Then it spread all over the left side of my chest. A fine doctor treated the trouble two weeks, but did me no good. I cried night and day. Then I decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment but without much hope as I had gone so long. There was a marked change the second day, and so on until I was entirely cured. The Cuticura Soap we have always kept in our home, and we decided after that lesson that it is a cheap soap in price and the very best in quality. My husband will use no other soap in his shaving mug." (Signed) Mrs. G. A. Selby, Redonda Beach, Cal., Jan. 15, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

"Mug" Is Overworked Word.

The most overworked word in the Englishman's vocabulary of slang is "Mug." As a noun it may mean a face, a fool, or a student who prefers reading to sport. As a verb its meanings are still more varied. It may mean to study hard, or to strike in the face. It also means to rob or swindle, and among actors to grimace or make faces. To mug up is also, in theatrical parlance, to make up.

Finally, to mug one's self is to get drunk, the resulting condition being one of mugginess. There is more obvious sense in this last use of the word than in some of the others, for alehouses, in the eighteenth century, were commonly known as mughouses. Mug is the English equivalent of the German Zug, which Mark Twain found to mean everything. A new sense of the verb "mug" in the American slang is to photograph a face.

For Forty Years a Hermit.

Isaac Sheath, who has just died in the workhouse at the age of seventy-eight, lived the life of a hermit for nearly forty years at Newport, Isle of Wight. He occupied a mud-hut which he erected on a piece of waste land in the village of Chale, but the hut became so dilapidated that the rural district council ordered its destruction. Sheath was greatly exasperated by the council's interference, and before he left for the workhouse he burned the hut to the ground. Mice and birds had grown so accustomed to the old man and his lonely ways that they used to come and feed from his hand.—London Mail.

The New Way.

"Going to your summer cottage this year?"

"No; we've decided to stay in the city."

"But I thought you were so fond of the country!"

"We used to be, but now we prefer to stay at home, where we can get fresh milk, eggs and butter every morning."

First Religious Book in America.

The first religious book published on the American continent was printed in the City of Mexico by order of the Roman Catholic bishop there. This was the first work of any kind from movable type issued in the new world and bears date 1645. In point of collaborators the most pretentious work published on this continent is "The Catholic Church in the United States," which has six thousand different coauthors, all but a dozen of whom are actively identified in some way with the American hierarchy.

REGINA SWEPT BY CYCLONE

Half the Town Demolished—Between 400 and 500 Inhabitants Killed.

Regina, Saskatchewan.—Between 400 and 500 persons are believed to be dead, scores of others injured, and millions of dollars in property destroyed as a result of a cyclone which struck this city, cutting a wide swath, beginning at the southern and central residential sections and extending into the very heart of the business district, converting whole blocks into masses of tangled wreckage.

At the present time no complete estimate can be made of the actual number of deaths but every ambulance in the city has been working since six o'clock carrying the bodies to the hospitals which were filled to their utmost capacity early in the evening. Numbers of improvised hospitals were hastily constructed in some of the larger buildings left standing after the storm had passed.

Crowds of volunteers all over the city are assisting in the work of searching the wreckage and for hours hardly a minute went by that a dead body or the mangled form of some living victim was not uncovered. Hurrying men and women, speeding on their errands of mercy filled the streets as the night wore on, while the authorities strove to bring order out of confusion, succoring the living and to determine as best they could as to the identity and number of dead. The sweep of the storm, the worst in the history of the Canadian Northwest, was over a city which only a short time before had completed the work of decking itself in gala attire for the celebration of Dominion day. Bunting and flags covered the buildings everywhere and networks of colored electric lights were strung and ready for illumination. Through these gaily decorated streets the tornado swept and within a half-hour, Regina had been turned into a city of mourning. In the track of the storm, building after building lay in ruin, shrouded in its gay colored bunting.

Everywhere are men and women with heads and hands swathed in bandages, but all thinking of others' troubles, forgetful of their own.

It was 5 o'clock in the afternoon when the cyclone struck the city and in the history of the West, no such storm has ever been known.

Coming from the south, it dropped just a few blocks north of the southern city limits.

The Methodist and Baptist and Knox churches, all magnificent structures, were the first of the larger buildings struck.

The former went with a crash that hardly sounded above the howling of the storm and the roar of the cloudburst that accompanied the wind.

The greater part of the roof was removed from the latter structure and the storm moved on across Victoria square, removing the walls and roof from the Y. W. C. A., badly wrecking the magnificent new public library, both new this year; and passing thence to the Presbyterian church, which fared but little better than the Methodist structure.

The Y. M. C. A. was next in line, and half of the building was demolished in an instant. Three small buildings were moved from their location, some being carried across the street, and the Masonic Temple was next attacked and was almost raised.

In the next block to the west and one block farther north, the telephone exchange stood practically by itself except for a few smaller buildings.

Upon this the force of the storm had an instantaneous effect, laying the building a flat mess of wreckage, under which the girls were imprisoned for over an hour.

Up until late in the evening absolutely no attempt was made to estimate the loss of property. The work of life saving will probably be continued all day today.

Except where it is necessary for the rescue of bodies, the ruins was left lying where they fell.

One of the best of the effects of the storm can be had from Lorne street, looking south. Hardly a residence is left standing on this street. Facing on Victoria square are the Methodist, Baptist, and Presbyterian churches, all of which are ruined and the Y. W. C. A., the new public library, and several smaller buildings are practically destroyed.

The C. P. R. railway yards are a flat expanse of ruined shops and trains. Hardly a car remains whole. Several were picked up bodily and carried distances in the air and one was hurled through the freight sheds.

The whole north side of the city is practically wiped out.

No one knows how many are dead on this side of the city.

A canoe was carried from Wascana lake, a distance of three quarters of a mile, to Victoria park, and dropped there. Others, together with Dinghies and even small sailing vessels, lie strewn over the southern section of the city at distances varying up to half a mile from the lake.

The cupola of the Baptist church was dropped in the middle of a street three blocks away.

The electricians have been wandering through the devasted section cutting live wires. Power came on about 9 o'clock, after being off since the storm.

Husbands are hunting for wives, mothers for their children, men stop from time to time in their work of rescue to ask acquaintances passing for news of friends and relatives.

Many families were separated at the time of the storm, as the day was a hot one, and some sought comfort in the parks, while others remained at home.

Numbers were out on the waters of Wascana lake. Five are known to be drowned, failing to reach the shores in time. Every house in the city that is standing has been thrown open to the homeless.

One of the large grain elevators was picked up and thrown a distance of 50 feet from its foundation, falling on a freight train of goods and cattle cars.

One house barely on the edge of the storm was picked off its foundation and settled squarely on the vacated site.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.
In this age of research and experiment, all nature is ransacked by the scientist for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides in the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine is that of Therapion, which has been used with great success in French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists, that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say, miraculous cures, should send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. Le Clerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether the New French Remedy "THERAPION" No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 is what they require and have been seeking in vain during a life of misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness. Therapion is sold by druggists or mail $1.00. Fougera Co., 90 Beekman St., New York.

"Circumstances alter cases even in human nature."

"Yes. Take Jorkins, for instance. He's one of those grandiose Chesterfields who would give up his seat in a lifeboat to a woman; and then make an attempt to lead the saloon orchestra in 'Nearer, My God, to Thee' as the ship sinks."

"I see. On land, Jorkins is the fellow at six o'clock who horns through the women and children and gets a window seat in his homebound street car."

DUBIOUS
About What Her Husband Would Say.

A Mich. woman tried Postum because coffee disagreed with her and her husband. Tea is just as harmful as coffee because it contains caffeine—the same drug found in coffee. She writes:

"My husband was sick for three years with catarrh of the bladder, and palpitation of the heart, caused by coffee. Was unable to work at all, and in bed part of the time.

"I had stomach trouble, was weak and fretful so I could not attend to my housework—both of us using coffee all the time and not realising it was harmful.

"One morning the grocer's wife said she believed coffee was the cause of our trouble and advised Postum. I took it home rather dubious what my husband would say—he was fond of coffee.

"But I took coffee right off the table and we haven't used a cup of it since. You should have seen the change in us, and now my husband never complains of heart palpitation any more. My stomach trouble went away in two weeks after I began Postum. My children love it, and it does them good, which can't be said of coffee.

"A lady visited us who was usually half sick. I told her I'd make her a cup of Postum. She said it was tasteless stuff, but she watched me make it, boiling it thoroughly for 15 minutes, and when done, she said it was splendid. Long boiling brings out the flavor and food quality." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

DREADED ATAXIA
What Active Treatment With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Accomplished in a Recent Case.

Mr. Francis M. Poole, a harness maker, of Garvin, Lyon Co., Minn., says: "My illness started in 1902, with sharp pains all through my limbs. At first I thought it was rheumatism but the pains kept getting more and more severe and I grew steadily worse. Later a numbness came over my feet. It gradually extended up my legs to my spine and waist. By this time I had lost all control of my legs. Next my bladder and bowels were affected and I lost all control of them. At this stage of the disease I was perfectly helpless and from November, 1905, to April, 1906, I was confined to the bed. My memory was so affected that I thought I would lose my mind. I looked just like a dead person. My lips and finger nails were blue. I suffered with terrible sharp, shooting pains and could get relief only from the use of morphine.

"I was treated by five St. Paul doctors. All of them pronounced my case locomotor ataxia. One said I could not live a year and another told my wife all he could do for me was to give medicine to relieve the pain. I was discouraged and, when my brother-in-law urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, I did so willingly for he had read of their curing a case similar to mine. I started to take the pills in March, 1906, while I was still confined to bed. I took several boxes when I felt a slight change for the better and had a healthier look. I was finally able to go to the country but kept on with the treatment. The bluish color left my lips and my eyes became brighter. I took the pills a long time and the next spring in May I could walk around. In June I went to work although still weak. I kept on gaining and am now working without the return of a symptom of my former trouble and without losing a days' work. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People absolutely cured me and I want all fellow sufferers to know of my wonderful recovery."

Those who are interested in the treatment which cured this case should have our booklet, "Diseases of the Nervous System," which will be sent to every nervous sufferer upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50 by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

26 BALLOTS CAST WITHOUT ANY RESULT

No Way Seen to Break the Deadlock.

New Jerseyite's Vote Run to 407½—Missourian Drops to 436½—Dark Horse.

Clark, at Baltimore, Attacks Bryan.

Speaker Goes to Baltimore and Demands Retraction of Tammany Charge.

Baltimore, Md.—With Governor Woodrow Wilson gaining on each ballot and Speaker Champ Clark constantly losing ground in the race for the presidential nomination, the Democratic national convention at 11:05 o'clock Saturday night adjourned until Monday at 11 o'clock.

Twenty-six ballots had been taken since the first call of the states and there was no hope of a final verdict. It is against all political precedent for a national convention to sit on Sunday, but that day was a day of important conferences among the party leaders and a day of hard work for the campaign managers.

The ballot Saturday ran from the thirteenth to the twenty-sixth. Wilson began at 356 and ended at 407½, a net gain during the day of 51 votes. Speaker Clark began at 554 and fell to 463½, a loss of 91 votes. The anti-Clark leaders in the convention called attention to the fact that this almost exactly offset the 90 votes given to Clark by the New York delegation. Breaks to Governor Wilson were coming from many different delegations as the balloting closed. His managers believed that once he had overtaken Speaker Clark the switching of delegates would be complete. The Clark forces made a desperate effort Sunday to win back some of the delegates lost Sunday and in this they had the personal direction of the speaker himself.

WOODROW WILSON.

The Wilson forces, in the meantime, were fighting not only to hold their gains of yesterday, but to induce more to desert the other candidates.

Senator Stone of Missouri made a motion to eliminate the candidate receiving the lowest number of votes on each succeeding ballot after the twenty-seventh, until only one—the winner—was left in the race. There was a storm of objection and the subject was pressed no further.

The Harmon delegates from Ohio threw their support to Speaker Clark on several ballots, but they did not materially help him toward the necessary two-thirds vote because of the gradual inroads made by Wilson. They then changed back to Harmon and remained there until the last ballot of the evening.

The dark horse attempt was made when Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston cast 34 of the state's 36 votes for Eugene Noble Foss, governor of the state. The convention was not in a compromise mood and Fitzgerald was denied the five minutes he asked, on unanimous consent, although it was known that he wanted to place the name of Foss formally before the convention.

Foss stretched the 34 votes start Massachusetts had given him into 43 and held it there, but could get no further.

And so the convention was left.

Bryan is a factor that no one can reckon on. Bryan has sprung an average of one sensation a day since the convention started in.

Speaker Champ Clark broke with William Jennings Bryan, Sunday. Hastening over from Washington, intending personally to denounce the Nebraskan in the convention for Bryan's charge that Clark had "dealt" with Tammany to obtain the presidential nomination Clark arrived here to find the session adjourned. He conferred with his lieutenants and issued a statement demanding that Bryan retract the aspersion that Clark had entered into an alliance with the privilege-seeking interests. The statement is as follows:

Saturday in the national convention an outrageous aspersion was cast upon me and through me upon the democratic party by one who, of all men ought to be the last to besmudge or betray his friends or his party.

"So far as I am personally concerned, it is enough to say that the charge which reflects upon my personal or party integrity is utterly and absolutely false. I might afford to forget myself, but I am by the choice of the democratic majority of the house of representatives, the ranking official democrat in national public life. I cannot be false or corrupt without reflecting upon my party in the most serious way.

"Any man who enters into an alliance with any selfish interest or privileged class of this country to gain the nomination for the presidency is unworthy of the presidency and the speakership of the house. I have not entered into such an alliance and the democrat, however distinguished, who charges me with this act, is a traitor to the democratic party and to his professed friendship for me.

"I am not here to plead for a nomination or to defend any man's political action. I ask no undue consideration from any man, be he friend or foe, but I demand exact justice from every democrat either in this convention or throughout the nation.

"With William J. Bryan and his charge made in the convention, the issue is proof or retraction. I shall expect to meet that issue.

—"Champ Clark."

Among those present at the conference were Chairman Ollie M. James of Kentucky, former Governor David R. Francis of Missouri, Clark's floor leader at the convention; Senator Stone of Missouri, William H. Hearst, John Temple Graves, Representative Scott Ferris of Oklahoma, Delegate McGuire of California and Senator Reed of Missouri, who nominated the speaker.

Baltimore, —Bristling with Democratic Progressivism, the platform on which the Democratic party will stand during the approaching campaign was completed by the committee on resolutions and awaits only the approval of the presidential nominee to be presented to the convention.

The document is the result of 48 hours of deliberation on the part of the committee.

It is an almost entirely new document, although the recommendations of the New York delegation were followed in many particulars.

From the first to last the committee's deliberations were characterized by harmony. The unanimous demand was for the most pronounced declarations in favor of Progressive policies all along the line and the only difference of opinion arose over the best methods of expressing them. The result is a platform of generally advanced views, although many of them are less radical than the party declarations of other years.

The document covers subjects of importance which has been the subject of party discussion during the last four years. None of them are elaborately presented, but the large number of subjects renders it voluminous.

Members of the committee express general satisfaction with the outcome of their vote, and Mr. Bryan, who took a most active part in framing the paper, made the prediction that it would arouse the disapproval of not to exceed a dozen members of the convention.

Under the new rule adopted, the platform will not be presented to the convention until after the nomination of the candidates.

Its submission will follow the selection of a vice presidential candidate.

Same of its latient points are:

Favors immediate downward revision of present duties, especially upon necessities of life. Also favors gradual reduction so as not to interfere with or destroy legitimate industries. Denounces President Taft for vetoing tariff bill of last congress.

Condemns Republican party "for failure to redeem its promises of 1908 for downward revision."

Takes issue with the Republican platform as to the high cost of living, contending it is largely due to high tariff laws.

Favors vigorous enforcement of the criminal features of the anti-trust law. Demands such additional legislation as may be necessary to crush private monopoly. Favors prohibition of holding companies, interlocking directors, stock watering, etc.

Denounces as "usurpation" the efforts of Republicans to deprive states of their rights and to enlarge powers of the federal government.

"There is," says the platform, "no twilight seen between the nation and the state in which exploiting interests can take refuge from both."

Urges support of proposed constitutional amendments pending in various states' legislatures, providing for an income tax and election of United States senators by direct vote of the people. As justification of the demands of the party for publicity of campaign expenditures attention is directed "to the enormous expenditures of money in behalf of the president and predecessor in the recent presidential contest."

Declares for presidential preference primaries. Directs national committee to provide for election at primaries of members of national committee.

Pledges party to enactment of law prohibiting campaign contributions by corporations and unreasonable campaign contributions by individuals.

Favors single presidential term and making president ineligible to re-election.

Favors efficient supervision and rate regulation of railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines and a valuation of these companies by the interstate commerce commission, and also legislation against overissuance of stocks of these corporations.

In connection with a demand for such a revision of the banking laws as will give temporary relief in case of financial distress, there is a denunciation of the Aldrich bill prepared by the monetary commission. The present method of depositing government funds is condemned, and the party is pledged to the enactment of a law for the deposit of such funds by competitive bidding in state or national banks without discrimination as to locality.

Pledges party to enactment of legislation to prevent devastation of lower Mississippi valley by floods and the control of the Mississippi is declared to be a national rather than a state problem. The maintenance of a navigable channel is also recommended.

Favors national aid regarding post roads.

Favors encouragement of agriculture and legislation to suppress gambling in agricultural products.

Believes in fostering growth of a merchant marine and urges speedy enactment of laws for greater security of life and property at sea.

Favors reorganization of the civil service and says laws should be honestly and rigidly enforced.

Demands for Alaska full enjoyment of rights and privileges of territorial American citizenship at home and abroad."

Favors such encouragement as can be properly given Panama canal exposition.

Renews declaration of last platform regarding generous pension policy.

The conclusion of the platform says: "Our platform is out of principles which we believe to be essential to our national welfare," and invites cooperation of "all citizens who believe in maintaining unimpaired the institutions and traditions of our country."

Woman Fatally Shot in Riot.

Yonkers, New York.—One woman was shot dead and four others were wounded when several hundred strikers attacked strikebreakers outside the plant of the National Conduit and Cable company of Hastings. The situation became so acute Sheriff Doyle summoned all his deputies for strike duty and swore in an auxiliary force of 25 more. The company was compelled to shut down its entire plant and there are now 2,000 employes out. Of these, 1,500 are strikers.

Cure-All Poured Into Sewer.

Washington, July 1.—The department of agriculture, through the pure food board has just put the ban on a remarkable remedy. The product was a "healing balsam," manufactured in New York. Chemists at the bureau discovered that this astounding discovery which would "cure" almost every disease in medical books, was composed of a plain balsam mixture, with rosin added apparently to cheapen the solution. The "cure" was poured down a sewer.

Two Die in Louisville Fire.

Louisville, Kentucky.—Two persons were killed and three seriously hurt in a fire that attacked a second floor dormitory in a business building here. One of the victims was a homeless woman. She appealed at the dormitory for shelter. It was given. This morning her charred body was found in the kitchen of the burned apartment. The other person cremated was Cromey Van Nort, a chauffeur. Of the three injured, Charles Rogers, a newspaper man, is not expected to survive.

Jack—She's the only one the other girls refer to as a "designing creature."

Rather an Open Secret.

A very important citizen was drawn on a jury, a week or two ago, and I met him after he had been discharged. He seemed to think that he was entitled to be on the bench, at the very least.

"'What was your verdict in that case?" I asked.

"'The defendant was unanimously acquitted on the first ballot.'

"'Indeed? And how did you vote?'

"'That, sir, is one of the sacred secrets of the juryroom.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Be a booster—not a knocker.

Sam Y. Gorden is the only candidate who has filed, so far, for the Republican nomination for governor. He filed on Saturday last and at the same time issued a statement defying the other candidates, including Governor Eberhart, to express their attitude as to the national ticket and the actiou of the Minnesota delegation in the convention at Chicago. The others have nothing to say on these questions, and the people may get the idea that Sam is the only one not tied and branded by the old machine.

Woodrow Wilson can thank Theodore Roosevelt and the "third party" effort for his nomination as the Democratic candidate for president. Wall Street and the special interests had the democratic organization pretty nearly as well in hand as they had the Republican, but their delegates at Baltimore did not dare to insult the people again with the kind of a deal that was given at Chicago.

The amount of pensions paid by the government for the fiscal year just closed totals about three and one-half millions less than the previous year. This, in spite of the material increase granted to a lot of those drawing pensions. It is nearly a half a century since the civil war ended and the pension figures tell the story of the passing of the veterans.

The Baltimore convention was pretty nearly as bad as the one recently pulled off at Chicago. Some kind of a showing had to be made in order to draw public attention to the doings of the Democrats, and give their candidate a fair share of advertising.

HOW TO ACQUIRE JUNO FORM

Dr. Sargent Tells Women to Try Hard Housework If They Desire Graceful Figures.

Women who wish to be beautiful, particularly those desirous of reducing their "plump proportions" to graceful lines, are recommended by Dr. Sargent, director of the Harvard gymnasium, to try housework. Sweeping, kneading bread and doing one's own washing, he says, will transform women into "the ideal Juno type," while if they will only get down on their hands and knees and scrub the floor they will adopt the best possible methods of straightening the spine and developing the chest.

What a portrait gallery of Junos was lost to American art by the neglect of painters to seek their models in western or New England farm houses or in the Dutch kitchens of New Amsterdam, exclaims the New York World. And what opportunities are overlooked by modern artists in office buildings and hotels! It illustrates the perversity of the sex that with this simple and natural means of becoming beautiful available to all women, they reject it for more artificial methods.

Possibly women do not now aspire to become Junos. It was not to Juno that Paris awarded the prize for beauty, and incidentally Charles Frohman is quoted in a London interview as saying that "the big, tall girl has passed from musical comedy" into the ranks of the suffragists. Doubtless parading and speechmaking for the cause, as well as golf and athletic sports, are more popular aids to physical development than sweeping and scrubbing. And anyway, what does a professor at a man's college know about such things? Does Dr. Sargent recommend plowing and rail splitting to Harvard students as methods of becoming Apollos?

THREE LETTERS A MINUTE

That Was the Best Speed of the Semaphore Telegraph of the Days of the French Revolution.

Signal fire telegraphing, with its very limited scope of information contained, seems to have been about the only means of communicating quickly across distance until relatively modern times.

It was not until the days of the French revolution that any material improvement over the beacon fire telegraph developed. Three brothers named Chappe devised the semaphore telegraph. This system got into active operation in 1794, and the first real message ever spelled out and telegraphed across country was in that year, and the text was as follows:

"Conde is taken from the Austrians."

The same day the national convention, sitting in Paris, sent back the following reply to the army:

"The Army of the North deserves the gratitude of the country."

The semaphore operators attained a speed of three letters a minute in fine weather, with an average of one a minute over long distance. This made necessary the invention of condensed codes, which came into fashion.—New York Telephone Review.

INVENTORY OF WATER.

The first inventory ever taken of the water powers of Canada has been completed by the commission of conservation, whose investigations extended over a period of two years. It is estimated that in 1910 1,016,521 units of horsepower were developed from water power in Canada, 742,000 for electrical energy, and the rest for grist mill and pulp and paper mill uses, and the full resources of the country have scarcely been tapped. The Hon. Clifford Sifton, chairman of the conservation commission, has stated that Canada possesses nearly one-half of the total available water powers of the globe.

R. W. Fairbanks was up from St. Hilaire on Wednesday and went out to take a look at the prairie lands in the Mud Kake region with a view to doing some breaking there this summer with a light gasoline outfit which he owns, and which is peculiarly adapted for that kind of breaking. See his "ads" in this issue.

Clarence Kolden is a firm believer in simple and hygienic life, and is also a very modest young man. Consequently he did not sleep much on the night of the Fourth as he discovered, when he wanted to retire, that his tent had been confiscaaed by a bunch of young ladies from Thief Lake who had grown weary from the strenuous enjoyment of the day and had piled in four deep in a space not intended to accomodate more than two at a time.

Duluth Men are Coming

About 100 Duluth business men, representatives of various commercial interests at the Head of the Lakes, will arrive in Holt next Wednesday, the 17th inst., at 4:25 o'clock and make a stop of 10 minutes to exchange greetings with the people here. They are traveling in a special train over the Great Northern and are accompanied by the famous Third Regimemt band. These people do not come to be entertained but simply in a spirit of good fellowship, looking towards the establishment of closer business relations. The people of Holt should turn out to meet these boosters and should do a little boosting for Holt and its territory when they come.

There is little danger that the Duluth party will act like the recent visitors from Minneapolis, who sent us all invitations to meet them and then ran through the town at a speed in defiance of all custom and reason for this line of road.

Warroad has a Candidate

The City of Warroad will probably have a representative in the legislature next year and their candidate deserves to win. Their choice has fallen on their mayor, Paul Marschalk, and they propose to hand him the plum as a token of their faith in his ability. While he was out of town a few days ago the citizens held a mass meeting and decided that he should become a candidate for the legislature. As a guarantee of their sincerity they raised a campaign fund of nearly $300 and appointed a committee to assist in the campaign, in case Mr. Marschalk should decide to run. If he files it will be to take the place of G. H. Mattson, who is a candidate for Secretary of State. Mr. Marschalk, being very much the kind of man the Warroad people think he is, will undoubtedly file and be elected.

Violent Electric Storms

On Sunday evening and Monday night this vicinity was visited by severe electric storms. In some places considerable damage was done growing grain by hail, but a high wind and heavy rain without hail was the general rule over the entire eastern portion of the county. Lightning and wind both did some damage in a good many instances, but damage by hail seems to have been confined to a strip of country, about 5 miles north of here, where the grain crop is said to have been injured about one third.

Feels Sore at Holt Players

Newfolden, Minn.,
July 7th, 1912.

To The Northern Light,
Holt, Minnesota.

Mr. Editor:—I read the account of your celebration of our Nation's Birthday at Holt and was surprised at your comments on the Newfolden ball team. I wish you would place this matter before your subcribers in its true light. I have it from undisputed authority, also from your own acknowledgement, that your team hired some ball players contrary to a distinct understanding between Holt and Newfolden that they were to play their own home teams and not to hire any outside players. Now let me give Holt and all other ball teams a little good advice to stand by their agreements and play their home teams when such an agreement is entered into, as it will make a better team of their own, and the boys will take hold with a will in their practise games as they will always know when a game is to be played with a visiting team that they are to be in it. Now Mr. Ed, as to cold feet, it showed that your manager had no confidence in his own team and had to go to outside teams to get boys that could play ball; and if Holt ever had a chance to win with hands down, it was on July 4th, 1912, as the main spoke in the Newfolden team was gone to Strandquist to take care of his little darling, and they had to take the catcher from the second nine to fill his place. You see what Holt missed by not acting square.

Yours respectfully,
S. C. Ormiston.

On close inquiry, we are unable to find anyone here who ever made any agreement with the Newfolden team as to the hiring of outside players, and we are of the opinion that Mr. Ormiston sent in the above letter mainly as an excuse for handing the "main spoke in the Newfolden team" a nice little "jolly."—Ed.

FILLING THE WASTE PLACES.

Some people worry over the possible depletion of forests and mines, an exhaustion so absolute that they fear that the world in A. D. 2212 will have neither coal, gold, iron nor wood. But coal came for fuel ages before the expected disappearance of the forests, and cement and steel came to the service of builders. As flax has largely given way to cotton, so rice and other cereals could replace wheat. When coal and iron begin to fail men will long have been employing the heat of the sun for warming their homes and water for generating power and electricity for manufacturing and propulsion.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Mrs. Anne Hibbard of Tompkins Corners, New York, fell and fractured her skull in attempting to hang up a picture of Colonel Roosevelt.

Colonel Roosevelt paused in the middle of a conference with his leaders long enough to thank Mrs. W. A. Davis for attempting to stampede the convention in an effort to get his name in nomination.

HIGH COST THE COMING ISSUE

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE FOR PRESIDENT ALSO DECLARES THAT TARIFF IS VITAL.

WILSON NOTIFICATION.

Governor Will be Formally Informed of Nomination Aug. 7—Refuses to Take Issue With Critics.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 9. — Governor Woodrow Wilson and Senator-elect Ollie James of Kentucky, who was permanent chairman of the Baltimore convention, have decided to have the governor formally notified of his nomination on the lawn of New Jersey's "Little White House" here at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of Wednesday, Aug. 7.

Mr. James came up from Washington and had a long talk with the nominee, during which he was requested to name as late a day as possible to afford Governor Wilson to catch up with his correspondence, now some 10,000 letters and telegrams behind. The speech of notification will be short and the governor's reply will sound the keynote of the campaign.

Mr. Wilson let it be known that he would deal with the high cost of living and the tariff which he regards as the leading issues. He will include reference to other planks of the platform also. Until that time, however, he will have little to say in reply to criticisms of the platform by Theodore Roosevelt or anybody else. His speech of acceptance, which he will shortly begin to draft, will be his first public comment, he declared, upon the party platform.

Every attempt to induce Governor Wilson to take issue with any critics of his failed. He discussed the high cost of living as an issue, saying that he regarded it as the leading issue, with the tariff at the heart of it, but declined to comment upon Colonel Roosevelt's utterances.

Mr. James went to New York intending later to leave for Washington, where he will write members of the notification committee of the date set for formally apprising Governor Wilson of his nomination. The committee will meet, he said, at the Imperial hotel in New York on the morning of August 7 and come in a body to Sea Girt.

AIRMAN FALLS ON TENT.

Grand Forks Aviator Miraculously Escapes Death.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 8.—Fred Harlem, aviator of Grand Forks, who had a narrow escape from death at Plentywood, Mont., is now in St. Michael's hospital in this city recuperating from a fifty-foot fall in the Montana town. Harlem had made an ascent of about a mile in the afternoon and when landing on the ground, smashed several parts of the aeroplane. The machine was not repaired until after 8 o'clock in the evening and then the Grand Forks airman soared away in the semi-gloom.

On this flight Harlem flew about ten miles and was making a wide circle to return to the starting point and make his landing. Across the town from the aviation field is a network of phone wires stretching to the nearby hills and, coming at a rate of sixty miles an hour Harlem's aeroplane struck these wires, snapping them off clean and overturned the fachine.

The jar and overturning of the aeroplane threw Harlem fully fifty feet from the machine, and for a few seconds it looked as though another would be added to the list of air fatalities, but Harlem fell squarely upon a camper's tent missing the main pole by a very few inches. He rebounded from the canvas, turned over several times and was knocked unconscious when he hit the ground.

Woods Prey of Flames.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 9.—The forest fires in the vicinity of Shell Drake, which it was thought were under control, have broken out afresh and a vast area of timber lands is burning or is in danger of destruction. The course of the fire reaches twelve miles. The last reports were that the flames were within a mile and a half of the village. Camp No. 1, the headquarters of a force of sixty men, has been wiped out.

Steamer Rams Battleship.

Newport R. I., July 9.—While steaming slowly through a dense fog in Narrangansett bay, the Fall River line steamer Commonwealth rammed the battleship New Hampshire near the Newport naval training station. Both ships sustained considerable damage but no fatalities or injuries resulted.

Earth Quake Shock in Kansas.

Lawrence, Kan., July 9. — Heavy earthquake shocks of 70 minutes duration were recorded on the seismograph at the University of Kansas, beginning at 1:15 o'clock. The center of the disturbance was estimated at 3,800 miles distant.

Hastings, Minn., July 9.—A party of young people from St. Mary's Point were precipitated into the river here when a spark from the carburetor set the launch on fire. The occupants were safely rescued.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

How Mrs. Bethune was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo. — "For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I had cramps, backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband's told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do all my own housework, work in the garden and entertain company and enjoy them, and can walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the week. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl, and tell them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it?

Some men find it cheaper to stay married than to pay alimony.

GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP

No Medicine So Beneficial to Brain and Nerves.

Lying awake nights makes it hard to keep awake and do things in day time. To take "tonics and stimulants" under such circumstances is like setting the house on fire to see if you can put it out.

The right kind of food promotes refreshing sleep at night and a wide awake individual during the day.

A lady changed from her old way of eating Grape-Nuts, and says:

"For about three years I had been a great sufferer from indigestion. After trying several kinds of medicine, the doctor would ask me to drop off potatoes, then meat, and so on, but in a few days that craving, gnawing feeling would start up, and I would vomit everything I ate and drank.

"When I started on Grape-Nuts, vomiting stopped, and the bloated feeling which was so distressing disappeared entirely.

"My mother was very much bothered with diarrhoea before commencing the Grape-Nuts, because her stomach was so weak she could not digest her food. Since using Grape-Nuts food she is well, and says she don't think she could do without it.

"It is a great brain restorer and nerve builder, for I can sleep as sound and undisturbed after a supper of Grape-Nuts as in the old days when I could not realize what they meant by a 'bad stomach.' There is no medicine so beneficial to nerves and brain as a good night's sleep, such as you can enjoy after eating Grape-Nuts."

3 LIVES LOST IN COLLISION

GROVE CITY PARTY IS STRUCK BY G. N. ENGINE.

Mrs. Swan Hawkinson, Her Granddaughter, and Nels Nelson Are Victims.

Litchfield, Minn., July 9.—Three persons were instantly killed, a fourth probably fatally injured, while two others had a miraculous escape from death when Great Northern train No. 4, east bound, struck the automobile in which they were riding at a cross- Mrs. Swan Hawkinson, Grove City;

THE DEAD.

Mrs. Swan Hawkinson, Groce City; Rosella Hawkinson, 5 years old, her granddaughter; Nels Nelson, Grove City farmer, owner and driver of the automobile.

THE INJURED.

Mrs. N. E. Hawkinson, Grive City, seriously bruised, crushed and probably internally injured, may not live. Taken to Robertson hospital at Litchfield.

As far as could be learned, the Hawkinson family had been out riding with Nelson, and were on their way home in Grove City when the fatal accident occurred. The automobile was going along at a good rate of speed, it is believed, and the party were on the Great Northern tracks in the path of the onrushing engine before they were aware of it.

N. E. Hawkinson and his young son had a miraculous escape from sharing the fate of the others in the machine. When Mr. Hawkinson saw the engine approaching, he seized the boy and jumped from the automobile out of the path of the engine. Both he and the boy escaped uninjured.

The engineer of the Great Northern train said that he did not see the automobile and its occupants until within 30 feet of them.

7 ARE LOST IN WATERS.

Three Drown at Duluth—St. Paul and Stillwater Victims.

St. Paul, July 9.—Seven lives were lost by drowning in Minnesota waters Sunday. Of the six, one occured in St. Paul, two near Stillwater, and three at Duluth. The victims were:

Chester Root, 21 years old, 617 Fuller avenue, Stillwater, drowned while trying to save his companion, Joseph L. Waters, 19 years old, Stillwater, seized with cramps while diving from a rowboat in Square lake. Arthur Dolan, 21 years old, 745 Carroll Street, St. Paul, waded beyond his depth in the Mississippi river. Pohn Renauld, 20 years old, Duluth, drowned in Duluth harbor while trying to learn to swim. Mabel Sanders, 19 years old, Duluth, drowned when a rowboat capsized in a small lake at a summer resort. Josephine Sanders, 20 years old, Duluth, also drowned when the rowboat capsized. Wellet Senlen, 28 years old, Great Northern steel worker, drowned while swimming in Red River, at Moorhead. He came from Johnston, Pa.

"Drys" Will Meet Wednesday.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 9.— The national prohibition convention with nearly 1,000 delegates in attendance, will open in this city Wednesday. In addition to the issue of Prohibition the convention expects to consider the question of woman suffrage and the initiative, referendum and recall as platform planks. National Chairman Charles R. Jones will have several opponents when he asks for reelection, one of the most formidable spoken being W. G. Calderwood, of Minneapolis, secretary of the committee.

Troubles in Educators' Ranks.

Chicago, July 9.—Charges of irregularities in the granting of membership in the National Education association and of discourtesy in replying to complaints will be preferred against Secretary Irwin Shepard at the meeting of the board of directors. The charge will be the first step in a campaign to oust Secretary Shepard. Secretary Shepard, and his aids, are charged with alleged refusal to allow Chicago teachers to take out active memeberships in the name of their schools.

REGULATING THE STOMACH

That Important Organ Works According to the Quality of the Blood That Is Furnished to It.

There is the most intimate relation between the condition of the blood and the activity of the stomach. The blood depends upon the stomach for a large part of its nourishment; while every act of digestion, from the time the food enters the stomach until it is digested and assimilated by the blood, needs plenty of pure, well-oxidized blood. The stomach works only according to the quality of the blood.

The most common cause of indigestion is anæmia, or lack of blood. Indeed there is not a single disturbance of the health of the body nor any form of exhaustion or lowered vitality, that may not lead to stomach trouble. Disordered blood is the one common cause of indigestion. Thin, impure blood weakens the muscles of the stomach and lessens the product of the glands which furnish the digestive fluids.

Nothing will more promptly cure indigestion than plenty of pure, well-oxidized blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People increase the red corpuscles, the oxygen-carriers of the blood, until the blood is rich and red. A thorough trial of these pills gives a hearty appetite, perfect digestion, strength and health.

Mrs. Emma M. Mayne, of No. 635 Second avenue, Clinton, Iowa, says: "I had just worked myself out bringing up a family of five children and, while in this run-down condition, I took sick with some kind of stomach trouble. I doctored with several physicians and saw a specialist in Chicago but received little help. I could not eat anything with relish and could not sleep. I would have deathly sick spells and would vomit. I had terrible headaches and dizzy spells. I got very thin and my friends thought I was going into consumption. I doctored for a year or so without help. While visiting a niece she told me that she took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, so I tried them. They soon helped me and a few boxes entirely cured me."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50c. per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Willing to Oblige.

A story comes from a town where firms advertise to sell fish direct to small purchasers. The glowing advertisements asked for the sending of half a dollar with a list of the varieties of fish preferred. One letter read:

"I want two salmon, a dozen whiting, a dozen fresh herring, some flounders, and if you have them you can add a lobster."

The next day the lady received a letter which ran:

"Dear Madam: Please send another dime, and we will forward the fisherman."—Dallas News.

SKIN ERUPTION ON CHEEK

Kingsley, Mich.—"Last May my thirteen-months-old baby had a sore come on her cheek. It started in four or five small pimples and in two or three hours' time spread to the size of a silver dollar. It spread to her eye. Then water would run from the pimples and wherever that touched it caused more sores until nearly all one cheek and up her nostrils were one solid sore. She was very fretful. She certainly was a terrible looking child, and nothing seemed to be of any use.

"Then I got some Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. She tried to rub off everything we put on so that we would sit and hold her hands for two hours at a time, trying to give the medicine a chance to help her, but after I washed it with Cuticura Soap and then put on the Cuticura Ointment they seemed to soothe her and she did not try to rub them off. It was only a few days before her face was all healed up, and there has been no return of the trouble since. We thought that baby's face would surely be scarred, but it is not." (Signed) Mrs. W. J. Cleland, Jan. 5, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

Her Special Advantages.

James Fullerton Muirhead in his book, "The Land of Contrasts," tells of an American girl who was patronizingly praised by an Englishman for the purity of her English and who replied: "Well, I had special advantages, inasmuch as an English missionary was stationed near our tribe."

TRADE HEALTH IS GOOD

Report Shows Minnesota Leading Healthy Group.

Minneapolis. — The business health of Minnesota during the first six months of 1912, as attested by commercial mortality, was very good, and in the semi-annual summary showing the number of business failures during that period Minnesota appears in such comparison as to indicate great stability and sound fundamentals. The group of states of which Minnesota is a part led the country in the decrease shown and Minnesota led the group. For the first six months of 1911 the liabilities of Minnesota concerns that failed or were embarrassed totaled $3,815,276, which was a small total considering the many thousands of business enterprises in state and the enormous capital represented. But this year the total liabilities for the first six months are only $1,512,035.

Of eight groupings of states, in the report of R. G. Dun & Co., the central west group, which includes Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas, makes the best comparison, with total liabilities of $7,397,645, compared with $9,975,733 a year ago. Montana, where Minneapolis trade is of increasing importance, had only $171,264 in liabilities, compared with $531,518 a year ago.

FARMERS BUY ELEVATOR

Newly Organized Company Will Engage in Business at Dotson.

Comfrey. — The recently organized Farmers' Elevator company has purchased the Bingham Bros.' elevator at Dotson. The farmers will buy grain and livestock and sell wood and coal. The officers are John Schultz, president; J. L. Farrell, secretary, F. Bigot, treasurer.

The club hall, recently built by the Farmers' club of Stately township, was dedicated. It was the occasion for a picnic which was attended by about a thousand people. John A. Larson, assistant secretary of state, delivered an address and there were songs, recitations and amusements. The festivities closed with a ball.

At the annual meeting of the Comfrey Rural Telephone company, the following officers were elected: President, Andrew Steinmetz; vice president, Oscar Thor; treasurer, Oscar Erickson; secretary C. M. Erickson. The company declared a dividend of 15 per cent.

The Luther league of St. James district closed a three-day session Monday evening. The convention was largely attended. Officers elected for the year are: Rev. C. W. Samuelson, West Sveadah, president; Rev. H. Ardahl, Balaton, vice president.

TRAIN HITS AN AUTO.

St. Cloud Woman Victim of Accident in North Dakota.

St. Cloud. — Mrs. Harry H. Dyer was instantly killed, her daughter, Nellie, seriously injured and her husband, who is part owner of the St. Cloud Iron works in this city, was badly hurt when the auto in which they were riding was struck by the Spokane Flyer on the Soo Line, near Baden, N. D.

Mr. Dyer and his family were on their way to Bowbells to visit Mrs. Dyer's sister. The automobile was hurled considerable distance and totally demolished.

Mr. Dyer and daughter are in the hospital at Kenmare. The crossing was hidden from view by a curve in the track. When Mr. Dyer first saw the train it was too late for him to stop the machine and he endeavored to cross ahead of the engine.

BANDITS ARRAIGNED.

All Bound Over to Grand Jury on $20,000 Bail.

Minneapolis. — The four boy bandits, Aleck Fish, Raymond McIntosh, Frank McCarthy and Clarence Spencer, waived examination when arraigned before Judge Montgomery in municipal court and were bound over to the grand jury. Two charges of robbery in the first degree were made against each prisoner.

Bail was fixed at $10,000 in each case and on each of the two charges, making the individual bail of each accused person $20,000. In default of bail all were remanded to the county jail.

When arraigned the boys appeared indifferent, only a few words being uttered on either side. McCarthy alone was represented by an attorney, M. C. Brady.

SHOOTS FORMER WIFE.

John Tennis Then Ends His Own Life at Red Wing.

Red Wing — Mrs. Francis Tennis, aged 52 was shot and seriously wounded by her former husband, John Tennis. Later, Tennis took his own life. Tennis shot at his former wife several times, but only one bullet took effect; this in the back of the neck. Mrs. Tennis was removed to St. John's hospital.

HOSPITAL DEDICATED.

Formal Exercises Held At Sunnyside At New London, Minn.

New London. — Sunnyside hospital was formally dedicated in the presence of a large representative gathering from New London and vicinity. Elias Rachie of Willmar delivered the dedicatory address and other speakers were Dr. Johnson of Willmar, Sheriff Bonde of Kandiyohi county, Rev. Messrs. Sotendahl and Jordahl of Norway Lake and Hanson of New London. The hospital was erected at a cost of over $7,000 and is built of cement blocks. It has every modern convenience. It is the only public hospital within a radius of thirty miles and since its opening six weeks ago has been doing a capacity business. Dr. M. O. Oppegaard is chief of staff.

John Carlson, residing in Irving township, Kandiyohi county, was drowned while bathing in Long lake, three miles east of New London. He was 28 years old and single.

Green Lake, lying between New London and Spicer, is rapidly pushing to the fore as one of the popular summer resorts of the state. Already every cottage along its banks is occupied and the summer hotels are crowded to capacity.

TINTAH LIKELY BURNED.

Reported Only Two or Three Buildings Standing.

Morris. — Tintah, a village of 300 inhabitants in Traverse county, 22 miles northeast of Wheaton the county seat, was almost completely destroyed by fire, according to meager reports reaching here.

Details of the disaster were sparse and it was impossible to get in touch with the town owing it is believed, to the burning of the telephone and telegraph connections, but it was rumored here that only two or three buildings were left standing after the fire had passed, but that no lives had been lost.

It was also reported that the fire was started by the explosion of a gasoline stove. No confirmation of the reports were obtainable.

Tintah is on the Great Northern railroad and before the fire boasted of a Catholic and Congregational church, one bank, three grain elevators and one hotel.

WIDOW'S SON DROWNED.

Funeral of Young Carlson Held Near Atwater, Minn.

Atwater.—The funeral of John Wilhelm Carlson of Irving, who was drowned in Long lake, was held here. Carlson went in bathing Sunday with George Swenson. He ventured too far out and being a poor swimmer was drowned at a depth of sixteen feet. He was 26 and the only son of Mrs. Johan Carlson, a widow.

Atwater will soon boast of one of the best telephone systems in the country. A cable system is being installed and the new service will soon be ready. The central office is being removed to new and more commodious quarters.

The Great Northern has promised the village a new station and it is expected it will be ready before winter.

SOCIABILITY TOUR SET.

Mankato Automobile Club Arranges Run Throught Southern Minnesota.

Mankato.—The Mankato Automibile club is making arrangements for a sociability tour on Tuesday, July 16. The ride will be made to Faribault by way of Madison Lake, Elysian, Waterville and Morristown. The Faribault Automobile club will meet the Mankato club on the road and escort it to the beautiful picnic grounds near Faribault, where a few hours will be spent for refreshments and rest. The Mankato club will then return by way of Owatonna. Waseca and Janesville. A speed limit of fifteen miles an hour has been fixed, with stringent rules against speeding or passing each other. This will be the club's first run of the season.

STATE TICKET.

For governor—E. E. Lobeck of Alexandria.

For lieutenant governor—George H. Andrews of Winnebago City.

For secretary of state—C. L. Johnson of Anoka.

For congressman at large—W. G. Calderwood of Minneapolis.

For attorney general—J. H. Morse, Robbinsdale.

Minny League Is All In.

Winona.—The threatened smash in the Minny league occurred when the Eau Claire team disbanded and the final game of the series with the Winona team was not played. The Winona players returned home bringing reports to the effect that the Eau Claire players refused longer to play without a peek at the long green which keeps the great national pastime in motion. It is said they have not been paid for almost a month. The bursting of the bubble created no surprise in official circles of the league.

POSSE SHOOTS BANK ROBBER

MAN, WHO ROBBED THE MOUNT PLEASANT BANK KILLED A SHORT TIME LATER.

WOUNDS ONE PURSUER.

Cashier, Whom Highwayman Shot, Not Seriously Injured.—Attempts Escape on Horseback.

Mt. Pleasant, Ia., July 8.—The lone bandit who entered the Rome Savings bank at the town of Rome, shot Cashier F. W. Hileman and escaped with several hundred dollars in cash, was shot and killed by a member of a posse which had been scouring the country in automobiles for several hours in search of the robber.

The bandit, who was identified here as Charles Clark, was scarcely 20 years old, and had been living with relatives here for several months. Clark was overtaken several miles south of here.

He was riding a horse, and on seeing the approaching automobile, turned in his saddle and opened fire. A running fight ensued.

The bandit was well supplied with ammunition and for some time succeeded in keeping far enough ahead of the automobiles to avoid being struck with the volley of bullets, and at the same time return the fire. He pumped the bullets from his automatic revolver, several times reloading it as he raced down the country road.

James O'Laughlin, a merchant of Rome and one of the leaders of the posse, received a bullet in the back, but his injuries are not serious.

When only a short distance ahead of the automobiles the bandit threw both hands to his breast and tumbled from his horse.

An examination showed that he had been shot through the heart. The stolen money was recovered and the body taken to Mount Pleasant where identification was made.

The injuries of Cashier Hileman are not of a serious nature, it was announced. He was shot in the arms when he refused to comply with the demands of the bandit.

The police are searching for Clark's companions, who are believed to have aided him in getting away from the bank to the woods, a short distance away, where he was given a horse.

TAFT MEN PLAN FIGHT.

Meeting for Arranging to be Held in Washington Soon.

Beverly, Mass., July 8.—President Taft will receive the formal notification that he is the nominee of the Republican party for president at the White House in Washington about August 1. The president told his visitors at Paramatta that he had talked with Senator Root of New York, permanent chairman of the Republican national convention, and that they had decided that the notification should take place in Washington. The president believes Washington is the most convenient place for the committee to wait upon him and he desires to entertain the members in the White House.

The president has planned a reception for early next week to the subcommittee of the Republican national committee which is to meet him to go over the situation and hear his suggestion for a chairman of the national commitee. Several hundred invitations have been sent out also to prominent Republicans of the country and it is expected that there will be a disposition to get together and plan the fall campaign against their political foes. The president has not changed his mind as to chairman, and it is said that his secretary C. D. Hilles, probably will be selected.

President Taft declared that as far as he was concerned, the row between Secretary of Treasury McVeagh and A. Piatt Andrew, the assistant secretary who resigned, is a closed incident.

Auto Accident Victim Dies.

Minot, N. D., July 8.—Nellie Dyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Dyer of St. Cloud, Minn., injured in the collision of the Dyer automobile and the Soo Spokane Limited a mile west of Baden, N. D., July 3, is dead at the hospital at Kenmare. Mrs. Harry Dyer was instantly killed. Mr. Dyer will recover. Eye witnesses testified that the engine on the Dyer car died just as the car was crossing the track.

Bolt Kills North Dakota Man.

Olga, N. D., July 8.—G. O. P. Carier was killed and three others narrowly escaped death when a bolt of lightning struck a barn on the James Brady farm near here.

Note Tells Love for Meyer.

Denver, Colo., July 8.—"I am so happy, Otto is so good to me and I love him so much," wrote Candaco Wheeler, who was drowned in Bowles lake on June 23, the day before the tragedy occurred, to her nurse, Mrs. Lizzie C. Cisco, an old negress who had been in the omploy of the Wheeler family for many years, and to her half sister, Dora Wheeler of Jamaica, L. I. These letters seem to preclude all chance that the young woman contemplated taking her own life.

Her Unfortunate Error.

A literary lady at a society dinner was given a seat next to a noted scientist whose views were very materialistic, and at some remark he made on the origin of mankind, the lady found her temper tried beyond all bearing, so that she retorted: "I really don't care what you say. I believe in the Bible, and there we are told that Adam was the father of all living."

"I really think you are mistaken," he said with a smile, and so the subject dropped.

A few days later the lady, writing to a bosom friend, told her of the occurrence and added: "I am too mortified, for I have looked the matter up and it only says that Eve was the mother of all living, and so I don't know whether to write to the professor or not."

CHAS. W. LATTA
Editor and Publisher.

Published every Friday at Holt, Marshall County, Minnesota.

Entered as second-class matter Sept. 22, 1911, at the post office at Holt, Minnesota, under the act of March 3, 1879.

Be a booster—not a knocker.

The proposed "third party" is somewhat slow in getting organized, but perhaps it will be all the better when it comes. There's a lot of people in Minnesota waiting to get a good seat on the new party bandwagon in the hope of getting into some office, big or little.

At an eastern summer resort a few days ago, some disgruntled citizens hung W. J. Bryan in effigy. This is a straw which shows how hard the loss of control of the Democratic party has hit some of the eastern people in the non-productive class. There is no community of self-respecting, ordinary people who would not be above such an act.

The socialist candidate for congress in this district has been given the endorsement of the prohibitionists and expects to draw a big vote by reason of the endorsement. Being a candidate is one thing, and being competent to fill the office is another, and the said socialist candidate has a long road to travel before his ability will be in the same class as that of our present congressman.

Governor Wilson, even if defeated for the presidency, has achieved a great honor in securing the nomination. He stooped to no dishonorable act to gain that honor and has the respect of the nation. How different with Taft, who secured a dishonorable nomination, which he would not have accepted if he had had any self-respect, and which has lost for this country, the respect of much of the civilized world.

There has been a good deal of speculation and comment as to what the presidential electors named at the Republican convention in this state would do if elected. They are all Roosevelt men, and there seems to have been some doubt as to whether or not they would be obliged to cast there ballots for Taft in the electoral college, if they were elected as Republicans. Attorney general Smith thinks they can hand in their resignations to the state central committee and that body would have a right to fill the vacancies. We question if their resignation would simplify matters any, as anybody the state committee might name would not want to get their names on the ballots, their defeat being a certainty. There is no doubt but that the Taft brand of Republican is in a hopeless position in this state.

IT'S AN UNSINKABLE LIFEBOAT

This Claim Is Made by a Norwegian Sailor, Who Says He Has Made Trials.

Capt. Ole Brude of Seattle, the intrepid Norwegian sailor who in 1905 crossed the Atlantic in the Uraed, an odd looking egg-shaped lifeboat, 18 feet long, is planning an interesting experiment on the Pacific.

Captain Brude has asked permission of several of the trans-Pacific steamship lines to be put adrift in his lifeboat from the deck of one of the liners in midocean, asserting that he would forfeit a good sized sum of money if he was not back in Seattle in six months.

"To demonstrate that my lifeboat could weather the biggest gales, ride the heaviest seas and safely carry her passengers into port, with three companions, I set out from Norway August 17, 1905, bound for America," said Captain Brude. "It was a rough voyage, during which we encountered several storms, but we reached Boston safely in January, 1906, our only power being a lone sail fastened to an iron mast."

Captain Brude said that his craft had provisions for a year and there was plenty in the larder when they reached the Massachusetts coast.

"I wish to demonstrate to the shipping men of the Pacific that my lifeboat will not sink or capsize in the heaviest weather, and is the safest used on the seven seas," said Captain Brude. "She can be made to carry 40 passengers and provisions for three months. Fifty-five of the craft in which we crossed the Atlantic would have taken the members of the crew and all the passengers of the Titanic and easily reached New York harbor with them."

NOT FUSSY

The Lady—No; I tell you I object to giving money at the door.

The Tramp—Well; marm, perhaps you'll hand it out of the window. I'm not pertikler.

MISTAKEN KINDNESS.

Under the head "A Friend's Mistaken Kindness" the Salem News says that a resident of that place, knowing Doctor Fanning to be a lover of birds and a student of ornithology, called at his office and left for delivery to the doctor a box containing a collection of 25 birds, mostly migratory, which had been trapped recently with a view to presenting them to one who was interested in the feathered tribe. It was a kindness "gone wrong," according to the record of the case, for, "like all true lovers of wild life, he could not bear to see the creatures in confinement, and after taking a good look at them released every one, and all flew away, evidently happy at regaining their liberty."

A DIFFERENCE.

George Ade, at a dinner in New York, urged a subtler use of words.

"Use words with delicate care," he said. "Observe all their subtle distinctions. Never write 'vision,' for instance, "when 'sight' is what you mean."

"There's no difference between 'sight' and 'vision,'" interrupted an editor.

"No?" said Mr. Ade. "And yet, 'Billy,' when you and I passed each other on Broadway yesterday afternoon, the girl I was with was a vision, while the one with you was a sight."

JUST LIKE WOMEN.

"It's a curious life," said the lawyer, wearily.

"What's the trouble?"

"Two women came into my office today. One wanted a divorce because her husband wouldn't stay at home and the other because her husband sat around the house all the time."

STUPIDITY OF THE AFRICANS

Henry M. Stanley Told of Meeting Natives With What Might Be Called Empty Lofts.

The natives of Central Africa are described by the late Sir Henry M. Stanley in his "Autobiography" as being incredibly stupid. He tells, for example, of one native who, with another man, was sent in a canoe across a river to fetch a company of men to camp. After waiting an hour, Stanley went to the river, where he found the two paddling each in an opposite direction, and blaming the other for his stupidity. They were in a passion of excitement, and quite unable to hear the advice of the men across the river, who were bawling directions to them how to manage their canoe.

Another stupid fellow was generally saved from punishment because his mistakes were so absurd. One day we were floating down the Congo. Near camping time, as he happened to be bowman, I bade him stand by, and when I called out, seize the grass on the bank to stop the boat. In a little while we came to a fit place, and I cried, "Hold hard, Kirango!"

"Please God, master," he replied, and forthwith sprang on shore and seized the grass with both hands, while we, of course, were rapidly swept on down-stream.

The boat's crew roared at the ridiculous sight. Nevertheless, his stupidity cost the tired men a hard pull upriver, for not every place was available for a camp.—Youth's Companion.

LOOKS DOWN ON HIS MOTHER

Daughter-in-Law Nearly Always Thinks She Could Have Brought Up Son Better.

In Harper's Bazar Marion Harland writes some startling things about the "Immolation of Mothers." For example, she says:

"He was a bitter cynic who said that parents would seem to spend the best part of their lives and their finest energies in teaching their offspring how to get along without them. He hit the bull's-eye squarely, as far as sons are concerned. Mothers have labored, and daughters-in-law enter into their labors. Have you ever known a son's wife who did not, in the depths of her soul, believe that she could have trained her husband better than his mother succeeded in doing? It is not enough that he is all hers now, to have and to mold. She laments that she could not have had the bringing-up of her lord. What a man she would have made of him had high heaven granted her the privilege of being both mother and wife!

She gives practical proof of the greed for full and absolute possession by taking all her John does for her, be it the gift of half his kingdom, as her right. What he does for his mother is all of free grace, and usually the grace is on her part."

TELLING ALL IN ONE BREATH.

This is a gem of English description dug out of an English newspaper by Richard V. Oulahan, the chief foreign correspondent of the New York Sun:

"Just as the sun rose to flood England with glorious, life-giving light, giving cheer to thousands of workers who rose in the cold, gray dawn, James Hackett—forty-two—a laborer, for the murder of his wife, Jane Hackett—forty-three—a barmaid at the Rose and Crown, on the twenty-second of last month, under particularly distressing circumstances—to-wit, in which the unfortunate woman was strangled by her drunken husband—paid the extreme penalty for his crime, namely—death."—Saturday Evening Post.

SHORT ALL AROUND.

"Madam, they say that your husband is short in his accounts at the office."

"I don't doubt it; he is short in his accounts at home."

"How is that?"

"He used to kiss me three times a day, and now he never kisses me more than twice, and sometimes not more than once."

A DIFFERENCE.

"Father," said Johnny, "what is the difference between farming and agriculture?"

"Well, my son, for farming you need a plow and harrow and other implements and for agriculture all you need is pencil and paper."

Stein Placed Under Bonds

On Tuesday the sheriff came over from Warren and went out to Mud Lake where he arrested Thomas Stein on a warrant charging him with assault in the second degree and threatening to kill his sister, Lena Bolingberg. The accused man was taken to Warren for a hearing before Justice Holland. He entered a plea of guilty and was placed unber bonds in the sum of $500 to keep the peace and was given until Satnrday to furnish the bond. The complaint arose from Stein's calling at his sister's residence on a Mud Lake homestead one night a few weeks ago and, after kicking in the door, used threatening langauge to her. He is said to have been under the influence of liquor at the time, and is spoken of by the neighbors as being a fine young man when sober. Some of his friends(?) seem to think he ought to be supplied with liquor regardless of consequences to himself or others.

Duluth Boosters Were Here

The special train bearing the Duluth Trade Excursionists arrived here close on scheuled time Wednesday afternoon and made a brief stop during which the members of the party shook hands with local business men and did a good stroke of advertising for the Head of the Lakes. The famous Third Regiment Band were marshalled near the creamery by Frank X. Gravel and rendered a brief but delightful concert. If the program carried out here is any criterion [illegible] excellent results for Duluth.

RUBBER FROM TURPENTINE.

The invention of a new kind of synthetic rubber is announced from Christiania, Norway. A German physician, Dr. Kurt Gross, has produced from turpentine after eighteen months' experimenting a new rubber-like substance which he declares is a perfect substitute and costs only one-quarter as much as the natural article.

It is an odorless compound, and its color is yellowish white. Heated to between 80 and 100 degrees, the substance becomes transparent; it assumes a light brown hue and gives off a slight smell of turpentine.

The inventor has already manufactured several articles with the new artificial rubber to demonstrate its virtues, notably a set of accumulators which are five times lighter than the usual type made of lead.

CITIES IN DISPUTE.

In Manhattan there is an electric light for each inhabitant of the city, but, taking the city as a whole, this average would be considerably reduced, as, for instance, the borough of Brooklyn has but 1,000. The other boroughs which go to make up the city would show a lower figure. Some of the other cities of this country may have a percentage almost, if not, as great. In Denver, for instance, the use of electric signs and lights for illuminating and decorative purposes has become so general that some of its business men are advertising it as the Electric City. One building in that city is outlined outside with 72,000 candle power.

Will File for Representative

Warroad Pioneer: At a public mass meeting attended by the business men of Warroad, held last week, Hon. Paul Marschalk, our mayor, was urged and has consented to file for the republican nomination for representative of the 63rd legislative district, comprising the counties of Roseau, Kittson and Marshall. Mr. Marschalk is a pioneer of northern Minnesota and is well and favorably known throughout the district and would make an excellent representative for our district. He has a keen insight to the political and economic problems of the day and being a very successful business man would from the start become a potent factor in needed legislation for Northern Minnesota. He is not a dreamer of political or governmental theories but a progressive and business-like man with practical ideas, which his business experience has ripened into an invaluable asset. Everything considered we know of no one who is better qualified to represent us in the legislature and all Warroad and vicinity will do all in their power to further the interests of Mr. Marschalk's candidacy and work for his ultimate election.

A club composed of local business men has been organized to promote Mr. Marschalk's campaign and work will be started at once to enlarge its membership and boost for Paul Marschalk.

LATEST NOVELTY OF SCIENCE

Leguminotherapy Tells the Exact Relations of Each Vegetable to Human System.

Leguminotherapy is the latest scientific novelty. It is a big name for vegetable diet—not, however, the ordinary vegetable diet, but, according to the National Pharmacist, a scientific diet whereby the exact physiological and temperamental relations of each vegetable to the human system are carefully determined.

Green peas, for example, according to this new science, cause frivolity, and should be withheld from young ladies with a tendency to flirt. On the other hand, they are excellent for wallflowers and pessimists, and should be given in generous helpings to bashful boys.

Carrots develop good temper and amiability, and are particularly recommended for janitors, car conductors and ticket agents.

The potato develops reason as well as calmness and reflection; but care must be taken lest it induce apathy and indifference or that disinclination to work which is observable among boys who are fed daily on fried potatoes.

String beans stimulate the poetic and artistic faculties; while cabbage and cauliflower, nourishing though they are, excite to obstreperousness and are therefore to be shunned by those in training for the parlor.—New York Sun.

The new teacher was somewhat uncertain as to the nationality of her latest charges. She was not kept long in doubt, however. EPITOME OF EVENTS

PARAGRAPHS THAT PERTAIN TO MANY SUBJECTS.

ARE SHORT BUT INTERESTING

Brief Mention of What is Transpiring in Various Sections of Our Own and Foreign Countries.

Congress.

Senator Cummins announced he would not join the new party movement.

The naval appropriation bill, carrying $133,609,674 and providing two battleships program passed the senate.

Representative Sulzer introduced a resolution to invite foreign legislative bodies to a peace conference in Washington in 1915.

Representative Berger introduced a bill providing for federal government loans to county, city and town governments for public utilities.

Representative Norris of Nebraska, progressive republican, introduced a bill which he declared would remedy the evils of presidential primaries.

The working agreement between democrats and insurgent republicans ended, probably resulting in a strict party vote on sugar, wool and excise bills.

The senate committee on postoffices voted down an amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill to establish two rates for second-class mail matter.

The senate appropriations committee reported the sundry civil appropriation bill amended to continue the tariff board and with additions aggregating $5,000,000.

Mrs. Martin W. Littleton, before the senate library committee advocated Senator Martin's resolution authorizing an investigation on the feasibility of the purchase of Jefferson's home, Monticello.

A sharp difference along political lines has developed in the senate over the proposed impeachment of Judge Robert W. Achbald of the commerce court. Many senators, including influential republicans, favor deferring the trial until after the November elections, contending that ample time should be given to prepare for the hearing of the impeachment charges and that many senators are needed at home to look after the political fences.

General.

Flynn says he would have besteo Johnson if the police had not interfered.

Twenty-one were killed and thirty injured in a collision of trains near Latrobe, Pa.

George B. Cortelyou told of the source of campaign contributions during the Roosevelt campaign.

At Marion, Ind., four persons were killed and more than a dozen seriously injured in a head-on collision between two interurban cars on the Marion, Bluffton & Eastern traction line.

Pursuit of the "money trust" probably will be virtually abandoned until after the elections in November, as the result of the conference of the subcommittee of the house banking and currency committee.

The American government and people began the new fiscal year with $3,640,407,621, of which all but $363,621,008 is in circulation and the balance held in the treasury vaults as the assets of the fedral government.

The American line steamer, Philadelphia, due to leave New York for Southampton, was held up through the failure of 175 oilers, coal passers and water tenders to report for duty. The men apparently deserted in sympathy with the seamen's strike.

The disappearance of two pouches of registered mail from a government street car while en route to the Union depot from the postoffice in Kansas City, is puzzling government inspectors. The mail was addressed to New York, Omaha and Ogden, Utah.

Brigadier General Frederick A. Smith, commander of the Department of Missouri, United States Army, has gone to Pole Mountain, Wyo., for the national maneuvers at that place. No detachment from Fort Crook or Fort Omaha have been ordered to Pole Mountain.

Thomas Lee Moore, Virginia member of the national committee of the progressive party, said that he is getting into communication with the progressives over the state as rapidly as possible in order to hold a conference at Roanoak or Richmond on July 30 to select Virginia's representatives to the Chicago convention.

A 3-year-old Chicago boy got hold of his mother's pocketbook and fed $36 in bills—his father's wages—to his pet guinea pigs. The father sent the remnants of the pigs' meal to President Taft with an appeal to the government to redeem the entire roll.

It is the consensus of public opinion that the outcome of the Baltimore convention makes the third party a logical absurdity.

Minneapolis police are looking for a man who slugged, gagged and bound Guy Hanson, aged 15, in a downtown establishment in broad daylight, and with hundreds of pedestrians nearby.

Jack Johnson got $35,000 out of the Las Vegas fight.

The heat wave in Chicago killed seven in one day.

Secretary of the Interior Fisher flatly denied Friday that Robert G. Valentine, commissioner of Indian affairs, had resigned.

Governor Osborne reiterated his opposition to a third party.

Another case of suspected bubonic plague was reported from Havana.

There was a bitter fight in the house against the Clayton contempt bill.

The heaviest earthquake in history was experienced at Fairbanks, Alaska.

The national education association will probably meet next at Salt Lake City.

The Roosevelt party issued a call for a national convention at Chicago August 5.

Mormon colonists in Mexico will give battle rather than pay tribute to Mexican rebels.

Treasury officials estimate that there are now 1,952,131,861 pennies in circulation.

The national education association voted to bury the Boston ballot box stuffing scandal.

Senator Norris Brown says President Taft was honestly nominated and should be re-elected.

Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia is fighting to force from the Washington force all colored policemen.

With but one dissenting voice the house voted articles of impeachment against Federal Judge Archbald.

A youthful Iowa bandit held up and shot a bank cashier, escaped with money, but was shot and killed.

Iowa republicans refused to endorse either Taft or Roosevelt, but Roosevelt men dominated the convention.

Captain E. B. Loraine and Sergeant Major Wilson of the English army flying corps were killed while flying over the great military encampment.

The national convention of the progressive party will be held at Chicago on or about August 1, it was announced by Senator Dixon.

Bryan Callaghan, fourteen times elected mayor of San Antonio and serving in that office, died after an illness of two weeks.

Mrs. Russell Sage of New York gave $5,000 to the street cleaning department pension fund for superannuated and disabled "white wings."

Dispatches from Oriente indicate that the insurrection in Cuba has been crushed. The troops, however, are continuing the pursuit of small bands of starving negroes.

Holding it "unpatriotic," the D. A. R. is fighting the treasury plan to remove the Goddess of Liberty from 5-cent pieces and substitute a buffalo head.

Governor William O. Dawson of South Carolina announced that he has signed the call for the national convention of the Roosevelt party to be held in Chicago August 10.

The Cuban senate adopted the report of the committee on laws, authorizing President Gomez to negotiate an amplification of the reciprocity treay between Cuba and the United States.

General Monteagudo, the commander-in-chief of the Cuban government troops, has formally turned over the government of the province of Oriente to the citizens, declaring that the rebellion is over.

Governor Wilson's day Wednesday in Atlantic City was planned to be a brief one. At noon he was to lay the corner stone of the Y. M. C. A. and at 2 o'clock he was scheduled to address the annual convention of the National Building and Loan asociations on the steel pier.

Three masked bandits armed with revolvers and shotguns terrorized the village of Torono, Ill. Two farmers driving home were first held up and robbed and then the trio forced the Illinois Central agent at the point of guns to surrender all the cash on hand in the station.

At Roanoke, Va., leaders in the Roosevelt third party movement met and decided to hold a mass meeting July 30 for the purpose of selecting a delegation to cast Virginia's twelve votes in the proposed Chicago convention, and to name progressive electors.

The plentiful harvest of important crops of the country, indicated by the crop report of the department of agriculture, will extend also to minor crops to a great extent. Conditions of all crops were materially better on July 1 than on the same date last year.

Miss Aileen Heppner, the young woman named by Mrs. Josephine Henning as the person who influenced her in the alleged conspiracy to injure Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company, by means of a suit for damages for alleged alienation of Mrs. Henning's affections, was held to the grand jury.

Personal.

No presidential slate has yet been made up by the prohibitionists.

Charles D. Hilles was made chairman of the republican national committee.

Senator LaFollette is preparing to launch his campaign for four years hence.

Congressman Norris of Nebraska has issued a statement warning republican progressives that activity is needed.

TRAINS WRECKED THIRTEEN KILLED

BURLINGTON FAST MAIL RUNS INTO OVERLAND EXPRESS NEAR CHICAGO.

CARS ARE TELESCOPED.

Victims Crushed and Wreck Takes Fire—Ghohls Believed to Have to Have Robbed Bodies.

Chicago, July 16.—Thirteen persons were killed and 15 or 20 were injured in a wreck on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad at Western Springs, a suburb of Chicago.

Coming through a fog, with supposedly a clear track a head, train No. 8, a fast mail, ran at full speed into the rear of train No. 2, known as the Overland Express from Denver, which was standing on the track, telescoping two of the Overland's Pullman cars.

Railroad officials refused to fix the blame until after the wreck had been investigated thoroughly.

Mrs. F. A. Wilcox, who was in charge of the tower from which the block signals were controlled, said she was certain the block was thrown against both trains. She collapsed after the accident and still is in a highly nervous condition.

Fire Starts in Wreck.

All the dead except Engineer Brownson were taken from the rear coach of the Denver train. The engine of No. 8 plowed through this car, halving it, and crushing the helpless passengers, many of whom still were in their berths. On into the second coach the engine continued. Half way through that car it veered to the left, derailing the sleeper. The engine was stripped when it stopped.

Fire, starting from the gas lights in the sleepers, immediately broke out.

Believed Bodies Were Robbed.

Members of the fire departments of Western Springs and La Grange were on the scene within a few minutes after the wreck and they put out the fire with lines of hose.

Ghouls are believed to have robbed the dead before they reached the morgue in La Grange. More than a dozen large diamond sets were missing from jewlery, and although most of the dead appeared to have been persons in comfortable circumstances, a ten-cent piece was the largest sum of money found on any of the bodies.

Coroner Hoffman promised a thorough investigation of this feature of the accident and an interestate commerce commissioner was on the scene early, gathering material for an investigation. Coroner Hoffman ordered all the bodies embalmed immediately and early in the afternoon empanelled a jury to investigate the wreck.

Another Story of Cause.

Another story of how the wreck occurred differed from that of Mrs. Wilcox. It was that No. 2, having been blocked by a signal, had sent back a brakeman to set torpedoes to warn No. 8.

Identified Dead.

Francis A. Barcley, aged 20 years, Billings, Mont; George Brownson, age 55, Galesburg, Ill., engineer on train No. 8; A. E. Bunch, aged 30, negro porter on Pullman car on train No. 2; Mrs. C. M. Hart, wife of a physician of Canton, Ohio; Mrs. E. G. Pohlman, San Franilsco; M. E. Stern, Chicago; G. W. Tudor, aged 40, Lacey, Iowa.

Unindentified Dead.

Unidentified woman, 45 years old, gray hair, black and white striped waist and skirt. Unidentified woman, 40 years, light hair, medium build, blue serge dress, black patent leather shoes with white tops, "C. L. P." to "L. P. H." engraved on jewlery. Unidentified woman, 24 years old, brown hair, blue eyes, two gold crown teeth, on upper left side of mouth. Unidentified girl, 9 years old, light hair, gold band ring, blue and white silk dress. Unidentified boy, 4 years old, linen dress, red socks and black sandals.

Car Hits Buggy; 2 Killed.

Kenosha, Wis., July 16.—Mrs. Mary Jurik, 21 years old, of Paris, Wis., was instantly killed and Mrs. Josephine Micho, 23 years old, also of Paris, and Alexander Mikulcik, 18 years old of this city, were injured when a buggy in which they were riding while returning from church was struck by a Chicago and Milwaukee electric car.

Norwegian Singers Session.

Fargo, N. D., July 16.—The greatest week in the history of Fargo is over. The North American Sangerfest closed with a concert attended by an audience which crowded the auditorium to the doors and which left secure in the belief that it had heard the Norwegian singers of America at their best.

Storm Sweeps District of Columbia.

Washington, July 16.—The most severe thunderstorm in years swept down upon this city and with the terrific wind which accompanied it left a trail of devastation throughout the District of Columbia.

Missouri Convention July 30.

Kansas City, Mo., July 16.—Missouri Progressive Republicans will hold their state convention at Kansas City Tuesday, July 30, to elect delegates to the national convention at Chicago.

FOR SCIATIC RHEUMATISM

Try the Treatment That Cured This Pronounced Case in Minneapolis After Other Treatments Failed.

Sciatica is neuralgia of the sciatic nerve. Its origin is generally rheumatic and is the direct result of taking cold. For this reason the disease is commonly known as "sciatic rheumatism." That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure this disease is shown by numerous cases like that of Mrs. J. B. Hansen, of No. 221 Twentieth Ave., So., Minneapolis, Minn. She says:

"A few years ago following an attack of the grip I was taken with sciatica. For six years I suffered untold agony and thought it would be a blessing to me if I could only die. There were sharp, shooting pains in both of my limbs and my shoulders and arms were affected also but not so severely. If I moved about quickly, the pain would catch me so that I had to scream. My limbs would swell until I could hardly walk. I also had a terrible dull pain in my back which was often unbearable. I was confined to bed for a week or two at a time. While suffering from the sciatica I was further run-down by weakness common to women of my age.

"I received so little relief from the doctor's medicine that I became discouraged and quit it. My husband urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as he had read how they had cured cases like mine. I felt better after I had taken the pills a short time but took several boxes until I was certain I was cured. I give this statement of my cure thinking that other sufferers may be helped as I was through using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

The tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills succeeds where other treatments fail because it is based on the sound medical principle that the health of the nerves depends on pure, red blood.

Every person who is interested in the home treatment of nervous disorders should send for a new edition of our booklet entitled, "Diseases of the Nervous System, Their Nature, Symptoms and Treatment." Address the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are for sale at all druggists, or will be mailed to any address, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y

First Walter—Did that Arizona ranchman give you a tip?

Second Walter—I should say he did! He told me if I didn't step lively he'd blow off the top of my head!

Simple Explanation.

To illustrate a point that he was making—that his was the race with a future and not a race with a past—Booker T. Washington told this little story the other day.

He was standing by his door one morning when old Aunt Caroline went by.

"Good morning, Aunt Caroline," he said. "Where are you going this morning?"

"Lawzee, Mista' Wash'ton," she replied. "I'se done been whar I'se gwine."—Kansas City Star.

SALLOW FACES

Often Caused by Tea and Coffee Drinking.

How many persons realize that tea and coffee so disturb digestion that they produce a muddy, yellow complexion?

A ten days' trial of Postum has proven a means, in thousands of cases, of clearing up a bad complexion.

A Washn. young lady tells her experience:

"All of us—father, mother, sister and brother—had used tea and coffee for many years until finally we all had stomach troubles, more or less.

"We all were sallow and troubled with pimples, bad breath, disagreeable taste in the mouth, and all of us simply so many bundles of nerves.

"We didn't realize that tea and coffee caused the trouble until one day we ran out of coffee and went to borrow some from a neighbor. She gave us some Postum and told us to try that.

"Although we started to make it, we all felt sure that we would be sick if we missed our strong coffee, but we tried Postum and were surprised to find it delicious.

"We read the statements on the pkg., got more and in a month and a half you wouldn't have known us. We all were able to digest our food without any trouble, each one's skin became clear, tongues cleared off, and nerves in fine condition. We never use anything now but Postum. There is nothing like it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

AFRICA WINS MARATHON

Third Place Goes to One of Uncle Sam's Supporters.

Stockholm, July 16.—South Africa, which heretofore played rather a modest part in this Olympic drama, came to the center of the stage at the moment of its clumination, winning the Marathon race, the most important number on the Olympic program. This might have been honor enough for a small nation, but South Africa also won second place by a secure lead, which was piling up the glory.

The winner of the classical Marathon was K. K. McArthur, a tall Transvaal policeman, who has never yet been headed in a similar event. His compatriot, C. W. Gitshaw, came second into the stadium, several hundred yards behind, and third to appear was the American, Gaston Strobina of the South Patterson, A. C., who put up a braver fight than most of the runners, for his feet were skinned and bleeding and he was suffering great pain.

The times as announced were: McArthur, 2 hours 36 minutes; Gitshaw, 2 hours 37 minutes 52 seconds; Strobina, 2 hours 38 minutes 42 2-5 seconds.

The score in all the events as announced to date is:

United States, 120; Sweden, 79; England, 58; Germany, 31; Finland, 28; France, 21; South Africa, 16; Denmark, 13; Italy, 13; Canada, 11; Norway, 10; Australia, 9; Hungary, 8; Belgium, 7; Greece, 4; Russia, 3; Austria, 3; Holland, 2.

McCombs, Wilson's Choice.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 16.—Indications at Sea Girt gathered from party leaders with whom Governor Wilson has been in constant consultation recently, are that Wm. F. McCombs of New York is his choice for chairman of the Democratic national committee. Wm. G. McAdoo of New Jersey or Senator James A. O'Gorman of New York for vice chairman and Joseph E. Davies, national committeeman from Wisconsin, for secretary.

Freight Train Kills Two.

Red Wing, Minn., July 16.—William Goyer, aged 60 years, and his wife, Anna Goyer, the same age, were struck and instantly killed by an extra freight train on the Chicago Great Western railroad at a sharp curve, seven miles from Red Wing.

Ready For First Meeting.

Chicago, July 16.—Every member of the Democratic national committee is here prepared to attend the first meeting of the new body at which a national chairman will be chosen.

True to His Trust.

"Father," asked the beautiful girl, "did you bring home that material for my new skirt?"

"Yes."

"Where is it?"

"Let me see? Wait now. Don't be impatient! I didn't forget it. I'm sure I've got it in one of my pockets, somewhere."

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.
In this age of research and experiment, all nature is ransacked by the scientific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides in the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine is that of Therapion, which has been used with great success in French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists, that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say, miraculous cures, should send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. Le Clerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether the New French Remedy "THERAPION" No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 is what they require and have been seeking in vain during a life of misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness. MILK STANDARD SET.

Will Have to Contain Less Than 100,000 Bacteria.

Minneapolis. — Milk, in passing inspection from now on, will have to contain less than 100,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter or come under the ban of the state board of health.

Inspected milk means milk that has passed the local board of health tests and the producers of which have complied with those ordinances covering its production and sale. In a word, the new order of things is the establishment of a standard and guidance in the sale of clean milk throughout the state. It has no application to certified milk.

The action of the state board of health makes the standard of less than 100,000 bacteria state-wide. Municipalities and prosecuting officials from now on will have to guide themselves accordingly. Dr. Bracken, secretary of the board, thinks the new standard will materially aid in the sale of clean milk throughout the state.

The board has had more or less trouble with the compilation of vital statistics and it has ordered that town clerks, local boards of health and others concerned with the certification of births and dealth and diseases must make good or suffer the penalty of a fine.

BISHOP O'DOHERTY HERE

Head of Catholic Church in Philippines is Guest at Villa Maria.

Frontenac. — The Rt. Rev. M. J. O'Doherty, D. D., bishop of Zamboanga, Philippine Islands, is spending a week at Villa Maria, the guest of Rev. J. Hurst, chaplain of the villa, a schoolmate of his lordship.

For eight years Bishop O'Doherty has been rector of the famous Hiberno Spanish institution, the Irish college in Salamanca, and he is a personal friend of King Alphonse, from whom he received a decoration.

The diocese of Zamboanga, to which the bishop is on his way, includes the large island of Mindanao and several smaller islands, together with the Zulu and Tawi groups. In this diocese there are upwards of 300,000 Catholics, ministered to by about 100 priests. In addition, there are about half a million un-Christian Moors. The conversion of this hostile multitude is only one of the difficulties the young bishop has to cope with.

The bishop is accompanied by his secretary, Rev. Stanislaus Hughes, D. D., a pupil of his own in the Diocesan college.

RECKLESS AUTO DRIVER.

Business Man Gives Chase And Two Are Run In.

Minneapolis. — After running down two men with their automobile shortly before midnight, and failing to stop, J. W. Taylor and R. S. Stone were chased for several blocks by H. W. Baker, manager of Butler Brothers, and his brother, H. D. Baker, American consul at Hobart, Tasmania, in another machine, until Taylor drove his car into the curb and broke one of the front wheels. Taylor and Stone then rain into a building and were later arrested.

Dan Pomeroy, and George Johnson were crossing the street on their way home when both were struck by the automobile driven by Taylor, who seemed to have poor control of the car. Johnson was thrown to one side and only slightly bruised but Pomeroy fell directly under the machine, which passed over him; but as he fell between the wheels he escaped with severe bruises and an injured leg.

SAMARITANS HAVE WAR.

Duluth Police Interferes in a Stormy Meeting of Board.

Duluth. — A bitter warfare has broken out in the executive board of the Modern Samaritans, the headquarters of which are located here. Imperial Scribe W. A. Hicken, Imperial Treasurer O. F. Collier, General Counsel A. E. McManus, H. J. Aschenbach and C. E. Lovett, it is alleged are arrayed on one side, in opposition to Imperial Good Samaritan John Christie, Z. H Austin of Minneapolis, T. M. Bombach and W. H. Salter, the other member of the council.

A meeting of the board was called, but was, it is claimed, such a stormy affair that no business was transacted. The calling of the police to eject one member and locking the doors to keep other members out were features of the meeting, according to statements made by those present.

$500 Holstein Bull Ends Life by Dining on Paris Green.

Bemidji.—A pure-bred prize-winning $500 Holstein bull, owned by William A. Cassler, farmer near here, killed himself by eating six quarts of paris green which was to have been used for spraying potatoes. C. R. Scribner, of the dairy department of the department of agriculture at Washington, said the Cassler animal was one of the most perfect specimens in the country.

PROGRESSIVE RALLY.

Candidate Predicts Disaster If Partisans Follow Mr. Taft.

Minneapolis. — Lieutenant Governor Gordon, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, issued a statement calling for a convention of Progressive Republicans of Minnesota. He opposes Edward T. Young's advice that Progressive Republicans support Woodrow Wilson.

He says: "When thievery is committed, political or otherwise, the culprit should be brought to book. The time for the mass of the party to revolt is now. If the Republican party of this state wallows in the mire prepared for it at Chicago it will die of its own stench. I believe in washing the linen right now. I believe we should stand solidly in our own state on all local tickets and join hands for the purpose of purging the party of the deadly weight cast upon it by the national organization at Chicago. I cannot concur in the statement made by Mr. Young, that Progressive Republicans support the Democratic nominee."

HIGHWAY IS ASSURED.

Board Takes Steps to Start Laying of Sixteen Miles.

Winona. — The Winona county board of commissioners have formally approved the plans and specifications drawn up by engineers from the office of the state highway commission for the construction of sixteen miles of concrete highways under the new Elwell law. The action will mean the actual beginning of the building of $120,000 of new roads within a month. Bids will be advertised for this morning, and according to the new law three weeks later, on Aug. 1, the contracts will be awarded on the three different roads and the work will be rushed. It is the idea of the promoters of the new roads in this county to have much of the construction under way before the cold weather interferes with progress late in the fall.

The roads to be built in this country, according to the plans adopted will be 16 feet wide. There will be a center of concrete eight feet wide.

TO PROSECUTE MILLERS.

Chicago Dealers Are Likely to Charge Rebating.

Chicago, Illinois. — Prosecution of Minneapolis flour mills and several western railroads on a charge of rebating may result form the investigation being made by the interstate commerce commission of complaints filed by the Chicago board of trade, regarding alleged discrimination in freight rates on wheat between Chicago and Minneapolis.

Local dealers assert they are obliged to pay a 10 cent rate on wheat while Minneapolis manufacturers are enabled to buy their raw material in the West, manufacture it into flour and ship the product to Chicago at a rate of 7½ cents a hundred pounds. They also contend that Minneapolis flour manufacturers have been mixing wheat from one section where the low rate is charged with wheat from sections where a high rate is in effect, in violation of the provisions of the interstate commerce law.

PASTOR IS ACCUSED.

Emelius Charged With Shooting His Father-in-Law.

Litchfield.—Rev. Charles Emelius under arrest at New Sweden, Me., is a son of Nels T. Nelson of this city. He is accused of murdering his father in-law, August Jacobson, on June 12, 1911. Jacobson was last seen on June 11 of last year, and his dead body was found with four bullet holes upon it.

Jacobson's son was first arrested for the crime, but was released. In a letter Emelius denies any connection with the affair. He is 34 years of age and a graduate of Augustanna college at Rock Island, Ill.

Judge Fines Postmasters.

Duluth. — Judge Page Morris, justice of the federal court, fined two defaulting postmasters and gave them some advice about the liquor habit. Emil C. Liegas, former postmaster at Crosby, Crow Wing county and Ivor C. Iverson, former postmaster at Wahkon, Mille Lacs county, were the culprits. The former embezzled $1,061 and the latter $511. They have reimbursed the government and on account of their families, Judge Morris was lenient. He fined each a sum equal to the amount embezzeled.

Bankruptcy Schedule Filed.

Fergus Falls.—Lang, Atwood & White, who have been engaged in the flour mill and elevator business at Evansville, have filed schedules in bankruptcy in the federal court here. The schedules place the firm assets at $14,650, and its liabilities at $26,235. In the individual schedules, Mr. Lang places his assets at $12,264, of which $2,495 is exempt, and his liabilities at $10,699. Mr. Atwood places his assets at $9,295; of which $595 is exempt, and his liabilities at $13,667. Mr. White files no schedules.

STORM KILLS 3 AND INJURES 14

LIGHTNING STRIKES MERRY PARTY ON THE CLUB'S GOLF LINKS.

PROPERTY LOSS, $50,000.

Trees Uprooted, Structures Are Moved By Gale Which Reaches 84 Miles An Hour—Minneapolis Hard Hit.

Minneapolis, July 15.—One of the worst storms recorded in the weather bureau records of the Twin Cities swept through Minneapolis from the south made a half half circle and swept off toward St. Paul and adjoining counties, leaving in its wake three deaths, fourteen persons injured by the lightning, and a property damage estimated at $100,000. The property loss in Minneapolis is estimated at $50,000. No estimate can be made of damage done to crops in the country districts. The storm was confined chiefly to counties adjoining those of Ramsey and Hennepin.

Most of the damage was confined to the central district of Minneapolis and the suburban districts of St. Paul. Lake Minnetonka residents suffered but little damage and residence in counties north of Hennepin reported the storm abated in fury as it swept over them. The fury of the storm was spent in an hour in Minneapolis. It was preceeded by light showers that sent persons skeltering for shelter and was followed by a hail storm that was soon over.

Ralph C. Gillette, eldest son of L. C. Gillette of the Minneapolis Steel and Machinery company was killed instantly while seeking shelter under a tree on the Interlachen club golf links. Dr. C. W. Card, a dentist, was knocked unconscious and was in a serious condition for a few miutes after the shock. Joe Nelson, 10 years old, a caddy i uohtsthgg1s,4..eo-Dcegu K.,-injured by the bolt of lightning that struck Mr. Gilette. He is in the club house at Interlachen under the constant attendance of two physicians. They hold but slight hopes for his recovery.

E. S. Houston, a coffee salesman, was stunned by the same bolt but recovered shortly. Another caddy was knocked down but recovered before any others of the party.

The party started from the Interlachen club house to play the course after the fury of the storm had passed.

The storm swept generally over the South Side, snatching up a roof here, or a barn there. Rain swept in sheets across the streets, blinding those unfortunate enough to be out in it and making it impossible to see across the street. Many persons were badly frightened and believed that a tornado was upon them. Basements were filled with water which flooded the streets the manholes being soon clogged up so there was no place where it could be drained off.

During the worst part of the storm, street cars were forced to stop, many being unable to find the switches because of the water.

The delivery wagon belonging to the Martin grocery was standing at Fortieth street and Chicago avenue when the storm burst. A strong gust of wind seized it, and rolling the horse and wagon over and over carried it across the street and dumped it down a steep incline into a ditch. The horse was not injured, and the wagon escaped almost intact. The driver, Ralph Kueken, when the wind struck the wagon, made one leap, and landed safely in the road.

The Dead in Twin Cities.

Ralph C. Gillette 30 years old, Minneapolis; Mrs. Alma Freyer, 22 years old, St. Paul; Mary Bergman, 5 years old, St. Paul.

The Injured in Twin Cities.

Joe Nelson, 10 years old, caddy, Interlachen club, Hopkins, fatally injured. Dr. W. H. Card, knocked unconscious; not serious. E. S. Houston, knocked unconscious; not serious. J. Bergman, 50 years old, St. Paul, bruised about body. Mrs. John Bergman, bruised about body. John Bergman, 4 years old; Helen Bergman, 2 years, and Jacob, 19 months, all bruised and hurt slightly. Mrs. Charles Seaberg, not serious. Mrs. William Grimm, not serious. Mrs. Charles Rosenberg, not serious. Alma Anderson, overcome by heat before storm; not serious. Hans Larson, struck on right knee by a large piece of tin blown from building by wind.

Ask Your Doctor About That

Shock for a Brother.

"John," said an eminent physician, wearily, entering his home after a hard day's work, "John, if anyone calls excuse me."

"Yes, suh," agreed John, the old family darkey.

"Just say," explained the doctor, "that the masseur is with me."

A little later the doctor's brother called—called and received the shock of his life.

"I want to see the doctor at once," said he.

"You can't do it, suh," solemnly announced the old darkey, turning up his eyes till the whites alone showed. "You can't do it, suh. The doctor, suh, am wid de Messiah."—New York Evening Sun.

FINGERS SO PAINFUL COULD NOT SLEEP

R. F. D. No. 2, Box 252, Seattle, Wash.—"The three middle fingers right at the end of my nails troubled me for three years. They would get so inflamed, burn and be so painful I could not sleep. It seemed every time I had my hands in soapy water they would get worse. They would be so very sore, then the nails would come off, and no more would a new one grow on when they would begin to get sore again. The nail came off my third finger four times. I tried everything with no results until one day I read of a lady who seemed to have had a similar trouble cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I decided to try them and sent for a sample. I bought a 50c. box of Cuticura Ointment and some Cuticura Soap and now I am thankful my fingers are perfectly cured and my nails perfectly smooth. Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me." (Signed) Mrs. Rieke Hinton, Apr. 24, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

Good Bait.

Aunt Sarah, cook in a Richmond family, took home a dish of macaroni from her mistress' table for the edification of her own family. When her children had been assured that it was good they proceeded to eat with great gusto. The next morning Aunt Sarah discovered two of her offspring in the yard turning over stones and soil and scratching vigorously in the earth.

"Heah, yo' chillun" called out Aunt Sarah, "what yo' all doin'?"

"We's a-huntin'," was the reply, "fo' some mo' of dem macaroni worms."

The Moon's Offspring.

Looking out of the window one evening, little Marie saw the bright, full moon in the eastern sky, and, apparently, only a few inches from it, the beautiful Jupiter, shining almost as brightly as the moon itself. Marie gazed intently at the spectacle for a moment, and then turning to her mother, exclaimed:

"Oh, mother, look! The moon has laid an egg!"

'Twas a Pretty Thing.

The young man produced a small, square box from his pocket.

"I have a present for you," he began. "I don't know whether it will fit your finger or not, but——"

"Oh, George!" she broke in, "this is so sudden! Why, I never dreamed—"

But just then George produced the gift—a silver thimble—and it got suddenly cooler in the room.—Ladies' Home Journal.

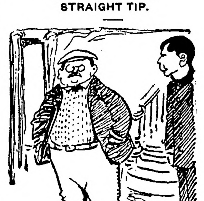
Mixture of Caution and Economy.

At the Union depot a few evenings ago a mother who had gone to see her daughter, a miss of about 18 years, safely started on a journey, was heard to give the young lady the following words of advice just before the train started: "Now, good-by, my dear. Take good care of yourself and remember not to be too free with strangers on the train. But if a nice-looking man should speak to you be polite to him—he may buy your supper for you."—Kansas City Star.

Making Cheese in Olden Days.

Cheese was made by the old-time farmers in the summer on the co-operative plan by which four cattle owners owning say 14 milch cows, received all the milk night and morning, according to the daily yield of their little herd. Thus given two families having five cows each, one with three and one with one, supposing that the average yield per cow was the same, in two weeks, two owners would make five cheeses each; one would press three, and one only one cheese, but this one would be as good and as large as any of the rest.—"Nobility of the Trades—The Farmer," Charles Winslow Hall, in National Magazine.

STRAIGHT TIP.



Grumpy Passenger—This boat seems to me to be doing a frightful lot of tippin', steward!

Steward (smiling)—Yus; that's more'n the passengers do!

"He bit the hand that fed him" said Teddy of Big Bill,
And didn't tell us if the bite had made the biter ill.
Now had Toasties been the subject of Bill's voracious bite
He'd have come back for another with a keener appetite.

Be a booster—not a knocker.

"Let the progressives force the reactionaries out of the republican party instead of abandoning the party to them," says W. E. Lee, candidase for governor. Wherefore try to revivify the corpse?

A lot of people are chafing over the fact that Senator Knut Nelson does not announce his present political intentions. Chafing will do no good, Knut will speak when he thinks he ought to, and not before.

If provided with a sure means of sustenance, we would rather be Mayor Paul Marschalk, of Warroad, than President Taft. The former has the good will of his people to the extent that they would make a legislator of him, almost against his will, while the latter cannot look the people fairly in the face while seeking the highest office in the land in spite of them.

William Lorimer has been ousted from his seat in the U. S. senate, and that by about a two to one vote of the senators. This is a pretty good indication that a reform wave is in the air, and that politicans who have their offices purchased for them by the interests, or who would purchase them for their own selfish gratification, will not be tolerated. After all, the voice of the people comes pretty nearly being the voice of God, and it has made itself heard even in the senate.

In an able and broad-minded editorial, the Duluth Herald discusses "Hell" and intimates that it has little faith in the old time, personal hell that used to be generally accepted as the destination of the unfaithful and sinners generally. Perhaps the Herald is right; there may be no such a place; but after watching the recent political upheavals and the efforts made by the city newspapers to mislead the public politically, we surely do think that there is no retribution on earth that is quite adequate for some people taking part in those misdemeanors, unclassified and unpunishable by law.

The Thief River News-Press intimates that it would like to have Congressman Steenerson, and other Minnesota congressmen declare where they are at with regard to supporting Taft. If the News-Press editor had been paying close attention to Halvor's record in congress he would not ask for such an avowal or declaration. Steenerson is the original anti-Taft Progressive in the Minnesota delegation at Washington and in this campaign, as heretofore, he will be found on the side of the common people, even if he has to step heavily on the Taft corporisity. Halvor has been against Taft for years, and will be until Taft comes across to where he ought to be.

HUDSON WAS WHALING PORT

Finding of Rusty Old Anchors and Harpoon Heads Recalls Some Forgotten History.

Steam dredgers near the city of Hudson sometimes bring up rusty old anchors and harpoon heads from the depths of the river ooze, relics of the days when the place was a famous whaling station, with ships in every sea haunted by the great mammals. In 1782 an association of seafaring men from Nantucket, Martha's Vineyard and Providence, R. I., bought the little settlement with a view to reviving the whaling industry, almost totally destroyed during the revolution. At that time the shipping of Hudson was confined to one canoe used as a ferry. In 1784 a shipyard was opened, and vessels were built, purchased and fitted out. The first Hudson-built ship was launched in 1785, and a year later 25 big whalers were afloat. In 1797 a Hudson whaler, the American Hero, brought home the biggest cargo of sperm oil ever landed in this country, and in 1800 Hudson ranked third in the state in commerce and was known in every seaport in the world. In 1815, however, she ceased to be a port of entry, and her maritime interests dwindled and ceased altogether in 1845, when her last ship, the Martha, was sold and the odor of whale oil was wafted away forever from her wharves.

KEEPING COOL IN KITCHEN

Flies Must Be Kept Out, Fresh Air Admitted, Room Cleaned and Painted.

Keep cool in your kitchen this summer. It need not be necessary for any housewife to bake and broil and stew away in a hot kitchen if she will only plan a little. And the time to begin planning is now. Keeping cool is largely a matter of psychology. A dirty, disorderly kitchen with flies buzzing about its smoke-grimed ceiling will seem ten degrees hotter than a kitchen kept cool and straight, even if the thermometers in the two rooms register the same.

Begin, then, with keeping out the flies. See that the window screens are in good condition; and screen in the back porch. If there are not enough windows in the kitchen to give good cross ventilation, have another one cut. You can't expect to be comfortable in the summer time without an abundance of fresh air.

If the kitchen walls are dark and discolored with the winter's smoke, have them cleaned and painted with a waterproof paint. This is better than wall paper, since it can be washed when soiled. Choose a soft, restful color, as blues, grays or greens, which are cool and pretty.—Kansas Industrialist.

REVENUE FROM SEA BIRDS.

The Siamese government derives a considerable annual revenue from the rental of the islands on which breed the sea-swallows, whose nests are of edible nature. There are between four and five hundred of these islands, the majority of which lie off the east coast of the Siamese-Malayan provinces, especially that of Bandon. Here, in the bay that takes its name from the province, and between the mainland and the large islands Koh Pungunn and Koh Samine, stretching northward for a hundred and fifty miles or so, are the masses of volcanic rock that are the all-the-year-round home of literally millions of the birds.

THE AMERICAN RUSH.

The American host had given a reception for the distinguished foreigner.

Suddenly the advancing line broke and in a moment the room was empty.

"Wh—what is wrong?" stammered the guest.

"Why, nothing," replied the host.

"Then why do they all run out?"

"The refreshment room doors have just been opened," replied the host.

Whereupon the amazed foreigner made a note of it.

FAME.

"Our ancestors came over in the Mayflower."

"That's nothing. I have relatives still living who have been offered big money to go into vaudeville."

MISS CASH.

Hewitt—He married a girl with money in her own name.

Jewitt—Is that so?

Hewitt—Yes; her name was Cash.

WAS JUST A HOME WEDDING

How the Colored Woman Arranged a Second Marriage Without Troubling About Divorce.

William L. Bodine was called upon at a recent banquet given for sociologists at the Sherman, and he told this as a true story:

"A colored woman was brought before Judge Goodnow in the municipal court. She was there to appear against her supposed husband, arrested for abandonment. The supposed husband claimed he had deserted the woman, but he was only a second husband.

"'Is your first husband dead?' asked the judge as he turned to the woman.

"'No, sah; he's simply husky with health, but I ain't lived with him for five years.' came the answer.

"'Then were you divorced?' asked the judge.

"'No; dat man wasn't worth no divorce.'

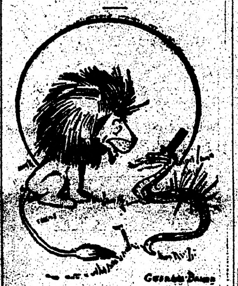
"The judge became interested and asked: 'You say this is your second husband. Were you married by a minister or a judge?'

"'No, sir; it was jest a home weddin.'

"'Just a home wedding. What do you mean by a home wedding?' asked the judge.

"'Well, you see it was jest disaway. Yo' honah, aftah mah husband deserted me and I waited five years I met this man. We took a shine to each other. We decided ter git married. We made up our minds ter git married at home. So I jest went and got the marriage 'tificate I had when I was married de fust time and scratched out de fust man's name and I wrote in the name of dis man.'"

WHAT AILED HIM



The Lion—What's the matter, Mr. Snake? It looks as though you had experimented with some hair grower.

The Snake—No, I swallowed a porcupine.

FATE OF THE POLARIS.

The Polaris, with Charles Francis Hall in command, had been sent out by the United States government on a scientific expedition, and had reached the most northern point ever attained by a vessel. In the autumn of 1872 the Polaris ran into an impassable ice floe, and remained there for two months. Nineteen persons, including some of the crew and some of the Eskimos on board, left the ship, which was leaking badly. They took supplies and camped on the ice, intending to make for the land. They had not gone far when a terrific gale blew up and they found themselves unable to reach either the ship or the land. Then the ice split and they were set adrift on the floe. Having supplies, they were able to live, but they faced the prospect of certain destruction in case of a severe storm, and the ice floe began to diminish in size as they drifted southward. However, they were all rescued. They numbered, in fact, one more than when they had started on their strange voyage, for the Eskimo Hannah had given birth to a girl.

HIS APOLOGY.

"Sorry, old man, I called you a fool. I should have remembered the well-known injunction."

"You mean the verse which says that he who calls his brother a fool is in danger of everlasting fire?"

"No, I mean the saying: 'The truth should not be spoken at all times.'"

A COLLECTOR.

Howell—He is always under the doctor's care; what is the matter with him?

Powell—Nothing; he is just getting a collection of surgical operations.

Died Very Suddenly

On Monday, Rev. M. B. Ordahl was at Middle River to officiate at funeral of Oscar Olson, aged 29, who died very suddenly on Friday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Olson, about four miles east of that village. It seems that the deceased had not been feeling well for a couple of days and on Thursday drove from his homestead near Benwood to Middle River for medical attention. He did not seem to be seriously ill and went to the home of his parents to visit for a short time. On Friday he grew rapidly worse and died very quickly. The doctor in attendance said his death was caused by infantile paralysis. He leaves a widow and three small children to mourn the loss of a kind and loving husband and father, who was highly respected by all who knew him.

Murder or Suicide?

"Lost—A little, fat, grey, pug dog; lost him at Holt on the fourth. Finder will please notify Alf. Skjevland, Newfolden, Minn."

The above advertisement appeared in this paper two weeks ago and our army of readers forthwith began to search for the missing pet. After several days he was found in a well at the Holt creamery. The finder says the owner is welcome to him, if he wants him and is willing to pay for the removal of the body, funeral expenses and the labor of cleaning out the well. No inquest was held, but it is said that the intelligent canine, a Newfolden dog, had followed the crowd from that place off the baseball field here when the game was called off, and was so disgusted with the ball players in general, that he committed suicide and tried to inter his own remains at the same time in order to save post mortem expenses. Others intimate that the pup was in an ugly mood as the result of the baseball fiasco; that he turned up both ends and marched off the field with the others from Newfolden; that he voiced his indignation too freely among his associates and was foully murdered by some other angry pup. Being a pug, he was probably pugnacious, now he isn't. Pete Anderson, the buttermaker here, and Les Silbaugh, his assistant, will swear that he was found he was not only dead, but terribly turned up and wrinkled. He had a turned up point at each end before he turned up missing, and had turned up his toes before he finally turned up dead.

H. O. Lidenberg, state dairy inspector, dropped in yesterday to take a look at local conditions and remained over night.

WASHBURN'S LIFE HANGS BY THREAD

FORMER SENATOR HASTENS FROM EUROPE THAT HE MAY DIE IN OLD HOME.

RACING WITH DEATH.

Last Few Miles of Journey—Life Prolonged by Extraordinary Vitality of Venerable Man.

Minneapolis, July 23. — William D. Washburn, former United States senator from Minnesota, and famous miller, lumberman and railway builder, is near death at "Fair Oakes," his Minneapolis home. It was said at the Washburn residence that he was low having been in an unconscious state a greater portion of the night.

Mr. Washburn's expressed wish to die at "Fair Oaks" resulted in his being rushed to Minneapolis on a special train over the Soo road. When the train carrying him and members of his family arrived at the North side Soo station, the former senator was unconscious and was taken to his home in an ambulance.

The private car of Mr. Washburn was cut from the regular train at Cardigan Junction, Wis., and a special engine attached to make the race against death over the road which Mr. Washburn himself built. The special arrived 30 minutes ahead of the schedule for the train from which he was taken.

Drs. Eitel, Roberts and White held a consultation at the Washburn home after the arrival of the venerable occupant. According to the doctors, Mr. Washburn is suffering from a general breakdown and his death is only a question of a few hours. They said that he had been unconscious practically all of the time, except for occasional moments when he would show signs of growing stronger. For only a few moments he was able to talk to members of his family. The doctors explained that his living depended solely upon his vitality, which was gradually growing weaker, although remarkable for a man of Mr. Washburn's age.

The first news of Mr. Washburn's condition was received in Minneapolis Saturady when a telegram came from E. C. Washburn his son, from Sault Ste. Marie. The telegram announced that the doctors had said that Mr. Washburn's death was a matter of only a few hours and asked W. D. Washburn, Jr., to meet the train.

Mr. Washburn and Dr. G. G. Eitel left at once, after making arrangements with the Soo line for a special train. Mr. Washburn met the train carrying his father at Rhinelander.

Mr. Washburn and his wife were returning from a trip to Europe. They went there last Febuary for the benefit of Mr. Washburn's health. Sailing from New York, Mr. and Mrs. Washburn went to Naples and later to Carlsbad.

Mr. Washburn suddenly found himself ill and doctors at Carlsbad advised him to hurry home. Accordingly, they went to England and immediately sailed oevr the shorter northern route, arriving at Quebec Tuesday. Edwin C. Washburn, who was in the East joined his parents in Canada, after learning of his father's condition.

Mr. Washburn was 81 years old Jan. 14 last. Prior to leaving on the European trip, Mr. Washburn was able to be at his office in the Metropolitan Life building almost daily, but suffered considerably from failing sight.

113 CALL ON WILSON

Speaker Clark Leads Enthusiastic Band on Trip.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 23.—One hundred and thirteen democratic members of the national house of representatives, led by Speaker Champ Clark, paid their respects to Governor Wilson Saturday afternoon and listened to the maiden campaign speech by the governor as nominee for the presidency. So far as any one knows here it was the first time such a visit was ever paid.

"Co-operation between the national executive and congress to make living easier for the country," was the text of the governor's brief address and this was taken to give a line on the burden of the more ambitious speeches to be delivered later in the summer.

The governor also proved that he was a good mixer and good listener as well as a good talker, for he listened and talked about three hours, listening most of the time, and shook hands with about 1,500 persons between whiles.

Iowa "Third Party" Forming.

Des Moines, Iowa, July 23.—The first formal step toward the formation of a third political party in Iowa was taken when practically every county in the state held a convention and elected delegates to the Iowa Progressive convention to be held here July 24. Bandana handkerchiefs were displayed prominently at a majority of the meetings, according to reports received here. Many counties adopted resloutions denouncing the Chicago convention.

LOOK AFTER YOUR HEALTH

If Your System Is Kept Toned Up You Will Escape Many Diseases That Find Easy Victims Among Pale People.

Enough disease germs enter the average human body every day to cause death if the healthful organism did not combat these germs and render them harmless.

Let the human system become run down, or debilitated, and this power of resistance to disease is weakened. Soon the disease germs get the upper hand, an acute sickness follows or the patient becomes a chronic invalid.

It is in the blood that the battle to maintain the health is fought. Keep the blood toned up, the bowels open and observe ordinary care as regards food and rest and you will avoid much sickness.

Debility is not a recognized disease but is a condition in which the sufferer cannot get a good night's sleep, wakes up all tired out, has no strength or ambition, is nervous, has a poor appetite, has trouble with the stomach, and is subject to headaches and backaches. It is most commonly met with in people who have to work hard, are confined indoors, eat improper food or have worries and grief.

The case of Mrs. M. V. McCaslin, of No. 202 South 27th Street, Lincoln, Neb., shows the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a tonic for all run-down conditions of health. She says:

"I gave Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People a trial for general debility from which I had been suffering about three years. I was thoroughly tired and worn out and had no ambition for anything. I became very weak and kept losing strength. My appetite was poor and I was nervous and had severe headaches.

"I needed a tonic treatment and tried several tonic remedies but none seemed to help me until I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I was soon much improved in health and able to get around and do my work. I took the pills until cured and am pleased to recommend them to anyone who is run down in health."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are for sale by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50 by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Voice of Conscience.

A western Kentucky negro was in jail awaiting trial for stealing a calf. His wife called to see him. On her way out the jailer, whose name was Grady, halted her.

"Mandy," he inquired, "have you got a lawyer for Jim?"

"No, sah," said his wife. "Ef Jim was guilty I'd git him a lawyer right away; but he tells me he ain't guilty, and so, of co'se, I ain't aimin' to hire none."

"Mr. Grady," came a voice from the cells above, "you tell dat nigger woman down thar to git a lawyer—and git a dam good one, too!"—Saturday Evening Post.

A Perfectly Digested Breakfast Makes Nerve Force for the Day.

Everything goes wrong if the breakfast lies in your stomach like a mud pie. What you eat does harm if you can't digest it—it turns to poison.

A bright lady teacher found this to be true, even of an ordinary light breakfast of eggs and toast. She says:

"Two years ago I contracted a very annoying form of indigestion. My stomach was in such condition that a simple breakfast of fruit, toast and egg gave me great distress.

"I was slow to believe that trouble could come from such a simple diet, but finally had to give it up, and found a great change upon a cup of hot Postum and Grape-Nuts with cream, for my morning meal. For more than a year I have held to this course and have not suffered except when injudiciously varying my diet.

"I have been a teacher for several years and find that my easily digested breakfast means a saving of nervous force for the entire day. My gain of ten pounds in weight also causes me to want to testify to the value of Grape-Nuts.

"Grape-Nuts holds first rank at our table."

JURIST ACCUSED, RESIGNS

GIVES AS REASON THAT HE CANNOT STAND STRAIN OF WORK.

Federal Jurist Gives Up Office While Impeachment Proceedings Are Under Way.

Seattle, Wash., July 23. — Federal Judge Cornelius H. Hanford has telegraphed his resignation to President Taft.

This action, taken suddenly, brought to a dramatic climax the impeachment investigation by a committee from the lower house of congress, which was ordered in the adoption of a resolution introduced by Congressman Berger of Wisconsin.

In his telegram to the president, Judge Hanford gave as his reason for resigning that he cannot stand the strain under which he is compelled to work now and that he desires to retire while he still has some health left.

The effect of the resignation upon the impeachment proceedings is uncertain. As soon as the judge's resignation was announced, Chairman Graham adjourned the committee, and it is said that nothing further will be done until the committee hears from the house of representatives, as to whether it should continue work.

The events leading up to the resignation came rapidly. Following reports that further sensational testimony against the judge was about to be produced, Judge Hanford himself and Attorney Hughes, his attorney, appeared at the federal building and were closeted with the congressional committee taking testimony.

LORIMER IN WRECK.

Blonde Boss and Party Have a Narrow Escape.

Claysville, Pa., July 23. — William Lorimer, the Illinois senator recently deprived of his seat by the United State senate, was cut, bruised and stunned when his automobile was wrecked one mile west of here. Mr. Lorimer was not seriously hurt but had a narrow escape. His private secretary and chauffeur, sustained scratches. All three proceeded to Chicago by train.

Mr. Lorimer and party left Washington Saturday morning enroute to Chicago in a large touring car. Shortly after passing Claysville, a fractious horse driven by William McCoombs, a farmer was encountered. In an effort to avoid a collision the automobile crashed into a telegraph pole. The three occupants were thrown out.

The former senator was the first to recover his feet and rushed to the aid of the farmer, who was having difficulty restraining the frightened horse. In a few moments the horse was calmed and Mr. Lorimer collapsed and fell unconscious to the muddy roadway. He was revived and helped to this place, where his injuries were given medical attention.

Government Issues Jingle on Rats.

Washington, July 23. — The fight against rats, as protection from the invasion of the bubonic plague, is the subject of warning and advice from the public health service in a report circulated. This fact is emphasized by the following jingle:

Roosevelt and Flynn Confer.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 23.—An important step in the formation of the National Progressive party will come up for decision at a conference between Colonel Roosevelt and ex-State Senator William Flinn of Pittsburg. The colonel said that he had received word that Mr. Flinn had left Pittsburg for Oyster Bay. When he arrives Colonel Roosevelt will give his final word in regard to methods upon which he will insist in the selection of candidates for presidential electors.

SPLENDID OUTLOOK FOR CROPS IN WESTERN CANADA

RELIABLE INFORMATION FROM THE GRAIN FIELDS SHOW THAT THE PROSPECTS ARE GOOD.

This is the time of year when considerable anxiety is felt in all the northern agricultural districts as to the probable outcome of the growing crops. Central Canada, comprising the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, with their 16,000,000 acres of wheat, oats, barley and flax, of which 6,000,000 acres may be said to be sown to wheat alone, has become a great factor in the grain markets of the world. Besides this, government returns show that every state in the Union has representatives in these provinces, and naturally the friends of these representatives are anxious to hear of their success. It has never been said of that country that it is absolutely faultless. There are, and have been, districts that have experienced the vagaries of the weather, the same as in districts south of the boundary line between the two countries, but these are only such as are to be expected in any agricultural country. The past has proven that the agricultural possibilities of this portion of Canada are probably more attractive in every way than most countries where grain raising is the chief industry. The present year promises to be even better than past years, and in a month or six weeks it is felt there will be produced the evidence that warrants the enthusiasm of the present. Then these great broad acres will have the ripened wheat, oats, barley and flax, and the farmer, who has been looking forward to making his last payment on his big farm will be satisfied. At the time of writing, all crops give the promise of reaching the most sanguine expectations.

In the central portion of Alberta, it is said that crop conditions are more favorable than in any previous year. Heavy rains recently visited this part, and the whole of this grain growing section has been covered. Reports like the following come from all parts:

"Splendid heavy rain yesterday. Crops forging ahead. Great prospects. All grains more than a week ahead of last year. Weather warm last week. Good rains last night."

From southern Alberta the reports to hand indicate sufficient rain. Crops in excellent condition. Labor scarce.

Throughout Saskatchewan all grains are looking well, and there has been sufficient rain to carry them through to harvest.

From all portions of Manitoba there comes an assurance of an abundant yield of all grains. Throughout southern Manitoba, where rain was needed a few weeks ago, there has lately been abundant precipitation, and that portion of the province will in all probability have a crop to equal the best anticipations. A large quantity of grain was sown on the stubble in the newer west, which is never a satisfactory method of farming, and may reduce the general average.

Taken altogether, the country is now fully two weeks in advance of last year, and in all grains the acreages sown are much larger than in 1911. This means that with auspicious weather the west will have the grandest harvest in its history. Two hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat has been mentioned as an estimate of the present growing crop, and it looks now as if that guess will be none too large.

He was a small boy with a dark, eager face and he was waiting at the end of the line of eight or ten persons for a chance to make his wants known to the librarian. When his turn came he inquired briefly: "Have you got 'Twenty Thousands Legs Under the Sea'?"

"No," responded the librarian a little snappishly, for she was tired, "I'm thankful to say I've only got two. They're not under the sea!"

ECZEMA CAME ON SCALP

Lebanon, O.—"My eczema started on my thigh with a small pimple. It also came on my scalp. It began to itch and I began to scratch. For eighteen or twenty years I could not tell what I passed through with that awful itching. I would scratch until the blood would soak through my underwear, and I couldn't talk to my friends on the street but I would be digging and punching that spot, until I was very much ashamed. The itching was so intense I could not sleep after once in bed and warm. I certainly suffered torment with that eczema for many years.

"I chased after everything I ever heard of, but all to no avail. I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample. Imagine my delight when I applied the first dose to that awful itching fire on my leg and scalp, in less than a minute the itching on both places ceased. I got some more Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After the second day I never had another itching spell, and Cuticura Soap and Ointment completely cured me. I was troubled with awful dandruff all over my scalp. The Cuticura Soap has cured that trouble." (Signed) L. R. Fink, Jan. 22, 1912.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

How Mrs. Reed of Peoria, Ill., Escaped The Surgeon's Knife.

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For two years I suffered. The doctor said I had a tumor and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a well and healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. I am glad to tell anyone what your medicines have done for me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. Christina Reed, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Mrs. Lynch Also Avoided Operation.

Jessup, Pa.—"After the birth of my fourth child, I had severe organic inflammation. I would have such terrible pains that it did not seem as though I could stand it. This kept up for three long months, until two doctors decided that an operation was needed.

"Then one of my friends recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after taking it for two months I was a well woman."—Mrs. Joseph A. Lynch, Jessup, Pa.

Women who suffer from female ills should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of the most successful remedies the world has ever known, before submitting to a surgical operation.

NO RIVER IMPROVEMENT.

Wilkinson Says System Stands Where It Did Half Century Ago.

Winona.—"In no branch of commercial activity in this country has there been so great a lack of development and progress as in river transportation and terminals. The whole system stands today where it stood fifty years ago. The old-fashioned methods do not in any way meet modern requirements. They are archaic and out of date."

This was the keynote statement of Thomas Wilkinson of Burlington, Ia., president of the Upper Mississippi River Improvement association in an address before the commercial bodies in this city. He recently attended a waterways meeting in Taylor's Falls, and is spreading the gospel of improved terminals and harbors in the different Mississippi cities.

He predicted a great revival of the river traffic as soon as the Panama canal is completed, but said that unless cities and towns establish docks and induce river trade, railway lines and high rates will continue.

HENRY POEHLER CALLED

Pioneer Business Man of Minnesota Dies.

Minneapolis. — Henry Poehler, who was head of the H. Poehler company of Minneapolis, one of the oldest business houses in Minnesota, is dead at the home of his sister, Mrs. Charles Comnick, in Henderson, Minn., where he had settled in 1853, and where, in 1855, he had founded the firm of which he was the head.

Of late years he had made his home in Los Angeles, Cal., but he had always regarded Henderson as his real home, and it was as if with premonition of his approaching death that he had hastened his return from California about three weeks ago and had gone to the old home last Saturday after a visit with his sons in Minneapolis.

Mr. Poehler was born in Hiddessen, Lippe Detmold, Germany, August, 22, 1833.

BAD STORM IN STEELE CO.

Crops in Southern Section Damaged by Cloudburst and High Wind.

Owatonna.—Owatonna was visited by one of the most severe rain and electrical storms in years. Lightning struck the large barn of C. Markson and destroyed it, killing one horse and permanently injuring another. The barn of L. Larson was also destroyed by fire from lightning. A party of autoists returning from a baseball game at Austin, including about twenty cars, was caught in the storm, which was a veritable cloudburst accompanied by heavy wind. Many trees were destroyed near the city.

Rev. Wm. Naeseth of Decorah, Iowa, will fill Mr. Haugen's pulpit during his absence.

Leaps Into Lake, A Human Rocket.

Minneapolis. — With his clothing aflame and his eyebrows, lashes and hair singed when the striking of a match ignited pools of gasoline on a launch in a dark boathouse, George V. Thomson, vice president of the Peerless Brick Machinery company and son-in-law of Emery Mapes, millionaire cereal manufacturer, sprang like a human rocket through a window into the waters of Lake Minnetonka at Cottagewood, and escaped without injury. His young wife witnessed her husband's spectacular leap.

Swedish Singers In Duluth.

Duluth. — The Western American Union of Swedish Singers will meet here July 22 to 25, inclusive. The union is now celebrating its twentieth anniversary, it having been organized Thanksgiving day, 1892, at a meeting in Chicago, to which nine societies had sent delegates. Today the union numbers over 1,000 singers belonging to more than fifty different singing clubs in America. Elaborate preparations have been made for the welcoming to Duluth of the singers.

Call Gift a Bribe.

Minneapolis.—From the mere belief that Minneapolis should be the pioneer city in opposing all such donations for libraries and schools as the offer of $125,000 to the Minneapolis library board had been made by Andrew Carnegie, the insurgent faction has advanced to the stand that the magnate's gift is nothing short of an attempted bribe. This belief was embodied in the resolutions which were introduced at the meeting of the Twelfth Ward Equality club, by Alderman Barr and S. A. Stockwell.

WELCOME WAS ROYAL.

Redwood Falls Tourists Greeted by Fireworks and Music on Return.

Redwood Falls.—When the autoists from this city who participated in the sociability run to the Twin Cities neared home, they saw the heavens filled with skyrockets and Roman candles; they heard the strains of music and the shouts of 2,500 of their townsmen. Arriving in the city they were met by a band and paraded through the streets, along which red fire burned at every corner.

Twenty automobiles left here to meet the returning autoists at Morton, and the procession into the city was participated in by seventy-five cars. The supply of fireworks was touched off from the top of the court house. H. M. Hitchcock gave an address of welcome to the returning motorists and Senator Frank Clague and A. H. Enerson responded.

All the cities along the line of return entertained the visitors hospitably, in several places greeting them with a band. Members of the Redwood Falls Automobile club are elated over the success of the four-day trip, which covered 402 miles.

BURIED UNDER ORE.

Car Inspector Meets Frightful Death at Missabe Ore Docks.

Duluth. — Ole Wang, aged thirty-eight years, met a terrible death at the Missabe ore docks, although the accident was not witnessed. He was a car inspector and fell through an ore pocket into a freight boat and was buried under tons of ore. When he was missed a search was made and the body recovered. Wang left a widow and one daughter.

Poor Farm Has Iron Ore.

Brainerd.—Two proposals have been received for a mining lease on the poor farm property of Crow Wing county. J. F. Dykeman of Brainerd offered 28 cents a long ton with a minimum tonnage of 10,000 tons for the first two years, 25,000 tons for the next three years, and 50,000 tons for the next forty-five years, or until the ore is exhausted. J. R. Mitchell of Minneapolis also made an offer.

At the next general election, the people of Crow Wing county will vote on the question of charging from the county system of caring for the poor to the town system.

Dam Site Will Be Improved.

Little Falls. — Surveyors have finished a complete survey of the Pike Rapids dam site four miles south of Little Falls on the Mississippi for Frank H. Parsons, of New York, who recently bought the property. In acquiring title Mr. Parsons purchased 400 acres on both sides of the river. He is president of the Little Falls Waterpower company and plans on visiting the city for the purpose of investigating the property with a view to improving it. The local company is furnishing electric current to near-by villages and more power will probably be needed for this purpose.

Bequest For Senator Nelson.

Washington, D. C.—Although it is probable that receipt of a bequest from Norway will have no influence upon the decision Senator Nelson is expected to make one of these days regarding his candidacy to succeed himself in the United States senate, note should be taken of the fact that formal information came to the senator from a probate court in Norway that he is remembered as a legatee of a deceased aunt. By the will the senator gent 30 odd crowns, or $8.

Washington politicians are doing a good deal of thinking and very little talking for publication about the third party movement just now, Mr. Merriam says. They are not declaring themselves.

Devotion to Sweetheart Leads Arrest

Minneapolis. — If George Leavitte had not had a sweetheart in Chicago and had not gone to see her brother in a pool hall there to make an appointment with her, he would not have been arrested, brought back to Minneapolis, and convicted of a swindling charge two years ago. His attempt to make an appointment with the same brother of the same sweetheart put him in the hands of the police there again on a similar charge, after Minneapolis detectives had trailed him nearly two months.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. Frederick D. Rogers, of Chicago, Ill., says: I have found Fletcher's Castoria very useful in the treatment of children's complaints.

Dr. William C. Bloomer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: In my practice I am glad to recommend your Castoria, knowing it is perfectly harmless and always satisfactory.

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

The Giveaway.

"Jane," said her father, "how does it happen that I find four good cigars on the mantelpiece this morning? Did Henry leave them for me?"

"No; he took them out of his vest pocket to avoid breaking them last night, and I guess he forgot all about them afterwards."

The laugh that followed made her wish that she had been as careful with her speech as Henry had been with his cigars.—Detroit Free Press.

The Middle-Aged Woman.

Of the many ways in which the middle-aged woman may vary the effect of her afternoon gowns none is simpler than the use of a collar and cuffs of white voile edged with scalloping and embroidery in a floral design. Another change may be the frock set of white chiffon with border of black malines, and still another is the one of black net hemstitched with silver thread. Some of these collars are so long in front that they terminate only at the waist line, where they cross in surplice effect and are tucked away under the girdle. An excellent model of this sort is of light blue lawn embroidered with black dots, and a second is of white argaric trimmed with tiny folds of broadcloth, alternating with eponge.

Be a booster—not a knocker.

The Duluth Herald seems to be going plumb daffy for fear that the "new party" will be organized and divert the votes of all the progressives from Woodrow Wilson, the democratic nominee for president.

A report has been started from Crookston that the Roosevdlt strength in Polk county is rapidly dying out. Our opinion is that if Roosevdlt be nominated by a new party organization, Polk county will give him a clear majority over both Taft and Wilson.

When a tree falls into decay and a healthy young shoot starts from its roots, will the intelligent gardener cut down the shoot and try to doctor up the rotten old trunk? This would seem to illustrate the precise relation of the old Republican party and the proposed new party.

Mayor Marschalk of Warroad, has filed as a candidate for representative to succeed G. H. Mattson, of Roseau. This district is entitled to two representatives and Marshall county is conceded to be entitled to one of them, and its pretty near time that he should make his deal with Roseau county people and announce his candidacy.

The annual report of the earnings of the Great Northern railway, for the year ending June 30, is stated to show the biggest share balance in in the history of the company. All the Minnesota railroads have waxed fat since the Sanborn decision which permitted their increasing their rates to suit the amount of dividends desired.

Comes now the state of Georgia with a disgraceful story surpassing that of Kansas last fall, when a gang of young men whipped a young woman. The Georgia affair tells of a father organizing a gang of criminals and taking a young woman and whipping her almost to death because she loved his son and was beloved by him. In parts of the south it would seem to be a crime to be human, and things happen yet that justify mob law.

It is announced that P. M. Ringdal will probably be the choice of the democratic organization for governor, the only thing lacking being Mr. Ringdal's definite consent. Minnesota has few better citizens than P. M. Ringdal; in fact, he is almost too clean a man for the political game as it is played. One obstacle in the way of his nomination is the knowledge by the democratic politicans that they could not control him if he were nominated and elected.

The Minneapolis Journal attempts to point out that it is the fate of new parties to have their platforms stolen by the old ones and then die, citing the history of the Populist party, wherein the leading planks were taken by Bryan, as the Democratis nominee in the campaign of 1896. After stealing the best things in the Populist platform, Bryan was given the endorsemdnt of that party and then the reason for the existence of the populists ceased, because their thunder was embodied in the Democratic party. What the Journal fails to point out is that the new (Populist) party committed suicide when it went into the camp of the old party, and also that its sacrifice was in vain, as Bryan was defeated. Tho not intended, the Journal points out good reasons why a new party should be formed in the public interests, and also why people, who feel favorably inclined to such a party, should not support the democratic ticket.

EFFECT OF FEAR ON BIRDS

Keeps Them From Reproducing Themselves—No Animal Ever Fully Recovers From Fright.

Birds are wonderfully acted upon by fear. Darwin has said, "No discontented animal reproduces itself." It is equally noticeable that no animal or bird that is affected by fear will reproduce itself.

This is the case in all orders of animal life. When an animal or bird is frightened it never recovers from it, as is seen in the case of a horse when frightened somewhere on the road; it always keeps in memory the source and location of its scare. Sheep that are once frightened by dogs never do well afterward; so with birds when they have been pursued by the hunter on their feeding or breeding grounds; they never return to that spot again.

This element of fear which so acts upon the bird is still more effective in insect life. It is not so much the number of insects that are killed or eaten by the birds as it is the active principle of fear, and that element of life called self-preservation, which the bird creates and incites in all lower orders of insect life that prevents the insect from reproducing, and this is what the bird indirectly accomplishes, and is the greatest purpose of its existence.

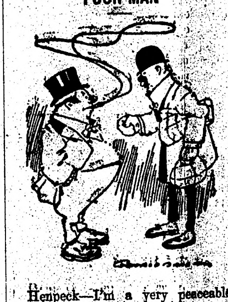
Insect life has no particular fear of man. It appears to be endowed with a consciousness that man is unable to cope with it, or to observe its presence or increase; it recognizes only the bird as its natural enemy and source of destruction.—Rural Life.

DOCTOR'S CANE IS OBSOLETE

Until Recent Times No Medical Man Made a Professional Visit Without It.

The physician's cane is a very ancient part of his insignia. It is now disused, but up to very ancient times no doctor of medicine would have presumed to pay a professional visit, or even to be seen in public without this mystical wand. Long as a footman's stick, smooth and varnished, with a heavy gold knob or cross-bar at the top, it was an instrument with which, down to the present century, every prudent aspirant to medical practice was provided. The celebrated "gold-headed cane" which Radcliffe, Mead, Askew, Pitcairn and Baillie successively bore, is preserved in the College of Physicians, bearing the arms which those gentlemen assumed, or were entitled to. In one respect it differed from the physician's cane proper; it had a crossbar, almost like a crook; whereas a physician's wand ought to have a knob at the top. This knob in olden times was hollow and contained a vinaigrette, which the man of science always held to his nose when he approached a sick person, so that its fumes might protect him from the noxious exhalations of his patient.—John Cordy Jeaffreson's "A Book About Doctors."

POOR MAN



Henpeck—I'm a very peaceable man, but there's one fellow that I'm just waiting for an opportunity to lick.

Henderson—Who's that?

Henpeck—The man who first introduced me to my wife.

USES FOR PUTTY.

If a piece of putty is wrapped in oiled paper and kept in a covered tin can it will keep pliable for a long time, and it may be used in many ways in a pinch.

One housewife used putty to mend a galvanized washtub where it was spread at the seams. It was plastered around the seams and allowed to harden before it was used and was found to be water tight.

If a caster is loose fill the space with soft putty, insert the stem of the caster, and when dry it will be held securely in place.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SOME SPOONERISMS OF NOTE

Really Remarkable Slips of the Tongue That Have Added to the Gayety of Nations.

A "Spoonerism" is the name given in England to one of those involuntary inversions of words that occasionally enliven conversation. As for instance, when the returned traveler tells of "rambling up the scalps" while in Switzerland and one knows that he means "rambling up the Alps," but has simply perpetrated a Spoonerism," so called after a canon of New college, Oxford, who achieved a long and exhilarating list of these slips.

Some of the more famous "Spoonerisms" are recorded in the form of a narrative of a returning vicar who, on reaching the station left his "rags and a bug" with a porter while he went to the refreshment room for "a bath of milk and a glass gun."

During the course of an address on "Kindness to Animals" the lecturer remarked that "in Piedmont, where the sheep are so cherished, a flock would willingly follow a shoving leopard."

HER LESSON IN ARITHMETIC

Small Girl Had Done All She Could to Remedy Mother's Deficiencies.

Martha heard someone speak of her mother's deficiencies in arithmetic—which are perfectly visible to the naked eye—so she came and sat down beside her gravely and began:

"Mother, take four from fourteen and how much does that leave?"

"Ten," proclaimed the parent, thinking she was teaching the little one her lesson.

"Now, three from eight—that's rather hard, you know."

"Yes, it's frequently gotten on my nerves, too—but it eventually leaves five."

"And four from five."

"One," exclaimed her elder from the proud pinnacle of perfect knowledge, thinking also what a nice teacher she was.

Martha rose with a sigh of relief from the region of her pinafore, and said kindly, but with some condescension, "Well, now you have learned that much, anyway."—Lippincott's.

CANAL ZONE POLICE.

They have different looking policemen on the American side of the zone line; tall, bronzed, former troopers of the United States cavalry, in the smart khaki uniform of the zone police. These are the men who have made brigandage a lost art on the isthmus, and have taught the Panamanians to vote with ballots instead of machetes and Mauser rifles. Two hundred of this efficient little military constabulary, much resembling the Canadian northwest mounted police, keep the 400 square miles of the canal zone as peaceful as a New England village Sunday morning, and anyone who mistakes it for a lawless frontier community is likely to find himself making roads with the rest of the chain gang.—St. Nicholas.

CATS MUST WEAR COLLARS.

Not long ago Munich decided to impose a tax on cats, and now the Swiss capital of Berne is thinking of doing the same thing. "Far too many pussies!" is the cry; and it is high time that every cat, as in Munich, should wear a collar, showing to whom she belongs, or be taken up as having no visible means of subsistence, as a rogue and vagabond, and put out of existence. It is complained that in Berne and the surrounding district there is an altogether immoderate number of cats, and that they wage incessant war on the none too numerous wild singing birds, which are much prized in Switzerland.

RARE JEWEL.

"As others have said before me," said Dobbleigh, "consistency is a jewel."

"I have reason to doubt the truth of that ancient saw," observed Sinnickus.

"And what is that reason?" asked Dobbleigh.

"Women are fond of jewels," said Sinnickus.—Harper's Weekly.

A SWEEPING STATEMENT.

"How clear the horizon is?" remarked a young woman.

"Yes," agreed her humorous companion; "I've just swept it with my eye."—Answers.

Owner Viewed the Remains

Alf Skjevland, owner of the dear departed pug dog that is helping to make Newfolden famous, furnished a good argument in favor of the merits of THE NORTHERN LIGHT as an advertising medium when he came over on Sunday to investigate the demise of the purp, which we told of in our last issue. From what we are told about his visit, we opine that Mr. Skjevland was seeing red and talking blue, and seemed to have something special to say to the buttermaker and the editor, but had the good fortune to find that they were both out of town. He got after Les Silbaugh and had the corpse of the dog taken up for examinotion. Les showed him the grave and they dug up a chunk of something that looked like a moldy pretzel turned inside out, but smelled decidedly like dead dog. We dont know what Mr. Skjevland may think, but the people here believe the dog fell in the well at the creamery and was very dead when taken out some days later.

SEEKS MATE FOR MOTHER.

Setting out to find a good husband for her mother, who wishes to be out on a ranch, "away from the city," is the task a young woman of Kansas City, Mo., has set for herself. She has written a letter to the mayor asking him to have it published in helping on the work she has undertaken, expressly with her mother's consent and approbation Her letter follows: "I have a mother and I want to find a good husband for her. She has two daughters, one eighteen years of age and the other one seventeen; one son, fourteen. She is a good housekeeper, neat and clean, and the man must have a home and plenty to provide for her. She has made so many wishes to be out on a ranch some place away from the city, and I asked her if I would find her a good husband, if she would have him, and she said 'Yes.' So I thought I would advertise for her. She dresses nice and pretty. Any man writing in answer to this must send photograph."

PARTY TO ENDURE EVEN IF DEFEATED

A PERMANENT INSTITUTION WHATEVER OUTCOME OF NOVEMBER ELECTION.

AN INDEPENDENT TICKET

Planned in Every State But Six —Working Program For Progressives Approved by T. R.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 30.—A working program for the new party has been approved by Colonel Roosevelt. Senator Dixon, his campaign manager, who has recently been in consulation with leaders of the movement, came to Oyster Bay to lay their views before the former president. After a long conference it became known that the fundamental question of policy and procedure had been agreed upon, subject to approval of the National Progressive convention which is to meet in Chicago next week.

The program which will be submitted to the convention contains these major provisions:

Independent tickets in every state except perhaps six, in which it is believed the Republican organizations can be taken over bodily.

A clean break from both of the old parties the Republican organizations which it is expected to capture, to be used as an integral portion of the new party.

Formation of the party with the idea that it is to endure permanently, whatever the outcome of the November election.

Senator Dixon was accompanied on his visit to Sagamore Hill by Dean Kirchwey, head of the law department of Columbia university and O. K. Davis, publicity manager of the new party. The senator said, after he had talked with Colonel Roosevelt, that straight national Progressive tickets would be run in every state except a few in which the Republican organizations would co-operate with the new party, and place Roosevelt candidates for electors on the regular ticket. This will be possible in states in which the law does not require the names of Taft and Sherman to be printed on the ballot as the Republican nominees.

The states in which there will be no independent ticket, he said, are Kansas, Nebraska, California, both the Dakotas and probably one or two others.

Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana, he said, probably will be the national Progressive candidate for governor of that state.

"Mr. Beveridge will be elected governor," the senator predicted. "We will carry Michigan, Illinois and Pennsylvania."

It was felt that a definite outline should be ready for submission to the Chicago convention and it was largely for this reason that Senator Dixon came on to Chicago for the conference.

In making up the independent tickets in various states candidates on either the Republican or Democratic ticket may be placed on the ballot, provided they agree to support the National Progressive electoral candidates.

In several states including Pennsylvania it is expected the entire Republican ticket for state officers will be placed on the National Progressive ticket.

Insistence upon making the party entirely independent is in accordance with the wishes of Colonel Roosevelt which insists that he and his associates must appeal to Democratic and Republicans alike and look beyond the present contest to the future, shaping their plans in such a way that the movement will go on whether defeat or victory comes at the end of the present campaign.

FIRES FIRST GUN.

Hilles Denounces Roosevelt As a Faker.

New York, July 30.—Making the direct charge that Roosevelt "faked" contests at Chicago and knows there is no truth in his charge that Taft was nominated by fraud, Chairman Hilles of the republican national committee fired the first gun in his battle against the bull moose movement. He denounced the Roosevelt methods in strong terms and asserted the bull moose men are endeavoring to becloud the issue. He said:

"The only possible justification of the avowed efforts of the third term party leaders to induce the republican electors in at least six states to betray their trust and cas their votes in the electoral college for former President Roosevelt would be the truth of the charge that President Taft was nominated by the fraudulent seating of a sufficient number of delegates to affect the choice of the national convention.

DECLINES NOMINATION.

Judge Dillon Regrets Factions Can't Get Together.

Columbus, Ohio, July 30.—Inability to reconcile the factions of the Republican party in the state was given as a reason by Common Pleas Judge E. B. Dillon of Columbus, Republican nominee for the governship in a public statement in which he said he would decline the nomination. He will present his withdrawal to the Republican committee.

Attorney General Wickersham has accepted the plan proposed by the meat packers for the voluntary dissolution of the National Packing Co.

SUGAR DUTY CUT BY SENATE

FIRST PURELY REPUBLICAN REVISION BILL ADOPTED.

Regulars Lead Progressives to Break Away from Alliance With Democrats.

Washington, July 30.—A Republican sugar tariff bill, the first purely Republican revision measure of the present congress, was adopted in the senate by a vote of 52 to 3.

Deserting their allies of the last two days, the Republican Progressives, by an iron-clad agreement with the regulars, succeeded in passing a tariff reduction bill which they believe President Taft will sign if it reaches him.

The sugar bill was a compromise between the Lodge plan and the Bristow bill. It would cut the present sugar duty of $1.90 to $1.60; would abolish the Dutch standard, under which practically no refined sugar can be imported; and would abolish the half-cent "refiners" differential.

The last is an additional duty on refined sugar, which, it is asserted, has accrued directly to the profit of the sugar refiners.

The Republicans played "big politics" in the third and last day's fight on tariff measures. The regulars came down from the $1.82½ duty of the Lodge bill, while the Progressives moved upward from the $1.52½ rate in the original Bristow bill.

The compromise, which is only 7½ cents above the lowest figures named by the Progressives, is considered a victory for Senator Bristow, who has been the most active advocate of sugar tariff reduction on the Republican side of the senate.

The senate Democrats then offered their substitute for the house bill, proposing a one-third reduction in the existing sugar tariff. This was defeated, 36 to 24, the Republican regulars and Progressives holding to their agreement. The Bristow-Lodge bill finally passed. In the final vote of 52 to 3, the negative votes were cast by Senators Heyburn, Republican, and Foster and Thornton, Democrats.

The attitude of the senate Democrats in finally supporting the Republican bill is expected to have influence with the Democrats of the house when the amended bill goes back there. The senate probably will name Senators Penrose and Lodge, Republicans, and Simmons, Democrat, on the conference committee.

SIX DIE ON CROSSING.

Three Others Hurt, Two Seriously, When Train Strikes Auto.

Toledo, Ohio, July 30.—Six persons were killed, two were probably fatally injured and another hurt, when a Lake Shore & Michigan Southern train struck an automobile containing nine persons at Alexis, about 12 miles from here. The dead are: Rudolph Cousino, aged 30, farmer, La Salle, Mich.; Eva Navaris, aged 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Navarre, La Pleasant, Mich.; Mrs. Louise Cousina, aged 30, wife of Lafayette Cousino, Lafayette Mich.; the 12 and 6-year-old sons and 4-year-old daughter of Rudolph Cousino.

Gov. Colquitt in the Lead.

Dallas, Texas, July 30.—With about two-thirds of the vote cast in Saturday's Democratic primary election accounted for, Governor Colquitt maintains a lead of about 8,000 over his competitor, Judge Ramsey. Congressman Morris Sheppard's lead for United States senator has increased with the fuller returns. He now has a majority of 12,000 over all his competitors.

Mikkelsen and Sversen Alive.

Copenhagen, July 30.—Captain Ejnar Mikkelsen, the Danish Arctic explorer, with the engineer, Sversen, accompanying him, both of whom started during the summer of 1910 to cross Greeland, have arrived at Aalesund. Captain Mikkelsen and Engineer Sversen formed part of an expedition which was organized in 1909 to discover the depot left by Mylius Erichsen, who with two companions, perished in Greenland in the previous year.

SENATE PASSES EXCISE BILL

SECOND DAY'S VICTORY FOR THE DEMOCRATIC-PROGRESSIVE COMBINATION.

REPEAL OF RECIPROCITY

Provision for This Act Is Included—Third Tariff Document, the Sugar Bill Considered Next.

Washington, July 29. — Democrats and Progressives united again in the senate and by a vote of 36 to 18 passed the Democratic excise tax bill, extending the present tax on corporations to the business of individuals, private firms and copartnerships. Attached to the measure, also by the aid of Republican votes, were amendments for the repeal of the Canadian reciprocity law, and the fixing of a $2 per ton tariff on print paper; and for the establishment of a permanent non-partisan tariff commission.

The second day's victory for the Democratic-Pregressive combination came after a debate lacking in interest.

The passage of the excise bill became certain early in the day; and the Republican leaders offered little opposition to it. Senator Borah in a fight to have his income tax bill substituted for the "tax on business," lost by a vote of 33 to 23, although he mustered to his support many of the regular Republicans and four Democrats—Ashurst, Culberson, Hitchcock and Martine.

The Democratic majority stood almost solidly against any change in theh ouse bill that would threaten its defeat. They declared the "tax on business" was clearly constitutional, while an income tax law had once been held unconstitutional by the supreme court, and might again suffer that fate, until the states ratify the amendment to the federal constitution.

On the passage of the excise bill the bills were supported by the following Progressives and insurgent Republicans: Bourne, Bristow, Clapp, Crawford, Cummins, Gronna, Jones, Kenyon, La Follette, Nelson, Poindexter, Townsend and Works.

The measure was changed from the original house bill only in minor particulars, except for the addition of the Canadian reciprocity repeal, and the permanent tariff commission provision.

It will go back to the house for the approval of that body and it is believed an agreement soon will be reached, so that a perfected measure can be laid before the president for his approval.

The excise measure would levy upon all persons, firms or copartnerships an annual tax equal to one per cent of net income in excess of $5,000.

Senator Cummins' permanent tariff board amendment, which was carried once Thursday in the wool fight and then lost in the final upheaval when the La Follette bill passed, was attached to the excise bill by a vote of 38 to 29. All of Democrats except Pomerene of Ohio voted against the tariff board, while all of the Republicans except Heyburn of Idaho supported it.

The chief fight, aside from that centering about Senator Borah's income tax measure, came upon the Candian reciprocity amendment offered by Senator Gronna of North Dakota.

The amendment adopted by the senate 37 to 26, provides for the complete repeal of the reciprocity law and for the establishment of a rate of $2 per ton on print paper imported from Canada, in place of the present duty of $3.75.

The senate made a change in the excise bill so that the tax would not apply to labor organization, agricultural associations or fraternal organizations of an insurance character. This amendment was offered by Senator Fletcher.

A plan to check the tobacco monopoly by a special excise tax on production above a certain amount, offered by Senator Hitchcock was defeated.

The Hitchcock proposal was a special tax on the production of more than 20,000,000 pounds of tobacco, 400,000,000 cigars, the same number of cigarets, and 4,000,000 pounds of snuff by any one company. For an annual production above this quantity the tax would rises rapidly, so that it would soon become prohibitive. Senator Hitchcock declared such a taxing system would curb a tobacco monopoly, which the government had failed to do through a mistake, a lack of judgment, connivance or in some other way."

The third of the Democratic tariff measures, the sugar bill, will come up next, under the agreement in the senate.

Testimony in Coroner's Court Establishes Fact.

New York, July 29.—Testimony that "Bridgie," Webber, in whose gambling house the murder gang which killed Herman Rosenthal is said to have congregated for the assassination, and Jack Sullivan, alleged go-between for certain of the police and gamblers, were in front of the Hotel Metropole at the time Rosenthal was slain, was given in cororner's court.

Result of the Primary.

It had been a hard day at the polls. The addition of nearly a thousand women's votes to the poll made the counting a prolonged proposition.

"Well, James," said Mrs. Wallicky, as her husband returned from his arduous duty as a teller, "how did the vote go?"

"Nine hundred and two votes for Bildad, seven hundred and fifty-three for Slathers, eight receipts for tomato ketchup, four wash lists and a milliner's bill," said Wallicky. "It was a mighty interesting vote."—Judge.

"How far is Australia from New York?" he was asked by a youthful feminine admirer.

"Well," he answered, thoughtfully, "I can't tell you in exact miles, but judging from the way I feel at the present moment it is so far from here that it would require about thirteen dollars to send a postcard home."

BEST DEFENCE AGAINST DISEASE

Is a Supply of Rich, Red Blood and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Are the Tonic to Use When the Blood Is Thin and Weak.

Thin, impure blood is an invitation to sickness. The blood is at work, day and night, to maintain the health and any lack of strength or purity in the blood is a weakness in the defense against disease. Anaemia is the doctor's name for lack of blood. There may be an actual loss in the quantity of the blood or one or more of its constituents may be lacking. Its surest symptom is pallor. Anaemia is particularly common in young girls from 14 to 17 years of age. It is not confined to them for it is this same lack of blood that prevents full recovery after the grip, fevers, malaria and operations and is present in old age and in persons who have been under an unusual physical or mental strain.

Mrs. Morgan Bowen, of No. 2631 Fillmore street, N. E. Minneapolis, Minn., says:

"When I was 15 years old I went into a decline and my parents feared I was going into consumption. I was sick for a year and was not able to do much of anything. The sickness came on me gradually. I was pale and seemed to lose my strength. I was attending school at Winona at the time and became so nervous that I had to give up my studies. My parents were alarmed about my condition as there had been consumption in the family.

"A friend advised my mother to give me Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and before I used them long I was much improved. I gave the pills a thorough trial and was fully restored to health. My health has been good since, but I always keep Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in the house and take them when I feel I need a tonic."

The tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills by building up the blood so that it can nourish and strengthen the weakened system has made hundreds of cures in the most severe disorders.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People should be used in anaemia, chlorosis or green sickness, sick headache, nervousness and for a general run-down condition of the health.

Send for free booklet, "Diseases of the Blood."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes, $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

WHITE PIMPLES ON HEAD

Ransom, Ill.—"The trouble started on our baby when he was only about two weeks old. Started like little white pimples, looked like an old scab of blood and matter. His whole head was covered for a few months, then it went to his ear, shoulders, and his whole body. It seemed to come out thick and sticky on his head, while on the other parts of his body it was more like water coming out of the skin. He would scratch until the eruption would be all covered with blood and gradually spread. The least little stir or rub would cause the sores to bleed, spread and itch. Never had a full night's sleep, restless all night.

"The sores were horrid to look at. It lasted until he was about two and a half years old. Then we saw an eczema advertisement in the paper to use ———, but it did no good. Then we used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. We put the Cuticura Ointment on thick at bed time and put a tight hood on so he could not scratch the sores. Then we washed it clean with Cuticura Soap and warm water twice a day, and he was completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. E. F. Sulzberger, Dec. 30, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

Little Study in Relative Value.

On the 2d of June Edward Albert, prince of Wales, was 18 years of age.

That means that he was old enough to rule the British empire if his father were to die.

But he won't be "of age" with all which that implies in English law until he is 21.

And he will not be free to choose a wife until he is 25.

An odd logic this—with 18 goes the rule of an empire; with 21 the power to incur debts, and with 25 the right to chose a wife.

This would make an anthropocentric world laugh in appreciation.—Chicago Post.

OFFICER IS "ROBBER."

Police Say Man Who Impersonated One of Force Faces Arrest.

Winona.—In the role of a patrolman, wearing a star and having in his possession a pair of handcuffs, a flashlight and a policeman's revolver, a bandit several days ago held up two couples across the lake, say the police, and they announce that within a short time he will be under arrest at his home in Kenton, Ohio.

The police say that Daniel Lynch and William Kopler, accompanied by two young women, strolled across the lake a few evenings ago, and while in the bluffs along the roadway were accosted by the man, who said he was a member of the department. He placed both men "under arrest," charge of the police, chained one of them to a tree and tussled with the other until he subdued him sufficiently to relieve him of his money. He then went through the other man's pockets, it is alleged.

The police found a pocketbook in the vicinity of the holdup, in which was a money order receipt. Through this they traced the owner of the pocketbook, they say, to Kenton, Ohio. The man under suspicion just returned home from a trip to the Northwest.

SEEKS PLAT VACATION.

Believed Oliver Company Would Facilitate Operation of Pit.

Duluth.—The Oliver Mining company, owners and operators of the Sellers pit in Hibbing, attempted in district court to procure a vacation of the major portion of the original plat of the city of Hibbing. It is believed that the purpose of the petition is to facilitate the operation of the Sellers pit, held up for many months by an injunction restraining the company from blasting there.

The petition asks the vacation of all property adjoining the mine, claiming that the plat as originally made has fallen into disuse because of the mining industry. Forty objectors were in court. They are residents of that part of Hibbing affected by the mining operations. They asserted that if the vacation is granted they will be unable to recover should damages occur later on.

Minneapolis Men Are Elected.

Duluth.—Andrew Horngren, former vice district master of the Vasa order, was elected district master and the other officers elected were:

Alfred Freedlund of Minneapolis, vice master; C. W. Cederstrom of Minneapolis, secretary; Gust Paulson of Minneapolis, assistant secretary; P. W. Anderson, treasurer; Mrs. S. Henderson of Superior, Wis., chaplain; J. H. Nelson of Hibbing, master of ceremonies; Henning Erickson of Virginia, Minn., inside guard, and Leon Engquist of St. Cloud, outside guard. Harry Lund of Minneapolis, J. A. Larson of St. Paul and M. Pearson of Minneapolis were elected members of the executive committee.

Husbands Shoot Wife.

Minneapolis.—Ole C. Austin forty-two years old, shot his wife, Mrs. B. Austion, 39 years old, twice in the back in the kitchen of her home and then turned the weapon on himself. Both were taken to the city hospital where it is said the woman will recover. The shooting was before the five minor children of the couple. Domestic trouble and drink were the causes.

Hold Up Attempted Near Red Wing.

Red Wing.—By all odds one of the most daring attempts at a bold-up and robbery occurred when a lone highwayman with a heavy black mask over his face and drawn revolver attempted to hold up and rob Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wolpers of Hay Creek, at a sharp turn of the road near the Catholic cemetery in South Red Wing.

Stranger Killed by Train.

St. Paul. — An unknown man was killed in Soo line yards. He was seen by several boys to fall from a moving boxcar.

Reports Are Given.

St. Paul.—The main feature of the first session of the Grand Lodge, Minnesota I. O. G. T., held in the old capitol, was the report of the finance committee, which was adopted. The lodge finds itself in better financial condition than for many years past. F. E. Russsell, Washington, D. C., gave a short talk on the work of the Good Templars among the young people of the capital city. Two thousand boys and girls are enrolled in temperance societies there.

ASK HIS WITHDRAWAL.

Democrats to Request Andrist to Leave a Clear Field.

St. Paul.—The effect of P. M. Ringdal's filing for government has beeen to start among a number of leading Democrats a movement to secure the withdrawal of C. M. Andrist.

It is argued that Mr. Ringdal will have the support of the Democratic organization, and in interests of harmony and political expediency it would be well for Mr. Andrist to withdraw and every one work hard for the success of the ticket this fall.

It is not known what attitude Mr. Andrist's friends will take to this move. The candidacy of the university professor has not been making much headway and it is believed that since. Ringdal's announcement the leaders will rally around him.

LAW STANDS THE TEST.

Judge Says Primary Measure Is Constitutional.

St. Paul. — Judge Hale has just given a decision to the effect that the provisions of the new state primary law requiring candidates to file in certain classes was constitutional.

The hearing was on a writ of mandamus issued by Judge Steele on a petition of Mr. Nordin alleging that he had presented the legal affidavit and $10 filing fee to County Auditor Erickson on July 9 and that the auditor refused to accept the filing because Mr. Nordin declined to follow the provisions of the law requiring him to file in a certain class. Under the writ the county auditor was haled into court to show cause why he should not accept Mr. Nordin's filing.

WOMEN MAY COST OFFICE.

Mankato School Board Candidate Drove Them to Polls.

Mankato.—Because T. L. Jefferson was courteous and attentive enough to carry women voters to the polls in his autombile he may lose his position on the school board, to which he was elected over Joseph Blissenbach.

The defeated candidate says that Jefferson violated the corrupt practices act by putting his car to this use, and says he will contest the election.

Judge Evan Hughes, Dr. J. S. Holtbrook and W. B. Davies were reelected to the board.

Hutchinson Man Released.

St. Paul.—Peter Schmidt, 60 years old, a street cleaner, was struck by an automobile. At the City hospital Police Surgeon Dohm found his injuries to consist of slight wounds on the head and left hand.

Traffic Officer Johnson took E. P. J. Harms, a druggist at Hutchinson, Minn., the driver of the machine, to the Central station. He later was released when it was learned that Schmidt was not seriously hurt.

Extreme Humidity.

Minneapolis. — One enormous elephant was half-crazed, several persons were covercome and one woman became so despondent that she attempt to take her own life, by the excessive heat here. It was the most humid day thus far this year, and with a temperature of 89 degrees at 6 o'clock, and and a humidity of 72 per cent, Twin Cityities perspired through the day.

German Saengerfest Starts.

St. Paul. — With practically every detail arranged, and nothing left undone, St. Paul is ready to entertain the thousands of visitors who have taken possession of the city in preparation for the Saengerfest of the Northwestern German Saengerbund, which opened in the Auditorium.

College Dean Narrowly Escapes.

St. Paul. — Dean Albert F. Woods of the State Agricultural college had a narrow escape from drowning while attempting to save the life of Arthur Johnson, 15 years old, St. Paul, who was drowned in a swimming pool in a lagoon just west of the state fair grounds.

Crop Report Favorable.

Minneapolis. — R. G. Dun & Company's crop report, just issued, is the cap sheaf to optimistic stories that have been abroad since the first reports came in announcing bumper crops for the northwestern states. The report gives an excellent account of the crops of Minnesota.

Strike Delays Unloading Boats.

Duluth. — The recent strike of freight handlers continues to tie up the unloading of package freight boats in the Duluth harbor.

Scientists to Visit Duluth.

Duluth.—Members of the American Geographical Society of New York, together with guests from sixteen different countries of the world, all scientific men, will arrive in Duluth in a special train August 30. One day will be spent here and one on the Mesabi range. Prof. W. M. Davis of Harvard is the director of the party, which will travel seven weeks over the country. The society in this manner will celebrate its sixtieth anniversary. The visitors will inspect the steel plant here, among other places.

CROWN PRINCE OF JAPAN

Yoshihito Haruonomiya, crown prince of Japan, is the third son of the Emperor Mutsuhito and was born in 1879. He married the Princess Sada in 1900 and has two sons. Yoshihito is progressive and democratic in his ideas.

N. D. PROGRESSIVES CONVENE

QUESTION OF QUALIFICATION CAUSES CLASHES IN CONVENTION.

Indorsement of State Ticket Deferred Till Another Meeting in August.

Fargo, N. D., July 29. — Stormy scenes marked the convention of North Dakota Progressives, which met here to select delegates to the third party convention, which will meet at Chicago on August 5. The clashes on the convention floor grew out of the question of qualifications to membership in the convention. Judge W. S. Lauder of Wahpeton, a La Follette delegate to the Republican national convention, was permament chairman.

The gathering was made up of delegates whose affiliations have heretofore been with the Republican and Democratic parties. A committee was appointed to determine the eligibility of delegates with the understanding that none but those whose progressiveness was known to the committee should be admitted to the councils of the new party.

Aside from the selection of a delegation to the Chicago convention, but slight reference was made to the national ticket to be nominated at that time.

The names of both La Follette and Roosevelt were loudly cheered.

The indorsement of a state ticket was deferred until another convention is held in August, immediately following the Chicago meeting.

Chairman Lauder has announced an executive committee of seven which will have charge of the third party's activities in North Dakota.

SEEK YOUNG WASHBURN.

Stanley Only Absent Member of Former Senator's Family.

Minneapolis, July 29. — While two special messengers and scores of railroad men seek for the only absent member of the family group, William D. Washburn, thought to be fatally ill is still fighting for life on his bed at "Fair Oaks," the Washburn mansion.

With the arrival Thursday night of Cadwallader Washburn, the son who has been painting in Mexico, the circle was completed except for the absence of Stanley Washburn of Minneapolis. A few days before word of the father's serious illness reached the city Stanley left for the moutnain regions of British Columbia, where he is financially interested.

Balloon Race Starts Today.

Kansas City, Mo., July 29.—Luck, one of the great qualities in winning a balloon race, cast its lot with the balloon Goodyear of Akron, Ohio, when in the drawing for places of start in the national elimination race, G. L. Bumbaugh, pilot of the Goodyear, secured number eight. As there are only eight contests in the race, which will choose three American balloons for the international contest in Germany this fall, Bumbaugh will be the last pilot to leave the ground.

Insane Slayer Is Still at Large.

St. Peter, Minn., July 29.—Diligent inquiry has been made by the authorities at the St. Peter state hospital for the insane, but they have been unable to find any trace of Bjorne Ostby, the insane murderer who escaped from the criminal ward. Ostby is believed to be hiding in the ravines along the Minnesota river. Hunger may drive him to some habitation and it is expected that he will be recaptured at his first appearance.

Grain Inspection Favored.

Washington, July 29 - Senator McCumber's bill to provide for the inspection and grading of grain entering uniformity in standards and classification was ordered favorably reported by the senate committee on agriculture.

Minneapolis Woman Honored.

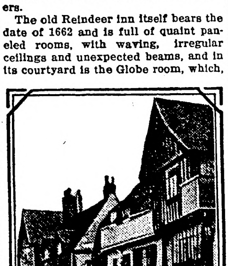
Hampton, Va., July 29.—The National Association of Colored Women in convention here elected Mrs. Booker T. Washington president and Mrs. Ione E. Gibbs of Minneapolis vice president at large.

CITY OF BANBURY PASSES

Famous Old Place in England Is Being Despoiled, While Many Relics Are Revealed.

London.—The glory of Banbury is departing. It is no longer necessary to go to Banbury to eat Banbury cakes; they can be bought in London. The old cross, dear to the old lady "who rode a white horse" and to the inmates of countless nurseries, has been replaced by a modern spirelike erection; but still the pride of Banbury remained, could the old Globe room be seen; and now that is going, and the folks of Banbury are angry because they think it is being despoiled for the gratification of American antique hunters.

The old Reindeer inn itself bears the date of 1662 and is full of quaint paneled rooms, with waving, irregular ceilings and unexpected beams, and in its courtyard is the Globe room, which, with its beautiful stone mullioned window, its panelled walls and its plastered ceiling, is said to contain the finest Jacobean work in the country. The date 1637 is carved on the panelling, and it was in this room that Cromwell is recorded as holding a council just before the battle of Edghill.



Old Reindeer Inn.

In the process of removing the panelling some interesting "finds" have been made. Many old coins have been picked up, the majority being of copper and belonging to the eighteenth century. But the most striking discovery has been a double barreled pistol hidden away behind the paneling near the fireplace. It is in excellent preservation and between the two barrels runs the inscription: "Presented to Dick Turpin, at the White Bear Inn, Drury Lane, February 7, 1735," and the name of the maker is given as Baker, London.

Banbury has no legend associating it with the famous highwayman, but the genuineness of the relic is taken for granted.

MANICURES FOR ANIMALS

Departments to Care for Nails and Bills Started at Zoo in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa.—So as to keep the nails of the animals from the lion to the monkey and the bills of the birds from the eagle to the canary in good shape, a well-equipped manicuring and dental establishment is maintained at the zoological gardens. The department is under the supervision of Head Keeper Manley, and it moves its sphere of work from cage to cage in the various houses, as the occasion demands. It is constantly at work.

The tools employed by the manicurists in connection with their labor among the creatures differ materially from the dainty utensils used by the blonde Venus of the barber shop, and consist of a hammer, a chisel, often a hatchet and saw, and always a large, rugged file about 14 inches long. A sharp, strong pair of steel wire nippers is also used on the nails of the larger cats.

The manicuring establishment at the gardens was organized by Superintendent Carson. Realizing that the animals could not wear off their nails on the boards of the cages as quickly as they could on the rocks of their native haunts, and that because of this the claws frequently grew long, turned and penetrated the soft part of the foot, Mr. Carson decided that in order to alleviate the distress caused by ingrowing nails these would have to be clipped.

RATTLESNAKE BITES BABY

Three Hours After Accident Poison Is Discharged Child Is Dead.

Goldendale, Wash.—The three-year-old daughter of W. B. Smith, who resides on Crofton Prairie, ten miles west of this city, was bitten by a rattlesnake in the finger and died just three and one-half hours after the accident.

The child stepped out into the garden a few feet from the house to get a kitten, and as she attempted to pick up the kitten she was struck by the snake. The mother corded the arm at once and applied such antiseptics as were available.

The accident occurred a quarter mile from where Mrs. R. D. Gray was bitten and died as a result about one year ago. Mrs. Gray was bitten on the same finger of the same hand.

31 Words in This Will.

Joliet.—Daniel Hughes, who died suddenly the other day, leaves what is believed to be the shortest will ever penned. It contained 31 words, and lawyers say it is contest-proof.

Human Yardstick.

"Cholly, but I's tired!" exclaimed a tall and thin negro, meeting a short and stout friend on Washington street.

"What you been doin' to get tired?" demanded the other.

"Well," explained the thin one, drawing a deep breath, "over to Brother Smith's dey are measurin' de house for some new carpets. Dey haven't got no yawdstick, and I's just ezacctly six feet tall. So to oblige Brother Smith, I's been a-layin' down and a-gettin' up all over deir house."—Youth's Companion.

Jolt to Romance.

"How about that young doctor? Has he proposed?"

"Not yet. Papa nearly ruined everything last night."

"How was that?"

"Just as the doctor was pleading for a peep at my eyes, papa came in and asked him to take a look at my tonsils."

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

Doctors Could Not Help Mrs. Templeton—Regained Health through Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Hooper, Nebraska.—"I am very glad to tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me. For five years I suffered from female troubles so I was scarcely able to do my work. I took doctors' medicines and used local treatments but was not helped. I had such awful bearing down pains and my back was so weak I could hardly walk and could not ride. I often had to sit up nights to sleep and my friends thought I could not live long. At my request my husband got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I commenced to take it. By the time I had taken the seventh bottle my health had returned and I began doing my washing and was a well woman. At one time for three weeks I did all the work for eighteen boarders with no signs of my old trouble returning. Many have taken your medicine after seeing what it did for me. I would not take $1000 and be where I was. You have my permission to use my name if it will aid anyone."—Mrs. SUSIE TEMPLETON, Hooper, Nebraska.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.
In this age of research and experiment, all nature is ransacked by the scientific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides in the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine is that of Therapion, which has been used with great success in French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists, that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say, miraculous cures, should send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. LeClerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether the New French Remedy "THERAPION" No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 is what they require and have been seeking in vain during a life of misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness. Therapion is sold by druggists or mail $1.00. Fougera Co., 90 Beekman St., New York.

Be a booster—not a knocker.

The more one reads the daily papers the more one is convinced that the "new party" movement has both the old parties scared stiff.

Senator Knut Nelson has at last announced that he will be a candidate for re-election. Senator Nelson's methods are sometimes trying, even aggravating, but he has always proved himself to be a hard man to beat.

The press dispatches state that Americans in Mexico will fly for their lives if Uncle Sam does not intervene at once to protect them and their property interests. They will stay there to plunder, but holler for protection when the tables are turned.

William D. Washburn, formerly United States Senator, and one of the really big men of the northwest in every way, died at his residence in Minneapolis on Wednesday. He was over eighty years of age and it might well be said that he failed in no part of his life's work.

On Saturday last the U. S. Senate got gay and actually passed a tarriff revision bill. The object of their attention was sugar, and their bill is calculated to reduce the duty 30 cents per hundred. Some of those big fellows must have been served short sweetening in their morning cocktails.

Minnesota progressives showed on Tuesday that they mean business when they had an enthusiastic convention and nominated delegates to attend the national new party convention at Chicago on Monday next. This state, and several others, are liable to give the new party ticket first place when the election comes in November.

P. M. Ringdal has filed as a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor. He says he has been practically pushed into this by his friends, and puts it up to them to do the active campaigning. If the republicans and democrats nominate Gordon and Ringdal respectively both parties will be taking a long step towards establishing clean politics in the state, and we should have a refreshingly clean campaign and a good governor, no matter which is elected.

OTHERS HAVE LEARNED.

That: A piece of garden hose makes an ideal carpet beater. While stout enough to dislodge the dust, its flexibility prevents the wear and tear given by the ordinary stick or rattan beater.

That: A few drops of paregoric placed in a small basin of water will attract and destroy all the ants on the premises. Use a shallow basin and you will be surprised at the number your "ant trap" will catch.

That: Fewer buttons will be lost or broken if you unbutton all clothing before sending it to the laundry.

That: It pays to have the worn edges of large rugs bound with leather—only a rim shows on the right side—and that leather keeps the rug flat and outwears any other binding.

That: To properly dust books, you should take them by the half-dozen from the shelf, hold them loosely on a table, their front edges downward, backs uppermost. Then with a hand at either side of the little pile strike them smartly together a few times. Now lay on end, top edges uppermost, and repeat the concussion.

TIME TO STOP.

[illegible] ON FATHER'S WORK

Mrs. Agnes Bruce, Daughter of Dr. Livingstone, Always Was Enthusiastic Over Africa.

Mrs. Agnes Livingstone Bruce, whose death is announced, was the elder daughter of Dr. Livingstone. Mrs. Bruce was born in Africa, at Kuruman, 64 years ago. When four years of age she was sent home to this country for her education, and on her father's return, after the famous journey in the Dark Continent, she spent a large amount of time in his company, traveling with him in Scotland and England. Her enthusiasm for her father's work in Africa was maintained all through her life, and it is matter for regret among those who knew her intimately, that a good deal of direct and personal information relating to the explorer and his work must now be lost, as Mrs. Bruce had not seen her way to record her impressions and reminiscences in any permanent form. Mrs. Bruce herself made six journeys to Central Africa and visited and explored the districts associated with her father's name.—London Evening Standard.

LESSON FOR ALL AMERICANS

Eloquent Words of Edward Everett at the Celebration of Washington's Birthday.

You have now assembled within these celebrated walls, to perform the last duties of respect and love, on the birthday of your benefactor. The spirit of the departed is in high communion with the spirit of the place—the temple worthy of the new name which we now behold inscribed on its walls. Listen, Americans, to the lesson which seems borne to us on the very air we breathe, while we perform these dutiful rites! Ye winds, that wafted the Pilgrims to the land of promise, fan, in their children's hearts, the love of freedom! Blood, which our fathers shed, cry from the ground! Echoing arches of this renowned hall, whisper back the voices of other days! Glorious Washington, break the long silence of that votive canvas! Speak, speak, marble lips; teach us the love of liberty protected by law.—Edward Everett.

ONLY ONE THING WRONG.

Marshall P. Wilder is responsible for a story which he says was told with immense effect by Lionel Brough, of a man who was very sick, and whose doctor told him that he had to change his mode of living, and prescribed "going to bed early, eating more roast beef, drinking beef tea, a month's rest at some quiet watering place, and just one cigar a day." A month later the invalid met the doctor and the latter complimented him on his improved appearance.

"Yes, doctor," said the patient. "I look better because I am better. I went to bed early, ate more roast beef, spent a month in the country, and took great care of myself; but that one cigar a day nearly killed me, for I had never smoked before."

SHORT AND TO THE POINT.

A Kansas City young lady of few words went to a dentist to have a tooth extracted.

"Pull it!" she said to the dentist.

"All right," replied the dentist. He applied the cocaine, adjusted his forceps and out came the tooth.

"Want it?" he asked the young lady, holding the tooth before her.

"Want it!" she exclaimed. "Want it! What for? Do you think I'm an Elk?"—Saturday Evening Post.

THE OLDEST LEGISLATOR.

The oldest member of the house of commons, and undoubtedly the oldest member of any deliberative body in the world, is Samuel Young, Liberal member for East Cavan. He is eighty-two years old, though one unacquainted with him would not think him over sixty. He made a half-hour speech in favor of home rule during one of the recent debates.—Philadelphia Record.

DON'T TALK OF IT.

"Do you believe the theory that doctors have a right to kill where they cannot cure?"

"Haven't they always been doing it?"

USUALLY.

Willis—What position do you occupy in your household?

Gillis—I am treasurer to my wife's social secretary.—Judge.

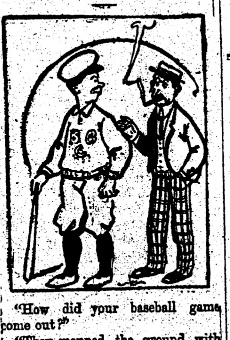
HE WAS VERY MUCH ALIVE

Old Laborer in London, Mourned as Dead for Weeks, Returns to His Home.

An extraordinary case of mistaken identity, resulting in a Lambeth man being mourned as dead, and an unknown stranger being buried in his stead, came to light the other day.

Several weeks ago Charles Herbert Skinner, an aged cab washer and laborer, sold up his home and went in search of work. His wife went into the workhouse. Three weeks later a man died in the Salvation Army shelter at Blackfriars road. He was "identified" as Skinner, and the body was buried in Streatham cemetery. Before the coffin was closed several members of Skinner's family satisfied themselves as to the identity, and took away the dead man's clothes. The "widow" then went to stay with friends. The other morning Skinner reappeared at Murphy street, where his sister-in-law lives, and, in this relative's own words, "frightened the life out of her." He told them he had tramped all round London, doing odd jobs. "I knew nothing of what had happened," he said, "but, having nothing to do this morning, I thought I would call and see how my wife was. I am very much alive."

RIGHT IN THEIR LINE



"How did your baseball game come out?"

"They mopped the ground with us."

"I thought they would when I heard you calling them a scrub nine."

GOOD DIPHTHERIA REMEDY.

Take green coperas (not slackened) and burn on a stove lid until it becomes of a yellowish brown color and can be pulverized. Take one level teaspoonful, the same of burnt alum (the alum should be taken off the stove just before it stops boiling as it is then stronger.) Put the above in an earthen bowl with one teaspoonful of sulphur, one teacupful of white sugar, the same of boiling water; let cool; put in a tight bottle and shake before using.

Directions—In extreme cases give one-fourth teaspoon every hour; keep outside of throat cool to keep down fever. (Ice water with saltpeter in is good for this purpose.) Change cloth every two or three minutes.

To prevent diphtheria—Give one teaspoonful twice a day for one week every two or three months. People, while exposed, should keep taking the above.

NO OCCASION FOR ALARM.

"Mercy!" ejaculated the woman who had just come aboard the train, "there's something moving around under my feet!"

"It's the southern extension of my dachshund, ma'am," spoke the passenger in the seat behind her. "I got him in here when the conductor wasn't looking. He's under these two seats."

HER DISCOURSE.

"My dear," mildly expostulated her husband, "I said only half a dozen words, and you have talked about them for forty-five minutes."

"Well," snapped Mrs. Vick-Senn, "the preacher does that sort of thing every Sunday morning, and you never kick about."

WAY TO WIN.

Bronson—What's the best way to make love to a girl?

Dawson—The worst way possible. Then she'll think you mean it.—Puck.

Bees Left a Honey Supply

For the past couple of years Oscar Hanson has been wanting to do some fixing on the ceiling and roof of his kitchen, but did not care to tackle the job because of a swarm of bees that had found a small knot hole up close to the roof and established residence in the small space between ceiling and roof. During the real cold weather last winter the bees froze to death and Oscar felt safe to undertake the long contemplated repairs. This he did recently, and was very agreeably surprised to find about 20 pounds of delicious honey which the bees had left untouched. Now Oscar is cultivating a taste for sweets and talking of bee culture as a probable part of his farming operations in the future.

PROGRESSIVES ARE NOW IN SESSION

COL. ROOSEVELT IN ONLY ONE TALKED OF AS PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE.

NO RUNNING MATE YET.

Colonel Parker, Southern Democrat, Likely Chairman—Women Boosting Suffrage, Conspicuous at Meeting.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—The national Progressive party is formally being launched in the Coliseum, where a little more than a month ago President Taft was renominated over the protest of many of those now leading the third party movement.

Between 1,100 and 1,200 delegates are here to participate in the convention. Colonel Roosevelt is the only man talked of for the presidential nomination, it is conceded.

Who will be the nominee for vice president has not yet been determined. Few of the leaders in the city will discuss the subject of a running mate for the colonel, declaring that it is a matter to be settled by the convention. It apparently is the determination of the leaders to refrain from announcements of any character before the convention acts.

So far only the temporary officers of the convention have been named. It was quite generally believed, however, that Col. John M. Parker, of New Orleans, a Democrat, will be the permanent chairman. For a time it appeared to be the plan to retain former Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana, the temporary chairman, as the permanent presiding officer, but it is said that Mr. Beveridge has expressed a desire to the contrary.

Many leaders of the new party movement, anxious to emphasize its separation from the old parties, are urging that the Democrats who have joined in the movement, particularly from the South, should have special recognition in the convention. There has been much talk of nominating a southern Democrat for second place on the ticket, but this plan did not gain much headway. Governor Hiram W. Johnson, of California, still is talked of as the most likely candidate for vice president, and while he is not a seeker for the office, it is said he will accept the nomination if the delegates desire it.

More women delegates are expected to attend the convention than have appeared at any other national political gathering. Colonel Roosevelt openly has espoused the cause of universal suffrage.

It was 1:27 p. m. when Senator Dixon named former Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana, as the temporary chairman and named Governor Johnson, of California, Governor Vessey, of South Dakota, Governor Carey, of Wyoming, and Senator Funk, of Illinois, as committee to escort Beveridge to the platform. Beveridge then delivered the "keynote" address of the day.

Contesting negro delegates from Florida and Mississippi were barred from the Progressive convention by the national committee. The contests were decided at a stormy executive session of the committee that lasted for three hours just before the convention met.

While the committee deliberated, the negroes gathered in the corridors outside the committee room and raised voices in indignant protest. When the decisions were made known the negro leaders declared they would continue their fight for seats before the credentials committee of the convention.

Colonel Roosevelt and his party arrived here on the Twentieth Century limited at 8:55 a. m. Monday. A crowd of 5,000 persons filled the station and thronged the streets just outside. Wild cheering greeted the colonel as he passed through the station and a demonstration started when he stepped onto the sidewalk to get in an automobile and proceed to the Congress hotel.

Her Engagements.

Miss Vivian is very much of a flirt and she has been engaged to a dozen young men during the few seasons she has been on the eligible list. A few days ago she said to her father:

"Pa, you may congratulate me on having acquired a new object of my affection."

"I am glad to hear it," he replied. "I hope you are as happy with him as you will be with the next one."

"Exclamatory" Was Right.

Mrs. Mason's colored washerwoman, Martha, was complaining of her husband's health.

"Why, is he sick, Martha?" asked Mrs. Mason.

"He's ve'y po'ly, ma'am, po'ly," answered the woman. "He's got the exclamatory rheumatism."

"You mean inflammatory, Martha," said the patron. "Exclamatory means to cry out."

"Yes, ma'am," replied Martha, with conviction; "dat's what it is. He hollers all the time."—Judge.

Mrs. Love—When we were on our honeymoon he broke two teeth trying to eat my biscuits. Now he soaks them in hot tea for half an hour.

FAMILY RUNT

Kansas Man Says Coffee Made Him That.

"Coffee has been used in our family of eleven—father, mother, five sons and four daughters—for thirty years. I am the eldest of the boys and have always been considered the runt of the family and a coffee toper.

"I continued to drink it for years until I grew to be a man, and then I found I had stomach trouble, nervous headaches, poor circulation, was unable to do a full day's work, took medicine for this, that and the other thing, without the least benefit. In fact I only weighed 116 when I was 28.

"Then I changed from coffee to Postum, being the first one in our family to do so. I noticed, as did the rest of the family, that I was surely gaining strength and flesh. Shortly after I was visiting my cousin who said, 'You look so much better—you're getting fat.'

"At breakfast his wife passed me a cup of coffee, as she knew I was always such a coffee drinker, but I said, 'No, thank you.'

"'What!' said my cousin, 'you quit coffee? What do you drink?'

"'Postum,' I said, 'or water, and I am well.' They did not know what Postum was, but my cousin had stomach trouble and could not sleep at night from drinking coffee three times a day. He was glad to learn about Postum, but said he never knew coffee would hurt anyone." (Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

"After understanding my condition and how I got well he knew what to do for himself. He discovered that coffee was the cause of his trouble as he never used tobacco or anything else of the kind. You should see the change in him now. We both believe that if persons who suffer from coffee drinking would stop and use Postum they could build back to health and happiness." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

ARTERY BOUND WITH WIRE

OPERATION PERFORMED WITHOUT ANESTHETICS.

Patient Who Went Through the Same Experience in March Now Well.

New York, Aug. 5. — For the second time this year Dr. William C. Lusk applied the gold wire treatment to a case of advanced heart disease in Bellevue hospital. His first patient was Henry Griffin, who is now going about his affairs in College Point with the main artery that feeds his heart bound in twelve feet of wire. Oscar Nielson of Jacksonville, Fla., the latest patient, had his aorta reduced with thirty feet of the same gossamer filament. He is resting easily in the surgical ward.

Nielson was nearly in collapse when he entered the hospital two weeks ago. The doctors diagnosed his ttrouble and feared that he might die suddenly from the bursting of the swollen aorta. He said he had come all the way from his southern home because he felt he was in bad shape and had read of wonderful cures in Bellevue. When Dr. Lusk, suggested an operation he consented.

He was taken to the amphitheater, where thirty of the hospital staff had gathered to see the operation. Owing to the nature of Nielson's ailment it was not safe to give him ether. As he lay face downward and conscious the doctor sprayed his back with cocaine and exposed the aorta through an opening between the fifth and sixth ribs.

At the close of the winding the free end of the wire was connected with one of the electric fixtures in the room The effect of the current was to reduce the abnormal swelling of the aorta and tighten the hold of the hairlike wire. Nielson was kept on the table until the artery was behaving nearly as it should in health.

Dr. Lusk expressed himself satisfied with the operation, which he regards as a means of prolonging life. Nielson is a cabinent maker and fifty, younger by three years than Griffin, who went through the same operation in March and who last reported himself as feeling like a new baby.

Aides are Selected.

New York, Aug. 6.—Following a secret conference at the Univesity club with National Chairman McCombs that lasted until midnight, Governor Woodrow Wilson announced that Joseph E. Davies of Wisconsin would be in charge of western democratic headquarters, to be opened in Chicago and that Henry Morgenthau of New York would be chairman of the finance committee. The governor said that he and McCombs had agreed upon a treasurer, but would not announce his name until they could make sure he would accept the position.

Resignation Not Sworn To.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 6.—Secretary of State Doyle has received the resignation of State Senator Frank Funk of Bloomington as the republican candidate for state senator in the twenty-sixth district. Mr. Funk stated that having joined the third party movement, he would resign. The resignation was not sworn to and Secretary Doyle notified Mr. Funk that he would have to put it in legal form.

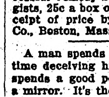
WHERE DOCTORS FAILED TO HELP

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. Green's Health—Her Own Statement.



Covington, Mo.—"Your medicine has done me more good than all the doctor's medicines. At every monthly period I had to stay in bed four days because of hemorrhages, and my back was so weak I could hardly walk. I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I can stay up and do my work. I think it is the best medicine on earth for women."—Mrs. Jennie Green, Covington, Mo.

How Mrs. Cline Avoided Operation.

Brownsville, Ind.—"I can say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me more good than anything else. One doctor said I must be operated upon for a serious female trouble and that nothing could help me but an operation.

"I had hemorrhages and at times could not get any medicine to stop them. I got in such a weak condition that I would have died if I had not got relief soon.

"Several women who had taken your Compound, told me to try it and I did and found it to be the right medicine to build up the system and overcome female troubles.

"I am now in great deal better health than I ever expected to be, so I think I ought to thank you for it."—Mrs. O. M. Cline, S. Main St., Brownsville, Ind.

Canada Has Sufficient Coal for 6000 Years

It Has Enough Agricultural Land for the Settling of Millions.

A report dealing with the coal resources of Canada has been issued by the Dominion Department of Mines. The estimates given are only based on what is known. In the western and northern regions, which have been little explored, there may be vast deposits of which nothing whatever is known at present. The officials of the department estimate that of bituminous coal there is in Canada 73½ billion tons; of anthracite 461 million tons; sub-bituminous and lignite over 100 billion tons. The quantity of coal now annually mined in Canada is about 12 million tons. With an estimated quantity of unmixed good coal, of 74 billion tons, it would require 6,166 years to exhaust the supply. If the inferior grades were included, supply would last for 14,575 years. Of course the coal demands of Canada will keep on increasing, but it will be a good many years before the quantity of Canadian coal mined will equal present output of the United States mines. Their annual output is about 500,000,000 tons. At that rate it would take only 145 years to exhaust the estimated Canadian supply of good coal, and about 350 years to get to the end of the total supply. And with the increasing population, made up of about four hundred thousand persons a year (and it looks now as if this number would be reached this year), one hundred and seventy-five thousand being an estimate of the immigration from the United States for 1912, the consumption of coal will naturally increase.

The agricultural districts of Canada have now become so well known throughout the world, and the vacant area of splendid land is still so great that it may be expected that the numbers mentioned will increase from year to year, and it will not be many years before the immigration figures will reach the million mark.

It may be asked what is there to warrant this large immigration? With millions of acres of land, capable of producing twenty-five to forty bushels of wheat to the acre; or, if in oats, from forty to ninety, and even as high as a hundred bushels per acre, or the same splendid yields of flax or barley, there is ample inducement to attract these hundreds of thousands who are filling the present agricultural settlements and pushing forward into the newer settlements year by year, and leave room still for the hundreds of thousands who will follow. There remains not only the agricultural wealth of the country, but there are also the social advantages, the home-making privileges, apart altogether from the financial opportunities, there is the life and the energy born from the knowledge that the settler is more than a unit in the upbuilding, in the making of a country that will soon rank amongst the first in the nations of the world. There is no desire on the part of the writer to dwell upon the success that has followed the American settler in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta and the coast Province of British Columbia, or to speak of the thousands of individuals whose hundreds of dollars have made them thousands, but attention must be paid to the fact that these people have done well. They are followed by their families and their friends, who also are doing well.

Where, a few years ago, seemingly only months ago, there was nothing but the open prairie, or if we speak of the more central portions of these provinces, the park districts, there are today well tilled and cultivated farms, large farms, too, and the herds of cattle. Cities and towns are the result of the opening up of this rich field of agriculture, and it is a high class of agriculture, carried on by the use of brains, and, where energy has not been endowed, it has become in that splendid air a case of inoculated energy.

The rapid advancement of railways makes the situation easy. Today one may be located thirty miles from one of the many branches of the different systems. A year from now, the whistle of the locomotive and the long train of cars may pass the farm, the elevator is but a short drive from the home, a splendid market is established, and all the advantages of an old settled community are at hand.

The prospects this year from an agricultural standpoint are exceedingly bright, and, relieved of untoward conditions, the farmer is already counting his bank roll, planning for more extensive operations for next year, and figuring on paying out for his farm. He is calculating what the increased value of his holdings, as a result of a successful crop, will add to his assets. Already some fields of wheat have been harvested, barley has been cut, and the yield is above his expectation. In fact, the feeling at the time of writing is that never in the history of any country on the continent has there been such a prospect of a large average crop, all over the three central provinces of Canada, as will be harvested this year. The railroads are adding to their already large mileage and have got ready for handling the crop thousands of box cars. The government agents and the railways are making arrangements for from fifty to sixty thousand extra farm hands in order that the crop may be successfully and quickly harvested, business men are laying in larger stocks than usual, real estate men are active, preparing for the rush of business that is sure to follow, and everywhere there is the note of optimism, which seems to be perfectly justifiable.

There is, as has been said, a vast area of the country still open for settlement and homesteading lying in the center north. Speaking of this part a writer, who made the trip when the crop was in its green stage, said:

"Just now, the whole country is a beautiful sight, as it presents itself in full dress of living green, varied in shade, many places elegantly fringed and interspersed with pleatings of shrubbery and patches of sweet scented flowers in rose, yellow, white, pink, scarlet, cardinal and purple. In traveling over the virgin soil, I have seen some of the most charming rolling prairies, sloping hills, deep ravines, mirrored lakes, artistic flower fields, and natural parks that one could wish to behold, and all placed there without the aid of man. The land in general is heavily matted with grass, mixed with vetches and pea vines, nearly up to the knee, and many millions of acres of which are going to waste while beef, pork and mutton are soaring at prices heretofore unknown. The comparatively small acreage under cultivation reminds one of a few small garden patches.

"When we consider the estimated crop of 300,000,000 bushels of wheat for 1912, to be produced on these western prairies from these garden patches, some faint idea can be formed by an imaginative mind as to the immense possibilities and rich heritage of a glorious western Canada."

The estimate of the wheat crop, as made by the writer quoted, is excessive, but with even 250 million bushels, there will be a great deal of satisfaction on the part of the settlers.

Uniforms and Diplomacy.

The gazettes have announced that the emperor of Germany has deigned to name Mon. de Kiderlen-Waechter major of the Seventy-first Thuringian infantry. To please his august master, the minister sometimes wears his uniform, but in it he gives no illusion of elegance. The other day, to console himself, he said: "I believe my colleague, M. Poincare (the French ambassador) would appear more ridiculous than I do if he were obliged to dress as an artillerist."

Prince von Buelow, who is colonel of hussars, rode in the grand review at the head of his regiment. Some years ago, at Strasburg, the emperor remarked some squadrons that were moving in zigzags across the field in a manner scarcely correct. They were the hussars of M. von Buelow. "Ach!" cried William II., "mit Buelow immer die krumme wege der diplomatie!" (Oh, with Buelow, it is always the crooked ways of diplomacy.)—Le Cri de Paris.

PROGRESSIVES DECIDE CONTEST

PROVISIONAL COMMITTEE OF NEW PARTY TO HOLD ITS FIRST SESSION.

THREE STATES AT ISSUE.

More Delegates Than There Are Votes Expected in Convention—Full State Ticket for Illinoisans.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—The provisional committee of the national Progressive party met in the first formal session of its existence. Delegation contests in Georgia, Mississippi and Florida were decided by the committee and final preparations made for the first national convention of the Progressive party.

The list of committeemen includes representatives from 46 states, of whom 12 were not included in the official Progressive call.

South Carolina, it was announced, will not be represented at the convention and the committeemen from Nevada has not been announced.

Although there will be but 531 votes in the convention it now seems probable that there will be nearly twice that number of delegates on the floor of the convention. In many of the states a double delegation, each member with a one-half vote, has been named. In Connecticut the members of the delegation will have a one-seventh vote each, that state having decided to send seven times its quota of delegates. California, West Virginia, New York, Montana, Minnesota and Pennsylvania also will send particularly large delegations in which the vote of the individual will be reduced to a fraction because of the over-representation.

Senator Dixon announced that instead of "marking time" in between the different points on the program the convention would resolve itself into "an experience meeting" during lulls in the work at which delegates from all states represented would be called upon for five-minute talks regarding political conditions in their states.

The Illinois state Progressive convention will be called to order at 11 o'clock. A full state ticket nominated.

MAY BE 5 WRECK DEAD.

Bodies Thought to Be in Cars Hurled Into Stream.

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 5.—Five are believed to have been killed in the wreck on the Rock Island-Chicago express, passenger train No. 6, Tuesday night when the track, undermined by the Fountain river, hurled the train into the river. No bodies have been recovered. They are believed to be in the cars still in the stream.

From property found in some of the cars and reports of the missing persons believed to have been on the train, it is thought the following were killed either by the wreck or drowned, pinned in the cars:

Miss Clara Musgrave, Chicago.
Arthur McAdams, an actor.
Edward Fairbanks, baggage checker, Colorado Springs.
C. W. Swarengen, engineer, Pueblo.
C. C. Harris, salesman, Atlanta, Ga.

WARSHIP TO NICARAGUA.

Revolutionary Reports From Republic Are Alarming.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Evidence of the growing anxiety of the administration in regard to the revolutionary movement in Nicaragua was shown when orders were issued to the gunboat Tacomba at Guantanamo, Cuba, to proceed forthwith to Bluefields, Nicaragua on the Caribbean coast. The gunboat Annapolis on the west coast, has been getting alarming advices from Managua.

Carmen Likely to Strike.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—It is estimated that 90 per cent. of the street railway employes on the surface lines have voted in favor of a strike unless their demands for increased wages and improved working conditions are met. This is the estimate of members of the union who sat near the ballot boxes during the 24 hours that the polls remained open.

Murdered for $9.10.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—William Meise, 62 years old, station agent at the Central avenue station of the Metropolitan West Side Elevated railway, was shot to death by two armed robbers who escaped after taking the contents of the cashier's drawer, $9.10. Five bullets were fired at the aged man by the robbers.

REMEDIES FOR RHEUMATISM

Are Many but the Important Thing Is to Enrich the Blood and Cleanse the System of Rheumatic Poison.

There are many remedies for rheumatism. Most of them are considered successful if they relieve the pain and stiffness. That means a temporary suppression of the symptoms while the disease remains in the blood to appear again on the next rainy day.

Mrs. J. W. Rapp, of R. F. D. No. 1, South Omaha, Neb., says: "Several years ago I was a sufferer from rheumatism which followed a general run-down condition and exposure to wet and dampness. The pains started in my hands, which had a sort of pricking sensation like needles were being thrust into them. As the disease grew worse the joints of my fingers became affected. They were swollen and were so painful that I could hardly bear it. Gradually the disease began to affect my limbs in the same manner. They became terribly swollen and I had to give up my work. The pains then spread all over my body and were sharp and shooting. They would suddenly shift from one part of the body to another but fortunately did not seem to affect my heart. For three months I was propped up in a chair and had to be waited on. I could not get any sleep and was losing flesh all of the time. The doctor treated me a long time but did not give much relief as the pains were as severe as ever when I quit taking his medicine. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People were brought to my notice while reading a booklet and I made up my mind to give them a trial. A wonderful change came over me as soon as I commenced using the pills. They absolutely cured me from the terrible rheumatic pains and I have never had them since. I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People to many persons and always explain that they cannot help giving benefit as they are a blood medicine."

A new edition of our booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent free on request to anyone interested. Write for it today.

RED, ROUGH HANDS MADE SOFT AND WHITE

For red, rough, chapped and bleeding hands, dry, fissured, itching, burning palms, and painful finger-ends, with shapeless nails, a one-night Cuticura treatment works wonders. Directions: Soak the hands, on retiring, in hot water and Cuticura Soap. Dry, anoint with Cuticura Ointment, and wear soft bandages or old, loose gloves during the night. These pure, sweet and gentle emollients preserve the hands, prevent redness, roughness and chapping, and impart in a single night that velvety softness and whiteness so much desired by women. For those whose occupations tend to injure the hands, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are wonderful.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

Red Cross Seals Being Printed.

Seventy-five million Red Cross seals are now being printed for the holiday sale of the anti-tuberculosis stickers for 1912. The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which in co-operation with the American Red Cross will conduct the sale, makes this announcement and states further that the outlook this year is bright for a higher sale than ever before.

The seal this year is said to be the best of its kind that the Red Cross has ever issued. The design is in three colors, red, green and gray. A Santa Claus head in the three colors is shown in the center surrounded by holly wreaths. In each corner is a small red cross. The seal bears the greeting: "Merry Christmas, Happy New Year, American Red Cross, 1912."

FINDS ANCIENT RACE

Archaeological Remains of Importance Found in Peru.

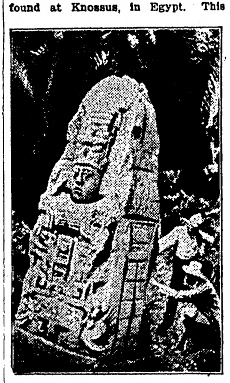
Region Near Lake Titicaca Excavated and Tombs Are Discovered—Body of Princess Buried 8,000 Years B. C., Is Recovered.

San Francisco.—Archaeological remains of vast importance to the critical historian and anthropologist and which contribute valuable new evidence, if not an entirely new theory, upon the origin and history of races, are being unearthed in Peru by treasure hunters and scientists, according to Charles R. Kehler, an American mining engineer, who arrived in San Francisco a few days ago from the land of the Incas. Mr. Kehler has just completed a mining survey of the region south of Lake Titicaca, and while prospecting near Arequipa, his Indian workmen discovered a number of small tumulii, which proved to be the tombs of people of an ancient race.

The bodies had been embalmed in the same manner as the Egyptian mummies, and the tombs contained, many statues and idols of immense interest in historic anthropology. One tomb contained the mummified remains of a princess in an excellent state of preservation. The body was found in a sitting posture, with the feet drawn up under the thigh and the hands folded across the breast. The body was wrapped in a long cloth of the finest linen, in which had been woven pictoral and hieroglyphical designs. The body was adorned with a heavy gold breast plate, necklace, wristlets and anklets, and carried under each arm a golden vase. One of these vases was the deceased's cocoa bowl, in which a quantity of the prepared cocoa leaves and lime still remained.

Professor Hiram Bingham, who is at the head of an exploring expedition from Yale university, has made several similar discoveries, but what is considered more important than the treasure recovered is the finding of a number of idols and images which throws hitherto unknown light upon the customs and physiological peculiarities of the people.

The tombs discovered near Arequipa, according to the archaelogists, were closed at least 8,000 years B. C. They belong to a pre-Inca race, either the Chiapas, Sauaseras or the Huallas. Among the interesting images brought north by Mr. Kehler, one is of a god which bears a striking resemblance to the early Coptic reliefs found at Knossus, in Egypt. This statue is about two inches in length and is made of equal parts of gold, silver and copper, and is of exquisite workmanship.



Idol Found Near Arequipa.

Another image recovered to which attaches especial interest is the figure of a man-god, the physical characteristics of which coincide with those of the mummied bodies. It also bears a marked resemblance to the Egyptians. The curved nose, running straight from the forehead, eyes and thick lips, are closely like the sculptured heads which have been recovered of Tahutmes III., Princess Nefert and of early Egyptian kings in limestone at Karaak.

These images, together with the methods of embalming, the art objects and household and industrial implements, it is believed, give strong grounds for concluding that the civilization of the Egyptians of the historic period and the ancient Peruvians came from the same source, or that the Egyptians got their civilization from the Peruvians.

Making Himself at Home.

Doris was radiant over a recent addition to the family, and rushed out of the house to tell the news to a passing neighbor.

"Oh, you don't know what we've got upstairs!"

"What is it?"

"It's a new baby brother!"—and she settled back upon her heels and folded her hands to watch the effect.

"You don't say so! Is he going to stay?"

"I guess so,"—very thoughtfully. "He's got his things off."

Awful.

A West End woman called the attention of her husband to a little baby which was trying to sleep on the porch of its home on the opposite side of the street.

"It's lying on the bare boards, isn't it?" he observed.

"Yes, they haven't even placed a rug for the little chap to rest his head on."

The husband took another look.

"And what do you think of that?" he ejaculated. "They haven't even painted the boards." — Youngstown (O.) Telegram.

Be a booster—not a knocker.

Let the old machine politicians and the corporation controlled newspapers of the city howl as they will, and cry out that the new party is for one man's personal ambition and backed by the soulless interests. It will take more than their waining and inuendos to convince the American people that the enthusiastic demonstration accorded Roosevelt in Chicago on Tuesday was other than the spontaneous outburst of the genuine esteem in which he is held. The demonstration came from the hearts of the people and found a ready response in the heart of the man they honored over all others. No man in public life is more keenly alive to the sentiments and interests of the masses today than is Theodore Roosevelt. For the presidency he is likely to be defeated, but the principals he advocates and fights for must inevitably prevail in time.

The tariff board is claimed to belong to the Taft administration, and the president is not slow in claiming credit for its establishment. It evidently belongs to the same crowd as Mr. Taft, and makes its findings accordingly. As a consequence the president is liable to again veto a revised wool tariff bill because it does not conform to the findings of the tariff board. That is a very nice way to defeat the wishes of the people, but is only what is expected of the present administration.

Speaking of tarriff board, it is nearly ten years since Congressman Steenerson advocated the establishing of a tarriff commission, to be composed of experts and non-political. If the Steenerson plan had been adopted at the time, or even when the present board was established, the common people would have been saved a lot of money and the trusts wonld not have been nearly so unwieldy.

The Bull Moose is the emblem of the new party, and the Minneapolis Journal says that some politicians of national renown are going on a big hunt this fall. We would suggest that those who go hunting the bull moose should make sure that he is dead before they try tying any knots in his tail

WAS QUITE WILLING TO GROW

Applicant for Diplomatic Position Thought He Would Be Big Enough If Given Job.

During McKinley's administration Senator Carter of Montana told this story at a Washington gathering:

A Chicago man appeared at the White House one day with a petition containing 7,000 names recommending him for appointment as Brazilian minister. He was a picture framer, and when he was canvassing for orders he took along his petition and asked everybody in the picture frame business to sign it. Almost everybody did.

The man was insistent and finally reached the president. Always gentle and considerate, President McKinley explained to the candidate that he would have to consult the Illinois senator and representatives about the matter before making the appointment.

"You know," said the president, "we have to select big men for these big places."

"Well," asked the picture framer, "won't I be just as big as any of them if I get the job?"—Saturday Evening Post.

SHAVING AMONG THE CHINESE

Barber Carries His Equipment About the Streets on a Pole Looking for Customers.

Chinese people have very light beards, and their practice for untold years has been to patronize the native barbers, who carry their equipment suspended at the two ends of a coolie pole across the shoulder and stroll about the native streets seeking customers. Comparatively few Chinese have adopted the plan of shaving themselves, and these consist entirely of those who have imbibed western ideas. With the abandonment of the queue becoming general, the habit of self-shaving, it is expected, will be promoted; for when a Chinese employs a native barber the latter shaves the front part of the head as well as the face, brushes the hair, and replaits the queue. The shaving of the head and the care of the queue are things which a man cannot well undertake for himself, and with its abandonment the main objection to self-shaving will have been obviated.

FASTS THAT ARE OF RECORD.

Many long fasts undertaken voluntarily have been reported, but it is possible that longer ones, involuntarily or enforced, may have occurred without being reported, as of shipwrecked mariners or entombed miners. There are well authenticated cases of persons living thirty to forty days without solid food, but taking water. Some thirty-odd years ago Dr. Tanner of Minnesota went full forty days without food, but frequently taking a swallow of water. This experiment was made under the supervision of medical guards, and Dr. Tanner, though greatly emaciated, suffered no ill consequences. In 1854 a Frenchman who was buried at the bottom of a well was rescued on the thirtieth day still alive, but did not live long. Probably Dr. Tanner's case is the longest on record.

ENDLESS CHAIN.

"Wombat had five daughters. The week after the last one married off the first one got a divorce and came back to him."

"Well, did he start again?"

"Yes; he's on his third time around now."

JUST ABOUT THAT.

"What do they mean by platonic love?" asked the first half of the parlor sketch.

"It means," replied the other half, "that the young man is not making enough to support a wife."

A HUMAN DYNAMO.

"If you work like this, you'll never live to be old."

"I don't care to live to be old. It takes up too much valuable time."

IN THE OLD-FASHIONED WAY

Domestic Woman Gives Young Housekeeper Valuable Points on Making Soda Biscuit.

The old-fashioned domestic woman was telling the young housekeeper how to make soda biscuit, according to the New York Evening Sun.

"You take," said she, "some milk or sour cream."

"How much?"

"As much as you can spare," said the old-fashioned domestic woman. "Then you sift your flour with your baking powder—if you use it."

"How much flour?" asked the young housekeeper.

"That depends, of course, on the amount of milk and the number of people you are baking for," said the old-fashioned domestic woman. "Then you make a dough that is stiff enough—"

"How stiff is that?"

"Well, that you have to learn by experience."

"Rub in the butter just before you add the milk, and while you mustn't scrimp the butter you must be careful not to use too much. Then you either drop the dough with a spoon or cut it with a biscuit cutter. The oven must be just hot enough, and not too hot; and be sure to take the biscuits out the moment they are done."

"How can I tell when they're done?" asked the young housekeeper.

"Why, they'll look just right when they're ready," said the old-fashioned domestic woman.

COMPLIMENTS FOR THE BRIDE.

I must relate a striking salutation that the bridal couple received from a Quaker client of mine, a shrewd dry goods merchant. Presented by an usher he surveyed the bride, whom he had never seen before, and then with the utmost deliberation proceeded to say:

"William, I think the bride has shown more judgment in her choice than thee has."

Fortunately before I could turn to resent this strange salutation he continued as follows:

"Because it takes some penetration to discover thy good qualities, but hers can be seen at a glance."—A Retrospect of Forty Years.

HE DOESN'T LOOK IT.

In personal appearance Premier Asquith of Great Britain far from looks the important part he plays in the political affairs of Europe. His clothes do not fit him well and when he saunters into a session of the house of commons and sinks unabtrusively into a seat he appears to be mightily bored by the proceedings. He affects an air of indifference that makes his fiery outbursts of eloquence most surprising to visitors to the house.

OF COURSE.

"We are a democratic country, but—"

"Say the rest of it."

"When a woman buys a nutmeg grater she likes to know that it has been indorsed by many of the crowned heads of Elrope."

AN ILLUSTRATION.

"What instances have you observed in this neighborhood of the speed mania?"

"I guess it is the way folks are rushing the growler."

Mud Lake Bottom for New Settlers

Attorney General Rules Against Division Among Riparian Owners.

A special dispatch from Washington yesterday states that the attorney general has ruled that Mud Lake was not navigable, and that the lands in the lake bottom must be disposed of under the terms of the Nelson act of 1889. The secretary of the interior ordered a survey of the lake bed, in order that the land may be opened for homestead entry.

Yesterday, Congressman Steenerson introduced a bill to provide that the settlers around the lake shore be granted a preference right of entry on enough of the land so as to allow each of such settlers a full quarter section of land.

DOGS USED AS SMUGGLERS

Fox Terriers Covered With Skin of a Poodle Inside Which Contraband Is Carried.

Some interesting information has just come to hand regarding the competition at present going on between smugglers and revenue officials in the use of dogs on the land frontiers of Austria. The smugglers generally choose small, smooth-haired dogs, like fox terriers, as their assitants. They train them by giving them a whipping on the further side of the frontier and then drive them across it to the house of an accomplice in an Austrian village, where they receive a good meal. The dog naturally soon learns to run as hard as he can. He is then covered with the skin of a rough-haired dog, usually a poodle, inside which a quantity of tobacco, saccharin, lace or other valuable goods on which there is a high duty is fastened in such a way that the enlarged dog looks as natural as possible. The revenue officials have found it very difficult to shoot these canine contrabandists, so they now set dogs to catch dogs. For this purpose they train larger swift-running animals with good noses, whose duty it is to run down the smuggler's dogs, kill them and then lead the officials to the spot. They are also employed to hunt out the smugglers themselves in their hiding places, in the caves of mountains or forests, and to discover their caches.

Something About Drainage

Mr. Arpin Declines Definite Statement Concerning Work on Ditches

At Thief River Falls yesterday morning Mr. Arpin, of the Northwestern Drainage Co., was interviewed by the editor of this paper in regard to the work on the Mud Lake drainage system, and particulary regarding the prospects for the early ditching of Green Stump Lake and the ditch on the town line south of that lake, which two small ditches are conceded to be of vast importance to the settlers in the towns of East Valley, Adgar, Grand Plain, Mud Lake, Eckvoll, and parts of Rollis and Moylan, as providing them with a more convenient market connection than they enjoy at present, besides making a lot of their lands tillable and providing a way to get in machinery to handle their crops.

During the interview Mr. Arpin was most courteous, but declined to make any definate statement as to these ditches at the present time. He did say that, at the time the contract was let, that it was understood and agreed that the portion of the work lying furthest east in Marshall county and in Beltrami county were to be given the preference in the finishing up of the the work also that for the Stnmp Lake vicinity he might have to install a different type of dredge. Further than this Mr. Arpin was entirely non-committal. However, yesterday afternoon he came up to Holt [illegible] and went out to look over conditions in that vicinity.

Inasmuch as the supplies for dredges Nos. 6 and 7, at work on Ditches 11 and 200 must all be hauled from here, and that the roads along the two ditches above named will be of great importance in their transporation, it is highly probable that Mr. Arpin will get busy on these two ditches in the near future. Stump Lake has been a terrible detriment to the settlers east of the Thief River, as it has prevented them from having a good road to Holt, which is by far their nearest town.

NEW USE FOR A TURNIP.

A small Brighton Beach urchin "put one across" on Charley Gardner, who takes tickets when the Indianapolis Reserves play at the Brighton Beach diamonds. It happened a week or two ago. Gardner was on the gate, as usual; though perhaps not as usual, either. That is, Charley had been out late the preceding night.

It is the custom at the Beach to admit small boys who desert their knot holes in the fence to recover foul balls. The ball is a "pass," and when thrust into Gardner's hand it admits the bearer.

Just after a round of cheers from spectators a small figure rushed up to Gardner, thrust something round and smooth into his hand and rushed on right in. A few minutes later Gardner was turning a handful of balls over to Manager Andy Reinhardt. Among them he found a nicely smoothed turnip of about the right weight. There is a turnip patch just across from the diamond.—Indianapolis News.

TAWNEY DENIES THE RUMOR

WILL NOT LEAD TAFT FORCES IN NORTHWEST FIGHT.

Winonan Again Praised the Administration of President Taft.

Winona. — Ex-Congressman J. A. Tawney at home, in Winona has entered a vigorous denial to the report that he will manage the Taft forces in the Northwest. He asserted that the rumor was founded entirely upon imagination and that he had not even received an invitation to command the forces for the president in the Northwest state.

Mr. Tawney declared:

"There is absolutely no ground for the report, except the fact that it was claimed in 1904 that I successfully conducted the speaking campaign in behalf of the election of Colonel Roosevelt. For this service I received from Mr. Roosevelt his highest praise and commendation. Being for him and working for his success, at that time, I was not then a political boss, but a self-sacrificing patriot."

Mr. Tawney said he should consider it only a great honor to be called upon to aid in the campaign of the "only candidate who stands for the representative government by law, under the constitution, as against government by the mere will of the man who may be chosen as the chief executive of the nation." Mr. Tawney said, however, that he would be unable to serve if he were called upon.

CONVENTION ADVANCED.

Set Ahead a Day so as Not To Conflict With Circus.

Fergus Falls.—It has been decided to change the dates for the state Elks' convention, which is to be held in this city, from Aug. 21 to 22nd and 23 this city, from Aug. 21, 22nd and 23 to Aug. 20, 21 and 22. The convention is to be held a day earlier because a circus is to appear here on Aug. 23, and it was felt that it would be impossible to entertain the visitors properly with a show in town.

The twin city Elks are coming by automobile and will stop over night in St. Cloud, where they will be entertained by the St. Cloud lodge. The St. Cloud Elks will join them in automobiles and come on to this city with them. The program for the convention has been arranged as follows:

Tuesday, Aug. 20.—Registration, afternoon reception of visitors and informal dance at Elks' club.

Wednesday, Aug. 21.—Auto rides to points of interest. Business session and ladies' reception. Baseball game for blood. Social session in the evening.

Thursday, Aug. 22.—A day at beautiful Swan lake—picnic, lunch, boating, fishing, water sports, swimming contests, etc. Evening, dance at Elks' clubrooms until train goes.

Minneapolis Eagle Chosen.

Cleveland, Ohio. — The administration slate is believed to have gone through unbroken in the choice of officers of the grand aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles as follows: Grand worthy president, William J. Brennan, Pittsburg; grand worthy vice president, Thomas J. Cogan, Cincinnati; grand worthy chaplain, Wm. L. Crayson, Savannah, Ga.; grand secretary, John S. Barry, San Francisco; grand conductor, Thomas P. Gleason, Minneapolis; grand trustees, Jas. F. Kelly, Cleveland; Fred S. Naeve, Davenport, Iowa; John J. Bohl, Stamford, Conn., and Conrad H. Mann, Milwaukee.

Steamer Mars Sinks.

Winona.—Steamer Mars, owned and operated by the St. Paul Sand and Gravel company, in charge of Captain Winaus, sank near the lower end of the city, upon striking a submerged pier. Sixteen members of the crew were on board, but none was drowned, the water being only eight feet deep. The boat will likely be wrecked as a severe break has occurred in the center of the craft, where the hull rests upon the pier. It is remarkable that no deaths resulted.

Fined $50 for Killing Moose.

Duluth. — F. J. Wilkie, a well-known attorney of Hibbing, was convicted of having illegally killed a moose, and he was fined $50 by a Coleraine justice. It is said that he will appeal the case.

Want Charges Dropped.

Two Harbors.—A petition is being circulated for the dismissal of the embezzlement charges against David H. Lawrence, former judge of probate. It is addressed to the district judge and to County Attorney Fowler. About 600 signatures have been obtained. The petition says that in view of the fact that Lawrence has made satisfactory settlements the matter should be dropped. Lawrence is an old resident. Last winter he disappeared and it was found that he was an embezzler. He was located in California.

R. R. MEN ARE SILENT.

Rochester Citizens Are Good and Hot Because of Snub.

Rochester.—The failure of the Chicago Great Western officials to meet with the arrangements of the Commercial club for their entertainment here was the subject of much comment among Rochester's business men. Practically all are of the opinion that the officials' action while not premediated was a direct insult to the city. General Manager Slifer would not discuss the matter. Other members of the railroad party were equally reticent.

There has for a long time been much dissatisfaction in Rochester with the service given the city by the Great Western. It was the hope of the Commercial club that at the informal gathering the officials would be given an impression of the importance of the city in railroad circles that would result in something better for Rochester.

However, as Dr. W. J. Mayo puts it, the Great Western heads "preferred to eat rather than to accept Rochester's hospitality." President Geo. J. Stevens of the Commercial club who had charge of the arrangements, believes the city may properly take notice of the alleged snub.

Feeling against the Great Western is high and many business men who are large freight receivers, are advocating the acceptance of no freight over the Great Western road.

The Great Western officials made informal calls upon business men afterwards, but they failed to get the most cordial reception, and all mention of the affair was carefully avoided.

ROBBERS OPERATING.

Homes of St. Charles Men Entered.

Rochester.—A lawless band of robbers seems to be infesting this section. The home of Mr. Murphy, in St. Charles, was entered and later the Goodrich home in the same place was the scene of an attempted burglary. Then the Anderson residence was visited. Two nights ago Robert Fenske, living east of this city, had two valuable horses stolen. The sheriff and deputies were soon on the trail and the pursuit was evidently becoming too hot, for the thieves placed the stolen animals in a farmer's barn west of the city and then made good their escape.

On the Fifth street bridge was found a purse, badly torn and soaked in blood. The contents were missing except two checks.

The Kealey home in North Rochester was visited by intruders. The men were frightened away before anything of value had been taken.

TWO BOYS ARRESTED.

Son of Aviator De Haven and Wisconsin Youth.

Preston.—Roy Ritchie, a Wisconsin boy, and Cleo De Haven, son of Aeronaut De Haven of Chatfield, were arrested at Eyota, Olmsted county, Minn., by the marshal of Eyota while driving through that place. In their buggy were found about ten suits of clothes and six suit cases, together with a great amount of men's furnishings, goods of all kinds which they are charged with having stolen in Lauvell's clothing store at Chatfield Monday night.

The boys, who are 18 years old, were taken to Chatfield. They waived examination, pleaded guilty and were brought to Preston and lodged in jail last evening, less than twenty hours after the burglary.

They told Sheriff Blexrud, upon arrival at the jail, that they were ready to receive their sentence at the reform school at once if arrangements could be made.

TWO KILLED BY TRAIN.

Cass Lake.—Coroner E. F. Miskella has returned from Bena, where he went to bring the bodies of Frank Dodge and Clarence Little, cook and cookee respectively at Cochran's logging camps located near Bena, who, it is thought, were killed by a passenger train while they were riding on a speeder. Both were hurled into the ditch, landing about 60 feet apart. Dodge was about 35 years old and has a mother living at Hortonville Wis., according to letters found in the dead man's clothes. Little was aged 18 and has a brother at Kellihei, Minn., and another at Claremount N. C

Tramps Fell Conductor.

Winona. — Just after Conductor Homer B. Kelly on a Northwestern freight train gave the signal to the engineer to start at Marshland, Wis., across the river from Winona, two men attempted to steal a ride. The conductor ordered them off and a struggle ensued on the rear platform of the caboose. After they were dislodged one of them hurled a huge stone at the conductor and struck him just under the eye, tearing a hole in his face and rendering him unconscious. His condition is serious.

KNOX'S VISIT IS SIGNIFICANT

REGARDED AS IMPORTANT AS PERRY'S FAMOUS TRIP.

Expected to Cause Friendlier Feeling Between Orientals and Americans.

Washington, Aug. 13.—The highest diplomatic significance is attached to the announcement made by President Taft at the White House that Secretary of State Knox will go to Japan as the representative of the president at the funeral ceremonies of the late Emperor Mutsuhite. In his announcement here President Taft indicated that he regards the forthcoming Knox mission on a level of importance with the famous visit of Commodore Perry to Japan more than half a century ago, which resulted in the opening of Japan to intercourse with nations of the western world and influx of western civilization.

Secretary Knox, accompanied by Mrs. Knox will leave Washington and proceed to Seattle and there board an armored cruiser of the United States navy which will convey him to Japan. Rahsford S. Miller, chief of the division of far eastern affairs of the state department, will act as secretary of the mission. Mr. Miller has lived more than twenty years in the orient, speaks Chinese and Japanese and is the state department expert on affairs of the far east. An admiral of the navy and general of the army, neither of whom has yet been selected, will accompany the secretary as aides.

Among other things, it is hoped that Mr. Knox's visit will tend to remove whatever sting Japan has found in the Magdalena Bay incident and its resultant "Lodge resolution" and in the recent agitation in this country over the manner in which Japan has conducted the trial of several Corean Christians, accused of conspiracy. Both of these incidents, especially the latter, were the source of irritation and embarrassment at the state department—embarrassing because they were regarded as unnecessary and unpleasant insinuation against Japan.

It is well known that the Japanese as a people are peculiarly responsive to attention and recognition from the western nations. Those acquainted with the Japanese predict that the president's act in sending Mr. Knox as special envoy will awaken the warmest feelings of gratitude among the Japanese. The Knox mission should take its place, it is predicted, as one of the most notable acts of international friendship ever performed by an American president and which will find great appreciation in Japan.

National Tariff War Seen.

Paris, Aug. 13.—Quoting approvingly American protests against the action of the American senate in passing the Panama canal bill which, among other things, provides for the remission of tolls to American vessels engaged in coast-wise and foreign traffic, the Paris Temps foresees a tariff war of all the powers against the United States unless President Taft vetoes a course "which wrongs the interests of the rest of the world and believes that the whole purpose of the work at Panama was in the interest of mankind in general."

Warm Weather Predicted.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Moderately warm weather over the great central valleys, the lake region and the eastern and southern states is promised by the weather bureau during the coming week.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.
In this age of research and experiment, all nature is ransacked by the scientific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides in the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine is that of Therapion, which has been used with great success in French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists, that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say, miraculous cures, should send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. Le Clerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether the New French Remedy "THERAPION" No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 is what they require and have been seeking in vain during a life of misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness. Therapion is sold by druggists or mail $1.00. Fougera Co., 90 Beekman St., New York.

Consistent.

"Your friend is very particular about conformity in all things, isn't he?"

"Yes, indeed. When he went on his last spree the family were in mourning and he saw only black snakes."

To be sweet and clean, every woman should use Paxtine in sponge bathing. It eradicates perspiration and all other body odors. At druggists, 25c a box or sent postpaid on receipt of price by The Paxton Toilet Co., Boston, Mass.

Wanted Minute Evidence.

Orfila, the celebrated doctor, being examined as an "expert" on a capital trial, was asked by the president whether he could tell what quantity of arsenic was requisite to kill a fly. The doctor replied:

"Certainly, M. le President. But I must know beforehand the age of the fly, its sex, its temperament, its condition and habit of body, whether married or single, widow or spinster, widower or bachelor. When satisfied on these points I can answer your question."

HOW MANY OF US

Fail to Select Food Nature Demands to Ward Off Ailments?

A Ky. lady, speaking about food, says: "I was accustomed to eating all kinds of ordinary food until, for some reason, indigestion and nervous prostration set in.

"After I had run down seriously my attention was called to the necessity of some change in my diet, and I discontinued my ordinary breakfast and began using Grape-Nuts with a good quantity of rich cream.

"In a few days my condition changed in a remarkable way, and I began to have a strength that I had never been possessed of before, a vigor of body and a poise of mind that amazed me. It was entirely new in my experience.

"My former attacks of indigestion had been accompanied by heat flashes, and many times my condition was distressing with blind spells of dizziness, rush of blood to the head and neuralgic pains in the chest.

"Since using Grape-Nuts alone for breakfast I have been free from these troubles, except at times when I have indulged in rich, greasy foods in quantity, then I would be warned by a pain under the left shoulder blade, and unless I heeded the warning the old trouble would come back, but when I finally got to know where these troubles originated I returned to my Grape-Nuts and cream and the pain and disturbance left very quickly.

"I am now in prime health as a result of my use of Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

DISORDERED DIGESTION

If Neglected May Develop into a Severe Form of Stomach Trouble.

The Best Safeguard Is to Keep the Stomach Toned Up and the Treatment Should Be Begun When the First Symptom Is Noted.

"A few years ago," says Mrs. George Fallu, of Finlayson, Minn., "I began to suffer from stomach trouble. It came on me gradually and I do not know what caused it. I gave little heed to it at the time, thinking that it was merely a slight attack of indigestion. It finally developed into a severe form of stomach trouble and I suffered terribly for months.

"At the beginning of my sickness I had fainting spells and became unconscious. There was gas on my stomach, my appetite was very poor and what little I ate did not seem to be digested. I was sick at my stomach a great deal and had severe dizzy attacks. I had hot flashes when it would seem as though I was burning up. I could not sleep night or day during these spells unless I took something to ease the pain. I was very weak and was in this condition for six months. I could not do any work and was confined to bed for two or three days at a time.

"A doctor at Duluth said I had gastric fever. He did not give me much help so I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills upon my mother's advice. I gave the pills a thorough trial and unlike the doctor's medicine, they agreed with me. I took several boxes of the pills and was entirely cured. I think so much of the pills that I always keep them in the house."

The tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills by building up the blood so that it can nourish and strengthen the weakened digestive system has made hundreds of cures in the most severe stomach disorders. This record of cures should merit a trial for the remedy which is guaranteed free from opiates.

A new edition of the booklet, "What to Eat and How to Eat," is free on request. Send a postal for it today and begin to cure yourself by following the directions it contains.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are on sale at all druggists, or they will be sent to any address by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

What He Bought.

A Syracuse business man living in one of the suburbs decided to give up his spacious back yards to the raising of currants as a profitable side issue. So, wishing to absorb all the information he could acquire on the subject of the currant industry, he went down town one Saturday afternoon recently and returned with his arms full of books.

"Well, Teddy," inquired his enthusiastic spouse, as he dumped the volumes on the table, "did you succeed in getting what you wanted?"

"Sure, I did!" he replied, proudly pointing to the books. "I bought a whole year's edition of a standard work on current literature."—Exchange.

ROOSEVELT AND JOHNSON ARE NOMINATED

CANDIDATES THANK CONVENTION AND PLEDGE TO WORK UNTIREINGLY SUPPORT.

JANE ADDAMS HELPS.

Is Among Those to Second Ex-President's Nomination.—Colonel and Governor Praise Each Other.

Chicago, Illinois.—Singing "Onward Christian Soldiers," and the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," the delegates to the first national convention of the new Progressive party proclaimed Theodore Roosevelt of New York as their candidate for president, and Governor Hiram W. Johnson of California as their choice for vice-president.

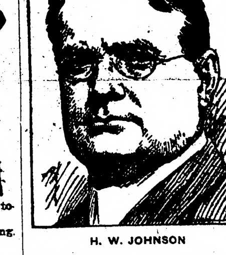
Marking a new departure in the proceedings of national conventions, the two candidates immediately were informally notified of their nomination and in the midst of deafening cheers appeared before the delegates to voice their acceptance and pledge their best effort to the coming campaign.

For several long hours during the afternoon and early evening the big throng in the Coliseum had listened to a flow of oratory in nominating and seconding speeches in which the dominant note expressed was the belief that victory would come to the new party in the November elections.

Raymond Robbins of Illinois pledged a 100,000 majority for the national ticket in Illinois and Gifford Pinchot predicted a 400,000 majority for Colonel Roosevelt and Governor Johnson in his home state of Pennsylvania.

These statements were cheered to the echo.

The party formally christened itself "The Progressive party," leaving out the prefix "national," by which it heretofore was known, but provision was made for the cognition of "real" Progressives in any of the states of whatever name they should be locally designated because of the state laws.



H. W. JOHNSON

The convention adjourned at 7:24 p. m. with the delegates singing the Doxology.

During the three days it was in session there was not a single roll call, nor a ballot taken. The delegates asked no such formalities either in placing their candidates in nomination or in voting for them. There was not a voice in opposition either to Colonel Roosevelt or Governor Johnson. The delay in nominating them was due to the large number of seconding speeches allowed.

As has always been the case in national political conventions, the bulk of the work of the Progressive gathering was carried on in the committees. The only semblance of a conflict of opinion on the floor was a brief debate as to whether or not an hour's recess should be taken.

The point was not material, but, as one delegate expressed it, "we just had to fight about something to make it a regular convention."

There was sharp discussion, however, in several of the committee meetings and no little difficulty in agreeing upon the platform as finally adopted. Colonel Roosevelt worked with the sub-committee in charge of the platform, going over their work and vigorously helping to mould the draft which at last proved acceptable to him. The platform did not take up the negro question.

In this connection, one of the interesting seconding speeches of the day was that of F. R. Gleed of New York, a negro. Gleed declared that the negroes had faith in the new party, faith that it would do all in its power to right the wrongs of the race.

"We stand by the platform," he said; "we stand by Col. Roosevelt's letter; we stand by his speech. And as we stood by him at San Juan Hill, so we will stand by him in November and fight for victory."

Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, was among those who seconded Colonel Roosevelt and she was enthusiastically greeted.

The new party formally placed itself on record as favoring equal suffrage and further recognized the woman suffrage movement by providing for four women members at large on the national committee.

Colonel Roosevelt, in his speech of acceptance, said:

"Mr. Chairman and men and women who in this convention represent the high and honest purpose of the people of all of our country. I came forward to thank you from my heart for the honor you have conferred upon me and to say that of course I accept."

With his task as pilot of the convention ended, Colonel Roosevelt plunged at once into what he expects to be the hardest campaign of his career. He was in high spirits and said jubilantly that everything had turned out just right.

"We've got a great platform. Everything is fine, by George!" he exclaimed.

The new national committee of the Progressive party, which takes place of the provincial committee in charge up to this time, was named by the various state delegations. The membership of the new committee is:

Joseph Thompson, Alabama; J. F. Cleaveland, Arizona; H. K. Cochran, Arkansas; Chester H. Rowell, California; B. B. Lindsey, Colorado; Joseph W. Alzoh, Connecticut; Louis A. Drexler, Delaware; C. M. McClure, Georgia; P. M. Smock, Idaho; Rudolph G. Leeds, Indiana; John L. Stevens, Iowa; William Allen White, Kansas; Leslie M. Combs, Kentucky; Pearl Wright, Louisiana; Albert P. Gardner, Maine; Matthew Hale, Massachusetts; E. C. Carrington, Jr., Maryland; Henry M. Wallace, Michigan; Milton D. Purdy, Minnesota; Wm. H. Walker, Missouri; B. F. Fridge, Mississippi; Joseph M. Dixon, Montana; Nathan Merriam, Nebraska; P. L. Flannigan, Nevada; William Savacool, New Hampshire; John Franklin Fort, New Jersey; Miguel A. Otero, New Mexico; J. N. Williamson, North Carolina; A. Y. More, North Dakota; J. J. Sullivan, Ohio; George J. Priestley, Oklahoma; H. W. Coe, Oregon; Edwin F. Tuttle, Rhode Island; R. S. Vessey, South Dakota; G. Thomas Taylor, Tennessee; Cecil A. Lyon, Texas; M. Henler, Utah; Thomas Lee Moore, Virginia; Charles H. Thompson, Vermont; H. F. Ochsems, Wisconsin; Robert D. Carey, Wyoming; M. M. O. Dawson, West Virginia.

Crowds in hotel corridors and lobbies were nearly as large and quite as noisy as those during the Republican national convention.

Hundreds of delegates and their friends, fantastically decked out with bandana handkerchiefs and pictures of Colonel Roosevelt, marched about singing Roosevelt songs and shouting Roosevelt yells of many kinds.

Despite the fact that Colonel Roosevelt was expected to reach the convention hall soon after noon, delegations to the national progressive gathering were slow again in reaching their seats. At 10 minutes to 12 there were not more than 200 delegates on the floor. The galleries also were slow in filling.

A great crowd of spectators and delegates had remained at the headquarters hotel either to see the colonel start triumphantly for the convention or to accompany him on the trip. The New York delegation marched in at 11:55 a. m. with a brass band in the lead, playing the inevitable convention tune, "Everybody's Doing It."

COL. THEODORE ROOSEVELT

SCHLEPP SAYS HE KNOWS MUCH

SUSPECT, ARRESTED IN WEST, WILL TALK IF "EVERYTHING IS ALL RIGHT."

SAYS HE PAID SLAYERS

All Those Connected With Rosenthal Probe Elated Over Latest Development.

Hot Springs, Ark., Aug. 13.—"I am ready to go back to New York without any requisition or without fighting the case," said Samuel Scheppe, under arrest here for alleged complicity in the murder of Herman Rosenthal in New York, "but I want to know that everything is all right.

"I am the keynote to the situation in New York and if they want me to treat the district attorney's office right, they will have to treat me right."

Schepps said that he has not decided whether he will join with Rose, Vallon and Webber in a confession.

The alleged go-between added that he would make up his mind to that question while on the way East.

He will refuse to talk further, he declared, here or on the way to New York.

Before he "talks" he said he wants to go over the situation with Rose, Webber, Vallon and District Attorney Whitman. Then, if he has a statement to make he added, it will be given first hand to the district attorney.

Schepps is held in Hot Springs under uncertain circumstances as to when he shall be delivered.

His arrest Saturday night came about through confidential information from the office of the district attorney in New York.

Gives New Impetus to Case.

New York.—The arrest of Sam Schepps in Hot Springs, has given a new impetus to the Rosenthal case. It is considered the most important development since the confessions Jack Rose and "Bridgie" Webber led to the indictment of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker as the alleged instigator of the murder. Schepps has been wanted badly by the district attorney to complete the evidence of the plot.

One of the most interesting features in connection with Schepp's arrest is that police here appear to have had no hand in the matter. Nearly 24 hours after the arrest, Deputy Commissioner Dougherty was in ignorance of the capture, except for newspaper dispatches.

"I can't understand it," Mr. Dougherty said. "On July 27 I wrote a letter to the chief of police at Hot Springs asking him to be on the lookout for Schepps. I had no particular tip that Schepps was in Hot Springs, but I was aware of the fugitive's physical condition and thought he might go there. I can't understand why the New York police have not been notified if Schepps has really been arrested. I telegraphed the Hot Springs police for information and for the circumstances under which the arrest was made but have received no reply."

The explanation as indicated in the newspaper dispatches appears to be that the arrest was made by private detectives. The commissioner said it could not have been detectives attached to District Attorney Whitman's office as none of these had gone to Hot Springs, and could not go without authorization of the detective bureau.

Schepps, it is charged, was in the conspiracy to murder Rosenthal, rode in the automobile with the slayers to and from the scene and paid off the gangsters after they had completed their work.

Jack Sullivan has agreed to go before Mr. Whitman to tell all he knows about the alleged connection of Lieutenant Becker with the murder.

Schepp's assertion at Hot Springs that he is the "keynote to the situation" here did not appear to Mr. Dougherty to be an exaggeration.

Taft Rescues Women.

Washington, Aug 13. — President Taft, his personal aide, Major Thomas L. Rhoads and W. C. Herron, the president's brother-in-law, took the leading part in rescuing two women, whose car was hanging over the bank of Rock creek ready to plunge downward. At President Taft's suggestion the car in which he was riding was turned around, the skid chain applied and the imperiled machine was pulled back to the roadway.

Third Wreck in Four Days.

Rogers, Ark., Aug. 13.—For the third time within four days a passenger train on the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad was wrecked near here. Fireman George Bryant of Hugo, Okla., was killed and Engineer John Moore of Monnett, Mo., was injured seriously. No passengers were hurt badly.

Governor Marshall's Views.

Indianapolis, Aug 13. — Theodore Roosevelt will poll more votes in New York states than President Taft, according to Governor Thomas R. Marshall, democratic vice presidential candidate, who returned from a week's trip through the east. He said that he had not been able to get any first-hand information regarding the comparative strength of Governor Woodrow Wilson but that democratic leaders told him Roosevelt's vote in the east would be greater than that for the president.

LEGAL ADVICE.

Lawyer—If you wish to get off with the minimum punishment, I'd advise you to confess everything and throw yourself on the mercy of the court.

Accused—But if I don't confess?

Lawyer—Oh! in that case you will very likely be acquitted for want of evidence.

TWO CARBUNCLES ON NECK

Veterans' Home, Napa Co., Cal.—"I was afflicted with two carbuncles on the back of my neck. The doctors said they were the largest carbuncles he ever saw. I suffered the most intense agony, so much that I could not rest or sleep for about a month. One was lanced four times. When the first began to get better another broke out and was equally as painful as the first one. I heard of Cuticura Soap and Ointment being good for such things, so I procured a box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Cuticura Soap. I washed both the carbuncles with Cuticura Soap frequently whenever any pus began to gather, and applied the Cuticura Ointment. I felt relief after the first use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and in a week's time both carbuncles were gone and I was completely cured. I have not been troubled since.

"I also had eczema of the scalp. My scalp itched fearfully and pimples began to break out which emitted pus, and my head became sore and scaly. I had dandruff also. I used Cuticura Soap for a shampoo with hot water, and used the Cuticura Ointment on my scalp, and it afforded instant relief, followed by absolute cure." (Signed) George H. Wetsell, Dec. 11, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

More Time Needed.

"You must get three weeks' vacation this year."

"Why?"

"Two weeks aren't enough."

"They're all I can get."

"I don't care. You've got to have three. Last year I had to come home with two new dresses that I hadn't had time to wear."

Be a booster—not a knocker.

A circular letter sent out from the national Democratic headquarters asks newspapers to open their columns for the purpose of soliciting popular contributions to the Wilson campaign fund. There is clearly a double object in sending out such an appeal. The committee wants to get the newspapers to do most of the campaigning on a purely "thank you" basis, and in doing so, delude the public into the belief that the democratic national committee is not accepting any contributions from the Big Business Interests in the east. What contributions they will get from the common people would hardly buy water to moisten the postage stamps they will use, but they will have millions in their fund, just the same, and the committee will spend a good deal of it on themselves—the amount of such personal expenditures depending some on how much free space they can work the country editors for.

Mr. LaFollette seems to be determined to get in his own was as a future presidential possibility. The bitterness of his attacks on Roosevelt show that the LaFollette progressivism was purely a personal matter, and is so still. In view of the popular vote in many states, it would seem that he is hardly justified in hurling defiance at the millions of progressive people who publicly declared their faith in Roosevelt and his policies.

The gang at the county seat are evidently afraid of the coming strength of the east end of the county, and even their candidates for office ignore this section pretty thoroughly. With eastern Marshall county working in harmony for its own benefits this year, some of the old gangsters are liable to have hard sledding to be re-elected.

The senate has defeated the bill providing for an appropriation for the improvement of roads where rural free delivery routes have been established. If the people want good roads they must build them, and there is no use in waiting to see if Uncle Sam wont do it it for them.

According to present indications the results of the old republican machine efforts in this state this fall will not be worth mentioning.

For Representative.

(Advertising; paid by Paul Marschalk Personal Campaign Committee.)

I have filed for the Republican nomination as representative from this 63rd legislative district, and respectfully solicit your vote at the primary election to be held on September 17th, 1912.

If nominated and elected I pledge myself to support the following measures:

1. Just and equitable reapportionment.
2. County option and all other temperance measures.
3. Ample appropr'aton for the building of roads and for drainage.
4. Measures encouraging agricultural education and enlarged aid for rural schools.
5. State assistance to farmers in clearing their lands.
6. Initiative, referendum and recall.
7. Equitable tax law affecting corporations and other property.
8. Legislation that will tend towards more rapid settlement and development of our state.
6. I will vote for the candidate for United States Senator who receives the highest popular vote in the general election.

Respectfully yours,

WHY GREEK REPUBLIC FELL

Work of Corruptions and Dissensions Rather Than of the Man of Macedonia.

The old world has already revealed to us, in its unsealed books, the beginning and end of all its own marvelous struggles in the cause of liberty. Greece, lovely Greece, "the land of scholars and the nurse of arms," where sister republics, in fair procession, chanted the praises of liberty and the gods—where and what is she? For two thousand years the oppressor has ground her to the earth. Her arts are no more. The last sad relics of her temples are but the barracks of a ruthless soldiery. The fragments of her columns and her palaces are in the dust, yet beautiful in ruins. She fell not when the mighty were upon her. Her sons were united at Thermopylae and Marathon, and the tide of her triumph rolled back upon the Hellespont. She was conquered by her own factions. She fell by the hands of her own people. The man of Macedonia did not the work of destruction. It was already done by her own corruptions, banishments and dissensions.—Judge Story on "Our Duties to the Republic."

JOKE ON ARTHUR BRISBANE

Wilton Lackaye, the Actor, Was Astonished to Learn of Editorial Conferences With Hearst.

Arthur Brisbane, who is Mr. Hearst's close confidante in the management of the New York Journal, was in company with Wilton Lackaye, the actor, on upper Broadway one afternoon. The time passed quickly and it was nearly six o'clock when the editor suddenly bestirred himself and said he would have to start downtown. Lackaye urged Brisbane to accompany him to the Lambs' club and be his guest at dinner.

"I would like to," said Brisbane, "but there is an editorial conference called at six o'clock every evening and it is imperative that I be there."

"What is the idea of this editorial conference?" asked the actor.

"A conference between various heads of departments," explained Brisbane. "We get together and shape the plans for the next day's paper."

"Do you mean to imply," said the actor, pretending amazement, "that you and Hearst get out the Journal deliberately?"

MAY CLEAN UP MYSTERY.

The mystery concerning the birthplace of the Venerable Bede, England's first historian, has a prospect of being solved if the ecclesiastical scheme for excavating the foundations near the ancient tower of St. Peter's monastery, Wearwouth, is successful. The monastery was founded in the seventh century, and is now part of the fabric of Monkwearmouth parish church. The foundations of the building, believed to have been part of the monastery, are situated near the west side of the tower, and they have never been explored. The unearthing of the crypt and of interesting tablets and memorials is probable, and this may throw light on the birthplace of the Venerable Bede.—London Graphic.

A CONSCIENTIOUS DOG.

"I'm afraid, ma'am, that dog of yours would just as soon bite me as not."

"Well," answered the lady of the house to the wandering one, "Caesar is such a nice dog in his habits that I am sure he would rather not bite an unwashed stronger, but, on the other hand, his sense of duty is so strong that he is more than apt to bite you."

BETWEEN GIRLS.

"I haven't received a love letter from Jack in three days. I think it's a shame. I shall positively be ill unless I get a love letter by tomorrow."

"Well, my dear," said the other girl, "if you need a love letter from Jack as badly as that, I have forty or fifty I'll be glad to let you have."

CAN THIS BE TRUE?

"I can't understand it, don't you know, old chap."

"What can't you understand?"

"A fellow I was talking to a little while ago said some of the greatest men in the history of the world had died without ever having seen a squash court."

TRAINING FOR THE FIREMEN

Sedalia Alderman Wanted Them to Practice for Two Days Before Each Blaze.

"A number of years ago," said an ex-Sedalian, "a substantial German-American citizen was elected to the council in Sedalia, Mo. His sound business ideas soon made him easily the strongest member of the body in point of influence, but there were times when his ideas became tangled.

"About the time the alderman in question was completing his first term there arose a somewhat general and severe criticism of the town's fire protection. After the matter had been thoroughly discussed the alderman came to the conclusion that the trouble was due to inefficiency on the part of the firemen.

"'Haf it all fixed oop,' the alderman confided to his colleagues at one of the meetings. 'You vaste no more dime in dalk. You choost vote for mine ordinance.'

"The aldermen had sufficient faith in their associate's ability to cope with the municipal problems to wait for the ordinance, which was to be introduced and passed under a suspension of the rules. They expected a satisfactory explanation when the measure should be introduced. It came.

"'Misturr Bresident,' said the author of the measure, 'der troubles mit dis town iss dat der fire department don't bractiss enough yet. Dis ordinance vill cure der troubles. It says dat der department shall bractiss for two days before efery fire.'"

WERE NOT ON HIS LIST.

The late Rev. Horatio Stebbins of San Francisco was a man of large mind and noble powers, but more familiar with the world of intellectual and scholastic interests than with trivial and timely things, says the Cleveland Leader.

His household was blessed with a charming daughter, who grew up tall and beautiful, commanding the admiration of all who saw her. One day a visitor said to the good doctor:

"Doctor, your daughter grows more charming day by day. Why, she's a regular Gibson girl."

"Ah, thank you; thank you," replied the doctor in his best manner. When the visitor had gone, turning to his wife, the doctor asked: "My dear, who are the Gibsons?"

IN APPREHENSION.

"I gave her a plush album on her wedding aniiversary. It was one I had about the house for some time, but it looked like new."

"Well?"

"Now she has found that I have an anniversary soon."

"Well, no doubt you expect her to reciprocate."

"Reciprocate is not the word. I'm afraid she will retaliate."

QUITE SO.

"Who reads poetry?"

"Numerous people."

"Bah! What good is it?"

"Do not sneer at poetry, my friend. Poetry has risen in the estimation of many since they began using it on the baseball page."

AQUATIC SPOUSE.

"Poor Benders! He has a hard time."

"Why so?"

"If his wife isn't keeping him in hot water about some of his indiscretions, she is throwing cold water on his schemes for getting rich."

To Amend the Drainage Laws

Commercial Club of Holt Urges Action and Pledges Support to Settlers.

The annual meeting of the Commercial Club of Holt was held on Tuesday evening and there was a good attendance of the live members. A lot of important business was transacted but the most important was action taken regarding present drainage conditions and the amendment of the drainage laws, which are bound to bring most beneficial results.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were: P. A. Risberg, president; S. S. Kolden, vice-president; Chas. W. Latta, secretary; B. L. Backe, treasurer; Axel Nelson, Christ Yven and A. L. Carlson, directors.

A resolution was offered and adopted pledging the support of the Club to the settlers in the Mud Lake drainage district, in any legitimate effort they may see fit to make in behalf of securing prompt and proper fulfilment of the drainage contracts in that vicinity in order that their lands may be made subject to cultivation and that their present unnecessary inconveniences and privations may be remedied as quickly as possible.

The following resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote:

"Whereas, It has come to our knowledge that unreasonable delays occur [illegible] ditches and highways in the territory tributary to Holt, and particulary in portions of the Mud Lake district, such delays being a great injustice, entailing material losses, and in many instandes great hardships to the settlers whose lands are taxed for such improvements; and

Whereas, we believe that such delays, losses and hardships are directly due to the fact that, under the present drainage laws of this state, contractors have found it ridiculously easy to secure extensions of the time limit specified in their contracts; Therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the Commercial Club of Holt does hereby express its strong disapproval of a system that permits such injustice to the taxpaying land holders, and urges that the drainage laws be so amended at the next session of the legislature as to provide that in no case shall any extension of any drainage or roadmaking contract be granted without a public hearing first being had upon the application for such extension, dne notice of such hearing to be given by the county auditor as in the case of preliminary hearings on original ditch petitions; that no extension shall be granted in any case if it be shown at such hearing that the contractor has not, in good faith, used his best efforts to fulfil such contracts properly within the time originally specified; that in all such cases wherein an extension is not granted, the penalty provided in the original contract shall be collected in full by the county in which such work is situated and the auditor shall credit all amounts so collected as penalty to the taxes assessed against lands which may have been damaged, or had their benefits delayed, by reason of the non-fulfillment of such contract; that the distribution of such money collected as penalty shall be decided by the county board, their findings to be based on the report of a committee of three persons to be appointed by such board, and whose duty it shall be to make a personal examination of all lands whose owners or holders may claim a share in the distribution of such money when collected. And, be it further

RESOLVED, That our secretary be instructed to mail a copy of this resolution to our state senator, and candidates for representative and county auditor, requesting an expression of their opinion regarding the matters herein set forth, and also that they shall publicly declare what stand they shall take thereon if elected."

The secretary will get busy at once in carrying out the instruction contaiued in this resolution so that the people in the great Mud Lake district, anb other places where drainage projects are under way, may know before the primary election just where the candidates are at in regard to ssch amendments.

Several other matters were considered by the Club, and it is probable that a special meeting will be called in the near future for the further consideration of drainage matters.

CHINESE MARRIAGE.

Marriages in China are celebrated at the home of the bridegroom, not of the bride, says a writer in the May Wide World Magazine. Before quitting her own house the bride is arrayed in her best dress and jewels, her hair is elaborately arranged and she wears a large hat. A mantle is then thrown about her head and a red silk cloth is placed over her face. Her mother then puts her in a gilt sedan chair, used only for weddings, and locks her in, giving the key to one of the attendants, who delivers it to the bridegroom when the procession arrives at the latter's home. No priest or magistrate officiates at the marriage. The happy pair, the bride still veiled, enters the ancestral hall together and bow three times to the family tablets, afterward sitting down to a table on which are two cups of wine—an offering intended to propitiate the ancestors of the family. They next enter the reception chamber, where the husband removes the veil and mantle from his wife, seeing her face, perhaps, for the first time. The guests and friends then enter the room, gaze upon the blushing bride and convey their felicitations to the happy pair. A wedding banquet is held in the evening, at which the bride, very tactfully, pays especial attention to her parents-in-law.

SAFER AND SURER.

"I want you for my very own," said the rich old gentleman, when he had succeeded in getting the beautiful girl to listen to him.

"But how can I be your very own?"

"Why—why, you can marry me, can't you?"

"I suppose I could, but don't you think, if you really want me, it would be safer to adopt me?"—Judge's Library.

DR. SUN SAT SEN IS NOT AFRAID

FORMER PROVISIONAL PRESIDENT DISREGARDS FRIENDS' COUNSEL.

EXECUTION NOT FEARED

Does Not Expect Vote of Friends—Assassination of Chang Chen Wu Said to Have Been Orientally Fiendish.

Shanhai, Aug. 20. — Dr. Sun Yat Sen, former provisional president of China, disregarding the warning of friends who fear for his safety since the execution of several Hankow generals, left Shanghai for Pekin. General Huang Sing, who commanded the southern Republican army in the revolution which overthrew the imperial government and was to have accompanied Dr. Sun, has abandoned the journey.

The southern generals recently put to death were members of Dr. Sun Yat Sen's party, the Tung Men Hui, and were seized at the capital by direction of President Tuan Shi Kai, on the charge of being implicated in an alleged conspiracy against the Pekin government.

Two of the officers were tried by drum head court martial at the capital and shot. The others were returned in chains to Hankow and there executed.

London.—The execution of Chang Chen Wu by the Chinese government official is compared by the Pekin correspondent of the Daily Telegraph to Napoleon's shooting of the Duc d'Enghien at Vincennes in 1804 and what followed. It is the turning point, the writer asserts, in the life of the Chinese republic. The correspondent continues:

"President Yuan Shi Kai, alarmed at the outcry, is publishing Vice President Li Yon Hung's telegrams in order to fasten the blame on that official, and, fearing assassination, surrounds himself with troops.

According to Chinese newspapers, the execution was carried out in a fiendish manner. The Bannerman general, Yuan Chi Kuei, who was entrusted with the execution, actually dined with his victim in a European hotel and toasted him repeatedly. When the dinner was over he followed his victim in another carriage to his lodging.

"On alighting from the vehicle, General Yuan Chi Kuei blew a whistle as a signal, whereupon a forest of swords and bayonets sprang up about Wu, who was seized and bound and flung into a mule cart and carried to the military court. No evidence was given at the trial and the accused officer was condemned to immediate execution.

"The first volley not killing the prisoner, repeated volleys were fired until the general's body was disemboweled. It being necessary to dress the corpse, a message was sent to the victim's wife for more clothes as her husband 'felt cold in the night air.'"

MAY BE TRIED AGAIN.

Darrow, Acquitted, Faces Second Trial.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 19.—An air of uncertainty surrounds the disposition of the second indictment against Clarence S. Darrow, notwithstanding the announcement of District Attorney Fredericks that the Chicago lawyer would be tried again.

The second indictment alleges that Mr. Darrow bribed Robert F. Bain, the first juror sworn to try the McNamara case.

District Attorney Fredericks reiterated his intention to bring Darrow to trial on the Bain indictment but he declined to say what date he would recommend for the trial when opposing counsel appeared before Judge Hutton.

It was announced that Judge Hutton would be asked to set the date at once, but the district attorney said there might be some delay as he had not definitely determined what request to make. It also was probable, he said, that the defendant might have some request.

The impression prevails that because of the length and cost of the trial just ended and the rapidity with which the jury reached its verdict there will be no further trial of Darrow.

Daniel Gunning Kills Self.

SCHLEPPS TO TELL WHITMAN

INTEREST CENTERS IN INTERVIEW WITH THE WITNESS.

Declared Captain Hayes Is Prepared To Give Important Information.

New York, Aug. 20.—Interest in the Rosenthal case is centered in the projected interview between District Attorney Whitman and Sam Schepps, the man believed to hold in his keeping important secrets connected with the murder and surrounding graft which will do much toward clearing up the case. Schepps has just arrived from Buffalo.

One other important development is being forecasted. It is stated that Captain Cornelius G. Hayes, the reduced former police inspector, who is under charges of failure to enforce the law in respect to disorderly resorts in his district will be invited to call upon the district attorney and talk over the situation. Captain Hayes has declared that he acted under orders from superior officers. One of the charges pending against the former inspector is that he falsely stated that Commissioner Waldo directed him not to obtain evidence against disorderly houses except by order of the commissioner.

That Captain Hayes, if sees fit, can put the district attorney in touch with facts connected with the police situation in the tenderloin, is generally believed. It is also understood that Hayes disregarding immediate personal consequences, is prepared to give all the information at his disposal.

It is stated that Mayor Gaynor, who has charged that $1,500,000 in graft annually has been collected for protection to news dealers is prepared to substantiate his declaration that aldermanic influences were responsible for this alleged grafting.

Owatonna To Have Air Meet.

Owatonna, Minn., Aug. 20.—An aviation meet is being held in Owatonna under the auspices of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. Paul Studensky will make the flights. If possible, it is planned to have, as a feature, flights by a youthful aviator of Blooming Prairie, this county, who has invented a successful machine. The Owatonna and Rochester baseball teams, members of the newly organized Sunday league, will play their first game this season. It is planned to make the entire event a grand home-coming celebration for former residents of Owatonna and Steele county.

Wife Leads Soldiers.

Juarez, Mex., Aug. 20.—Clad in a man's khaki riding suit the young and beautiful wife of the rebel, Col. Lazro Alanis, put herself at the head of a band of insurrectos and after compelling contributions of arms, horses and supplies, rode off to join her husband. Colonel Alanis is operating in the vicinity of Palomasit. It is said Senora Alanis rode from store to store and dismounting, strode in and demanded what she needed to outfit her followers. None of the shopkeepers resisted.

Miss Vincent Only Slightly Hurt.

Spokane, Aug. 20.—Only slight injuries, it was learned, befell Miss Elizabeth Vincent of Minneapolis, who was thrown from her horse at St. Mary's lake, Glacier park, Mont., Saturday. The Taft camping party, of which she is a member, probably will remain at St. Mary's lake a day or so more, however, so she can rest up under the care of her mother, Mrs. Geo. E. Vincent of Minneapolis, the chaperon of the party.

Three Prisoners Escape.

Williston, N. D., Aug. 20.—Boring a hole through a brick wall large enough to admit their passage, three prisoners in the Williams county jail escaped. Ed. Karr, charged with purse snatching; John Mahar, charged with selling liquor, and J. Taylor, accused of larceny, are the men who escaped.

LA FOLLETTE OPENS FIRE

SENATOR SWEARS NEW ALLEGIANCE TO PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICANISM.

ATTACKS THIRD PARTY

Declares Trusts Grew from 149 to 10,020 During Roosevelt's Regime—Flood of Impassioned Oratory.

Washington, Aug. 19.—In a picturesque, spontaneous outburst during debate of the president's wool tariff veto in the senate, Senator La Follette attacked the new progressive party, and swore new allegiance to progressive Republicanism.

The "original insurgent," quivering with emotion, with clenched hands and strained face, poured out a flood of impassioned oratory that kept the floor and galleries of the senate rapt and silent. Standing in the well of the chamber, Senator La Follette assured his associates that he intended to "keep up the fight in the republican party, to make that party really progressive, and to keep on until the last bell rings and the curtain falls."

After reviewing briefly the trust record of Colonel Roosevelt, Senator La Follette declared that the former president was "not the man to find the way out." He asserted that "no obstacle dragged across the path of the progressive movement in the Republican party can now stop its advance."

He declared that when the Republican party, through its progressive associates, had reached a point where it would "respond to the purposes for which it was born, an attempt is made at Chicago to divert it."

Launches Into Attack.

Senator Stone asked Mr. La Follette whether he meant the nomination of President Taft or the nomination of ex-President Roosevelt.

"I am surprised," Senator La Follette began, "that I left the senator from Missouri in doubt. I hope I did not leave doubt in the mind of any one else."

Then moving down the center aisle until his outstretched, shaking hands almost touched the stenographers' tables, he continued:

"On the day that Theodore Roosevelt was made president of the United States there were 149 trusts and combinations in the United States. When he turned this government over to William Howard Taft there were 10,020 plants in combination. When he became president the trusts had an aggregate capitalization of $3,000,000,000 and when he left the presidency they had an aggregate capitalization of $31,000,000,000, and more than 70 per cent of it was water.

Says Trusts Are Growing.

"Their power has gone on growing and spreading. There has been no dimunition in the present administration. The present administration has sought to apply the Sherman anti-trust law more vigorously than its predecessor; but the time to have applied the Sherman anti-trust law effectively was in the infancy of these trusts, when there were only 149."

Then turning to Senator Stone, Senator La Follette bowed and inquired:

"Does that answer the senator from Missouri?"

"That does fairly well," responded Senator Stone, dryly, amid the laughter of the senate.

TAFT MAKES SPEECH.

Calls Electors Dishonest Who Violate Instructions.

Washington, Aug. 19. — President Taft made his first political speech since that he made when notified of his renomination. Addressing members of the Maryland Republican Editorial association in the east room of the White House, he declared bluntly that presidential electors were "dishonest men" if they let their names appear on the republican ballot and intended to vote for the candidate of another party.

He asserted that those who were not for the republican party were against it and should get out of the way.

Some of the editors told the president that either the electors chosen for the republican ticket in Maryland would declare their intention to support him or a new state convention would be held to make new selections.

Train Kills Two Indians.

Marshalltown, Iowa, Aug. 19.—John Mooney and an Indian woman, both 20 years old, were killed near Tama by a Northwestern freight train. Contrary to the custom of Indians, coffins were ordered for both.

Believe Mrs. Bogges Drowned.

St. Louis, Aug. 19.—Dr. John S. Bogges, of the marine hospital service, who is investigating the disappearance August 2, of his wife, Mrs. Ethel Keating Bogges, has learned that the missing woman was in Crystal City the afternoon of Aug. 4 and departed down the river in the skiff "Spot," which was found next day containing Mrs. Bogges' hat, purse, glove and a new night gown. The fact that she is known to have left Crystal City in the skiff confirms their opinion that she later drowned herself.

HARD FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

It's hard enough to keep house if in perfect health, but a woman who is weak, tired and suffering all of the time with an aching back has a heavy burden to carry. Any woman in this condition has good cause to suspect kidney trouble, especially if the kidney action seems disordered at all. Doan's Kidney Pills have cured thousands of women suffering in this way. It is the best-recommended special kidney remedy.

The International Congress on Aerial Legislation, sitting at Geneva, Switzerland, is evoking a very detailed code of laws. One of its suggested paragraphs reads: "In the event of a birth occurring in an air craft the pilot is to enter the event in his log book and must notify the fact to the authorities at the first place at which he descends."

How He Left.

The servants were discussing the matter below stairs.

"Master and mistress 'ad something of a row last night, I 'ear," said the butler ponderously.

"You should have heard 'em," answered the parlor maid in a shocked tone. "Scandalous is what I calls it!"

"They tell me 'e ran out, cranked 'is motor car and left in it."

"No," said the maid, positively, "he didn't leave in his machine; I distinctly heard the mistress say he left in a huff."—London Answers.

Case of Mistaken Identity.

President Taft was out for his afternoon walk in Washington one day when a flaxen-haired little girl ran out, in front of him, held up her finger, and exclaimed, in a shrill voice:

"I know who you are!"

The president, thinking it not at all unusual that she should possess this information, but willing to gratify her, asked:

"Well, who am I?"

"Aw," she said teasingly, "you're Humpty Dumpty."—Popular Magazine.

The Other Way 'Round.

A good little story, long current in England, is just now gaining American circulation. It has for leading characters Rudyard Kipling and Dorothy Drew, Mr. Gladstone's little grandchild. Kipling was visiting Hawarden, and, being fond of children, devoted himself to little Miss Dorothy until her anxious mother expressed the hope that the child had not been wearying the great author.

"Oh, no, mamma," spoke up Dorothy, before any one else had a chance to say anything, "but you have no idea how Mr. Kipling has been wearying me!"

One of the New York representatives in congress tells of a social function in an assembly district political club on the East Side, whereat the chairman of the entertainment committee acted as master of ceremonies.

The chairman was very busy introducing the newly-arrived members of the club to the guests, who included a number of municipal officers. The representative mentioned was presented in a way to halve his official honors with his wife, as "The Honorable and Mrs. Congressman Blank." Next came a couple who were not known to the master of ceremonies, but, after receiving the correct name in a whisper, he announced:

"Mr. and Miss. Inspector of Hydrants, Faucets and Shopworks Casey."—Lippincott's.

WELL PEOPLE TOO

Wise Doctor Gives Postum to Convalescents.

A wise doctor tries to give nature its best chance by saving the little strength of the already exhausted patient, and building up wasted energy with simple but powerful nourishment.

"Five years ago," writes a doctor "I commenced to use Postum in my own family instead of coffee." (It's a well-known fact that tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.) "I was so well pleased with the results that I had two grocers place it in stock, guaranteeing its sale.

"I then commenced to recommend it to my patients in place of coffee, as a nutritious beverage. The consequence is, every store in town is now selling it, as it has become a household necessity in many homes.

"I'm sure I prescribe Postum as often as any one remedy in the Materia Medica—in almost every case of indigestion and nervousness I treat, and with the best results.

"When I once introduce it into a family, it is quite sure to remain. I shall continue to use it and prescribe it in families where I practice.

"In convalescence from pneumonia, typhoid fever and other cases I give it as a liquid, easily absorbed diet. You may use my letter as a reference any way you see fit." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

GYPSIES GIVE UP LOOT.

Rural Officers Overtake Band and Recover Farmer's $35.

Winona.—Knute Knutson, a retired farmer living in the outskirts of the village of Arcadia, Wis., near here, was robbed of $35 by a band of gypsies and his empty pocketbook returned before he was aware that his pocket had been picked.

The gypsies, who had been ordered out of Winona, reached Arcadia about noon, but were kept on the move by the village marshal. As they were leaving the village Knutson was accosted by one of the women in the band and asked for a match. He is aged and the woman reached in his pocket. A few moments later she came for another match and repeated the "dipping" performance.

The band had disappeared over the hill when Knutson discovered his empty pocketbook and notified the marshal and the deputy sheriff, who began pursuit in an automobile. They overtook the gypsies two miles out of town, recovered the loot and forced the nomads to pay their expenses and the cost of the auto hire.

TOURISTS END TRIP

Automobile Endurance Run of 1,100 Miles Is Accomplished.

Minneapolis.—Very much browned by their hard journey under sun-kissed skies, and each probably carrying a concealed skin preparation, although but few would admit it, the Winnipeg tourists reached Minneapolis after one of the hardest contests that has ever been undertaken by automobile organizations in the Northwest.

Tired but happy, the tourists disembarked from the good road ships in which they had traveled more than 1,100 miles, and departed for their homes. The roads over which the contest was run, while good toward the last, furnished a more severe test for the automobiles than those of other years. All cars that finished, whether penalized or not, were accorded high praise by experts who understood conditions.

With a clean score, the winning Marmon permanently won for its owner, the Fawkes Auto company, clear title to have and to hold the Journal trophy offered as first prize in the touring class.

PEEPER INVADES HOMES.

Unknown Nocturnal Visitor In Half-Attire Alarms Housewives.

Rochester. — Rochester housewives lock their doors and bar their windows after sundown and the police are completely mystified because a "Pete the Peeper" is abroad in the city.

Unlike Wisconsin's famous "Jack the Hugger," the nocturnal visitor has proved nothing more than an unwelcome visitor. Mrs. A. G. Rich suddenly awoke after midnight to gaze into the white face of a coatless individual, who, with staring eyes, stood beside her bed.

The sleeping tent of the Misses Gilberts, daughters of the manager of the Botsford Lumber Company, was invaded on the same evening by a half-dressed stranger, who crept silently to their bedside in his bare feet.

In both cases the peeper disappeared quickly after the screams of the women alarmed the neighborhood.

8-Room House Stolen.

Minneapolis. — Sizzling red hot stoves have been stolen from Minneapolis homes and thieves have moved out all or most of the furniture. But all such crimes became trifling by comparison when Frank N. Edmonds, real estate man, finished making a report to Fred T. Williams, secretary to the mayor. The burden of the plaint was that some busy thief had taken advantage of the catnap of the policeman on the beat and stolen Mrs. Edmonds' eight-room house from its site at Fourth avenue north and Fourth street.

Body Found; Crime Possible.

Bemidji. — After having been missing since August 5, the bullet-pierced body of William Sherman, cook of the A. P. Reeves lumber camp, was found at White Fish Junction, in this county. A rifle was found lying across the body and a bullet from the weapon had penetrated Sherman's brain. The rifle lay in such a way that if suicide had been committed, the trigger must have been pulled by his right hand, whereas Sherman was left-handed. The county attorney has gone to investigate the murder theory.

Bank Robbers Still Free.

Bemidji. — Sheriff Riley of Grand Rapids and his posse of one hundred returned from Cohasset, without having found the two men who robbed the Cohasset State bank. The posse found traces of the men where they had broken down brush in the woods, but were unable to catch them.

WAIT LONG FOR MAYOR.

Braves Finally Ascertain That Great Chief Keller's Car Broke Down.

St. Paul.—Nearly one hundred Red Men assembled at Bowlby hall, Sixth and Robert streets, to participate in the 19th great sun council session of the Minnesota council of the Improved Order of Red Men, and waited with characteristic Indian patience about an hour and a half for Great Chief Keller, who was to welcome them to St. Paul.

After 10 o'clock one Red Man grunted, then another grunted, then the whole tribe grunted in unison. They listened a while longer to the sighing of the wind outside, then one Red Man applied his ear to the ground (represented by a wall telephone).

After listening a while he made signs to the rest of the tribe to gather around him.

"Great Chief's car broke down," he said, "Be here soon."

Frank W. Baer, grand sachem, then called the convention in council, and doors were shut upon the palefaces. Soon after the opening Mayor Keller arrived, presented the keys of the city to the Red Men, smoked the pipe of peace, and bade them all welcome in the name of St. Paul.

The address of welcome was answered by the grand sachem and the business session of the order was opened.

STATE DOCTORS ELECT

Dr. R. J. Hill of Minneapolis Succeeds St. Paul Practitioner.

Duluth. — At an important business meeting of the Minnesota State Medical association here, Dr. R. J. Hill, of Minneapolis, was elected president to succeed Dr. Haldor Sneve, of St. Paul. Minneapolis was selected as the next meeting place, some time in October, 1913.

Dr. H. C. Cooney, of Princeton, was elected vice-president, and Dr. S. H. Boyer, of Duluth, was chosen second vice-president. Dr. Thomas McDavitt, of St. Paul, was re-elected secretary and Dr. Earl Hare, of Minneapolis, was elected treasurer. Doctors Thomas McDavitt, of St. Paul; Leo M. Krafts, of Minneapolis, and J. W. Andrews, of Mankato, were selected as delegates to attend the annual convention of the American Medical association, which will be held at Minneapolis in October.

Old Soldiers Going Fast.

Minneapolis. — The mortality records for the Soldiers' Home presented to the board of trustees gave an alarming death rate that caused members of the board to wonder how long it could continue. Seventy-seven persons living at the home died in the year. When it is known that the average number at the home for that period was slightly in excess of 400, it can be seen that the percentage of deaths is exceptionally high. No fault is attached to the management for the high death rate. Deaths were due to old age largely.

Boundary Waters Pollution.

Winona.—To determine to what extent the waters along the boundary between the United States and Canada are polluted and to devise ways and means to remedy such pollution, at the same time giving adequate protection and development to all interests concerned, the first meeting of the International Waterways commission was held at Montreal, Can. James A. Tawney of Winona, chairman of the American section, attended the session.

Auto Accident Proves Fatal.

St. Paul.—Nels Nelson, sixty-six years old, employed by the St. Paul Gas Light company, was struck by an automobile last evening at Cherokee and Annapolis streets, and died a few minutes after reaching St. Joseph's hospital. The machine was driven by George Whitcher, 19 years old, son of E. T. Whitcher, farmer, living near Farmington.

Ore Companies Declare Dividends.

Duluth.—The Calumet and Arizona Mining company, at a special meeting held here made no change in the dividend, declaring the usual quarterly dividend of $1 a share. The Superior and Pittsburg company, with same directors, also declared the usual quarterly divided, namely, 30 cents a share. Both are payable September 23, 1912.

Backs Old Officers.

Duluth.—District Judge Dancer files findings in which he refuses to recognize the expulsions of A. E. McManus as general counsellor and W. A. Hicken as imperial scribe in the Modern Samaritan controversy. The court also finds: That the July meeting of the imperial council was illegally called; that O. F Collier's term of office as imperial treasurer expired in June; that no successor to Collier has been legally elected. He also orders to continue in force a restraining order which has been issued.

REPORTED BY THE GROUCH

Here the Original Hiram J. Tells of His Attendance at a Country "Function."

"Having nothing else to do," remarked the old codger, "I attended a function while I was over at Torpidville the other day. The affair was held in a dispirited grove at the end of a road in which every time a horse popped down his foot the dust shot up in the air like a skyrocket. A band was playing without the slightest remorse. A statesman, with a neck as wrinkled as a pickle, droned forth redundant nonentities without end. A sad and rickety merry-go-wabble wound 'round and 'round to the sound of its own plaintive peedle-deedle. In a tipsy pavilion a hoarse person was endeavoring to sell, in brazen defiance of the pure food and drug act, what looked alarmingly like horned toads fried in axle-grease. A gentleman in a striped tent near by hoarsely stated that he preferred to eat snakes at ten cents per serpent. There was the usual balloon which seemed perfectly willing to do anything but go up. Scattered around through the festal scene were a few old soldiers, grumbling; a smattering of farmers; also grumbling; sundry honest voters, likewise grumbling; and various other folks, nothing about whom is worth mentioning except that they, too, were grumbling. It may have been a reunion, a fair, a rally, a picnic, or what-not; but whatever they chanced to call it; 'twas an excellent example of one of our most cherished institutions."—Kansas City Star.

CHILD'S FACE ALL RED SPOTS

632 N. 5th St., Terre Haute, Ind.—"My little nephew, a boy of four years, had a breaking out on his face. It was little red spots at first, then he would rub and scratch and water blisters would form, and wherever the water would run another would come until his face was covered with them. He would cry and fret. His mother got some medicine, but it did not do any good. He would scream and cry and say it hurt. We hardly knew him, his litle face was all red spots and blisters. So I begged him to let me put some Cuticura Ointment on them. The next morning I made a strong soap suds with Cuticura Soap and washed his face in the warm suds. The little blisters burst by pressing the cloth on them. After I had his face washed, I put the Cuticura Ointment on and in a short time his little face was all red and dry. I kept using the Cuticura Soap and putting on the Cuticura Ointment and his face got as well and it did not leave a scar. He was entirely cured in about one week and a half." (Signed) Mrs. Arthur Haworth, Jan. 10, 1912.

Mother's Lingual Attainment.

The mother of a little boy in Kansas City, Kan., recites negro dialect stories charmingly. Her small son is quite proud of her accomplishment and frequently boasts of it. One day recently, when some of his playmates were vaunting the achievements of their several mothers, the little boy braggingly remarked:

"My mother is smarter than any of yours; she can talk two languages."

"What are they?" demanded his companions.

"White and colored."

Carrying It Too Far.

"Scientific management, like any other good thing, may be carried to excess."

The speaker was R. Marriott Thompson, the San Francisco scientific management expert. He continued, says the New York tribune:

"We scientific managers mustn't go as far as Hussler went.

"Hussler was the proprietor of a tremendous factory where scientific management had reduced the motions of every hand from 800 to 17. Hussler attended a very fashionable wedding one day, a wedding where the ceremony was performed by a bishop, assisted by a dean and a canon, and in the most impressive part of the writ Hussler, overcome by his scientific management ideas, rushed up to the altar and pushed the bishop and canon rudely back.

"'Here, boys,' he said, 'one's quite enough for a little job like this.'"

Really Had Best of It.

John Burroughs is well known as one of the foremost of nature writers in this country. Some time ago he visited his brother, Eden Burroughs, who lives in the Catskills, at a place called Hobart. The two brothers went fox hunting together. The honor of the hunt came to Eden, who shot the only fox. It so happened that foxskins were worth five dollars at that time, and the successful Nimrod took much pride in telling how he got the better of the sage of Slabsides. Later, in boasting to a few friends about it in the presence of his brother, John, he was interrupted by, "You have bragged about that fox hunt long enough. You shot the fox, sold the skin and got five dollars. I wrote a little account of the hunt, and got $75 from the magazine which published it. So there you are!"

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY

Tells How She Keeps Her Health — Happiness For Those Who Take Her Advice.

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has helped her.

Entered as second-class matter Sept. 22, 1911, at the post office at Holt, Minnesota, under the act of March 3, 1879.

Be a booster—not a knocker.

Chas. D. Hilles, the man who is at the head of the Taft campaign committee, has a habit of claiming things whether they belong to him or not. Just at present he claims that Taft will carry thirty-four states, among them being Minnesota and Nebraska. The primaries were held in Nebraska a few days ago and Roosevelt got a mojority of about 37,000 over Taft, and nobody in the entire northwest would venture the opinion that Taft can carry Minnesota. Before the national Republican convention, this same Mr. Hilles was claiming a clear majority of two to three hundred delegates for Taft in that convention, but, in order to get any majority at all, close to one hundred delegates had to be stolen by the Taft crowd. In the present struggle Hilles & Co. will find that stealing delegates is somewhat easier than getting the votes of the people.

In some of the advertising matter sent out by E. T. Young, formerly attorney general of this state, but now a candidate for governorship, a good deal of credit is claimed for some things that are not yet completed, notably the rate cases now before the United States Supreme Court in the form of an appeal from the notorius Sanborn decision. When the people know the real merit of Mr. Young's share in that matter, they will not be slow in giving him proper credit.

We notice that some people denounce P. M. Ringdal, candidate for the democratic nomination for governor, as an out and out atheist. We do not think this criticism in entirely justified, altho Mr. Ringdal is decidedly liberal in his views on religious matters. This may hurt him to some extent among the very religious people, but his known honesty and courage will probably help him as much as his ideas on religious topics may harm.

The action of the Commercial Club of Holt in regard to amendments for the present drainage laws is certainly a move in the right direction. It goes to shows that the members of the Commercial Club take more than a passing interest in the affairs of their neighbors in the Mud Lake district and will result in the making and keeping of many friends for the business interests of Holt.

For Representative.

(Advertising; paid by Paul Marschalk Personal Campaign Committee.)

I have filed for the Republican nomination as representative from this 63rd legislative district, and respectfully solicit your vote at the primary election to be held on September 17th, 1912.

If nominated and elected I pledge myself to support the following measures:

1. Just and equitable reapportionment.

2. County option and all other temperance measures.

3. Ample appropr'aton for the building of roads and for drainage.

4. Measures encouraging agricultural education and enlarged aid for rural schools.

5. State assistance to farmers in clearing their lands.

6. Initiative, referendum and recall.

7. Equitable tax law affecting corporations and other property.

8. Legislation that will tend towards more rapid settlement and development of our state.

6. I will vote for the candidate for United States Senator who receives the highest popular vote in the general election.

Respectfully yours,
—Paul Marschalk.

For Sheriff.

(Advertising; paid by Hans C. Hanson.)

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Sheriff of Marshall County, subject to the will of the voters at the primary election to be held September 17, 1912, and respectfully solicit the support of my friends and the voters of the county.

Respectfully submitted,
HANS C. HANSON,
Viking, Minn.

For Sheriff.

(Advertising; paid by Wm. Forsberg)

To the Republican Voters of Marshall County:

I hereby announce my candidacy for re-nomination for the office of Sheriff on the Republican ticket, and earnestly solicit the support and votes of my friends at the primary election. I pledge myself, if re-elected, to continue to discharge the duties of the office faithfully and impartially.

WILLIAM FORSBERG.

READS LESSON TO MOTHERS

Decision Made by Supreme Court Justice in Brooklyn Something of a Warning.

Supreme Court Justice Marean in Brooklyn awarded a decree of divorce to Mary S. Sidway from Harold S. Sidway, son of Mrs. Franklin Sidway of Buffalo, N. Y., $350 a month alimony and the custody of their two sons. The defendant did not contest the action, but when the question of alimony was brought up he said he was in the real estate business and was earning $200 a month.

Sidway's mother, according to his wife, is worth $5,000,000. Sidway told the court that he didn't think his mother was worth more than $1,000,000 and that he was one of five children. In fixing the alimony at $350 a month Justice Marean remarked:

"If a woman brings up her son in idleness with the idea that he is to inherit something, what the mother is worth is clearly admissible in determining what alimony the son shall pay."

SIMPLY DON'T MAKE IT PUBLIC

Most Men Travel Under Their Wives' Management, but the Fact Is Kept Concealed.

Dr. Thomas W. Brophy of Chicago, who claims that American motherhood is the highest type in the world, was asked if this was not partly due to the unusual amount of responsibility the American husband allows his wife in family affairs.

"Quite true," Dr. Brophy replied. "The confidence her husband places in her makes the American mother capable and self-reliant. The mother's share in a family's success or failure is a large one—much larger, indeed, than most men will acknowledge.

"'I see by the papers,' a friend once said to me, 'that Footlights is traveling under his wife's management.'

"'So do most men,' I replied, 'but they don't advertise it.'"

DANGEROUS BARGAIN DAYS.

I think that bargain days are becoming more and more dangerous, writes a New York city woman. I went to a hat sale recently. There were moments when I thought I had broken my neck, not to mention an arm and a leg or two. At last I escaped with a hat and struggled through to a clerk. I asked her to give me a mirror.

"Mirror, madam?" said she. "We never have mirrors on sale days. We let them break the furniture, but we draw the line at the mirrors. We're superstitious about broken mirrors."

ADVANTAGE OF LIBRARIES.

Miss Caroline Hewins, librarian of the Hartford public library, says that there are only fifteen states in the Union that have no library commissions. She cites the state of North Carolina as an illustration of the advantage of libraries. Eighty-two per cent. of the population is in the country. Seventy-seven federated women's clubs in the state assist with funds and there are eighty study libraries; the largest, at Raleigh, has 11,000 volumes and an income of $3,000.

SIMPLE, ONCE YOU KNOW.

"How do you manage to keep your cook, Mrs. Enfield? You have had the present one several years, haven't you?"

"Yes, Mary has been with us ever since we began housekeeping. I find it easy enough to keep her. Whenever any of our neighbors offers her a dollar a week more than I'm paying her I give her a raise of a dollar and a half. It's very simple."

RECENT ACQUISITION.

"What is that awful knob on you forehead?"

"That is my bump of adversity."

"Bump of adversity? That's a new one on me."

"It's a new one on me, too. I got it this afternoon when my head came in contact with a beam in the cellar."

INSIDIOUS SCORN.

"Are you really looking for an honest man?" asked the suspicious citizen.

"No," replied Diogenes. "Confidentially, I am merely taking this method of letting my neighbors know what I think of them."

WAS READY WITH HIS ANSWER

"Old Si" Proved Himself Something of a Master in the Art of Repartee.

Everybody who rides on the Brooklyn avenue owl car knows "Old Si," the conductor, and "Old Si" knows everybody on the line, and never fails to put his passengers off at the right corner. He is blunt in speech, but witty.

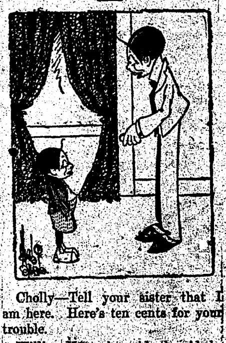
The other Sunday night several couples of young people living out near Thirty-first street boarded the car and began laughing and talking in loud tones, trying to "kid" everyone on the car. Finally one of the youths spied "Old Si," whose shirt front was somewhat worse for a hard day's wear.

"Say, Mr. Conductor," he shouted, "why didn't you put on a clean shirt tonight for Sunday?" And his companions guffawed.

"Si" never hesitated a second, but came back with this:

"Because you were not at home, and your mother had no one to send my washing by." The crowd bellowed, and the young folks got off at Troost avenue and transferred.—Kansas City Star.

AND HE KNEW HER



Cholly—Tell your sister that I am here. Here's ten cents for your trouble.

Willie—Yes, sis said there'd be trouble if I said she was in.

BEAUTY OF THE WORLD.

The rainbow is of quite as much usefulness, in a way, as is the rain that falls to make the corn grow.

Clouds are not only God's sprinkling-pots to increase the supply of potatoes, they are God's paints which he lays upon the canvas of the evening sky to make souls grow by their feast of beauty.

Apple trees are not designed to produce apples alone, but apple blossoms as well, for bees and lovers' eyes to feed on.

In other words, this world is not merely a machine shop or a farm; there's a lot of heaven hid about in it, and shy treasures only discernible in high moods.—Dr. Frank Crane, in Woman's World.

WEALTHY WOMAN'S KIND ACT.

Mrs. George H. McFadden of Philadelphia has given her summer home at Rosemont, Pa., Hilldale farm, to the University hospital to be used as a convalescent home for women sufficiently recovered to be out of the hospital and yet not well enough to go to work. Six women at a time will be accommodated, and in her home they will be treated as her guests. She will besides pay all expenses of transportation.

COLD WAVE.

Nellie—They say mustaches are coming back.

Mamie—Do you care?

Nellie—Certainly. I think most men look much more handsome and knightly with them.

Mamie—Well, of course, I suppose you know. I was too young to take notice when they went out of style.

WASTED WORRY.

"Much of our worry is useless."

"Yes; it is. I once bought some stock in a rubber grove and worried two winters about frost before I ascertained that the trees hadn't been planted."

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES.

"Where is our cat tonight?"

"I think he's gone to a musicale on Jones' woodshed."

THE ETERNAL FEMININE.

She—I tell you this cry of the women has a ring in it.

He—Sort of leap year noise?

ANDROMEDA'S GREAT NEBULA

Most Astonishing Object in Heavens and Long a Mystery to Astronomers.

One of the most astonishing objects in the heavens is the great nebula in the constellation Andromeda, which is visible as a misty speck to the naked eye. It has long puzzled astronomers because, while its structure—a series of vast rings surrounding a central mass—suggests a gaseous constitution, its spectrum is continuous, resembling that of the sun. It has been suggested that it may be composed of stars constituting a universe external to ours. Studies of its parallax, however, indicate that it is nearer to us than some of the well-known stars, such as Capella; and Gore, the English astronomer, points out that if the Andromeda nebula were assumed to be an external universe, having a diameter comparable with that of the milky way, its mass would be forty million million times the mass of the sun. This is regarded as incredible and so may be taken as an additional argument in favor of the view that this nebula is a member of our system.—Harper's Weekly.

OUR EMBARRASSING LANGUAGE.

Once there was an American girl who had been permitted to spend a year in England just at a critical point in her education.

She was not there long enough to become really British—only long enough to learn to mispronounce a few American words, and to commit homicide on a few bits of American rhetoric. In spite of these things, an American man fell in love with her.

He proposed—she accepted. But she was still a bit coy. When he opened his arms and dashed forward to taste the luscious frogrance of her lips, she demurred.

"No, Billy," she said—"you cannot kiss me on the mouth—yet. But you may kiss me on eyther cheek."

Billy stared, but did not move.

"Why do you hesitate?" she blushed.

"I'm trying to choose which cheek," he answered.

And then she had to explain that "eyther" not only meant "either" but "each." It was awfully embarrassing, but what could the poor girl do? And it was her own fault.

SIGN OF A HARD WINTER.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles was at the army aeroplane grounds, watching experiments in flying. Several of the birdmen had been in the air.

A native came along. "Looks like we're going to have a hard winter mighty cold," said the native.

"What makes you think so?" asked General Miles.

"Oh, them rich folks from up north is goin' south so early."

"Are they?"

"Sure they are! I seen three flocks of them flyin' south today already."—Saturday Evening Post.

DEADLOCK HOLDS CONGRESS OVER

LEGISLATURE UNABLE TO COME TO AGREEMENT AFTER HOURS OF WRANGLING.

BILL MAY CAUSE FIGHT.

Deficiency Measure and Amendment to Penrose Resolution Expected To Delay the Adjournment.

Washington, Aug. 27.—A few score weary members of congress, and an impatient president of the United States confront an unprecedented governmental situation following Saturday night's prolonged and fruitless struggle to adjourn the session of congress. The outlook for this week's sessions of house and senate promised an even more chaotic legislative condition than obtained in the fight that began Saturday morning and continued until nearly church time Sunday.

Disgusted with adjournment failure, many members of the senate took early trains for their homes. Senator Penrose predicted that there would be much less than a quorum in the senate the early part of this week, and house leaders were satisfied that that body would be nearly 40 members short of the number necessary to transact business.

Fillibuster May Be Renewed.

The double filibuster which compelled the abandonment of the plan to end the session of congress is expected to be renewed when the houses re-convene.

Senator La Follette made known to friends that he would insist upon a record vote on the adoption of the Penrose resolution for an investigation of campaign contributions of the Standard Oil company in 1904 and of the correspondence between John D. Archbald, George W. Perkins and members of congress.

Senator Chamberlain who led the other senate filibuster, the object of which was to force the house to agree to the payment of $600,000 of old state claims, will have the support of many senate Democrats if he renews his insistence to hold congress until these claims are paid. The house leaders are determined to fight the claims "until December" if necessary.

Trouble Ahead.

Either of the senate filibusters hold trouble for any plan of adjournment. If Senator La Follette should insist on a record vote, it would become ~~necessary to secure a quorum.~~ In such an event he could hold the senate indefinitely because it would again be unable to make an adjournment agreement with the house.

The general deficiency appropriation bill is agreed to on all points except the $600,000 of claims demanded by Virginia, Maryland, Oregon and Texas and the extra months pay for employes of the house and senate. Chairman Fitzgerald of the house conferees, renewed his declaration that under no circumstances would the house concede the payment of any of these.

A bare quorum of senators was in Washington up to the adjournment failure, and less than a quorum voted on each proposition brought before that body during the night.

Half a dozen senators slept in their chairs through the latter part of the session, others wandered wearily about the senate wing of the capital, from the chamber to committee rooms and back again. About three o'clock the senate restaurant ran out of food and the senate went hungry.

BOOTH FUNERAL PLANS MADE

PROCESSION OF SALVATIONISTS OF ALL RANKS AND SEXES

Great Crowds Gather at Congress Hall, London, to Pay Respects to the Dead.

London, Aug. 27. — Great crowds gathered outside Congress hall all day hoping to view the body of the late Salvationist leader, General William Booth, which for the past two days has been lying in state. The body, however, had been removed over night to the general's private room and the hall was used for the regular Salvation Army services.

Of the floral tributes massed on the platform, those of Queen Mother Alexandra, and the emporer were the most notable.

Commissioners Whitmore, Railton and Lawley conducted the services and the famous silver band from the staff college played the hymns. "Nearer My God to Thee" was given at each service.

Brigadier Wood and Pastor Lake will officiate at the funeral cermony in Olympic hall, which will be of a remarkable character.

Bands will play, Handel's "Dead March in Saul," and to this accompaniment the body will be brought into the hall by the procession of Salvationists of all ranks and both sexes, bearing the flags of the nations they represent. The flag unfurled by General Booth on Mount Calvary also will be displayed.

MAY TAKE STAND TO MAKE ANSWER

WASHINGTON HEARS COLONEL WOULD APPEAR BEFORE SENATE COMMITTEE.

TRANSFER IS SUGGESTED

Suggestion Is Made That Hearings Be Held in New York.—Cortelyou May Be Recalled.

Washington, Aug. 26.—It is believed here that Colonel Roosevelt will take the stand within a few days before the senate sub-committee investigating campaign expenditures to answer the charges made by John D. Archbold that Mr. Roosevelt had knowledge of the use of Standard Oil money in his campaign of 1904.

Future Course Uncertain.

The committee is divided over its future course of action.

Upon the arrival of Senator Luke Lea, one of the absent Democratic members of the committee, a meeting will be held to determine whom to call and where the next meeting is to be held.

Several members of the sub-committee favor transferring the hearings at once to New York, where Colonel Roosevelt, George W. Perkins, George B. Cortelyou and members of the Standard Oil company's board of directors might testify.

Archbold vs. Roosevelt.

The statement made by John D. Archbold, financial head of the Standard Oil company, made a clear-cut issue between him and Colonel Roosevelt, according to members of the subcommittee who would discuss the matter last night.

Mr. Archbold testified that his understanding that Colonel Roosevelt knew about, and indorsed the Standard Oil contributions, came through former Treasurer Cornelius N. Bliss of the Republican national committee, who is dead.

Although Colonel Roosevelt publicly stated that it was absurd for him to appear before the senate committee, it is understood that he has consented to take the stand, if desired, in view of the direct charges made yesterday by Mr. Archbold.

If Mr. Cortelyou is recalled it will be to explain the statements made by Mr. Archbold, that Mr. Cortelyou, chairman of the national committee, knew of and sanctioned the Standard Oil contributions.

Mr. Archbold told the senate committee that the Standard Oil company's $125,000 contribution to the Republican war chest of 1904 was made upon assurances from Cornelius N. Bliss that "the contribution was acceptable to Colonel Roosevelt and that further contributions would be acceptable."

"I told Mr. Bliss we did not want to make the contribution unless it was to be gratefully received," he said "Mr. Bliss told us of Mr. Roosevelt's attitude toward business and said he believed Mr. Roosevelt would be a fair and conservative man when it came to the test.

"Mr. Bliss urged that the policies of the Republican party were the safest for business. We decided that our interests as a business organization were in the Republican side and we decided to make this contribution."

Where Money Went.

Mr. Archbold explained that $100,000 went to the Republican national committee and that $25,000 was given to Senator Penrose for the Republican state committee. The $25,000 given to Mr. Penrose, he said, "was a political contribution and not a payment for services in public or private life."

Later, when the late Mr. Bliss came and asked the Standard Oil company for more money—about $150,000—Mr. Archbold said, the board of directors refused to contribute further. He quoted Mr. Bliss as saying: "I speak to you personally; I think you had better make this contribution; if you don't somebody else will."

Admitted Attacks Unfair.

Later, Mr. Archbold said, when the bureau of corporations began making adverse reports upon the Standard Oil company, Mr. Bliss admitted that the government's attacks were unjust, but said he had no influence with President Roosevelt. President Roosevelt unfailingly aproved these attacks, declared Mr. Archbold, without investigation or the slightest knowledge of the facts. These reports of Garfield and Smith were the work of mere puppets, who jumped when Roosevelt pulled the strings.

Washington, Aug. 26.—The conference report on the Indian appropriation bill which carries approximately $850,000 was agreed to in the house.

HANDS CRACKED AND BLED

St. Clair, Mo.—"My trouble began about fifteen years ago. It was what some claimed eczema. The form the disease worked under was a breaking out with watery blisters on my hands which would then dry and scale, and then would follow the trouble of cracking and bleeding, also itching and hurting. My hands were disfigured at the time, and sore. The trouble was very annoying, and disturbed my sleep. This last February it was ever so much worse than before. I did not do all my work on account of the condition of my hands. I could not put them in water without making them worse. I tried a lot of home remedies, also salves and liniments that claimed to be a cure for the trouble, but I did not obtain a cure.

"At last I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a sample. I thought they would cure, so I sent for a fifty-cent box of Cuticura Ointment and some Cuticura Soap. A doctor advised me to keep ahead with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they cured me completely. No trace of the trouble remains." (Signed) Mrs. Mary Taylor, Mar. 29, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

A Word to the Wise.

The proverbial advice, "Cobbler, stick to your last," had an apposite exemplification in the following anecdote, for which Zion's Advocate is responsible:

A colored man was brought before a police judge, charged with stealing chickens. He pleaded guilty, and received sentence, when the judge asked how it was managed to lift those chickens right under the window of their owner's house when there was a dog in the yard.

"Hit wouldn't be no use, judge," said the culprit, "to try to 'splain dis thing to you at all. Ef you was to try it, like as not you would git yer hide full o' shot, an' git no chickens, neither. Ef you want to engage in any rascality, Judge, yo' bettah stick to de bench, whar yo' am familiar."

Barber Shops in China.

Since the Chinese revolution a great many Chinese have had their cues cut off, and this has led to the opening of a large number of barber shops throughout the far east wherever Chinese are located, says an exchange. Several progressive business men of Singapore, anticipating this, imported a large number of American barber chairs, and they are now unable to get supplies quickly enough. THE WAY OUT

Change of Food Brought Success and Happiness.

An ambitious but delicate girl, after failing to go through school on account of nervousness and hysteria, found in Grape-Nuts the only thing that seemed to build her up and furnish her the peace of health.

"From infancy," she says, "I have not been strong. Being ambitious to learn at any cost I finally got to the High School, but soon had to abandon my studies on account of nervous prostration and hysteria.

"My food did not agree with me, I grew thin and despondent. I could not enjoy the simplest social affair for I suffered constantly from nervousness in spite of all sorts of medicines.

"This wretched condition continued until I was twenty-five, when I became interested in the letters of those who had cases like mine and who were getting well by eating Grape-Nuts.

"I had little faith but procured a box and after the first dish I experienced a peculiar satisfied feeling that I had never gained from any ordinary food. I slept and rested better that night and in a few days began to grow stronger.

"I had a new feeling and peace and restfulness. In a few weeks, to my great joy, the headaches and nervousness left me and life became bright and hopeful. I resumed my studies and later taught ten months with ease—of course using Grape-Nuts every day. It is now four years since I began to use Grape-Nuts, I am the mistress of a happy home, and the old weakness has never returned." Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

DEFENDS LEPER SCHEME

Sees No Danger in Locating Disease Victims at University.

St. Paul.—The establishment of a colony of lepers on the campus at the University of Minnesota is proposed for educational purposes, according to Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, who says there would be less danger with such a colony than with a colony of consumptives. The board of regents is to be told the conditions which prompted the proposal.

"Leprosy isn't as dangerous as tuberculosis," Dr. Bracken said, "yet people are indifferent as to tuberculosis and scared to death over leprosy. There ought to be a provision for taking care of lepers at the University hospital. By this I mean the poor ones. It would give the medical students a chance to practice treatment of them and teach them to recognize the disease and the way to handle it."

Dr. Bracken said that leprosy practically is incurable but strictly speaking it is not contagious. The bacilli will if the get in the nose, mouth or sore on another's body, impart the disease, but the disease cannot be communicated by merely brushing against a leper or handling one. Leprosy is not communicated from parents to children.

"There are about 18 lepers in Minnesota," Dr. Bracken continued. "The better class are cared for at home. The poorer are taken care of by counties. There would be no danger in setting apart a house at the university for lepers. The bandages are burned as soon as used, and there is none of the danger which arises from expectoration by tubercular patients. The communities where lepers are kept now, would I think be willing to finance the colony at the university, and I shall recommend to the board of regents that it be established."

Minneapolis.—Whether or not the suggestion of the state board of health that a colony of lepers be maintained on the campus of the University of Minnesota for the benefit of the medical students will be carried cut, is to come up for discussion at a meeting of the board of regents the first week in September. President George E. Vincent returned from Chautauqua, N. Y., and said that he did not care to discuss the matter. B. F. Nelson, acting president of the board, has voiced his opposition to the plan, and will probably fight it.

HAS WARRANT FOR MRS. AKELEY

PAPERS FOR ARREST OF MILLIONAIRE'S WIDOW.

Former Hotel Housekeeper Charged With Grand Larency as Bailee.

Minneapolis, Aug. 26.—The county attorney has issued a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Clara Rood Royce Akeley, widow of the late Healey C. Akeley, charging her with grand larceny and embezzlement as bailee. Sheriff Langum procured requisition papers at the capital and left for Sacramento.

Charges that Mrs. Akeley violated the state statutes when she returned to Long Beach, Cal., with several thousand dollars worth of securities owned by Mr. Akeley, will be presented the Hennepin county grand jury which meets next Tuesday.

Secret Investigation.

A secret investigation of the acts of Mrs. Akeley by the county attorney's office has become known. It was definitely stated that the facts in the case would be put up to the grand jury next Tuesday. Erland Lind, assistant county attorney, spent an hour behind closed doors in the office of H. V. Mercer, attorney for Mrs. Quirk. At the close of the conference he said that he had no statement to make.

The placing of the case before the grand jury is an added step in the legal fight instituted by Mrs. Quirk, daughter of the late millionaire, for possession of her share of his estate.

A new complication was added when word was received that the probate court of Los Angeles had granted letters of administration in the Akeley estate to the widow and had fixed her bond at $350,000.

Invalid Marriage Hinted.

Proceeding to declare invalid the marriage of Mrs. Royce to the late lumberman were hinted at. In the action to compel the cancelling of all the Akeley stock it was charged that she married Mr. Akeley under the pretense that she was a widow, when in reality her husband was alive. Report that two divorces were granted to Mrs. Akeley and her former husband is being investigated. It is said that Mrs. Akeley secured a divorce in California and Mr. Royce secured his in Illinois. Both are said to have been by publication.

Movements of Mrs. Akeley during the last days of the illness of her late husband at the Leamington hotel came to light. A few days before the death of Mr. Akeley, Mrs. Akeley visted J. S. Porteous of the Lumber Exchange, an old friend of the millionaire, and asked him to arrange so that she could check up her husband's account. She wanted money to pay the nurses and living expenses, she said. Mr. Porteous arranged it for her.

La Follette's Friends Support.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Joseph E. Davies of Wisconsin, secretary of the Democratic national committee announced that Rudolph Spreckels of California and John J. Blaine of Wisconsin, supporters of United States Senator Robert M. La Follette in his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination and agreed to head an organization to work for Woodrow Wilson in the presidential campaign. According to tentative plans of the Democratic managers, the organization will be known as the Wilson National Progressive Republican league.

Ray Urged for Paymaster.

Washington, Aug. 26. — President Taft sent to the senate the nomination of Major Beecher B. Ray, U. S. A., to be deputy paymaster general with the rank of lieutenant colonel. Major Ray's alleged political activity in 1908 and other of his acts while in the army have been the subject of a congressional investigation.

Taft Will Take Vacation.

Washington, Aug. 26. — President Taft has made plans to leave Washington for Beverly within an hour after congress adjourns. He expects to stay at the summer capital most of the time until election.

German Emperor Ill.

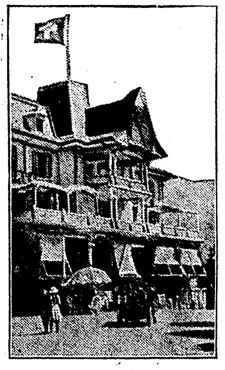
Cassel, Hesse-Nassau, Aug. 26.—The German emperor has contracted a slight cold. Owing to this indisposition the promised attendance of his majesty at the court theater has been cancelled.

INDEPENDENCE DAYS ABROAD

Many Other Nations Celebrate Time They Gained Their Freedom.

Paris, France.—Wherever there is a free country it has its day of independence, corresponding to our Fourth of July, and which is always the great festival of the year, when the people indulge in rejoicings of every imaginable kind.

In France the festival celebrates the fall of the Bastile, which marked the beginning of the revolution. The date of this event was July 14, 1789, but it was not until 1880 that the anniversary was made by the government authority a national holiday. In all the cities of the French republic it is commemorated by illuminations, fireworks, special theatrical performances, balls, concerts and much chanting of the Marseillaise, the greatest of all war songs.



Kursaal at Geneva.

What is called the festival of the Escalade is the independence day of the little republic of Geneva—certainly the most picturesque of all republics. It is now, of course, a part of Switzerland, but this is comparatively recent. During all the middle ages, with bloody wars raging on every hand, Geneva—a quiet little town in the Valley of the Rhone, surrounded by snow-capped mountains—held its own against every foe and retained its freedom.

But on the night of December 11, 1602, it had an exceedingly narrow escape. Large forces, secretly gathered, which had marched from several strongholds in Savoy, crossed the River Arve and began to scale the walls with ladders. There was an alarm and the citizens, springing from their beds, rushed out in scanty attire. The enemy were driven back and by noon on the following day were completely routed.

Italy, although a monarchy, has its own independence day. This falls always on the first Sunday in June and is called the festival of the constitution. It celebrates the final union of Italy, which was accomplished in 1870.

TROOPS TEST HUGE MORTARS

Artillerymen at Honolulu Make a Small Percentage Firing at Target.

Honolulu.—Artillerymen engaged in target practice with 12-inch mortars beyond Diamond Head attempted to demonstrate that it is possible to destroy any hostile warship at a long distance by mortars.

The firing was at a small target set 4,800 yards off shore. In ten shots fired there was one hit, and certain officers believe that most of the shots were entirely too wide of the mark.

Maj. Edward J. Timberland, who was in charge of the battery, said, however, that while the practice showed a poor percentage of hits, the test had proved the efficiency of the mortars.

The small percentage of hits was partially due to high winds.

RUNS HOME WEEKS ON $55

Then Husband Tells Her She Is No Wife for Poor Man, She Testifies.

New York.—The most economical housewife, one who can pay all the necessary household expenses on a little over $1.50 a week, has been brought to light through an alimony suit in a Brooklyn court. Mrs. Irene Schroeder of Staten Island tells in her appeal to the court how she ran her husband's home successfully for 35 weeks on $55. That was hard enough to do, she adds, but it was harder still when they parted, to have her husband fling out at her that she was no wife for a poor man.

WATER IN CANAL IN YEAR

This Indicated by Work of Excavation on the Panama Ditch During July.

Washington, D. C.—Within a year water will be flowing where the great steam shovels are now working on the Panama canal if excavation continues at the pace set in July. Reports just received here show that during the month 2,633,437 cubic yards of rock and earth were taken out, compared with 2,330,770 cubic yards in June."

Plainview, Tex.—The remains of a two-toed horse have been found here.

The Cannibals Need Food.

An officer of the French colonial army brought a letter from the chief of a group of missionaries in the southern islands of the Pacific not long ago, which winds up as follows: "I regret to tell you that our little company can do little against the fanaticism of these poor wretches. Moreover, famine is ravaging the country, for the harvest has been destroyed. Therefore the dispatch of more missionaries has become urgent."—La Petite Republique.

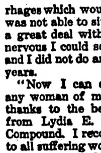
CRITICAL TIME OF WOMAN'S LIFE
From 40 to 50 Years of Age. How It May Be Passed in Safety.



Odd, Va.:—"I am enjoying better health than I have for 20 years, and I believe I can safely say now that I am a well woman. I was reared on a farm and had all kinds of heavy work to do which caused the troubles that came on me later. For five years during the Change of Life I was not able to lift a pail of water. I had hemorrhages which would last for weeks and I was not able to sit up in bed. I suffered a great deal with my back and was so nervous I could scarcely sleep at night, and I did not do any housework for three years.

"Now I can do as much work as any woman of my age in the county, thanks to the benefit I have received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I recommend your remedies to all suffering women."—Mrs. MARTHA L. HOLLOWAY, Odd, Va.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. We know of no other medicine which has such a record of success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for woman's ills.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Steenerson's Announcement

(Advertising; paid by H. Steenerson)

In announcing my candidacy for re-election as Representative in Congress I desire first of all to thank the people of the district for the honor bestowed upon me in the past and to assure them that, if it shall please them to continue me in their service, I shall in the future, as I have in the past, put forth every effort to serve them faithfully to the best of my ability.

I am a Republican—a progressive Republican—and have supported all progressive legislation for the more complete government regulation and control of railroads and interstate commerce, the policy of conservation of water powers and other natural resources in the interest of the people, and the development of unsettled lands on liberal terms to actual settlers.

While I voted against the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Bill and Canadian Reciprocity because, in my judgement, they were against the best interests of my constituents, I am a protectionist and favor a tariff high enough to preserve the home market to American industries, but not so high as to make it a shield for exorbitant prices.

I voted for the amendments to the Constitution recently passed by Congress, providing for election of Senators by the people, and an income tax, which now await ratification by the States.

I aided in the elimination of railroad and ship subsidies from postal expenditures, and the improvement and extension of the postal service, including parcel post and rural free delivery, and am trying to get improved laws to prevent using the mails to promote fraudulent schemes.

I favor strict government regulation of inter-state commerce, as well as transportation; supervision of corporations and capitalization, and, if necessary, even limitation of prices; workmen's compensation for the benefit of victims of industrial accidents and all legislation in favor of temperance and morality.

Liberal pensions in their declining years is due from a grateful nation to its gallant defenders, the veterans of the civil war, as a matter of right and justice. While I believe in due military preparation on the part of the leading civilized powers of the world, I believe the time has come when there should be renewed efforts to supstitute international arbitsation for war in the settlement of disputes among nations, and to limit armaments, thus saving immense sums for more useful purposes in the interests of humanity,

H. STEENERSON.

For Representative.

(Advertising; paid by Paul Marschalk Personal Campaign Committee.)

I have filed for the Republican nomination as representative from this 63rd legislative district, and respectfully solicit your vote at the primary election to be held on September 17th, 1912.

If nominated and elected I pledge myself to support the following measures:

1. Just and equitable reapportionment.
2. County option and all other temperance measures.
3. Ample appropr'aton for the building of roads and for drainage.
4. Measures encouraging agricultural education and enlarged aid for rural schools.
5. State assistance to farmers in clearing their lands.
6. Initiative, referendum and recall.
7. Equitable tax law affecting corporations and other property.
8. Legislation that will tend towards more rapid settlement and development of our state.
6. I will vote for the candidate for United States Senator who receives the highest popular vote in the general election.

Respectfully yours,
—Paul Marschalk.

For Sheriff.

(Advertising; paid by Hans C. Hanson.)

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Sheriff of Marshall County, subject to the will of the voters at the primary election to be held September 17, 1912, and respectfully solicit the support of my friends and the voters of the county.

Respectfully submitted,
HANS C. HANSON,
Viking, Minn.

For Sheriff.

(Advertising; paid by Wm. Forsberg)

To the Republican Voters of Marshall County:

I hereby announce my candidacy for re-nomination for the office of Sheriff on the Republican ticket, and earnestly solicit the support and votes of my friends at the primary election. I pledge myself, if re-elected, to continue to discharge the duties of the office faithfully and impartially.

TRACE SHOT WITH CERTAINTY

System of Negatives Devised by French Scientist Should Aid in Detecting Crime.

Dr. Balthazard at the recent congress of legal medicine in Paris described his experiments on the identification of revolver bullets. He has formulated a system for identifying them very like that of Dr. Bertillon for identifying human beings.

He showed by greatly enlarged photographs that every gun barrel leaves marks on a bullet and that the marks are always the same for the same barrel, but never identical for two different barrels. He showed, too, that the hammer of a gun or revolver strikes the cartridge at a point which is never the exact center of the cartridge, but is always the same for the same weapon.

Dr. Balthazard has succeeded in making negatives of bullets nearly a foot wide. Every detail naturally appears very distinctly and it can be decided with absolute certainly whether a certain bullet was fired from a certain revolver.

OPPOSES THE DIVORCE RING

Boston Woman Lawyer Makes Some Sarcastic Comment on Morals of the Present Day.

Miss Amy Acton, a prominent lawyer of Boston, said recently, at a fashionable club luncheon, that the divorce ring which western women have inaugurated, is vulgar.

"It is vulgar," she said, "because it is an advertisement of the fact that the wearer is a divorced woman."

Sipping her black demi-tasse, Miss Acton added reflectively:

"I may be wrong, though, in condemning the divorce ring—it perhaps serves some very good purpose. The number of our divorces is really alarming. We seem to be approaching that state which prevailed in old Roman times when divorce was so frequent that on the tomb of an undivorced woman was inscribed:

"'Here lies a good wife who had but one husband.'"

HORRIBLE.

"I had a horrible dream last night."

"Well, you had probably eaten something you should have left for others to eat."

"I don't know whether that was the cause of it or not. I can't remember that I ate anything which I ought not to have eaten. But I dreamed that I had made $250,000."

"You don't call that a horrible dream, do you? If I could have a dream of that kind I'd never want to wake up."

"But wait. I dreamed that I had made it out of a popular song which I had written."

COULDN'T LET THAT GO.

Loud voiced and much excited, a native of Butte, Mont., sent up a cry for a bellboy at a hotel in Chicago the other day. He explained that he had just lost a valuable article and was sure it had gone out with his laundry. He handed the responding bellboy a dollar to get the package back at once, if possible. The bellboy "beat it," as he said, to the laundry and found that the westerner's linen had just been dumped into a tub. The lad pawed around in the tub, found a crumpled handkerchief and drew forth the lost article. It was a glass eye.

A GREAT FEAT.

"Some people have marvelous memories."

"For instance?"

"There is a book reviewer in this town who has been known to remember the names of the principal characters in a 'best seller' for as long as two weeks."

IMPRACTICAL IDEA.

"I think each delegate should vote at the outset for the man he thinks would make the best nominee."

"My dear sir," replied Senator Sorghum, "with every delegate voting for himself, we should never get anywhere."

SENSITIVE MAN.

"You know," he was saying, "I couldn't see a woman stand up while I was sitting."

"So you gave her your seat?"

"No; I closed my eyes and pretended to be asleep."—Judge's Library.

HAD TO BE MANUFACTURED

Professional Humorist Could Not See Anything Funny About Political Convention Crowd.

"Sam" Blythe, whose josh stories about politicians and things political are well known, arrived in Chicago to "do" the Republican convention. Immaculately clad in a light gray suit, with a hat and cane to match, the gray-haired young man made an interesting figure in the lobby of the Congress hotel. And he seemed to know everybody on the floor.

He was approached by a younger newspaper man, who stood somewhat in awe of the older man's prominence, and addressed as follows:

"How are you, Mr. Blythe?"

"Hello," said Blythe.

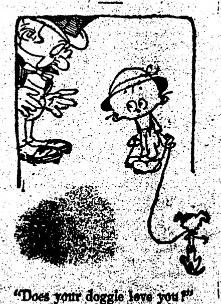
"You are Mr. Blythe, aren't you?"

"I sure are!"

"Well, I'm Blank of the Yankee Doodle and I've got a columnn of funny stuff to write and I want you to tell me a funny story about some of this gang."

"Son," quoth Blythe seriously, "if you can find anything funny in this sad outfit you're pretty good!"—Chicago News.

TRUE LOVE



"Does your doggie love you?"

"Betcher life he does! I'd kick the stuffin' out of him if he didn't."

UNNEEDED NERVOUSNESS.

The customs officials at Leith, Ireland, seized, several weeks ago, several cases of rifles shipped from Germany, scenting insurrection in the threats of some men in Ulster to resist home rule by force of arms, if they couldn't defeat it any other way. Things looked ominous from another direction for the peace of the British empire. After several weeks of nervousness, during which the rifles reposed peacefully in the customs storehouse, it developed that they had been shipped to a theatrical company, which intended to send instructions as to their destination, but which, like many another theatrical company, had ceased to tour after being on the move for some weeks. Then everybody breathed easier, and perhaps smiled when nobody was looking.

CAT COMMITS SUICIDE.

Despondent because her four children were taken away from her, "Spots," the pet mascot and station house cat at the Penn avenue police station, committed suicide yesterday by leaping in front of a street car. The kittens had been taken away one by one, and the old cat wandered about day and night in a melancholy mood. Yesterday she ran to the street car track. A car was approaching, but the motorman stopped in time to avoid killing "Spots." The cat was chased back, but later jumped under the wheels of a car.—Philadelphia Record.

M. A. IN EITHER CASE.

Elsie Janis, the talented young actress, was urging a friend, one evening at a roof-garden supper in New York, to remain another year at college before marrying the young man to whom she was engaged.

"You will always regret," urged Miss Janis, "that you left college before getting your degree."

"Oh, well," her friend answered mischievously, "maybe I'll soon be a M.A anyhow."

PAYS TRIBUTE TO VETERANS.

Mrs. Carrie Feldkamp is an old lady at Corryville, a suburb of Cincinnati, who makes it a point to place a flag upon the breast of every veteran who dies. Her husband and two brothers were in the war, and she says they told her of so many kindnesses done to them that she tries to repay the obligation with this little tribute to the dead.

Surprise Coming

Hunters and Fires.

As the hunting season approaches more or less fires will originate. Hunting and subsequently the presence of fires seem to go hand in hand. Many a fire caused by hunters, either in timber or prairie land, has cansed considerable damage.

The throwing away of cigar or cigarette stumps, hot pipe ashes or matches, unless absolutely extinguished, and the building of camp fires and neglect to take care of same have set many a township ablaze. Harm ii never meant; that, however, does not alter the matter.

Everyone is asked to co-operate with the Forest Service, whose aim is to reduce the fire danger, and anyone finding a guilty party should make it his bnsiness to inform the fire warden.

Another Railroad Story

A rather breezy report has been sent out from Crookston to the effect that another crew of surveyors are at work running a line for a new railroad south from Winnipeg by way of Roseau through eastern Marshall and Pennington counties. They are supposed to be working for the Northern & Southern, a hot air line that is credited with the intent of connecting Winnipeg with the Gulf of Mexico.

Saturday, the 14th inst, James J. Hill will speak at the Red Lake county fair, and a special train will be run on this line between Warroad and Red Lake Falls [illegible] for the service is indicated at the different points along the line.

HABIT OF FROWNING.

"Do you frown unconsciously from habit or defective eyesight?" asked an elderly woman of a young girl the other day. Continuing:

"Do you realize that each frown lessens your chance of popularity—your chance for making friends? You may not be so cross as you look, but the world is not going to take the trouble to discover it.

"Did you ever stop to think that no one admires a frown, therefore not the features of a Venus and the colorinig of a Henner can make up for the scowling lines between the eyes?

"Do you know that the frowning habit will limit your chance of success as a worker? A smiling countenance and the good disposition that generally accompanies it count for more in the business world than the frowner will ever believe.

"Whatever causes those frowns, be it temper, envy, fretfulness or bad eyes, should be fought against. It will take patience and constant watchfulness, but it can be done."

MAKING A NATIONAL PARK

Persistency and Energy of One Man Saved Crater Lake Region to Country.

One morning in the spring of 1866 a thirteen-year-old boy arrived at a school house in Kansas after a five-mile walk across the prairie. At noon, after eating his lunch, he picked up the crumpled newspaper in which the lunch had been wrapped and in this read what purported to be a description of a wonderful "sunken lake" in Oregon.

It was a sensational, largely imaginative, inaccurate account, but it took such a strong hold on this boy, Will G. Steel, that two years later he arrived in Oregon in quest of this lake. It was not until after nine years of questioning, however, that he at last met a man who had actually seen Crater lake.

In 1885 he himself stood for the first time upon its wild and romantic shore. Before leaving it he resolved to have it made a national park. For years he spent money, time and energy to accomplish this; he went to Washington again and again. In 1902 he triumphed, and the Crater lake region became a national park.

Mr. Steel has had an important place in the forest conservation movement in the northwest from its beginning, and he commenced this agitation in 1886. For a short time in Portland, Ore., he published a little magazine called Steel Points. He is the author of a book, "The Mountains of Oregon," long out of print. It was he who, on the top of Mount Hood, on July 19, 1894, organized the Mazamas, the now famous mountain club of the northwest. Mr. Steel was born in Ohio in 1854 and is now living in Portland.—Country Life in America.

MR. HENPECK IS DISCOVERED

Passenger's Voluntary Tip Clears Up Mystery for Street Car Conductor.

A stout lady entered a well-filled street car with her diminutive husband. They sat down side by side and she promptly moved over on top of him to give room for another passenger. "Maria," came from somewhere underneath, "will you please pay the fare? I can't reach for my pocket."

As the conductor approached the following dialogue took place:

"Fares, please."

"Two," said Maria, handing over a dime.

"One?" he questioned as his eyes searched the seat.

"Two," disdainfully.

"Madame, I can only accept fare for one. Your size has nothing to do with it."

"Sir; would you insult a lady?"

"Never, madame. But where's the passenger you wish to pay for?"

Maria gave over an inch or two and glared at the man in the uniform.

"She's sitting on him," a passenger across the aisle volunteered.

"It probably isn't the first time," mumbled the conductor as he gave the register a violent ring. Maria's husband came up suddenly for breath, but sank with the next lurch of the car.

APPROPRIATE HYMN.

A certain professor of divinity who was spending the summer in the Scottish highlands was invited, so the Yorkshire Post declares, to baptize the infant son of the local minister.

When the time for the ceremony arrived the guest gave out for congregational singing a paraphrase much favored on such occasions "Let us," said he, "sing from the fifth paraphrase, beginning at the second verse: 'As sparks in close succession rise.'"

To his consternation, the congregation giggled audibly. Afterward, asking the clerk what he had done wrong, that functionary replied, "You must know, professor, the minister's name is Sparks and yonder is his tenth bairn!"

Steenerson's Announcement

(Advertising; paid by H. Steenerson)

In announcing my candidacy for re-election as Representative in Congress I desire first of all to thank the people of the district for the honor bestowed upon me in the past and to assure them that, if it shall please them to continue me in their service, I shall in the future, as I have in the past, put forth every effort to serve them faithfully to the best of my ability.

I am a Republican—a progressive Republican—and have supported all progressive legislation for the more complete government regulation and control of railroads and interstate commerce, the policy of conservation of water powers and other natural resources in the interest of the people, and the development of unsettled lands on liberal terms to actual settlers.

While I voted against the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Bill and Canadian Reciprocity because, in my judgement, they were against the best interests of my constituents, I am a protectionist and favor a tariff high enough to preserve the home market to American industries, but not so high as to make it a shield for exorbitant prices.

I voted for the amendments to the Constitution recently passed by Congress, providing for election of Senators by the people, and an income tax, which now await ratification by the States.

I aided in the elimination of railroad and ship subsidies from postal expenditures, and the improvement and extension of the postal service, including parcel post and rural free delivery, and am trying to get improved laws to prevent using the mails to promote fraudulent schemes.

I favor strict government regulation of inter-state commerce, as well as transportation; supervision of corporations and capitalization, and, if necessary, even limiiation of prices; workmen's compensation for the benefit of victims of industrial accidents and all legislation in favor of temperance and morality.

Liberal pensions in their declining years is due from a grateful nation to its gallant defenders, the veterans of the civil war, as a matter of right and justice. While I believe in due military preparation on the part of the leading civilized powers of the world, I believe the time has come when there should be renewed efforts to supstitute international arbitsation for war in the settlement of disputes among nations, and to limit armaments, thus saving immense sums for more useful purposes in the interests of humanity,

H. STEENERSON.

For Representative.

(Advertising; paid by Paul Marschalk Personal Campaign Committee.)

I have filed for the Republican nomination as representative from this 63rd legislative district, and respectfully solicit your vote at the primary election to be held on September 17th, 1912.

If nominated and elected I pledge myself to support the following measures:

1. Just and equitable reapportionment.
2. County option and all other temperance measures.
3. Ample approp'aton for the building of roads and for drainage.
4. Measures encouraging agricultural education and enlarged aid for rural schools.
5. State assistance to farmers in clearing their lands.
6. Initiative, referendum and recall.
7. Equitable tax law affecting corporations and other property.
8. Legislation that will tend towards more rapid settlement and development of our state.
6. I will vote for the candidate for United States Senator who receives the highest popular vote in the general election.

Respectfully yours,
—Paul Marschalk.

For Sheriff.

(Advertising; paid by Hans C. Hanson.)

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Sheriff of Marshall County, subject to the will of the voters at the primary election to be held September 17, 1912, and respectfully solicit the support of my friends and the voters of the county.

Respectfully submitted,
HANS C. HANSON,
Viking, Minn.

For Sheriff.

(Advertising; paid by Wm. Forsberg)

To the Republican Voters of Marshall County:

I hereby announce my candidacy for re-nomination for the office of Sheriff on the Republican ticket, and earnestly solicit the support and votes of my friends at the primary election. I pledge myself, if re-elected, to continue to discharge the duties of the office faithfully and impartially.

WILLIAM FORSBERG.

TRACE SHOT WITH CERTAINTY

System of Negatives Devised by French Scientist Should Aid in Detecting Crime.

Dr. Balthazard at the recent congress of legal medicine in Paris described his experiments on the identification of revolver bullets. He has formulated a system for identifying them very like that of Dr. Bertillon for identifying human beings.

He showed by greatly enlarged photographs that every gun barrel leaves marks on a bullet and that the marks are always the same for the same barrel, but never identical for two different barrels. He showed, too, that the hammer of a gun or revolver strikes the cartridge at a point which is never the exact center of the cartridge, but is always the same for the same weapon.

Dr. Balthazard has succeeded in making negatives of bullets nearly a foot wide. Every detail naturally appears very distinctly and it can be decided with absolute certainly whether a certain bullet was fired from a certain revolver.

OPPOSES THE DIVORCE RING

Boston Woman Lawyer Makes Some Sarcastic Comment on Morals of the Present Day.

Miss Amy Acton, a prominent lawyer of Boston, said recently, at a fashionable club luncheon, that the divorce ring which western women have inaugurated, is vulgar.

"It is vulgar," she said, "because it is an advertisement of the fact that the wearer is a divorced woman."

Sipping her black demi-tasse, Miss Acton added reflectively:

"I may be wrong, though, in condemning the divorce ring—it perhaps serves some very good purpose. The number of our divorces is really alarming. We seem to be approaching that state which prevailed in old Roman times when divorce was so frequent that on the tomb of an undivorced woman was inscribed:

"'Here lies a good wife who had but one husband.'"

HORRIBLE.

"I had a horrible dream last night."

"Well, you had probably eaten something you should have left for others to eat."

"I don't know whether that was the cause of it or not. I can't remember that I ate anything which I ought not to have eaten. But I dreamed that I had made $250,000."

"You don't call that a horrible dream, do you? If I could have a dream of that kind I'd never want to wake up."

"But wait. I dreamed that I had made it out of a popular song which I had written."

COULDN'T LET THAT GO.

Loud voiced and much excited, a native of Butte, Mont., sent up a cry for a bellboy at a hotel in Chicago the other day. He explained that he had just lost a valuable article and was sure it had gone out with his laundry. He handed the responding bellboy a dollar to get the package back at once, if possible. The bellboy "beat it," as he said, to the laundry and found that the westerner's linen had just been dumped into a tub. The lad pawed around in the tub, found a crumpled handkerchief and drew forth the lost article. It was a glass eye.

A GREAT FEAT.

"Some people have marvelous memories."

"For instance?"

"There is a book reviewer in this town who has been known to remember the names of the principal characters in a 'best seller' for as long as two weeks."

IMPRACTICAL IDEA.

"I think each delegate should vote at the outset for the man he thinks would make the best nominee."

"My dear sir," replied Senator Sorghum, "with every delegate voting for himself, we should never get anywhere."

SENSITIVE MAN.

"You know," he was saying, "I couldn't see a woman stand up while I was sitting."

"So you gave her your seat?"

"No; I closed my eyes and pretended to be asleep."—Judge's Library.

HAD TO BE MANUFACTURED

Professional Humorist Could Not See Anything Funny About Political Convention Crowd.

"Sam" Blythe, whose josh stories about politicians and things political are well known, arrived in Chicago to "do" the Republican convention. Immaculately clad in a light gray suit, with a hat and cane to match, the gray-haired young man made an interesting figure in the lobby of the Congress hotel. And he seemed to know everybody on the floor.

He was approached by a younger newspaper man, who stood somewhat in awe of the older man's prominence, and addressed as follows:

"How are you, Mr. Blythe?"

"Hello," said Blythe.

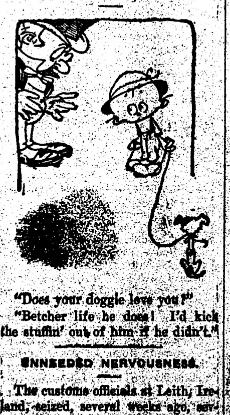
"You are Mr. Blythe, aren't you?"

"I sure are!"

"Well, I'm Blank of the Yankee Doodle and I've got a columnn of funny stuff to write and I want you to tell me a funny story about some of this gang."

"Son," quoth Blythe seriously, "if you can find anything funny in this sad outfit you're pretty good!"—Chicago News.

TRUE LOVE



"Does your doggie love you?"

"Betcher life he does! I'd kick the stuffin' out of him if he didn't."

UNNEEDED NERVOUSNESS.

The customs officials at Leith, Ireland, seized, several weeks ago, several cases of rifles shipped from Germany, scenting insurrection in the threats of some men in Ulster to resist home rule by force of arms, if they couldn't defeat it any other way. Things looked ominous from another direction for the peace of the British empire. After several weeks of nervousness, during which the rifles reposed peacefully in the customs storehouse, it developed that they had been shipped to a theatrical company, which intended to send instructions as to their destination, but which, like many another theatrical company, had ceased to tour after being on the move for some weeks. Then everybody breathed easier, and perhaps smiled when nobody was looking.

CAT COMMITS SUICIDE.

Despondent because her four children were taken away from her, "Spots," the pet mascot and station house cat at the Penn avenue police station, committed suicide yesterday by leaping in front of a street car. The kittens had been taken away one by one, and the old cat wandered about day and night in a melancholy mood. Yesterday she ran to the street car track. A car was approaching, but the motorman stopped in time to avoid killing "Spots." The cat was chased back, but later jumped under the wheels of a car.—Philadelphia Record.

M. A. IN EITHER CASE.

Elsie Janis, the talented young actress, was urging a friend, one evening at a roof-garden supper in New York, to remain another year at college before marrying the young man to whom she was engaged.

"You will always regret," urged Miss Janis, "that you left college before getting your degree."

"Oh, well," her friend answered mischievously, "maybe I'll soon be a M.A. anyhow."

PAYS TRIBUTE TO VETERANS.

Mrs. Carrie Feldkamp is an old lady at Corryville, a suburb of Cincinnati, who makes it a point to place a flag upon the breast of every veteran who dies. Her husband and two brothers were in the war, and she says they told her of so many kindnesses done to them that she tries to repay the obligation with this little tribute to the dead.

Hunters and Fires

As the hunting season approaches more or less fires will originate. Hunting and subsequently the presence of fires seem to go hand in hand. Many a fire caused by hunters, either in timber or prairie land, has cansed considerable damage.

The throwing away of cigar or cigarette stumps, hot pipe ashes or matches, unless absolutely extinguished, and the building of camp fires and neglect to take care of same have set many a township ablaze. Harm ii never meant; that, however, does not alter the matter.

Everyone is asked to co-operate with the Forest Service, whose aim is to reduce the fire danger, and anyone finding a guilty party should make it his bnsiness to inform the fire warden.

—Ernest O. Buhler

Another Railroad Story

A rather breezy report has been sent out from Crookston to the effect that another crew of surveyors are at work running a line for a new railroad south from Winnipeg by way of Roseau through eastern Marshall and Pennington counties. They are supposed to be working for the Northern & Southern, a hot air line that is credited with the intent of connecting Winnipeg with the Gulf of Mexico.

Saturday, the 14th inst, James J. Hill will speak at the Red Lake county fair, and a special train will be run on this line between Warroad and Red Lake Falls if enough business to pay for the service is indicated at the different points along the line.

$50 REWARD

HABIT OF FROWNING.

"Do you frown unconsciously from habit or defective eyesight?" asked an elderly woman of a young girl the other day. Continuing:

"Do you realize that each frown lessens your chance of popularity—your chance for making friends? You may not be so cross as you look, but the world is not going to take the trouble to discover it.

"Did you ever stop to think that no one admires a frown, therefore not the features of a Venus and the coloring of a Henner can make up for the scowling lines between the eyes?

"Do you know that the frowning habit will limit your chance of success as a worker? A smiling countenance and the good disposition that generally accompanies it count for more in the business world than the frowner will ever believe.

"Whatever causes those frowns, be it temper, envy, fretfulness or bad eyes, should be fought against. It will take patience and constant watchfulness, but it can be done."

We Progress.

"Then you like bridge?" "Sure I do! And yet I once thought pingpong was fun."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MAKING A NATIONAL PARK

Persistency and Energy of One Man Saved Crater Lake Region to Country.

One morning in the spring of 1866 a thirteen-year-old boy arrived at a school house in Kansas after a five-mile walk across the prairie. At noon, after eating his lunch, he picked up the crumpled newspaper in which the lunch had been wrapped and in this read what purported to be a description of a wonderful "sunken lake" in Oregon.

It was a sensational, largely imaginative, inaccurate account, but it took such a strong hold on this boy, Will G. Steel, that two years later he arrived in Oregon in quest of this lake. It was not until after nine years of questioning, however, that he at last met a man who had actually seen Crater lake.

In 1885 he himself stood for the first time upon its wild and romantic shore. Before leaving it he resolved to have it made a national park. For years he spent money, time and energy to accomplish this; he went to Washington again and again. In 1902 he triumphed, and the Crater lake region became a national park.

Mr. Steel has had an important place in the forest conservation movement in the northwest from its beginning, and he commenced this agitation in 1886. For a short time in Portland, Ore., he published a little magazine called Steel Points. He is the author of a book, "The Mountains of Oregon," long out of print. It was he who, on the top of Mount Hood, on July 19, 1894, organized the Mazamas, the now famous mountain club of the northwest. Mr. Steel was born in Ohio in 1854 and is now living in Portland.—Country Life in America.

MR. HENPECK IS DISCOVERED

Passenger's Voluntary Tip Clears Up Mystery for Street Car Conductor.

A stout lady entered a well-filled street car with her dimunitive husband. They sat down side by side and she promptly moved over on top of him to give room for another passenger. "Maria," came from somewhere underneath, "will you please pay the fare? I can't reach for my pocket."

As the conductor approached the following dialogue took place:

"Fares, please."

"Two," said Maria, handing over a dime.

"One?" he questioned as his eyes searched the seat.

"Two," disdainfully.

"Madame, I can only accept fare for one. Your size has nothing to do with it."

"Sir; would you insult a lady?"

"Never, madame. But where's the passenger you wish to pay for?"

Maria gave over an inch or two and glared at the man in the uniform.

"She's sitting on him," a passenger across the aisle volunteered.

"It probably isn't the first time," mumbled the conductor as he gave the register a violent ring. Maria's husband came up suddenly for breath, but sank with the next lurch of the car.

APPROPRIATE HYMN.

A certain professor of divinity who was spending the summer in the Scottish highlands was invited, so the Yorkshire Post declares, to baptize the infant son of the local minister.

When the time for the ceremony arrived the guest gave out for congregational singing a paraphrase much favored on such occasions "Let us," said he, "sing from the fifth paraphrase, beginning at the second verse: 'As sparks in close succession rise.'"

To his consternation, the congregation giggled audibly. Afterward, asking the clerk what he had done wrong, that functionary replied, "You must know, professor, the minister's name is Sparks and yonder is his tenth bairn!"

PAY TRIBUTE TO LATE GENERAL

SERVICES ARE HELD IN 9,000 SALVATION ARMY POSTS THROUGHOUT WORLD.

FOUNDER IS EXTOLLED.

Pledges to Carry on Work and to Support New Leader Made.—Every Profession Represented.

New York, Sept. 3.—Filled to overflowing with fervent leaders and eager followers, memorial hall at the national headquarters of the Salvation Army in this city, was the official center of services held at more than 900 Salvation Army posts throughout the country in memory of the late Gen. Wm. Booth. The services were also a part of similar memorials in 9,000 posts and outposts throughout the world, all of which being ordered at 3 o'clock Sunday, constituted, if difference in time is considered, virtually a continuance 24 hours service in which millions of followers paid tribute to the late founder of the Army.

Services here were preceded by a parade of national and local officers headed by the national staff band. Over 500 men and women were in line.

The day was not only one memorial to the founder of the army, but a consecration to carry on his work for humanity under oath of allegiance to his succeeding son, General Bramwell Booth.

In the absence of Eva Booth, commander of the American branch of the Army, who had gone to her father's funeral, Colonel Peart of the national staff, delivered the formal address of the day, extolling the character and achievements of General Booth.

London.—At all the Salvation Army citadels impressive memorial services were held in honor of the late Gen. William Booth. At Congress Hall, Clapton, Gen. Bramwell Booth, the new head of the army, presided at the exercises which were attended by Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in America and Mrs. Booth-Hellberg, chief of the army in Denmark.

General Booth apologized for not wearing his general's uniform, saying "I hadn't the courage, I felt that I wasn't ready to put it on."

Chicago.—Memorial service for the late General Wm. Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, were held here and attended by several thousand members of the organization.

Mr. Dunne, former mayor of Chicago, referred to Booth's early trials as a preacher. A chorus of women members of the Salvation Army furnished music.

Milwaukee.—Services in memory of the late General William Booth, head of the Salvation Army, were held in Milwaukee at the Y. M. C. A. hall under the auspices of the local corps.

Minneapolis.—A throng that filled the old Hennepin Avenue Methodist church to overflowing gathered to pay tribute to the memory of General Wm. Booth, founder of the Salvation Army who died Aug. 20 at London, Eng. The services were held under the auspices of the Salvation Army, but were attended by members of other religious denominations, clergymen and business men.

Butte Has $155,000 Blaze.

Butte, Mont., Sept. 3.—Fire here caused a property loss estimated at $155,000. A Butte, Anaconda and Pacific train, bringing the Anaconda fire department to Butte, jumped the track near Durant, killing Engineer Duffy. The train fireman and Chief Charles Collins of the Anaconda fire department were probably fatally hurt. Several other Anaconda firemen received less serious injuries.

Choir Boys Go On a Strike.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—Only 15 of the 45 members of the boy choir of St. Mark's Episcopal church, who went on a strike Friday, reported for duty Sunday, and as a result, Rev. Wm. White Wilson, the rector, was obliged to conduct services practically without vocal music.

300 Coal Claims Cancelled.

85 BOYS ARE GUESTS AT FAIR

LITTLE DOING THAT ESCAPES YOUNG VISITORS' NOTICE.

Purpose of Encampment to Stimulate Interest in Country Life in State.

Minneapolis, Sept. 3. — Eighty-five farm boys, chosen by competitive contest in 85 counties to attend the first annual farm boys' encampment without expense and as guests of the fair management, are having the time of their lives at the state fair this week. It is an experience which none of them will ever forget.

The boys will be off duty each day until about 11 o'clock, and will spend their time until then visiting points of interest about the grounds. One morning will be spent attending the university week program in the agricultural building. In the afternoons the boys will be detailed to act as messenger boys about the fair grounds and in the hippodrome, and as ushers in the grandstand. Later, when not on duty, the boys will be taken about by competent experts and will listen to an explanation of the livestock, agricultural exhibits, and poultry.

B. F. Woodard, secretary of the West Central Development association, is assisting Mr. Higbie in the camp management during the week. Others who are helping are Superintendent Victor Knutson, of Todd county; Superintendent C. G. Selvig, of the Northwestern Experiment station at Crookston; P. E. Miller, agronomist at Morris; R. E. Baxter, livestock man at Crookston, and S. I. Snortum, poultryman at Morris.

The boys were chosen by competitive contests arranged by the fair association in each county in the state.

When the boys have broken camp Saturday afternoon, Sept. 7, diplomas will be given to each one who has lived up to the rules of the camp. When the boys have returned home they will be given an opportunity to write an essay of not less than 600 words, nor more than 1,000 words, on the subject, "What I saw and learned at the fair as a member of the farm boys' camp." The winner of this contest will be invited to read his essay before the annual meeting of the Minnesota Agricultural society at the expense of the society. Other prizes will be awarded to those securing high rank.

Big Waste of Coal Alleged.

Washington, Sept. 3.—Of a production of 500,000,000 tons of coal in the United States in the last year, 250,000,000 tons were either wasted or left under ground, according to a statement by Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, director of the United States bureau of mines. Users of coal, through faulty methods, derive only about 10 per cent of the energy of coal used. Millions are lost by waste, such as zinc, nitrogen, potash, sulphur and natural gas.

Cheaper Abroad Than Here.

New York, Sept. 3. — With meat prices higher than ever before, investigation shows that American beef is selling for less money in London than in New York, and this despite the 3,000 miles of ocean transportation and rail haul from Liverpool to the English capital.

To Vote on Income Tax Law.

Milwaukee, Sept. 3.—The state income tax law is the principal factor at issue in the main contest which is to be decided by the voters of Wisconsin at the primary election Tuesday. At this election, nominees of the various parties for state, congressional, legislative and county offices are to be chosen.

Coleridge-Taylor Passes.

London, Sept. 3.—Samuel Coleridge, Taylor, the music composer, is dead. He was born in 1875.

To Reproduce Riot Scenes.

The recent riot at the Federal building, Los Angeles, will be reproduced at the trial of those arrested by motion picture films, and shown to the jury on a screen. It will be the first time in the history of jurisprudence that such evidence will have been introduced. While the riot was at its height a moving-picture company, with the newest model machine, had an operator on the scene, and his films show the entire actions of those persons who are charged with having caused disturbance.

To Operate Canal by Electricity.

The Panama canal will be operated almost exclusively by electric power. Approximately seven per cent. of the minimum water supply will be diverted by hydro-electric development, and this will be the excess which is not required for lockages, evaporation, and leakage. The hydro-electric station will be located adjacent to the north wall of the Gatun spillway and the plant will have a capacity of 6,000 kilowatts. The average hydraulic head throughout the year will be about 75 feet.

THIRTEEN YEARS

Unlucky Number for Dakota Woman.

The question whether the number "13" is really more unlucky than any other number has never been entirely settled.

A So. Dak. woman, after thirteen years of misery from drinking coffee, found a way to break the "unlucky spell." Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the drug in coffee. She writes:

"For thirteen years I have been a nervous wreck from drinking coffee. My liver, stomach, heart—in fact, my whole system being actually poisoned by it.

"Last year I was confined to my bed for six months. Finally it dawned on me that coffee caused the trouble. Then I began using Postum instead of coffee, but with little faith, as my mind was in such a condition that I hardly knew what to do next.

"Extreme nervousness and failing eyesight caused me to lose all courage. In about two weeks after I quit coffee and began to use Postum I was able to read and my head felt clear. I am improving all the time and I will be a strong, well woman yet.

"I have fooled more than one person with a delicious cup of Postum. Mrs. S. wanted to know where I bought my fine coffee. I told her my grocer had it and when she found out it was Postum she has used it ever since, and her nerves are building up fine.

"My brain is strong, my nerves steady, my appetite good, and best of all, I enjoy such sound, pleasant sleep."

COMPANY GIVES ROAD.

Ready-Made Thoroughfare for Northern County.

Bemidji.—A ready-made road, twenty-eight miles in length, and one of the finest in northern Minnesota, will be thrown open to the public in the next few days, the stretch beginning at a point three miles west of Solway and continuing to the northwest corner of the Itasca state park, tapping the towns of Regina, Alida, Mallard and Long Lake.

This highway is the old roadbed of the Red River Lumber company, built about twelve years ago, at an expense of $160,000. Farmers are pulling up the ties and leveling the road, which has a clay bed with gravel ballast. This road is to connect with the trunk road from St. Vincent to Duluth.

Through the efforts of G. P. Jones of Bagley, and W. B. Mackenzie, secretary of the Northern Minnesota Development association, the Red River Lumber company has agreed to lease the roadbed to Clearwater county, the only expenses being that Clearwater county must maintain it. The lease will continue until the lumber company desires to use it again for railroad purposes.

The new road will be open for traffic by the time the hunting season begins and will be popular for automobiles.

CASE MAY BE SETTLED.

Great Northern Will Give Former Cashier a Chance to Pay Up.

Grand Rapids.—The case of Jerry Hicks, former cashier of the Great Northern Railway company here, who is facing a charge of embezzlement, has been continued until Sept. 5. It is understood that if Hicks pays the alleged shortage in his accounts, $813, the prosecution will be dropped.

The shortage was discovered the latter part of July, when an accountant of the railway was sent here to check Hicks out, prior to promotion. Hicks asserts his innocence, declaring he does not know how or where the shortage occurred.

Former Station Agent W. C. LeFevre and Special Accountant Johannes of the Great Northern are witnesses for the state. If a settlement is not reached by Sept. 5, the case will come up again for hearing. The defense has been insisting on a minute examination of the books of the office, and the preliminary hearing has already occupied three days.

State Democratic Organization.

St. Paul.—F. A. Pike of St. Paul, who was recently appointed president of the Federation of Democratic Precincts clubs for Minnesota by the national organization of democratic clubs has made up his state organization, and announced its officers and committees as follows: Vice president, Guy A. Thomas, Minneapolis; treasurer, Bryon J. Mosier, Stillwater; advisory committee, J. R. Bennett, Jr., St. Cloud; T. J. Meighen, Preston; T. J. Knox, Jackson; H. H. Bonniwell, Hutchinson; Otto Bremer, St. Paul; Z. H. Austin, Minneapolis; D. H. Evans, Tracy; M. L. Fay, Duluth; Harry M. Wheelock, Fergus Falls; executive committee, H. L. Buck, Winona; W. L. River Man Is Missing.

Wabasha. — Bert Edwards, who has been employed on the rafting steamer Tabor, has mysteriously disappeared and the circumstances lead to the conclusion that he was accidentally drowned. He was last seen, Monday night, when the Tabor was coming up river and tied up near Crate Island on account of a fog. He went to sleep on the ropes in the bow. Later on he was missed and nothing has been found of him except his hat, which was left on the boat. A search is being made for him between here and Fountain City.

Rye Receipts Set Record.

Minneapolis. — All of the precedents for big receipts of rye on the Minneapolis markets were smashed when 90 carloads of that grain rolled into the city and were recorded at the Chamber of Commerce. John Marfield, president of the chamber, declared this figure established the high record at the chamber. One year ago only 28 cars of rye were received. Oats and barley receipts also were big. There were 70 cars of oats and 170 of barley. The big receipts on other grains cut down the wheat receipts.

Miss Sanford Chief Speaker.

St. Paul. — The program for the state meeting of the Minnesota Federation of Women's clubs is now in progress of arrangement. Mrs. E. H. Loyhed of Faribault, state president, announced that at the opening session, September, 17, Professor Maria Sanford of the University of Minnesota will be the chief speaker. She will speak as a delegate, Mrs. George O. Welch of Fergus Falls as a general federation officer, and Mrs. J. L. Washburn of Duluth as a pioneer worker.

STORM HITS NORTHWEST

Communications Are Cut and Threshing Further Delayed.

Minneapolis. — Six different places were struck by lightning, an excursion party on the Mississippi river was thrown into a panic, telegraph and telephone wires were more or less affected, and theater-goers and others belated were soaked as the result of a severe electrical shower which swept over the Twin Cities.

But far more severe, according to meager reports, were the effects of the storm in the vicinity of New Richmond, Wis., and the Red River valley. Telegraph and telephone wires were down in that territory and the service was poor, but a few reports which reached the Twin Cities stated that the threshing was probably delayed for at least a week.

Storm Breaks at 10 O'clock.

The storm burst upon Minneapolis, and St. Paul as well about 10 o'clock, and for a few moments, its fury was supreme. Sheets of rain swept the streets, and flash upon flash of vivid lightning came in close succession, while the thunder, for about 15 minutes, seemed to be everywhere. The mercury took a sudden slide downward, but only descended four to five degrees.

Later, after the storm had departed, or at least its fury had, the mercury began to climb upwards, and at midnight was two degrees higher than the mark to which it descended during the storm.

AWAIT NEW INSTITUTION

First Inebriate for Willmar Asylum Will Go From Mankato.

Mankato.—Mankato will furnish the first inmate of the new inebriate asylum at Willmar, to be opened in October. A traveling man, who, according to his own statement, has taken the Keeley cure six times without lessening his desire for strong drink, and who was recently arrested in this city for drunkenness for the fifteenth time, has been sentenced to serve seventy days in the county jail, or until such time as the farm for inebriates at Willmar is ready to receive patients. He is then to be turned over to the authorities of that institution, under the sentence of the court, for an indeterminate period.

Madison to Have Waterworks.

Madison.—The contracts for remodeling the electric light and power plant and for the installation of a waterworks system have been let. Bonds to the extent of $50,000 were sold to the Western Securities company of Des Moines. The work was let as follows: Erection of water tank and tower to Chicago Bridge & Iron works at $6,000, water system to Cook Construction company of Des Moines for $19,319, the renewing of the electric light plant to J. G. Robertson of St. Paul for $29,593.

Leave Cars at Bemidji.

Bemidji. — Through streets that were running rivers and a sky streaked with lightning and which poured torrents of rain, twenty-five automobiles splashed into Bemidji late Tuesday evening.

The Crookston cars had planned to return Wednesday noon, but owing to the heavy rains many feared to attempt the trip and therefore returned on the afternoon train and will come back for their cars on Sunday.

Railway to Go from Bay to Gulf.

Bemidji. — Surveyors are at work in Hubbard county laying out an extension for the Minneapolis & St. Louis and Minnesota & International railroads to connect with a Canadian trunk line on the other side of the border. The work is part of a plan by Newman Erb and his associates to establish railroad connections between the Gulf of Mexico and Hudson Bay.

Stove Explodes; 3 Hurt; House Burns

Minneapolis. — John Peterson was perhaps seriously injured, and burned, when a gasoline stove in one case, and a kerosene lamp in another, exploded. Fires were caused by both explosions, in one case the entire house being destroyed, a loss of more than $1,000, and in the other case only two rugs and two oil cloths.

First Meeting Set.

St. Paul.—What will be the first meeting of the advisory board and executive committee of the newly organized Minnesota Federation of Democratic Precinct clubs will be held in the Merchants hotel, St. Paul, on the afternoon of September 5.

Samaritan Feud Intensifies.

Duluth. — The imperial council of the Modern Samaritans, an insurance society with membership in several northwestern states, adjourned after a four days' meeting, with the war raging among the officials for control still unsettled. Treasurer O. F. Collier, who was voted out Monday, and his successor elected, still holds onto the funds and puts forth the claims that he is still in office, arguing that the meeting at which he was ousted was illegally held Further action in court will be the result.

ECZEMA IN RED BLOTCHES

205 Kanter Ave., Detroit, Mich.—"Some time last summer I was taken with eczema. It began in my hair first with red blotches, then scaly, spreading to my face. The blotches were red on my face, dry and scaly, not large; on my scalp they were larger, some scabby. They came on my hands. The inside of my hands were all little lumps as though full of shot about one-sixteenth of an inch under the skin. Then they went to the outside and between and all over my fingers. It also began on the bottoms of my feet and the calves of my legs, and itch, oh, my! I never had anything like it and hope I never will again. The itching was terrible. My hands got so I could scarcely work.

"I tried different eczema ointments but without results. I also took medicine for it but it did no good. I saw the advertisement for a sample of Cuticura Ointment and Soap and sent for one. They did me so much good I bought some more, using them as per directions, and in about three weeks I was well again. Cuticura Soap and Ointment entirely cured me." (Signed) Benj. Passage, Apr. 8, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

PICKED OUT THE WRONG EYE

Physician Meant Well Enough, but He Had Left the Motorman Seriously Handicapped.

Frank E. Payne, a member of the state railroad commission, said when investigating a trolley accident recently, he was told of a motorman on a work car who was running at high speed when the trucks left the rails because of snow and sleet, and the car was thrown to the side of the right of way, bringing it up against a telephone pole.

"The motorman was not seriously hurt, but was cut and bruised about the head and face by flying glass. He was carried to a physician's office where his wounds were dressed and bandaged. When the physician had placed the last pin, he asked the wounded man if he felt like he could walk.

"'Sure, I can walk all right,' returned the patient, 'but I wish you would fix those bandages so I can see.'

"'Why, man,' returned the physician, 'I left one of your eyes uncovered for the purpose.'

"'But, doc, that eye you left uncovered is a glass one.'"—Indianapolis News.

Domestic Combat.

E. Trowbridge Dana, grandson of the poet Longfellow, who was recently married in Cambridge with a beautiful ritual of his own composition, said the other day to a reporter:

"If all couples gave to marriage the profound thought and reverence that my wife and I gave to it there would be fewer mismatings.

"The average married pair, it sometimes seems to me, are like the Binkses.

"'Pa,' said little Tommy Binks one day, 'what's a weapon?'

"'A weapon, my son,' Binks answered, 'is something to fight with.'

"'Then, pa,' said little Tommy, 'is ma your weapon?'"

The Cause.

"Madam, I am just out of the hospital and—"

"Don't tell me any such story as that! You are the same man I gave a piece of pie to not two weeks ago."

NERVOUS DESPONDENT WOMEN

Find Relief in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Statements So Testify.

Platea, Pa.—"When I wrote to you first I was troubled with female weakness and backache, and was so nervous that I would cry at the least noise, it would startle me so. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies, and I don't have any more crying spells. I sleep sound and my nervousness is better. I will recommend your medicines to all suffering women."—Mrs. MARY HALSTEAD, Platea, Pa., Box 98.

Here is the report of another genuine case, which still further shows that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be relied upon.

Walcott, N. Dakota.—"I had inflammation which caused pain in my side, and my back ached all the time. I was so blue that I felt like crying if any one even spoke to me. I took Lydia E. A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

In this age of research and experiment, all nature is ransacked by the scientific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides in the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine is that of Therapion, which has been used with great success in French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists, that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say, miraculous cures, should send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. Le Clerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether the New French Remedy "THERAPION" No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 is what they require and have been seeking in vain during a life of misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness. Therapion is sold by druggists or mail $1.00. Fougera Co., 90 Beekman St., New York.

"Bull" Durham Smoke Curls Up from Millions of Pipes and Cigarettes

Every year for over 52 years the number has increased. Every day new smokers discover "Bull" Durham.

There is something about it that all smokers hanker for, whether for the friendly pipe or rolled into a "Bull" Durham cigarette. Nothing else seems to satisfy the man who once tries

GENUINE "BULL DURHAM SMOKING TOBACCO

Forty "rollings" in each 5c muslin sack

The flavor that has pleased three generations—that is still pleasing millions of smokers—is the pure, wholesome, natural "Bull" Durham flavor, unchanged by manufacturing processes. There is nothing artificial about "Bull" Durham. It contains no coloring, no dressing, no adulterants of any kind. It comes to you in the plain muslin sack just as generous Nature made it.

Try this grand old tobacco today. See for yourself why so many million men prefer it—why men smoke more of it than of all other high-grade tobaccos combined. See why they go on smoking it year after year—and will not be satisfied with anything else.

Sold by practically every tobacco dealer in the U. S.

A book of "papers" free with each 5c muslin sack.

"Can a Bull Moose have a goat?" asks the Duluth Herald. We don't know, but we believe that he would be as capaple in that line as a mule, and the mule seems to have one.

Political writers in the city papers are trying to make the voters believe that Sam Gordon is backed by the Steel Trust, and at the same time they tell us he is losing ground because his campaign is poorly financed. Pretty cohesive arguments.

Congressman Steenerson's platform is broad enough and strong enough to hold him up. It points to some of the larger things he has already done and large things he intends to try for. But the secret of his strength with the common people lies not so much in these larger measures, done or to be done, as in his ever readiness to attend to the wants of his constituents in the numerous smaller matters of everyday life. Thousands of these have been laid upon him, but few indeed have been neglected.

A conference of the progressive candidates for governor was held a few days ago, the object being to have some of them withdraw so as to make Eberhart's defeat certain. Of course the conference was barren of results, as each one had a plan which the others would not agree to. Gordon and Lee are the only progressive candidates that are entitled to the consideration of the voters; the others being mere interlopers who pushed themselves forward at a time when, if they had any political sense, they should have known that their candidacy would only help the conditions and candidates they professed ardent opposition to. With the voters using the second choice provision intelligently, we believe that, even under existing conditions, either Gordon or Lee will be nominated, because anyone who will not vote for Eberhart as first choice will have none of him for second.

Steenerson's Announcement

(Advertising; paid by H. Steenerson)

In announcing my candidacy for re-election as Representative in Congress I desire first of all to thank the people of the district for the honor bestowed upon me in the past and to assure them that, if it shall please them to continue me in their service, I shall in the future, as I have in the past, put forth every effort to serve them faithfully to the best of my ability.

I am a Republican—a progressive Republican—and have supported all progressive legislation for the more complete government regulation and control of railroads and interstate commerce, the policy of conservation of water powers and other natural resources in the interest of the people, and the development of unsettled lands on liberal terms to actual settlers.

While I voted against the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Bill and Canadian Reciprocity because, in my judgement, they were against the best interests of my constituents, I am a protectionist and favor a tariff high enough to preserve the home market to American industries, but not so high as to make it a shield for exorbitant prices.

I voted for the amendments to the Constitution recently passed by Congress, providing for election of Senators by the people, and an income tax, which now await ratification by the States.

I aided in the elimination of railroad and ship subsidies from postal expenditures, and the improvement and extension of the postal service, including parcel post and rural free delivery, and am trying to get improved laws to prevent using the mails to promote fraudulent schemes.

I favor strict government regulation of inter-state commerce, as well as transportation; supervision of corporations and capitalization, and, if necessary, even limiiation of prices; workmen's compensation for the benefit of victims of industrial accidents and all legislation in favor of temperance and morality.

Liberal pensions in their declining years is due from a grateful nation to its gallant defenders, the veterans of the civil war, as a matter of right and justice. While I believe in due military preparation on the part of the leading civilized powers of the world, I believe the time has come when there should be renewed efforts to substitute international arbitration for war in the settlement of disputes among nations, and to limit armaments, thus saving immense sums for more useful purposes in the interests of humanity.

PRISONER MADE $300 A DAY

Paris Banker Conducts Extensive Financial Transactions From His Cell.

The Paris police recently raided a financial establishment in the rue Lafitte and confiscated the contents of the safe as well as the books, thereby putting a stop to the lucrative source of revenue of a banker named Zucco, who has been in prison for several months for irregular financial transactions.

M. Zucco, although occupying a cell, first at the Sante and then at Fresnes, contrived to open another financial establishment in the same house as that occupied by his bank, which was closed by the police when he was arrested.

From his cell he directed a scheme for getting small investors to subscribe jointly for lottery bonds.

Business went well. The new establishment was soon employing ten clerks, and M. Zucco in his cell was making about $300 a day. But disappointed clients informed the police.—New York Tribune.

Sustained Broken Shoulder

Mail carrier Guy Anderso is laid up with a crippled shoulder as the result of a runaway accident which occurred Tuesday when he was returning from his route. He had arrived at the railroad crossing here when the freight train was switching in the yards, and some flying cars were thrown together close to his team. The horses turned quickly and Mr. Anderson was thrown violently to the ground. Dr. Nelson made an examination and found that a bone had been broken. The team got free from the buggy and made a four mile run before they were finally captured.

Notice for Bids.

Sealed bids will be received by the undersigned, at Holt, Minn., up to the hour of 2 o'clock p. m. on the 23rd day of September, 1912, for the construction of a wooden bridge, 84 feet in length, across the Thief River on the range line between the townships of Excel, Agdar and East Valley, in Marshall County, Minnesota, according to plans and specifications now on file at the Holt State Bank, where they may be seen by prospective bidders at any time until the time for filing bids shall expire. Bids providing for the construction of this bridge with steel I beams, instead of wooden stringers specified in plans, may also be submitted and will be considered by the committee appointed to consider the bids and let contract.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check for 5 per cent of the amount of the bid.

ANDROMEDA'S GREAT NEBULA

Most Astonishing Object in Heavens and Long a Mystery to Astronomers.

One of the most astonishing objects in the heavens is the great nebula in the constellation Andromeda, which is visible as a misty speck to the naked eye. It has long puzzled astronomers because, while its structure—a series of vast rings surrounding a central mass—suggests a gaseous constitution, its spectrum is continuous, resembling that of the sun. It has been suggested that it may be composed of stars constituting a universe external to ours. Studies of its parallax, however, indicate that it is nearer to us than some of the well-known stars, such as Capella; and Gore, the English astronomer, points out that if the Andromeda nebula were assumed to be an external universe, having a diameter comparable with that of the milky way, its mass would be forty million million times the mass of the sun. This is regarded as incredible and so may be taken as an additional argument in favor of the view that this nebula is a member of our system.—Harper's Weekly.

QUICKER THAN WALK DOWN

Carpenter Unwillingly Shot the Chutes From Twenty-sixth Floor of New York Hotel.

Charles Tohler of No. 301 East Ninety-first street, New York, broke the world's record for shooting the chutes, when he glided dwon a rubbish chute from the twenty-sixth floor of the Hotel McAlpine into a waiting dump at the sidewalk end of the chute.

Tohler is a carpenter, and his boss sent him to the roof to do some repair work. He missed his footing and fell just as a load of rubbish was shot into the chute from a hand-car on the roof. The loader on the wagon saw a man's head and arms sticking out of the load of mortar, waste paper and fragments of bricks that had just filled the wagon to overflowing. He hurriedly helped the driver of the wagon dig the man out.

When taken to the New York hospital in an ambulance it was learned that outside of a few cuts and bruises, Tohler was none the worse for his glide.

NOT LEARNING ANYTHING NEW

Arnold Daly Had Had Visual Knowledge of Information Being Given Him.

Arnold Daly, the brilliant young actor to whom G. B. Shaw is indebted for much of his American popularity, was spending the week-end at Atlantic City.

At the palatial hotel where he was stopping a copper magnate with his family occupied the royal suite.

One evening, in the palm garden, after dinner, a charming young actress lighted a cigarette, and, arranging the folds of her pannier skirt, sat down beside Mr. Daly.

"[illegible] so much money," she said, "the Metals make everybody look small. But," she added mysteriously, "I just heard something that will surprise you. They say the Metals have a skeleton in the family."

"That doesn't surprise me at all," the young actor replied. "I saw her swimming this morning."

CAREFUL PAPA.

A young lawyer whose wedding a few years ago was quite a social event is now the proud father of a baby girl. He is extremely solicitous regarding her welfare and has already laid down a set of laws, applicable to all his friends, and declares they must be obeyed.

Not long ago he took a number of his friends out to see the young lady and at the door of the room he halted. Turning to the group, he exclaimed:

"Now, for goodness' sake, don't any of you boys swear. This girl will be learning to talk in a few months and I don't want to hear her cussing around the first words she says."

BRIDGET IS NONPLUSSED.

Mrs. Jenkins had retired to her room to try to sleep off a headache. She had a particularly devoted maid, Bridget. Bridget now annoyed Mrs. Jenkins greatly by tiptoeing to her door every little while and peeping in at her. Finally Mrs. Jenkins called to Bridget and asked her not to do it, as it was disturbing her, to which Bridget replied:

"Sure, Mrs. Jenkins, phat am I to do? When yez makes a noise I thinks yez wants me, an' when yez is quiet I gits to thinkin' maybe yez is dead."

DEPARTMENT STORE EPISODE.

"Mr. Wombat, I have been with you a long time, but by eyesight is failing now. I have been in several departments of the store, laces, silks and lost goods through the shoplifters. I guess I'd better resign."

"Not at all, my boy," said the head of the department store. "You have been with me for years and you shall remain as long as you like. I'll put you in the grindstone department. I don't think you'll lose many goods there."

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is expected to appear October 2 or 3 before the special senate committee investigating campaign contributions.

RACER KILLS 7 HURTS NINETEEN

HOLDER OF WORLD'S RECORDS PLUNGES FROM TRACK IN NEW JERSEY.

92 MILES PER HOUR.

Accident Occurs When He Tries to Pass Rival—Spectators in Panic Six More Are Said to Be Dying.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 10. — Eddie Hasha of Waco, Texas, holder of several world's records for motorcycle racing, plunged over the rail of the course at the new Newark motordrome into a crowd, causing the death of six persons, killing himself, while six are dying and thirteen badly injured.

The only two of the six dead positively identified yet are Hasha and Johnny Albright, a Denver motorcyclist, who was riding third in the race. The other four dead were boys and young men among the spectators.

Was Going 92 Miles An Hour.

Five thousand spectators were witnessing the finish of a four-mile free-for-all race when the rider, doing 92 miles an hour, took his fateful plunge. He was riding high on the bank of the track when the wheel of his heavy machine swerved and struck the upper rail. He was pitched head first 50 feet into the air. He must have been instantly killed in the collision. His body was shapeless from broken bones when it was picked up almost at the feet of his wife, seated among men and boys in the bleachers.

Albright Struck By Wheel.

Albright was thrown head first in the other direction into the enclosure of the track, when the other champion's wheel came sliding down the steep bank and struck him. He was picked up for dead, but he lived in an unconscious state for more than two hours after removal to a hospital. He finally succumbed to hemorrhage of the lungs.

The spectators injured were mainly the men and boys who were leaning over the rail yelling encouragement to the riders when Hasha came tearing into their midst. Some of the spectators were hurled high into the air and landed in the laps of those seated behind. A scene of panic among the spectators generally followed the tragedy.

The stadium where the accident occurred is in Vailsburg, a suburb of this city, where bicycle and motorcycle racing has been a great fad this year. The season has been marked by a number of accidents, both here and at Brighton Beach, N. Y., but never in the history of local racing has such a death list been recorded as was yesterday.

G. A. R. AT LOS ANGELES.

Veterans Gather In California for Annual Meeting.

Los Angeles, Sept. 10. — A record crowd of sightseers and veterans marked the formal opening of the forty-sixth national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic here. Old soldiers, with their wives, children and grandchildren, thronged the streets, the veterans forming the center of interested groups of spectators and listeners.

Hotels and boarding houses near the G. A. R. headquarters were crowded to their capacity by the incoming hosts and everywhere the blue and red of the G. A. R. button was the signal for deference and hero worship.

The old soldiers were formally welcomed to Los Angeles at a mass meeting where men of local eminence in the ranks of the Grand Army voiced the sentiment of the citizens in offering the hospitality of the city.

Die of Hunger in Streets.

Washington, Sept. 10.—Shocking reports of famine and sickness, brigandage and brutality in the rebel zone in Nicaragua, sent to the outside world by couriers, are beginning to reach the state department and are being referred to the attention of the American Red Cross. At Granada, it is reported, the victorious rebel troops have confiscated all food supplies for the revolution, and, while being well fed themselves, are permiting the noncombatants to die in the streets.

Strike to Affect Release of Leaders.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—A great strike which would tie up industries all over the United States is threatened by the committee which is working for the release from jail at Lawrence, Mass., of J. J. Ettor and Arthur Giovannitti, who are charged with murder in connection with the shooting of Anna Lapizza, during the recent textile disturbances in the East.

Prison Meeting Is Quelled.

Baltimore, Sept. 10.—A mutiny in which more than 200 prisoners, mostly negroes, took part, broke out in the Maryland penitentiary, according to officials of that institution. It was quelled when Warden Leonard threatened to flog the mutineers if they refused to go back to work.

ONE DEAD; EIGHT ARE INJURED

MORE THAN 100 GUESTS FLEE FROM EXPLOSION.

Conditions At One Hotel to Be Investigated—Total Loss $16,000.

Minneapolis, Sept. 10. — One man was suffocated to death by smoke, eight others were overcome and were resuscitated and rescued by the fire department's life saving squad and more than 100 guests, many of them half clad, fled to the street or were assisted out by firemen in a fire which started from a gasoline explosion in a garage, spread to two Washington avenue south hotels and menaced two other near-by hosterlries.

Many of those carried out by the firemen were women. A score of guests in the most seriously damaged hotel, the Star, 113, Washington avenue south, lost all their personal belongings. Fire Marshal Arthur C. Price said both of two explanations offered to him regarding the origin of the fire indicated that the fire ordinance had been violated. The blaze started in the garage of the National Express & Messenger company at the rear of 113 Washington avenue south and spread to the Star hotel in the same building and to the Warwick hotel, 115 Washington avenue south. Guests also fled from the American hotel, 111 Washington avenue south, and the Hotel Beaufort, 112 Third street south. The total loss exceeded $16,000.

A man who had registered as Morris Johnson, and who had been assigned room 33 of the Warwick hotel, was the guest who lost his life. The indications were that he had died struggling for breath. Before he lost consciousness he had torn his clothing to ribbons in a vein effort to make a rope by which he might escape from a window. The door of the room had become jammed, the police said, and there were indications that Johnson had tried vainly to open the window also.

Train Kills Judge Mott.

Faribault, Minn., Sept. 10. — Judge Rodney A. Mott, 87 years old, one of Rice county's pioneers, was killed at the Second street crossing on the Rock Island tracks by a northbound passenger train as he was coming down town to his office.

Murder Suspected.

Chicago, Sept. 10. — City detectives and attaches of the coroner's office reported that a post mortem examination showed that Arthur L. Raymond, former pitcher, died as the result of a fractured skull and not from heart disease, as at first supposed.

6,000,000 Bushels of Grain Received.

Biwabik, Minn., Sept. 10.—The rescuers nearly have succeeded in reaching the two imprisoned miners in the Ruddy pit. They are believed to be alive.

THESE SIX LETTERS
From New England Women

Prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Does Restore the Health of Ailing Women.

Boston, Mass.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from hemorrhages (sometimes lasting for weeks), and could get nothing to check them. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound (tablet form) on Tuesday, and the following Saturday morning the hemorrhages stopped. I have taken them regularly ever since and am steadily gaining.

"I certainly think that every one who is troubled as I was should give your Compound Tablets a faithful trial, and they will find relief."—Mrs. George Juby, 803 Fifth Street, South Boston, Mass.

Letter from Mrs. Julia King, Phœnix, R.I.

Phœnix, R.I.—"I worked steady in the mill from the time I was 12 years old until I had been married a year, and I think that caused my bad feelings. I had soreness in my side near my left hip that went around to my back, and sometimes I would have to lie in bed for two or three days. I was not able to do my housework.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me wonderfully in every way. You may use my letter for the good of others. I am only too glad to do anything within my power to recommend your medicine."—Mrs. Julia King, Box 282, Phœnix. R.I.

Letter from Mrs. Etta Donovan, Willimantic, Conn.

Willimantic, Conn.—"For five years I suffered untold agony from female troubles causing backache, irregularities, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It was impossible for me to walk up stairs without stopping on the way. I was all run down in every way.

"I tried three doctors and each told me something different. I received no benefit from any of them but seemed to suffer more. The last doctor said it was no use for me to take anything as nothing would restore me to health again. So I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see what it would do, and by taking seven bottles of the Compound and other treatment you advised, I am restored to my natural health."—Mrs. Etta Donovan, 762 Main Street, Willimantic, Conn.

Letter from Mrs. Winfield Dana, Augusta, Me.

Augusta, Me.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured the backache, headache, and the bad pain I had in my right side, and I am perfectly well."—Mrs. Winfield Dana, R.F.D. No. 2, Augusta, Me.

Letter from Mrs. J. A. Thompson, Newport, Vt.

Newport, Vt.—"I thank you for the great benefit Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I took eight bottles and it did wonders for me, as I was a nervous wreck when I began taking it. I shall always speak a good word for it to my friends."—Mrs. John A. Thompson, Box 3, Newport Center, Vermont.

Letter from Miss Grace Dodds, Bethlehem, N.H.

Bethlehem, N.H.—"By working very hard, sweeping carpets, washing, ironing, lifting heavy baskets of clothes, etc., I got all run down. I was sick in bed every month.

"This last Spring my mother got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and already I feel like another girl. I am regular and do not have the pains that I did, and do not have to go to bed. I will tell all my friends what the Compound is doing for me."—Miss Gracie B. Dodds, Box 133, Bethlehem, N.H.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

California Woman's Good Shot.

While walking through the woods near Cohasset, Mrs. W. H. Pillsbury of Chico shot a large brown bear that measured six feet from tip to tip.

Mr. and Mrs. Pillsbury were walking from their summer home near Cohasset to the "Promontory," a high point from which an excellent view of the whole valley can be had. Mrs. Pillsbury had a 30-30 carbine. Suddenly she saw a large bear coming down the hill about forty yards away. "It's a bear, shall I shoot it?" she shouted to her husband. Pillsbury answered in the affirmative and his wife asked, "Where shall I shoot him?" "In the head," came the answer. With deliberate aim the woman fired, hitting the animal square in the right eye, killing him instantly. and the weight of the carcass was estimated at 300 pounds.—Chico Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

German Farmer Good Business Man.

Under a seemingly generous offer of hospitality, a North German farmer has managed to include a good stroke of business for himself. In a Hanover paper recently appeared an advertisement that from fifteen to twenty women and girls (not under twelve years of age) who needed recuperation could have free board and lodging on a country estate. But in exchange they would be required to pick peas from eight to ten hours daily. Industrious pickers might also be paid cash for their labor.

West No Place for Consumption.

Physicians in all of the eastern states will be asked by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis to stop sending consumptives in the last stages of tuberculosis and without sufficient funds to the southwestern part of the United States in search of health. While it is impossible to tell accurately how many consumptives there are at present living in the states of Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, southern California, and western Texas, it is probable that no less than ten per cent of the 6,000,000 people in this territory have tuberculosis themselves, or have come to the west because some member of their family have had it. Every year, the health authorities estimate, not less than 10,000 consumptives, hopelessly diseased, come west to die. For these cases, the climate of this section of the country can do nothing, and they are compelled to die in strange surroundings and thousands of miles from home and friends. The National Association points out further that from 50 to 60 per cent. of these advanced cases are too poor to provide the proper necessaries of life, and they are either starved to death, or compelled to accept the meager charity which this part of the country affords.

Unfailing Stimulant.

Men have tried many things, but still they ask for stimulant—the stimulant in use but requires the use of more. Men try to drown the floating dead of their own souls in the wine cup, but the corpses will rise. We see their faces in the bubbles. The intoxication of drink sets the world whirling again, and the pulses playing music, and the thoughts galloping, but the fast clock runs down sooner, and the unnatural stimulation only leaves the house it fills with revelry—more silent, more sad, more deserted, more dead. There is only one stimulant that never fails, and yet never intoxicates—Duty. Duty puts a blue sky over every man—up in his heart maybe—into which the skylark, happiness, always goes singing.—George D. Prentice.

"The Pen That Big Men Use"

MEANING OF "AT HALF MAST"

At First Universal Symbol Was Token of Submission and Respect For Enemy.

Perhaps you have noticed that whenever a prominent person dies, especially if he is connected with the government, the flags on public buildings are hoisted only part of the way up, remarks the Toronto Mail and Expres. This is called "half mast." Did you ever stop to think what connection there could be between a flag that was not properly hoisted and the death of a great man?

Ever since flags were used in war it has been the custom to have the flag of the superior or conquering nation above that of the inferior or vanquished. When an army found itself hopelessly beaten it hauled its flag down far enough for the flag of the victors to be placed above it on the same pole. This was a token not only of submission, but of respect.

In those days when a famous soldier died flags were lowered out of respect to his memory. The custom long ago passed from purely military usage to public life of all kinds, the flag flying at half mast being a sign that the dead man was worthy of universal respect. The space left above it is for the flag of the great conqueror of all—the angel of death.

Adulation Pleased Rousseau.

Rousseau, whose bicentenary celebration occasioned a riot in Paris the other day, created a sensation when he visited England in 1766. "Rousseau and his Armenian dress," wrote Lord Charlemont, "were followed by crowds when he first arrived in London, and as long as this species of admiration lasted he was contented and happy. Garrick not only gave a supper in his honor, but played two characters specially to please him. Rousseau was highly gratified, but Mrs. Garrick declared that she had never spent a more unpleasant evening in her life, the philosopher being so anxious to display himself, and hanging over the front of the box so much, that she was obliged to hold him by the skirts of his coat to prevent him from falling over into the pit."

Robert Browning's Will.

Diligent search is being made at Florence, Italy, for the will of Robert Browning, son of the famous poet, but so far it has not been found. The fact that there apparently is no will is causing considerable gossip, as the property, of which there is a good deal, both in Asolo and Florence, will pass to his wife, who was Miss Coddington of New York, and from whom he lived apart for years, owing to incompatibility of temper.

Browning's property in Florence included Casa Guidi, where he spent his childhood days. When his mother died the property passed out of the family, and was acquired by him a few years ago.

A FOOD CONVERT
Good Food the True Road to Health.

The pernicious habit some persons still have of relying on nauseous drugs to relieve stomach trouble keeps up the patent medicine business and helps keep up the army of dyspeptics.

Indigestion—dyspepsia — is caused by what is put into the stomach in the way of improper food, the kind that so taxes the strength of the digestive organs they are actually crippled.

When this state is reached, to resort to tonics is like whipping a tired horse with a big load. Every additional effort he makes under the lash diminishes his power to move the load.

Try helping the stomach by leaving off heavy, greasy, indigestible food and take on Grape-Nuts—light, easily digested, full of strength for nerves and brain, in every grain of it. There's no waste of time nor energy when Grape-Nuts is the food.

"I am an enthusiastic user of Grape-Nuts and consider it an ideal food," writes a Maine man:

"I had nervous dyspepsia and was all run down and my food seemed to do me but little good. From reading an advertisement I tried Grape-Nuts food, and, after a few weeks' steady use of it, felt greatly improved.

"Am much stronger, not nervous now, and can do more work without feeling so tired, and am better every way.

"I relish Grape-Nuts best with cream and use four heaping teaspoonfuls as the cereal part of a meal. I am sure there are thousands of persons with stomach trouble who would be benefited by using Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. 85 BOYS ARE GUESTS AT FAIR

LITTLE DOING THAT ESCAPES YOUNG VISITORS' NOTICE.

Purpose of Encampment to Stimulate Interest in Country Life in State.

Minneapolis.—Eighty-five farm boys, chosen by competitive contest in eighty-five counties to attend the first annual farm boys' encampment without expense and as guests of the fair management, are having the time of their lives at the state fair this week. It is an experience which none of them will ever forget.

The boys will be off duty each day until about 11 o'clock, and will spend their time until then visiting points of interest about the grounds. One morning will be spent attending the university week program in the agricultural building. In the afternoons the boys will be detailed to act as messenger boys about the fair grounds and in the hippodrome, and as ushers in the grandstand. Later, when not on duty, the boys will be taken about by competent experts and will listen to an explanation of the livestock, agricultural exhibits, and poultry.

B. F. Woodard, secretary of the West Central Development association, is assisting Mr. Higbie in the camp management during the week. Others who are helping are Superintendent Victor Knutson, of Todd county; Superintendent C. G. Selvig, of the Northwestern Experiment station at Crookston; P. E. Miller, agronomist at Morris; R. E. Baxter, livestock man at Crookston, and S. I. Snortum, poultryman at Morris.

The boys were chosen by competitive contests arranged by the fair association in each county in the state.

When the boys have broken camp Saturday afternoon, Sept. 7, diplomas will be given to each one who has lived up to the rules of the camp. When the boys have returned home they will be given an opportunity to write an essay of not less than 600 words, nor more than 1,000 words, on the subject, "What I saw and learned at the fair as a member of the farm boys' camp." The winner of this contest will be invited to read his essay before the annual meeting of the Minnesota Agricultural society at the expense of the society. Other prizes will be awarded to those securing high rank.

SALE HELD VALID.

Wife No. 1 Shown to Have Forfeited Rights.

Cloquet.—The case of O. E. Kinsley, administrator of the estate of Antoine Poupore and Adeline Poupore against Capitola Allen of Minneapolis, has been decided by Judge Cant of Duluth in favor of Mrs. Allen. Mrs. Allen is the wife of Dr. H. B. Allen, who died in Cloquet several years ago. In recent years she has lived in Minneapolis, but owns property in Cloquet.

The case had been tried twice before. It grew out of the fact that in 1906 Poupore sold to Mrs. Allen a residence in Cloquet, the warranty deed being signed by Poupore and his wife. It developed at Poupore's death that the woman who signed the deed had never been his legal wife, wife No. 1 appearing from New York state and demanding her share of the property. Poupore had married the first wife in 1854, and several children were born to them. About 1889 he abandoned his family and came west with another woman, and a second family grew up.

Life ran smoothly for Poupore except for a short time in 1904, when Mrs. Poupore in the east began to make trouble. He then paid her $500 to keep out of his affairs and had it not been for that transaction the case would undoubtedly been decided in her favor, but the court declared she forfeited her rights as a wife when she accepted money to keep silent.

Minnesota Postmasters to Convene.

Minneapolis. — The Minnesota State League of Postmasters will meet in seventh annual convention at the mayor's reception room Thursday and Friday of this week and will be welcomed to the city with addresses by Mayor Haynes and J. W. Bragdon, president of the Commercial club. W. S. Bartholomew, Avon, Minn., president of the league, will respond and an address by George W. Drake, postoffice inspector and reports of officers will fill in the first day. Good programs are arranged for the other sessions.

M. F. Falk Is Arrested.

St. Paul. — Martin F. Falk, of Duluth, the Progressive candidate for governor, was arrested on the fair grounds for distributing campaign literature. It is a rule of the superintendent of privileges that none but those who have headquarters on the grounds are privileged to distribute literature.

Only Two Warmer.

Minneapolis. — Only two days recorded at the local weather bureau during the summer of 1912 registered a higher temperature than Wednesday. The thermometer showed a temperature of 92 degrees at 3 o'clock.

Records Smashed.

Minneapolis. — All of the records for attendance at the Minnesota state fair and exposition were smashed when a crowd, estimated at more than 100,000, surged through the gates on opening day.

TESTING OF COWS

Interesting Report Made by Pioneer Association.

Albert Lea.—The first annual report of the Pioneer Test association, the first cow testing association in the state, organized by the agricultural department of the Albert Lea high school, has just been made. From the twenty-eight herds, containing 455 cows, of this association, careful reports of the butterfat and the cost of feed for each cow have been recorded.

The association has proved of great value to its members. Some have found that their milk-producing stock had been unprofitable, while others have been barely running even. The association has prompted dairymen who have studied the records of the different herds to provide better methods of feeding, and more purebred stock, and barns have been improved by putting in cement floors, swinging stanchions, additional windows and ventilating systems.

The report shows that if the farmers of Minnesota would replace the poorest one-fourth of their heard by cows as good as the best one-fourth, it would add $46,516,122 each year to the profits of the dairy business of Minnesota. The best two cows of the association gave 13,656 pounds of milk and 485.3 pounds of butter fat valued at $141.02. The cost of feed was $53.34, leaving a net profit of $87.68. The two poorest cows lost the owners $20.43 each, making the actual difference between the best cow and the poorest $108.11.

The best herd produced an average of 9,485 pounds of milk and 315 pounds of butter fat to the cow, valued at $89, while the average cost of feed a cow was $41.69, making a net profit of $57.31 a cow. The poorest herd produced an average of 1,976 pounds of milk and 90.7 pounds of butter fat a cow, valued at $27.88. One of the best cows taken from each of the twenty-eight herds showed a net profit of $45.99 over the one of the poorest cows taken from each herd.

This association and the Clark's Grove and Alden associations, the first three organizations of the kind in the state, have finished their first year and have been reorganizod with over 500 cows each, which goes to show the interest and growing desire of the farmer to increase the value of the dairy industry in the state.

PREDICT DROP IN PRICE

Edward Cudahy Forecasts Decrease in Cost of Meat.

Minneapolis.—All sorts of beefsteak and pork chops will be cheaper in Minneapolis this fall and winter than they have been in a year if packers' local branches follow the course laid down by Edward Cudahy, head of the Cudahy Packing company. Also the steaks will be juicier and the pork chops more tender than they have been in years, according to the same authorities.

Mr. Cudahy is optimistic as to future meat prices. "Cheaper meats must come, and come soon," said Mr. Cudahy in Omaha. "Especially is this true of beef. The season for grass-fed cattle has arrived and the heavy run of medium grades will force prices down. Pork will maintain its present high price until January, when there will be a drop of more than 10 per cent, and by next summer pork will have dropped by one-third."

Mr. Cudahy stated that the Northwest was harvesting the biggest crop in its history and that with so much corn and feed the price of meat was bound to go down.

WHEAT GRADES WELL.

First Trainload of the 1912 Crop Arrives at Duluth.

Duluth. — The first trainload of new grain to reach Duluth this season arrived over the Northern Pacific. It consisted of fifty cars with an average of 1,500 bushels of wheat to the car. The opening of the season means a rush of business for lake carriers. The entire load consisted of northern No. 1 hard wheat, from western Minnesota and North Dakota points.

Has Market Day.

Sauk Rapids.—Sauk Rapids was filled Wednesday with people from all parts of neighboring counties. The attraction was a big market day and exhibit of the agricultural products of Benton county. Only a few weeks ago was the interest aroused in sending an exhibit to the state fair. Hustlers took hold of the idea, the Sauk Rapids business men contributed money, prizes were offered and the growers responded.

One Killed; One Injured.

Minneapolis, — Christian L. Ilstrup, candidate for country surveyor, had a close call to death, and an employe, James Conroy, was instantly killed when they were struck by in-bound passenger train No. 10 on the crossing of the Northern Pacific tracks at Twenty-third avenue north.

Incrases Hundreds of Thousands.

Minneapolis.—A large increase in value of the corn crop of the northwest estimated at hundred of thousands of dollars will result, it is believed, from the hot weather of the last three or four days. Reports from the great farming centers of Minnesota and the Dakotas state the high temperatures have come at a most desirable time and the quality of the corn may be greatly improved. Much of the anticipated evils that were looked for as a result of the recent heavy rains is expected to disappear.

ELECTRIC LIGHT IN DENMARK

Every Town in That Country of Over 5,000 Population Has Public Service.

According to recent information about the progress of electric light and power industries in Denmark, it appears that all the towns of 5,000 inhabitants and over are now provided with public electric service, says the Scientific American. As to towns having between 5,000 and 3,000 inhabitants, there are only three in which electric mains are not installed, so that it will be seen that Denmark is one of the most progressive countries in this respect. The largest sized electric stations are to be found at Copenhagen and at present there are three large plants in operation giving a total of 27,000 horse power. Current is supplied for the city mains, as well as for the tramway lines. As regards the Danish stations in small towns, in general each town has its own plant, and there is but one example of an intercommunal system. This is at Skovshoved, near Copenhagen, and the central station extends its power lines over all the suburban regions, also supplying the tramways of Hellerup and Klampenburg. In most of the town electric stations the Diesel heavy oil engine is used.

CURED OF SCALP TROUBLE

Stratford, Cal.—"My daughter's scalp trouble began as pimples and festered, then formed scales. Her scalp itched and she had dandruff. Her hair came out in bunches, falling entirely in spots as large as a silver dollar. A kind of scab would form in little white crusts on the spots. These spots would be sore. Knowing the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment were good for the skin and scalp, we washed her scalp each morning with Cuticura Soap and then applied the Cuticura Ointment, rubbing it in well with the hand. It helped from the start. I used one box of Cuticura Ointment and one cake of Cuticura Soap, then her scalp was cured and her hair grew again. It has been more than a year since and her scalp is clear and healthy." (Signed) Hiram Crabtree, Jan. 25, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

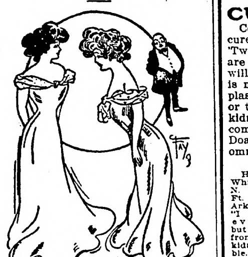
Subtle Admonition.

"Why do you always ask that regular customer if the razor hurts him?" asked one barber.

"Just as a gentle reminder," replied the other, "that if he forgot the tip it's liable to hurt him next time."

But a really clever woman is too clever to show it.

A VARIATION.



"Your husband frequently misses his dinner."

"Yes. Whenever there is a ball game in town he devotes himself to finding fault with the umpire instead of with the cook."

Motor Cars and Mosquitoes.

Mosquitoes, flies and gnats of every description are said to be more numerous in Paris this year than ever before. It has become a veritable invasion. The explanation usually given is that the swallows are much fewer this summer, and also that the ubiquitous sparrow is notably on the decrease. Nobody can find a reason for the desertion of the swallows, but the reason of the scarcity of sparrows is not far to seek. The enemy is mechanical traction, which is supplanting the use of the horse. Before long, horses will practically have disappeared in Paris, and when their nosebags go there will disappear one of the principal staples of food for the Paris "pierrot," who is taking wing for the country in search of the grains of oats and barley once so plentiful on the boulevards and avenues.

Instead of liquid antiseptics, tablets and peroxide, for toilet and medicinal uses, many people prefer Paxtine, which is cheaper and better. At druggists, 25c a box or sent postpaid on receipt of price by The Paxton Toilet Co., Boston, Mass.

WHAT WILL CURE MY BACK?
Common sense will do more to cure backache than anything else. 'Twill tell you whether the kidneys are sore, swollen and aching. It will tell you in that case that there is no use trying to cure it with a plaster. If the passages are scant or too frequent, proof that there is kidney trouble is complete. Then common sense will tell you to use Doan's Kidney Pills, the best recommended special kidney remedy.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and A FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. J. W. Dinsdale, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I use your Castoria and advise its use in all families where there are children."

Dr. Alexander E. Mintie, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "I have frequently prescribed your Castoria and have found it a reliable and pleasant remedy for children."

Dr. Agnes V. Swetland, of Omaha, Nebr., says: "Your Castoria is the best remedy in the world for children and the only one I use and recommend."

Dr. J. A. McClellan, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I have frequently prescribed your Castoria for children and always got good results. In fact I use Castoria for my own children."

Dr. J. W. Allen, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I heartily endorse your Castoria. I have frequently prescribed it in my medical practice, and have always found it to do all that is claimed for it."

Dr. C. H. Glidden, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "My experience as a practitioner with your Castoria has been highly satisfactory, and I consider it an excellent remedy for the young."

Dr. H. D. Benner, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have used your Castoria as a purgative in the cases of children for years past with the most happy effect, and fully endorse it as a safe remedy."

Dr. J. A. Boarman, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."

Dr. J. J. Mackey, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I consider your Castoria an excellent preparation for children, being composed of reliable medicines and pleasant to the taste. A good remedy for all disturbances of the digestive organs."

Go and vote at the primaries next Tuesday, and do not neglect to mark your ballot for your second choice as well as for your favorite candidate.

If Eberhart is accidentally nominated for governor next Tuesday we are quite sure that the November election will make it "Governor Ringdahl."

Duluth has a streetcar strike that has passed beyond control of the local peace officers. Now watch the Duluth Herald figure out a way to lay the blame on Roosevelt.

State elections were held in Maine on Tuesday. The Republican candidate for governor was elected, but the Republican, Progressive and Democratic national committees each and all figure that the results prove that their respective candidate for president will carry that state in November. Do figures ever lie?

Now comes Robert G. Valentine, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, with his resignation from office in order to join the Roosevelt ranks. Quite a few of the office-holders under Taft have done this recently, and their action conveys the message that the Taft cause is considered hopeless among the politicians at the national capital.

Steenerson's Announcement

(Advertising; paid by H. Steenerson)

In announcing my candidacy for re-election as Representative in Congress I desire first of all to thank the people of the district for the honor bestowed upon me in the past and to assure them that, if it shall please them to continue me in their service, I shall in the future, as I have in the past, put forth every effort to serve them faithfully to the best of my ability.

I am a Republican—a progressive Republican—and have supported all progressive legislation for the more complete government regulation and control of railroads and interstate commerce, the policy of conservation of water powers and other natural resources in the interest of the people, and the development of unsettled lands on liberal terms to actual settlers.

While I voted against the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Bill and Canadian Reciprocity because, in my judgement, they were against the best interests of my constituents, I am a protectionist and favor a tariff high enough to preserve the home market to American industries, but not so high as to make it a shield for exorbitant prices.

I voted for the amendments to the Constitution recently passed by Congress, providing for election of Senators by the people, and an income tax, which now await ratification by the States.

I aided in the elimination of railroad and ship subsidies from postal expenditures, and the improvement and extension of the postal service, including parcel post and rural free delivery, and am trying to get improved laws to prevent using the mails to promote fraudulent schemes.

I favor strict government regulation of inter-state commerce, as well as transportation; supervision of corporations and capitalization, and, if necessary, even limitation of prices; workmen's compensation for the benefit of victims of industrial accidents' and all legislation in favor of temperance and morality.

Liberal pensions in their declining years is due from a grateful nation to its gallant defenders, the veterans of the civil war, as a matter of right and justice. While I believe in due military preparation on the part of the leading civilized powers of the world, I believe the time has come when there should be renewed efforts to substitute international arbitration for war in the settlement of disputes among nations, and to limit armaments, thus saving immense sums for more useful purposes in the interests of humanity,

I have filed for the Republican nomination as representative from this 63rd legislative district, and respectfully solicit your vote at the primary election to be held on September 17th, 1912.

If nominated and elected I pledge myself to support the following measures:

1. Just and equitable reapportionment.
2. County option and all other temperance measures.
3. Ample appropriaton for the building of roads and for drainage.
4. Measures encouraging agricultural education and enlarged aid for rural schools.
5. State assistance to farmers in clearing their lands.
6. Initiative, referendum and recall.
7. Equitable tax law affecting corporations and other property.
8. Legislation that will tend towards more rapid settlement and development of our state.
9. I will vote for the candidate for United States Senator who receives the highest popular vote in the general election.

Respectfully yours,
—Paul Marschalk.

HEIGHT OF SMELTER STACKS

Saving in Metals in Smelting Process Increased With Altitude of Stack.

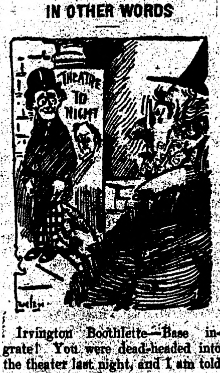
It is generally supposed that the stacks of smelters are built to a great height in order to get rid of the smoke. That is partially the reason, but it is principally because the higher the stack the greater the saving in metals to the smelting company. The action of the blast furnaces carries fine dust containing minute particles of gold or silver out with the fumes. This is first precipitated in what is called a dust chamber, a room several hundred feet in length and many times wider than the vent from the furnace. Much of the dust settles there. Then the fumes from the molten metal enter the stack. By that time their temperature is greatly reduced. The higher the stack the cooler the dust will become, and the wider it is the slower, relatively, it will move as it approaches the top. After it cools it loses a measure of its buoyancy and settles down to the base of the stack. The dust is gathered up by mechanical scrapers in the flue chambers, is dampened and pressed into little disks like biscuits. When these dry they are thrown back into the blast furnaces again.—Harper's Weekly.

CIRCLING THE EARTH ON FOOT

Remarkable Party of Travelers Who Are on a Tour of Study and Research.

About a dozen well-to-do Germans, followers of the "simple life," and consisting of naturalists and their wives, a well-known writer, who acts as leader, and a photographer, arrived recently at the Buddhist monastery at Lausanne, Switzerland. They came from Leipzig, and are on a tour round the world on foot (several on bare feet), which they hope to accomplish "within five or six years." Their motto is taken from Heine: "God gave us two legs to walk with, and if he had wished us to be the slaves of the soil, one leg would have sufficed." The "simple life" devotees, who are all teetotalers and vegetarians, have undertaken this journey across three continents with a view to studying the religions and customs of the different countries, through which they pass. From Switzerland they go to Italy, Austria, Turkey, Asia Minor, Persia, India, Tibet, China, Japan and North America, returning by boat to Spain, whence they go to Lapland, returning eventually to Germany. All the travelers are in the best of health, and very enthusiastic over their plans.

IN OTHER WORDS



Irvington Boothlette—Base ingrate! You were dead-headed into the theater last night, and I am told you said the play was rotten!

Reporter (Muggstown Bazoo)—No; I said the play was a little more than a mellow drama.

ADEQUATE AMMUNITION.

Finley Peter Dunne, creator of Mr. Dooley, was dining with a friend at a New York restaurant. Rice birds were served. The tiny cadavers, picked and lean, were brought in upon large slices of toast. "Poor little things!" said the host. "Seems a shame to kill 'em—doesn't it? How do you suppose they ever murder enough rice birds to make a mess?"

Dunne turned over an infinitesimal specimen with a fork. "I don't know," he said, "unless they use insect powder!"—Saturday Evening Post.

ANOTHER SWINDLE.

Farmer Hayseed—No, I don't want any more labor savin' machines. I've tried enough of 'em. Look in there. That's a typewritin' machine my wife spent all her egg money to git for me, 'cause I ain't very handy with the pen. Just look at the swindle.

Agent—What's the matter with it?

Farmer Hayseed—Matter? Why, you can't even write y'r name with the thing unless you know how to play a church organ.

A DEAD TOWN.

"Yes, I visited Pompeii."

"Deadest town you ever saw, I'll bet."

"With one exception."

"What was it?"

"I once tried to run a newspaper in a town where nobody would advertise."

DRUG STORE COFFEE.

Customer (at soda fountain)—Have you any coffee flavor?

Clerk (briskly)—Yes, sir.

"Does it taste like coffee?"

"Um—er—n-o; but it looks like coffee—perfect picture of it, sir."

A CERTAINTY.

De Style—Do you think women will take part in the coming campaign?

Gunbusta—I know two that will—Anna Nias and Molly Coddle.—Judge.

Let Them Pay Fines

Some time ago we called attention to the requirements of the pure food law regarding the marketing of eggs, and the penalty for selling eggs that are not fit for human use. There is not a merchant in Holt who has not been notified by the state pure food inspector, and, consequently there is no excuse for their selling bad eggs to their customers. The farmer selling the eggs in the first place is supposed to test them before bringing them to market, and the merchant is required to test them before offering them for sale. By the light test any bad egg can be easily distinguished from the good, consequently the sale of bad eggs is inexcusable. The law very properly makes such sales a crime, and it seems the only way to make local business men heed the law is to let them pay a few fines.

Old Settler Passed Away

Albert August Knauf, aged 69 years and 9 days, died late Sunday afternoon at the home of his son, Albin, three miles east of Holt. The cause of his death was kidney trouble, from which he had suffered acutely for several months. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon from Nazareth church here, Rev. F. Selz officiating, and the remains were laid to rest in the Holt cemetery. All the local business houses were kept closed during the funeral services.

Deceased was a native of Germany and came to this country in 1882. In 1883 he settled on a farm in Excel township where he lived until 1900, when he moved to the place where he died. He was a man of most kindly and Christian character, ever ready to help where assistance was needed, and was highly regarded by all who knew him. His son, Albin, is the only surviving member of the family.

Notice for Bids.

Sealed bids will be received by the undersigned, at Holt, Minn., up to the hour of 2 o'clock p. m. on the 23rd day of September, 1912, for the construction of a wooden bridge, 84 feet in length, across the Thief River on the range line between the townships of Excel, Agdar and East Valley, in Marshall County, Minnesota, according to plans and specifications now on file at the Holt State Bank, where they may be seen by prospective bidders at any time until the time for filing bids shall expire. Bids providing for the construction of this bridge with steel I beams, instead of wooden stringers specified in plans, may also be submitted and will be considered by the committee appointed to consider the bids and let contract.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check for 5 per cent of the amount of the bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is reserved.

Dated the 12th day of August, 1912.

AXEL NELSON, East Valley twp,
(a2-16) Chairman of Committee.

APPROPRIATE HYMN.

A certain professor of divinity who was spending the summer in the Scottish highlands was invited, so the Yorkshire Post declares, to baptize the infant son of the local minister.

When the time for the ceremony arrived the guest gave out for congregational singing a paraphrase much favored on such occasions. "Let us," said he, "sing from the fifth paraphrase, beginning at the second verse: 'As sparks in close succession rise.'"

To his consternation, the congregation giggled audibly. Afterward, asking the clerk what he had done wrong, that functionary replied. "You must know, professor, the minister's name is Sparks and yonder is his tenth bairn!"

Taking!

Actor—What, back so soon? Didn't the play take? Actress—Yes, the play took, the manager took the receipts, the sheriff took the scenery, the landlord took the trunks, and the author took to drink!

Election Returns

Owing to the second choice provision of the new primary law, the returns from the primary election of Tuesday are rather slow, and it is at this time impossible to give the results in full.

Senator Knut Nelson and Congressman Steenerson are conceded to have been re-nominated. For governor, P. M. Ringdal is the democratic nominee, and Eberhart seems certain of the republican nomination.

In the county the only contests were for sheriff, and Forsberg has a good majority for the republican nomination, while Sorum and Kulle are about even for the democratic nomination with five east end towns still missing.

Card of Thanks.

I hereby tender my sincere thanks to the many friends and neighbors who so kindly lent their aid during the illness and after the death of my beloved father, and I also sincerely thank all those who contributed the flowers for the funeral.

CHINESE SHY OF THE AUTO

Modern Method of Locomotion Has Found Little Favor in That Country.

In China, where gasolene costs 30 cents a gallon, the automobile is making progress slowly, but as modern ideas are rapidly becoming more prevalent, as indicated by the recent demands for a progressive government, this condition is likely to change.

The chief difficulty is the narrowness of village streets and the small number of good country roads. In and about the large cities, however, the streets are often excellent.

At Tientsin there are twelve cars, three being owned by Chinamen. The streets of the foreign section are broad, level and excellently macadamized, while a splendid boulevard encircles the native city. Pekin also has a dozen cars which are used on her wide, well-kept streets.

Tsingtau has about sixty miles of splendid roads running along the ocean front and into the mountains near by, affording one of the finest spots in the world for automobiling. In spite of this fact there are but six automobiles.

The roads in the vicinity of Nankin, China, are in exceptionally good condition for automobiling, and there are only two automobiles owned by residents, these being the property of Chinese.—Country Life in America.

ALLEGED SLAYER WILL NOT TALK

EFFORTS TO BREAK SILENCE OF "GYP THE BLOOD" AND "LEFTY LOUIE" UNAVAILING.

EXPECT MUCH OF WIVES.

Pickpocket Also Kept in Custody. Arraignment of Prisoners on Formal Murder Charge Likely at Once.

New York, Sept. 17.—Every effort of the police and district attorney to induce "Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louie" to break their silence has so far failed. The arrest of these two gun men, completing the round-up of all the men wanted in connection with the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, just two months ago, was followed by four hours' examination of the new prisoners.

The men were arrested in an apartment at 756 Woodward avenue, Brooklyn, by Central office detectives, and when brought to police headquarters by Deputy Commissioner Dougherty admitted their identity.

It was a careless word about a moving picture show which the fugitives could watch nightly from the rear window of their apartment, and incidently their wives, according to a statement by Dougherty, that gave the police their clue.

The deputy said that his men learned by listening to fragmentary conversations among East Side friends of the gunmen that they could see the picture show from their windows and that they lived in a house the first floor of which was occupied by a laundry.

The men were examined separately by Deputy Police Commissioner George S. Dougherty and by Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss in the absence of District Attorney Charles S. Whitman, but according to both Mr. Dougherty and Mr. Moss, "Gyp" and "Lefty" were determined to "stand pat."

Wives Held at Witnesses.

In an effort to reinforce evidence against the men the police formally held their wives as material witnesses, as well as a third man, Max Kahn, who the police say is a pickpocket, and who was in the flat with the gun men and their wives when detectives broke in upon them at supper Saturday night. All three of these witnesses were arraigned before Coroner Feinberg and held in $1,000 bail each. The police also seized a large number of papers in the flat where the capture was made.

Mr. Moss said no promise of leniency had been given the prisoners for admissions such as some of those concerned in the murder have made, resulting in the indictment of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker as the instigator of the crime.

Horowitz and Rosenzweig, the prisoners' real names, probably will be arranged at once in Justice Goff's court on a formal charge of murdering Rosenthal.

Police Barred From Reward.

Although the district attorney's office had offered $5,000 for the capture of "Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louie," the police detectives who brought about their arrest will not get the reward.

WILSON COMING WEST.

Minnesota, South Dakota and Iowa to Be Visited..

SNEED KILLS SON OF VICTIM

ANOTHER TRAGEDY MARKS TEXAS ELOPEMENT.

Victim Shot Down Close to Church. —Murderer Gives Himself Up to the Police.

Amarillo, Texas, Sept. 17. — John Beall Sneed, slayer of Captain A. S. Boyce and principal in the Boyce-Sneed fued, which has startled the people of two nations with its tragic incidents, shot and instantly killed Albert Boyce, who eloped with Sneed's wife last January. The killing took place in front of the Methodist church here.

A beard of several weeks' growth furnished a complete disguise and those who saw the shooting thought Sneed was a hunter.

The shooting occurred on the principal street of the city within two blocks of the business district.

Heavy loads of buckshot took effect in Boyce's right side and death must have been practically instantaneous. Newspaper men were not permitted to see Sneed and neither he nor his attorneys had any statement to make.

The killing of Boyce is the last tragic incident in a list of tragedies which began last January, when Mrs. Lena Sneed ran away from a sanatorium in Fort Worth, where she had been placed by her husband for nervous and mental trouble.

Mrs. Sneed, in company with Al Boyce, left Fort Worth and there was a sensational chase after the couple by Beall Sneed across the United States into Canada, where they were located in Winnipeg by Minneapolis detectives.

Sneed prevailed upon his wife to return to Texas. She came and on account of the letters which passed between Captain Boyce and his son and the assistance alleged to have been given young Boyce by his father, Beall Sneed shot Captain Boyce to death in the lobby of the Metropolitan hotel in Fort Worth. The shooting followed a conference with Mrs. Lena Sneed and her husband. There were numerous witnesses to the shooting. This was the first tragedy in the series.

Following closely on the trial of Sneed for the murder of Captain Boyce in which the jury disagreed. came the news of the tragic death of Beall Sneed's father, who was murdered by an insane person in the postoffice at Georgetown.

Fort Worth.—Walter Scott and W. H. McLean, Jr., lawyers for J. B. Sneed, who killed Al Boyce in Amarillo, left for Amarillo to look after their client's interests. Sneed's second trial for the murder of Captain A. C. Boyce is set for November 11 here.

Crowds at Indian Fair.

Fort Yates, N. D., Sept. 17.—So far the Indian fair has been a great success, though the first few days were dry and dusty. The Indian camp makes a circle of about ten miles and over 3,000 tepees are pitched on the flats below the town. At night the Indians hold dances, their war whoops and tom-toms being heard for miles. The scenes before the hundreds of camp fires, with the painted and feathered dancers, furnish a weird and fascinating entertainment never to be forgotten.

"Why do they call it 'Labor' day?" inquired the mystified foreigner.

"It's labor's day off," explained the native.

British Metropolis Leads in Mud.

According to L. Meerson Clancey of St. Louis, who is now in London, there is more mud in the British metropolis than in any other of the big cities he has been in, and his record includes Paris, Berlin, Vienna, New York, Washington, Baltimore, St. Louis and Milwaukee.

American Tools Preferred.

A favorite sport in New Zealand, as also in Australia and Tasmania, is competition in wood chopping and sawing; and in these contests, which attract a great deal of interest, the championships are always won through the use of American tools. In fact, the expert woodsman working for a prize would never think of using any other kind of tools.

English Honors Cost Money.

The letter patent granted for the dignity of a baron cost £150, and for that of a baronet £100, payable to the board of inland revenue. Other expenses to be incurred by the newly-honored include crests or new coats-of-arms, while some wish to have their "genealogical trees" properly made out. Consequently the Heralds' college is busy after the issue of a list of honors, and the total expenses of a baron are not far short of £400, and those of a baronet exceed £200.

Old Roman Wall Unearthed.

A part of the wall which once enclosed old St. Paul's, London, has been discovered in excavations at the corner of Paternoster Row and St. Paul's alley in London. The wall, which is about 60 feet long, is made of chalk and rubble, and was built in the twelfth century. On the same site pieces of a Roman amphora, Roman vases and some Samian ware have also been found. Other "finds" include a camel's skull unearthed in High Holborn and a large quantity of pipes of the eighteenth century. Under some old stables in Bartholomew Close—one of the oldest parts of London—three Norman arches have been found. They are close to one another, and are believed to have formed part of the cloisters of the priory which once stood on this site.

YOUNG WIFE SAVED FROM HOSPITAL

Tells How Sick She Was And What Saved Her From An Operation.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio.—"Three years ago I was married and went to housekeeping. I was not feeling well and could hardly drag myself along. I had such tired feelings, my back ached, my sides ached, I had bladder trouble awfully bad, and I could not eat or sleep. I had headaches, too, and became almost a nervous wreck. My doctor told me to go to a hospital. I did not like that idea very well, so, when I saw your advertisement in a paper, I wrote to you for advice, and have done as you told me. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and now I have my health.

WOMAN WORKS OUT PROBLEM

Mrs. Sarah Erickson Declares the Hen Lays an Egg at the Same Hour She Was Born.

What time o' day
Does a hen lay?

That question has puzzled poultry fanciers for unnumbered decades, but now, it seems, it has been satisfactorily solved by a woman. She is Mrs. Sarah Erickson of Falconer, N. Y. Having kept chickens for 37 years, she believes she qualifies as an expert in this line of effort.

"I have worked out the problem," she declares. By using marked legbands, trap nests and alarm clocks attached to the nests I have determined that a hen lays an egg at the same hour, minute and second that she was born, or, rather, hatched. For instance, if the hen happened to be able to peck its way through its shell at 7:43 a. m., she will lay an egg at precisely 7:43 a. m. And she will do this without variation every time she is inclined to lay. I have kept close, systematic watch on my hens for five years, and I have never known the rule to fail."

Obliging.

A young man who had never testified before was called before the court as a witness in a certain case. He was somewhat flustered over the attention that was being paid him, and mumbled his words so that the young woman stenographer could not hear them distinctly. He was told to speak plainly and to turn toward the stenographer.

"Speak to the stenographer," said the prosecutor.

At that the young man arose and with a deep bow to the lady said, "How do you do?"—Satire.

RIGHT HOME
Doctor Recommends Postum from Personal Test.

No one is better able to realize the injurious action of caffeine—the drug in coffee—on the heart, than the doctor. Tea is just as harmful as coffee because it, too, contains the drug caffeine.

When the doctor himself has been relieved by simply leaving off coffee and using Postum, he can refer with full conviction to his own case.

A Mo. physician prescribes Postum for many of his patients because he was benefited by it. He says:

"I wish to add my testimony in regard to that excellent preparation—Postum. I have had functional or nervous heart trouble for over 15 years, and a part of the time was unable to attend to my business.

"I was a moderate user of coffee and did not think drinking it hurt me. But on stopping it and using Postum instead, my heart has got all right, and I ascribe it to the change from coffee to Postum.

"I am prescribing it now in cases of sickness, especially when coffee does not agree, or affects the heart, nerves or stomach.

"When made right it has a much better flavor than coffee, and is a vital sustainer of the system. I shall continue to recommend it to our people, and I have my own case to refer to." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

DR. DUMAS SENTENCED

Must Work Out Penalty At Stillwater.

Bemidji.—Protesting innocence and asserting through his attorney, George Spear of Grand Rapids, that he has been prevented from ever telling his side of the story, Dr. D. F. Dumas, until last spring mayor of Cass Lake and one of the most successful physicians in Northern Minnesota, was sentenced in District Court here before Judge W. S. McClenahan to hard labor at Stillwater on the charge of attempted arson in the third degree.

This charge grew out of the Puposky raid of June in 1911, when Mike Davis and Martin Behan were trapped in the Postoffice Building while in the act of attempting to rob and burn the building, according to evidence produced by the State. Testimony also went to show that Dr. Dumas had planned this expedition and that he had been a confederate of some of the country's most daring and desperate criminals.

Dumas Making Twine.

State Spiritualists to Meet.

Minneapolis. — The fifteenth annual convention of the State Spiritualists' association will open for a four-day session Thursday in the old Hennepin Avenue Methodist church. Several nationally known spiritualist workers will address the convention. Dr. George B. Warne of the National Spiritualists' association of Washington, D. C.; Will J. Erwood, pastor of the First Spiritual church, Baltimore, and Mrs. Belle Fuller, medium, Grand Rapids, Mich., will be among the speakers.

MANIAC TERRORIZES.

Demented Farmer Armed With Shotgun Threatens Two Families.

Mankato. — Terrorized for nearly three hours by an insane man who stood over them with a loaded shotgun and repeatedly announced his intention to "wipe them out," the families of August Zingler and Henry Schultz, Decoria farmers, were nearly prostrated.

Financial worry led Zingler to threaten to kill his family and himself, and when Schultz interfered he and his family were also threatened. As Zingler stood guard over the telephone and Schultz did not dare to leave, it was several hours before officers could be notified. Zingler had just sold his farming implements and rented a house in Mankato, and he and family were guests at Schultz. Zingler has been adjudged insane and committed to the asylum.

Girl Pushed From Window.

St. Paul. — Miss Alice Gordon is in a serious condition at the city hospital as the result of having been pushed from a third story window of the Wohler hotel. The police are searching for James Wagner, an engineer on the Great Northern railroad, who is alleged to have shoved the girl during a quarrel. She received a gash on the head and it is also thought her spine is injured. The girl said she was engaged to marry Wagner, and that while in a jealous rage he had pushed her from the window.

Best in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Sept. [illegible].—According to the Journal of the American Medical association Minneapolis made a phenomenal record last Fourth of July with no injuries or deaths as a result of celebrating the national holiday. What makes this record all the more noticeable is the fact that the same thing was true for the previous year. There is not a city in the United States with a population of more than 300,000 persons, except Minneapolis, where there was not even an accident on this day.

CAN'T END CAR TIE-UP.

Manager Says Strike Does Not Exist As Men Are Discharged.

Duluth. — General Manager Warren of the Street Car company attended a meeting of the Common Council and a citizen's committee at the City Hall and restated his determination not to arbitrate nor recognize the grievances of the 153 striking employes.

His defiance to the wishes of the business men who declared the strike must be settled, led to a motion offered by Frank Grassweller, that the old men be reinstated at seven o'clock in the evening and the matters causing the strike be arbitrated later.

The plan proposed for arbitration was that two men should represent the company, two the employes and the four thus chosen select a fifth.

It was set forth that the company and strikers could find no more fair manner of concluding their troubles. The representatives of the strikers declared themselves ready to enter into the proposed agreement and consented that the grievance regarding recognition of the union be not considered, thus sacrificing one of the chief causes of the walkout.

Mr. Warren was then called upon to state his policy regarding settlement by arbitration. He replied that he would not enter into any arbitration and that there is no strike among the employes of the car company. He said that the men discharged would not be taken back. He declared that meddlers were interfering with the business of the company and he said that he was a busy man and attended the gathering only at the expense of business duties.

Mayor Konkel, of Superior, in which city the men are also out, replying to Mr. Warren's demand for protection, stated that if he was forced to put on extra policemen he would place them as crews on the cars and operate the line and that if this was necessary, the city would take action for the public ownership of the car system.

It is said that the strike breakers are receiving $10 a day. This is admitted by the new men, who say they first asked $25 a day and settled upon $10 after the car company had refused more.

JUDGE IS MENACED.

Man Sentenced Shakes Fist at Court.

Minneapolis. — Exactly duplicating their actions of one week ago when they were arrested, the members of the Industrial Workers of the World who were charged with disorderly conduct by refusing to move on at the command of an officer of the law, created a "near" riot in the Municipal Court room that resulted in the clearing of the Chamber at the order of Judge Montgomery.

Twelve of the men who belong to the Workers' organization were found guilty. Eight of the 12 were given their choice of paying a $10 fine or spending 10 days in the workhouse. Four were asked to pay a fine of $5 or go to the workhouse for five days.

When Arthur Boose was called as the clerk read off the names in order, he sprang to his feet, shook his fist at the Judge and yelled:

"Thank you, Judge, for sending me to jail. Remember there is a time coming when you will be silent and the people will hear us. Some day we'll be free."

The other prisoners yelled and about 200 spectators, most of whom were members of the Industrial Workers or in sympathy with the movement, sprang to their feet, waved their hats or handkerchiefs, and shouted vociferously.

Accidentally Shoots Father.

Albert Lea. — While they were hunting near Hayward, Claud Kaplan, aged 19, accidentally fired two charges of shot into his father, E. L. Kaplan, proprietor of a sporting goods store in Albert Lea. Three shots entered Kaplan's face, one going directly into the point of his nose, one into his chin and one penetrating his right cheek. The second charge was fired low and entered his legs.

Explosion Wrecks Homes.

Mineapolis. — Fire starting from the explosion of a five gallon gasoline tank completely destroyed three two-story frame houses in Ontario street southeast, near Fulton street, and left four families destitute.

Mrs. Charles Carlson, wife of a teamster, lost $300 in currency, in addition to all her household goods, which were valued at $300.

Ducks Plentiful on the Boundary

Beaudette. — It is said that practically all the male population of Spooner and Beaudette are at some part of the Lake of the Woods country duck hunting. Ducks are reported to be plentiful.

Miners Believed Dead.

Biwabik. — All agree that the three men imprisoned in the Ruddy mine undoubtedly are dead. It was thought that they were in the sublevel above the water, but when workmen reached that depth the men were not there.

LOOK FOR THE CAUSE

Follow the Advice of Other Women Who Have Had Experiences Similar to Yours.

Have you ever stopped to consider what is the meaning of the various symptoms from which you are suffering? Certainly the paleness, pain in the back, headaches, loss of appetite, nervousness, shortness of breath must have some one cause. They are not diseases in themselves but are complaints and warnings from the different organs of the body that these organs are not being supplied with pure blood and cannot do their daily work well.

To be in good health a person must always have good rich blood. Every tissue of the body depends upon it for nourishment and strength. Knowledge of this fact makes possible a direct treatment for the various disorders from which women suffer. They can cure their troubles by making the blood pure with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

Mrs. F. N. Kenning, of No. 411 Fifteenth avenue, North Minneapolis, Minn., who was completely cured by this remedy, says:

"For over a year I was in very poor health. I was very weak and thin and had terrible pains through my back. I would be in bed for a week at a time. I was subject to dizzy spells. My limbs would seem to give out and I would have no control of them during these spells. I was reduced in weight to 98 pounds and could not do my work.

"The doctor did not seem to help me and I quit his treatment. It was then a cousin recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People to me and I gave them a trial. I soon felt much better and I now weigh 115 pounds. For years I had terrible headaches but since taking the pills these have disappeared. My health is better than it has been in years and I give the credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I would advise all suffering women to take the pills for I know they will relieve them of much misery."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People should be used in anaemia, chlorosis or green sickness, sick headache, and for nervousness and a general run-down condition of the health.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are for sale at all druggists, or will be mailed to any address, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. Our new booklet, "Plain Talks to Women," will be sent free on request. Adv.

HOW TO TREAT PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS

For pimples and blackheads the following is a most effective and economical treatment: Gently smear the affected parts with Cuticura Ointment, on the end of the finger, but do not rub. Wash off the Cuticura Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water and continue bathing for some minutes. This treatment is best on rising and retiring. At other times use Cuticura Soap freely for the toilet and bath, to assist in preventing inflammation, irritation and clogging of the pores, the common cause of pimples, blackheads, redness and roughness, yellow, oily, mothy and other unwholesome conditions of the skin.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Add. postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston." Adv.

Sang for Sultan.

Mulai Hafid, the ex-sultan of Morocco, while staying at Vichy, in France, made an excursion to Les Ardoisieres, says the "Matin," where Napoleon III. used often to go for rest. Three young girls, sisters, timidly approached the sultan and asked him to sign postcards. Mulai Hafid consented on condition that they would each sing a song to him. Two of the girls at once complied, and the delighted Mulai Hafid wrote on their cards words which, translated, mean: "Like Napoleon III., I have visited Les Ardoisieres, where I have enjoyed, together with the calm and freshness of nature, the grace and charm of the voices of Mlles. Paulette and Clotilde." The third girl did not know how to sing, but one of her sisters having sung for her the sultan added the name of Gabrielle.

"'Wild women without tongues!' said I. 'Goodness! How could they talk?'"

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.
In this age of research and experiment, all nature is ransacked by the scientific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides in the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine is that of Therapion, which has been used with great success in French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists, that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say, miraculous cures, should send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. Le Clerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether the New French Remedy "THERAPION" No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 is what they require and have been seeking in vain during a life of misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness. Therapion is sold by druggists or mail $1.00. Fougera Co., 90 Beekman St., New York.

Be a booster—not a knocker.

It's a poor favor to nominate a poor man for office and then throw him down when the actual election comes.

The leaders of the Republican national campaign still claim Minnesota for Taft. At first they claimed Nebraska, too, but they now admit that Roosevelt may carry Nebraska and California.

Nobody will deny that the people of this state are mostly progressives, in political ideas. Most of them, of that particular brand, seem to have been too bashful to attend the primary election on Tuesday.

Now that the primaries are over the voters are figuring out how the second choice ballot might have affected the result. Of course, they should have done this figuring sooner and voted for their second choice at the primary election.

There is some similarity between the standards of politics and base ball, and it takes better than a bush leaguer to break into the national league. Mr. LaFollette's recent actions and utterances show that he is still in the bush league class, but a star in the home club.

The Duluth Herald gloats over Taft's mistake in the matter of the famous Ballinger controversy, and points proudly to the fact that Pinchot and Glavis, discredited and retired from office by Taft, have finally been proved to have been right. It seems odd that the Herald fails to give Roosevelt any credit for giving the public such capable servants as Pinchot and Glavis, and putting up some fight on their behalf when the administration was giving them a dirty deal.

Peat Lands

Interesting Article About Peat Soil and It's Value as Farming Land.

Among many, the general belief seems to be, that peat soil is no good. Since it is no good, get rid of it. The method employed, is to burn it up.

Whoever cherishes this opinion, has an entirely wrong conception of the matter. Peat land, wherever farmed has been found to be exceedingly valuable for agricultural purposes. Extensive areas of peat marshes in Ind. and Ill. exactly similar to ours in physical aspects, were years ago drained. Instead of burning the peat, the people back there plowed it up, they cultivated it, they kept on stirring and turning it over. Result: Peat in that country sells from $150 per acre up. Their peat soil constitutes the highest priced and most sought for land.

Therefore—don't burn it up.

A few years back Wis. commenced to reclaim peat marshes by draining them. These very same lands, formerly floating bogs, drained as they are now, are yielding 30 bush. of wheat, 90 bush. of oats, and 4 1-2 tons of hay per acre. These figures rebresent actual facts as compiled by the University of Wisconson. What do you think these people in Wisconson would be raising now, had they burned up their peat?

In order to grow these crops, one must fully understand the physical as well as the chemical properties of peat. While peatbogs all need drainage and are excessively rich in organic matter, they differ radically from each other in several respects. It is important that the differences be distincly recognized. Many marshes will prove highly productive while others are of much less value. Due to these variations peat soils require different treatments. Therefor it is imperative that persons handling them understand their charactor fully.

The most important factors to be considered are; 1, Drainage; 2, Preparation of seedbed: 3, Use of manure and fertilizers; 4, Selection of crops.

Considerable areas of our bogs support a heavy growth of Spaghnum moss. It is difficult if not imposiible to plow such lands before this moss has been removed. The practical way of disposal is by burning it, provided that only so much of the surface is burned off as necessary to permit good breaking. Great care must be used to prevent the spread of these fires. Peat fires, not kept constantly under control are hard to deal with. Any one desiring to burn the moss, must take due precautions. The state fire law is strict; it spells woe to any offender.

Whether burning is a pre-requisite or not, the summer or early fall is the best time for the plowing of such lands. The larger the plow, the better. After the plowing, the peat should be packed with heavy rollers. Compacting the soil not only hastens its rottind and the necessary chemical decomposition, but it also firms the soil, thus improving its texture as a seedbed.

In chemical composition boglands differ from upland soils in having a very large amount of nitrogen, and usually a smaller amount of the other plant foods, phosphates and potash. Furthermore, some of these bogs are more sour, or acid, than others. The degree of acidity determines the readiness with which plants can assimilate the plant food. A very acid or sour soil renders impossible the assimilation of plant food. Therefore, in order to induce your peat to pay dividends, ascertain (1) what is the percentage of the different plant foods present, and (2) what is the degree of acidity? This information can be gained by sending a sample of your soil to the College of Agriculture, University of Minnesota, St. Paul.

In order to grow, plants must have nitrates, phosphates and potash. Having ascertained which of these your soil lacks, proceed with an application of the fertilizer needed. The first application of phosphate or potash, whichever the case may be, will cost approximately $3 to $5 per acre; additions every three or four years thereafter, amounting to $1 or $2 per acre, are sufficient to supply the needs for a bumper crop. In case your peat is too acid a moderate application of lime will render material assistance.

Whatever your grievances against peat may be, forget them. Peat is all right. It has turned out splendidly elsewhere, why not here? If properly handled, it will be a gold mine to you, and, whatever your intentions are, dont allow a fire to start and burn it up for you.

GIRL IS GIVEN HERO PRIZE

French Seamstress Gave Part of Her Skin to Save Life of a Child.

By a resolution of the municipal council of Chomerac, in the Ardeches, southeastern France, one of the hero prize of the Carnegie foundation, amounting to a sum of $560, is to be given to a provincial midinette, who offered part of her skin to be grafted in order to save the life of a child. The child was burnt accidentally and was taken to the hospital, where, in spite of every care, the wound, which was very deep, refused to heal. The only salvation seemed to be to graft some healthy flesh on the burnt part. The mother of the little girl offered at once to sacrifice herself for the purpose, but she had several other children, and a young seamstress, hearing of it, offered herself. It might endanger the mother's life, she said, and there would be nobody to take care of her other children. "I am alone, and it is better that I should make the sacrifice." Her offer was accepted, and as a very large part of the skin had to be removed the operation brought on a high fever. Subsequently the heroic seamstress also had an attack of typhoid, from which she has not yet recovered The municipal councilors therefore held a meetiing and passed a resolution proposing her for the Carnegie prize.

FAST PACE OF BUSY TOWN

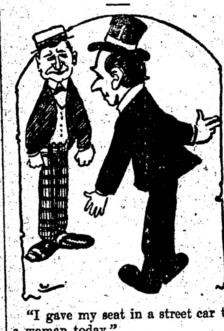
Time Passes In an Incredible Manner and Nobody Ever Has Spare Minute.

A young boy eloquently dilating on the delights of the small town in which he lived, the baseball games, fishing, drives, picnics, etc., was interrupted by his listener, who asked curiously:

"But what do you do with yourself in the evening in a place of that sort, where there are no theaters or amusements of any kind?"

"Why," answered the youth, "I stand around in the drug store on the corner talking to a lot of fellows, and, all of a sudden, I ask 'What time is it?' And what do you think? It's twelve o'clock! Time passes just like that. Never saw anything like it. Gone before you know it. Nobody ever has a spare minute."

SO HE COULDN'T TELL



"I gave my seat in a street car to a woman today."

"And what did she say?"

"I presume she said 'thank you,' but I became unconscious as soon as I saw her lips move."

FORGET TROUBLES.

Learn to keep your own affairs locked up in your heart, but be willing to listen to others' sorrows.

There is no use in the world in harping on the crazy tear-making events of life.

Be patient with the faults of others and be patient with your own. But don't talk about the worries and trials of everyday existence.

There is no sense in that at all. It is a tremendous waste of energy. No one wants to hear about individual troubles. Constant talking about one's troubles is a sure path to chronic fault-finding, bickering and family rows that cause more misery than anything else on earth. And what good does the talking do? The sympathy you get doesn't amount to a row of pins.

Individuals of the right sort resent being pitied. Don't be a sympathy beggar.

Smiles lead you back to youth, tears drag you quickly to old age.

Sorum vs Forsberg Again

John A. Sorum, of Holt, and William Forsberg, of Warren, will make the fight this year, as two years ago, for the office of sheriff. In spite of the frantic efforts of the west end ring to defeat Sorum for the democratic nomination, he won out by a margin of three votes at the primary election. For this office, and perpaps some others, we may expect to see a classy contest this year.

The silver wedding celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Soren Moe at their home in Agdar township on Sunday was participated in by a very large number of their friends and they were the recipient of many handsome presents. The occasion was most enjoyable and a crowd of the young folks remained until evening and continued the festivities until a late hour.

Nels Gudvangan and Walt Adolfson came home from Grafton, N. D., on Tuesday to spend a day or two visiting with the home folks. They took advantage of the bad weather to make the home run, but intend to return just as quickly as the conditions will pernit of threshing work again. They say wages are good in the vicinity where they are working, but that the time has been badly broken by the weather.

To Rush Drainage Work

According to an item in the Minneapolis Journal, State Drainage Engineer George A. Ralph has sent out orders to the effect that all the state ditches, now in course of construction, must be completed this year, and he is quoted as saying that he expects all will be done, except, possibly, some work in Roseau county.

Perhaps Mr. Ralph is misquoted. Here in Marshall county there is a lot of state drainage work that will not be completed—properly—this year, or next year, and if any engineer puts his O. K. on half done work he should be held responsible to the limit under his bond. Mr. Ralph is retiring from office the first of the year, but that is no reason why the taxpayers of eastern Marshall County should be cheated in the work they are obliged to pay for.

Moral:—Keep a close watch on the engineer in charge of any drainage work. He may not be strictly honest, hence the law requires that he must be under bonds.

Some Records of 1912

The heavy snowstorm of the first of this week makes, we believe, a new record for early snow in this section of the country. This storm commenced Monday September 23rd, one lasted over, Tuesday and Wednesday, the snow fall amounting in all to probably ten inches of soft, wet snow. Late flax and other crops not in stack, suffered heavily, as a hard frost followed the snow storm. On September 28th, 1898, a heavy snow storm visited the Red River Valley but it lasted only one night. In contrast with this present storm it is an odd circumstance that Sunday, the 15th inst, was the hottest day of the year, or at least the thermometer made its highest point for the year on that day.

Thursday, January 11th, of this year was the coldest day on record for this part of the country, so 1912 is liable to be a year to be remembered, and the political campaign may help some in that respect.

SOYA BEAN A PERFECT FOOD

Milk, Cheese, Oil and Flour All Made From This Valuable Vegetable.

It is interesting to note in conjunction with the awakening of China that a Chinese article of food, or at any rate a vegtable product which grows most profusely in Manchuria, is attracting the serious attention of Europe and America. Authorities say that the soya bean contains more of the ingredients of a perfect food than any other one known product, and an important experiment is being tried in France, where a wide assortment of foods is being made from soya beans. They include milk, cheese, casein, oil, jellies, flour, bread, biscuits, cakes and sauces.

The use of the soya bean oil for paint purposse is established as a practical fact. While it is said that soya oil is not yet proved a perfect substitute for linseed oil in exterior painting, in interior painting it is entrely satisfactory and for some sorts of finishings, like "baking japans," it is even better than linseed oil.—Christian Science Monitor.

INCREASE SHOWN IN FOODSTUFFS

BUREAU OF LABOR DECLARES ADVANCE HAS BEEN 50 PER CENT IN LAST 10 YEARS.

CONSIDERS 16 ARTICLES.

Investigation Took in Coal and Most Important Necessities—Bacon Only Commodity that Decreased.

Washington, Sept. 24.—The most marked upward trend of the cost of living is disclosed in the federal bureau official's labor report of an investigation of prices for the past 10 years conducted in the important industrial centers of 32 states. Fifteen most important articles of food, as well as coal, comprising two-thirds of a workingman's needs, were investigated.

On June 15, 1912, the report shows, 14 of the 15 articles of food were higher than a year before, and 10 had advanced in the past 10 years more than 50 per cent over the average retail price for the 10 years' period, 1890-1899.

During the last decade prices of potatoes changed most and sugar the least. Their advances were 111.9 and 8.5 per cent respectively. During the last year, bacon, which decreased just one-tenth of one per cent, was the only one of the 15 principle articles of food that showed a decline in price, while nine of the 15 advanced more than 10 per cent, varying from 2.4 per cent for milk to 18.6 for round steak. Of the 15, only eggs, butter, milk and sugar were lowered.

Reports from Cities.

Specimens of the statements of merchants in various cities, published in the report follow:

New York — Meats in general are so high that if prices continue much longer we will be obliged to close up business. Have lost about $200 since advance in prices.

Chicago—Jobbing price on flour has advanced 80 cents per barrel, and unless there is a decline in the near future retail prices will advance.

Salt Lake City—Everything seems to be at the top, but nothing shows any decline.

Showing in Last Year.

This was the showing made for the food prices in the last year, according to the report, on the foods investigated:

Decrease in price: Smoked bacon, 1 per cent.

Increase in price: Fresh milk 2.4; smoked ham, 2.7; hens, 3.8; granulated sugar, 6; Irish potatoes, 7.6; wheat, flour, 10.7; pork chops, 11.2; pure lard, 11.3; strictly fresh eggs, 11.8 1-8; cornmeal, 12.7; creamery butter, 15.3; sirloin steak, 17; rib roast, 17.5; round steak, 18.6.

The advance during the period, comparing the price June 15 last with the average for the ten years, was as follows:

Granulated sugar, 8.5 per cent; strictly fresh eggs, 26.1; fresh milk, 32.9; creamery butter, 33.3; wheat, flour, 39.3; pure lard, 55.3; hens, 58.1; sirloin steak, 59.5; smoked hams, 61.3; cornmeal, 63.7; rib roast, 63.8; round steak, 84; pork chops, 86; smoked bacon, 96.7; Irish potatoes, 111.9.

The price of coal on April 15, as compared with a year before was higher for Pennsylvania anthracite, stove size, in 25 out of 29 cities. During the same period, Pennsylvania anthracite, chestnut size, advanced in 25 out of 27 cities; and bituminous advanced in 17 out of 32 cities, the price remained unchanged in 12 cities and declined in 3 cities.

The net price of gas for household use on April 15, compared with the previous year, showed that reductions ranged from 5 to 15 cents for manufactured gas among 54 companies in 36 cities and practically unchanged among the natural gas plants.

13 Airmen Killed in Month.

Paris, Sept. 24.—"A brilliant month in aviation, but the most tragic since heavier-than-air craft was discovered," was the verdict at the Aero Club, summing up the events thus far in September. Since Sept. 1, thirteen aviators have been killed. Three records have been broken. Military men have acknowledged that war has been revolutionized by the aeroplane—that perhaps war has been rendered impossible for the future.

Weds Sweetheart of Youth.

Marinette, Wis., Sept. 24.—It took Joseph Ostholder of Sheboygan, aged 72 years, a long time to find his sweetheart of his school days and wed her, but he finally accomplished it. He was married here Sunday to Mrs. Barbara Ziegler of Marinette, aged 70 years.

Never Loved Sneed.

Culvert, Texas, Sept. 24.—Despondent over the killing of Al Boyce the man with whom she eloped, and who was killed in Amarillo last Saturday by her husband, John B. Sneed, Mrs. Lena Sneed declared that Al Boyce was the only man she ever had loved, and that she never had loved Sneed.

Many Boats Tied Up.

Duluth, Minn., Sept. 24.—The recent rains in the Dakotas have resulted in many boats being tied up. The grain is not coming in fast.

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

It is a duty of the kidneys to rid the blood of uric acid, an irritating poison that is constantly forming inside.

When the kidneys fail, uric acid causes rheumatic attacks, headache, dizziness, gravel, urinary troubles, weak eyes, dropsy or heart disease.

Doan's Kidney Pills help the kidneys fight off uric acid—bringing new strength to weak kidneys and relief from backache and urinary ills.

A Utah Case

Mrs. James Crooks, First St., N. W., American Fork, Utah, says: "For over ten years I was afflicted with kidney complaint. Often the pain in my back was so severe that I almost fell to the floor. The kidney secretions were unnatural. There was lameness across my loins. Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention and they cured me."

CAREFUL DOCTOR

Prescribed Change of Food Instead of Drugs.

It takes considerable courage for a doctor to deliberately prescribe only food for a despairing patient, instead of resorting to the usual list of medicines.

There are some truly scientific physicians among the present generation who recognize and treat conditions as they are and should be treated, regardless of the value to their pockets, Here's an instance:

"Four years ago I was taken with severe gastritis and nothing would stay on my stomach, so that I was on the verge of starvation.

"I heard of a doctor who had a summer cottage near me—a specialist from N. Y.—and as a last hope, sent for him.

"After he examined me carefully he advised me to try a small quantity of Grape-Nuts at first, then as my stomach became stronger to eat more.

"I kept at it and gradually got so I could eat and digest three teaspoonfuls. Then I began to have color in my face, memory became clear, where before everything seemed a blank. My limbs got stronger and I could walk. So I steadily recovered.

"Now after a year on Grape-Nuts I weigh 153 lbs. My people were surprised at the way I grew fleshy and strong on this food." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

"There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest. Adv.

DECISION TO GUIDE DIPLOMATS

SUPREME COURT WILL SOON RULE ON DISPOSITION.

Right of American Government to Surrender Prisoner to Italy Is Questioned.

Washington, Sept. 24. — The long wait of Porter Charlton behind the bars of a New Jersey prison for the final word as to whether he must return to Italy to answer for the murder of his wife at Lake Como two years ago, is drawing to an end. The supreme court will take up his case during the term which opens October 14.

Charlton's appeal is the most noted case of its kind before the court. The details of the crime stirred both Europe and America. Diplomatic officials of Italy and the United States have become involved. The decision of the court will be looked to as a guide in diplomatic intercourse.

The 23-year-old prisoner through his father, Judge Paul P. Charlton of Porto Rico, will not contest the question of his guilt, but will challenge the right of the American government to surrender him to the Italian authorities.

This right is claimed on account of the peculiar circumstances under which Charlton was arrested.

Immediately after Mrs. Charlton's body was found in a trunk in Lake Como, the search for her husband began. He was arrested at the request of the wife's brother, Capt. H. H. Scott of the United States army, as he stepped from a steamer at Hoboken, N. J.

He had committed no crime in America, but confessed to having murdered his wife, who he said had refused to obey his order to be quiet one night as they sojourned at Lake Como on their wedding trip.

Under the treaty between the United States and Italy, Italy repeatedly has declined to grant requests of the United States that Italians, who committed crimes in this country and escaped to Italy, be returned here for punishment. Italy has responded that she would punish them.

When the Italian government requested the United States to surrender Charlton, Secretary Knox replied that as the United States could not punish him—if "found guilty he would go free if not surrendered," and so he granted the request.

To prevent his removal Charlton's father brought habeas corpus proceedings before the New Jersey courts, claiming there was no authority for his arrest and challenged the right of the American government to turn his son over to the Italian officers. The New Jersey courts held against Charlton, who appealed to the supreme court of the United States.

Cloudy Weather Prevents Frosts.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 24.—The southern portion of the Red River valley has not been touched by frost thus far this season. In spite of excessive cold weather for this time of the year, the nights have been cloudy and frosts have been prevented.

Catholics to Washington.

Washington, Sept. 24.—To consider baffling problems of poverty and measures designed to rescue the poor from ignorance and disease the national conference of Catholic Charities began its second biennial meeting here.

Another Airman Killed.

Belfast, Sept. 24—Aviator J. H. Ashley fell with his aeroplane during an exhibition flight here and sustained injuries from which he died shortly.

Horse Disease in Pastures.

Pierre, S. D., Sept. 24.—Secretary Sellers of the governor's department is keeping in close touch with the outbreak of horse disease in Bon Homme county, and has secured the assistance of government veterinarians.

To Control Aviation Abroad.

London, Sept. 24.—The death of H. J. D. Astley by the fall of his aeroplane at Belfast has given impetus to the movement to found a national aviators' league. Astley was the 20th British airman to lose his life.

Prices in Seville.

Roses are 18 cents a dozen in midwinter in Seville. The cost of theater tickets is not usually more than 42 cents. But railway travel for short distances costs nearly four cents a mile.

Their Endless Wrangle.

The Doctor—"Natural endowment goes a great way, I grant you, but it takes education to make a man of parts." The Professor—"Yes, but monkeying with a buzzsaw will do it quicker."

Twins in Common Suffering.

Darwin has recorded a French case of two twin brothers, one living in Paris and the other in Vienna, who were attacked by rheumatic ophthalmia at the same moment. Each was certain, when consulting a specialist, that the other was suffering from a like complaint, and mentioned the fact. Subsequent letters confirmed this.

Old Egyptian Wall Painting.

Probably the earliest wall paintings are the ancient Egyptian. They employed a distemper containing dissolved gum, and their principal pigments were white chalk, a vegetable yellow, ochres, Ethiopian cinnabar, blue powdered glass stained with copper and charcoal black. Their drawing was technically skilful, and, as is the case with the modern decorator, their coloring was purely decorative and their designs fanciful and extravagant.

Case of Autosuggestion.

A man was watching a moving picture film of a religious ceremony in Burma. There were pictures of bell players or ringers among the Burmese musicians, while the actual orchestra, with the moving picture exhibition, was composed entirely of stringed instruments. Yet this man solemnly declared he heard the bells ringing. It was autosuggestion, but through that suggestion his sense of hearing had actually informed his brain of sounds that were not—had lied to him, as it were.

A CHECK TO RHEUMATISM

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Build Up the Blood and Overcome the Rheumatic Poisons.

Rheumatism defies any treatment that does not build up and purify the blood. The poisons of rheumatism are in the blood and it is only through the blood that the disease can be fought successfully.

Unless the blood is weak and impure, rheumatism cannot get a foothold. When it does the thin and impure blood is not strong enough to overcome the poisons alone. It must be strengthened and purified. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best blood-building medicine you can take. They make new blood with every dose and promptly check further progress of the disease. They make the blood so pure and strong that not the least trace of rheumatism remains.

Mr. A. Hamann, a farmer on R. F. D. No. 2, Eldridge, Iowa, says:

"I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People for indigestion and rheumatism from which I suffered for over six years. As these attacks came on every spring, I think they were caused by impure blood. The rheumatism was always more severe in my ankles and knees and especially in my arms, when I had been husking corn or working hard. The pains were so severe that I could hardly sleep at night. I used liniments of many kinds, but they didn't do more than drive the pain to some other part of the body and I did not get any relief from the doctor's medicine.

"When I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in our weekly paper I made up my mind to try a medicine that had actually cured some one else. A few boxes cured me and I think so much of the pills that I keep them in the house to use as a tonic. My wife finds them strengthening and we think the pills are the best medicine for the blood."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the blood's greatest aid in overcoming rheumatism, headaches, anæmia, chlorosis, and after-effects of the grip and fevers.

A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes, $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Adv.

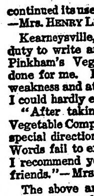
SUFFERED EVERYTHING

For Fourteen Years. Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



Elgin, Ill.—"After fourteen years of suffering everything from female complaints, I am at last restored to health.

"I employed the best doctors and even went to the hospital for treatment and was told there was no help for me. But while taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to improve and I continued its use until I was made well."—Mrs. HENRY LEISEBERG, 743 Adams St.

Kearneysville, W. Va.—"I feel it my duty to write and say what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered from female weakness and at times felt so miserable I could hardly endure being on my feet.

"After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and following your special directions, my trouble is gone. Words fail to express my thankfulness. I recommend your medicine to all my friends."—Mrs. G. B. WHITTINGTON.

The above are only two of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which show clearly what great things Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound does for those who suffer from woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

JOHN DELAITTRE DEAD.

Octogenarian Capitalist, Lumberman and Former Mayor.

Minneapolis. — John De Laittre, the late president of the Farmers and Mechanics' Savings bank and the Bovey-De Laittre Lumber company, and a emmber of the civic commission, who was mayor of Minneapolis in 1877, is dead at his home, 122 West Franklin avenue. He had passed his eightieth year, but was an active figure in the financial district of Minneapolis up to Monday, when he last visited his office.

For forty-seven years Mr. De Laittre had been identified with the growth of Minneapolis. He was appointed prison inspector in 1879 by Governor John S. Pillsbury and reappointed by Governor Pillsbury and by Governor Hubbard, serving seven years in all. He was a member of the commission that built the new state capitol, having been appointed by Governor Knute Nelson, and of the commission that built the city hall and courthouse in Minneapolis. For many years he had attended services in Plymouth church.

TWO LIVES LOST.

Salesman Is Killed By Train and Wife Falls Dead.

Owatonna. — Thomas Loughlin, a Waseca traveling man, met a tragic death at Medford, near here, and his wife died thirty minutes later from shock. He was at Medford village and went to the station to board a late passenger train. Medford has no agent after 6 p. m. and passengers are obliged to stand on the platform and signal the train for themselves.

Loughlin had two heavy grips, but managed to swing them aboard. As the train neared Owatonna, a member of the crew going through the train, noticed the grips lying on the platform of the car, and attempted to find the owner. Word was sent to Medford, and Loughlin's body was found on the tracks, with his legs almost severed from his body. He was still alive, but died in a short time. A telegram was sent to his wife at Waseca and she tropped dead.

SEED CORN CAMPAIGN.

Week Set Aside For Picking Best of Crop.

Minneapolis. — The so-called seed corn week is on and from now until Saturday night Minnesota farmers will be importuned to select their seed corn for planting in the spring. The governor's proclamation setting aside a seed corn week was issued as a result of the difficulty so often felt in past years in the selection of proper seed.

The following hints on the selection of seed corn have been issued in circular form by the extension division of the College of Agriculture:

1. Select mature and well-ripened ears; this is essential.
2. Avoid all large ears; they always ripen late, and select ears that are of normal size.
3. See that the rows of corn are straight on the cob.

HORSE CHARGES CROWD.

Twenty-six Persons Slightly Injured at Crookston, Minn., Fair.

Crookston.—A repetition of the Minnesota state fair accident, when a runaway horse dashed through a crowd, occurred on the fair race track here. A running horse became unmanageable and tore through the crowd, knocking down men, women and children and tipping over one baby carriage. The horse went through the crowd, knocking down and bruising twenty-six persons, but miraculously no one was badly hurt.

Student's Roll Shrinks.

Minneapolis.—There was a net loss of three hundred students at the University of Minnesota this year. The loss is accounted for by the fact that the enrollment was made up two weeks earlier this year than last year. The extension department of the university has also taken many students who otherwise would have been regularly registered.

Omaha Train Kills Woman.

Pipestone. — Annie Erickson, 55 years old, was run over and killed by an Omaha freight train at Slayton. The woman started across the track within four car lengths of the engine. The whistle was blown, but Mrs. Erickson was deaf and did not hear the warning. She was thrown some distance and died half an hour later.

Moorhead Schools Prosper.

Moorhead.—The Moorhead high school opens the year with an enrollment of 156 pupils. This is an increase in four years of almost 100 per cent. The manual training department has been enlarged and the work extended into the high school. Domestic science has been introduced and an additional high school instructor employed. Ira W. Slingsby, who made a record in Fargo college as an all-round athlete, has charge of the high school athletics and is starting the season well.

DULUTH STRIKERS FIRM.

Those Who Have to Work are Not Members.

Duluth, Minnesota.—The street car strike situation here remains unchanged except that more cars were running and more people were patronizing them. Railroads have taken off their accommodation trains. No disorder was reported.

Manager Warren of the car company said:

"Everything is coming our way. Four more men have let the ranks of the strikers and have returned to work, three taking out cars and the other to take out a car tomorrow."

Striking car men deny these assertions, claiming that the men so far returned to work are not members of their union.

R. Orr, treasurer of the International Car Men's union said that the strikers are drawing $5 a week, which, he said, would be given them indefinitely.

COUNT IS DELAYED.

WISCONSIN VISITOR TELLS OF LONG WAIT FOR RETURNS.

Minneapolis. — The new second choice provisions in the Wisconsin primary election law, applying to all State and County offices, are said to have retarded woefully announcement of results of the Sept. 3 primaries. The State had its first experience with the second choice feature of its primary law 13 days ago. To date not a single definite result of the recent elections has been announced, owing, it is said, to the complications due to the second choice clause. Clarence Culbertson, a lawyer of Stanley, Wis., former member of the Legislature of that State, in Minneapolis, said that it would be another ten days before accurate totals could be looked for.

SHOOTS SISTER-IN-LAW.

W. C. Schmidt Then Takes Own Life in Frenzy.

Minneapolis, Sept. 17.—William C. Schmidt, operator in a moving picture house shot and killed his sister-in-law, Mrs. Bertha Lillie, during a quarrel in St. Paul, and then went into his own apartments and took his own life.

Schmidt is said to have been estranged from his wife for some time and a warrant was in the hands of the police for his arrest on a charge of assault and battery, made by his wife.

BIG OATS YIELDS.

Wheat is Averaging About Twenty-five Bushels.

Marshall.—Andrew Kelson of Custer township threshed twenty-five acres of oats, receiving 2,750 bushels. The Weldauer brothers threshed 2,168 bushels of oats in a half day for John Ohde. Wheat is averaging about twenty-five bushels and all grain is of good quality. The threshing is not yet half done. Plowing is behind and late, owing to the wet August.

First Mass Said.

Stillwater. — Last Sunday morning, afternoon and evening, in St Mary's Catholic parish, first solemn mass was celebrated by Rev. Lambert Weckworth, who had been ordained as priest of the parish two weeks before. Father Weckworth was born and reared in Stillwater and was educated at the parochial school of the parish. During the mass, Rev. Lambert Weckworth was assisted by Rev. Paulin Wiesner of St. Paul, former priest of the parish, and by Rev Innocent Gertkin, music professor at St. John's university.

Will Have Third Ticket.

Minneapolis.—The National Minnesota Progressive party will have third state ticket in the field, at least so far as the governorship is concerned Hugh T. Halbert, chairman of that party, said: "It is evident that Governor Eberhart has been nominated Our committee will hold a meeting Friday night, when a Progressive candidate for governor will be decided upon.

Girl Fatally Burned.

St Paul.—Wholly covered from head to foot with blazing gasoline when a stove in her home exploded, Sarah Hirshorn, 6 years old, 318 Tex as avenue, was so badly burned that physicians believe she will die.

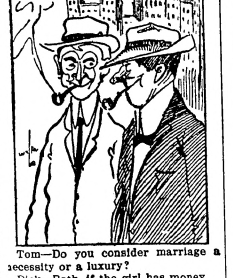
State Federation Meeting.

Dodge Center. — The annual convention of the State Federation of Woman's Clubs is on in Dodge Center

Pleads Cause of Farm Woman.

Dodge Center.—"Farm women work much harder than do city women," said Prof. A. D. Wilson of the state agricultural school at the federation conference on country life. "She has no sewer, no city water, no steam heat—nothing which makes house keeping easy. Then she usually has a poultry farm. No wonder she has little time for self-culture or for making herself beautiful, the lack of time for which makes her looked down upon by the town woman."

HIS IDEA.



Tom—Do you consider marriage a necessity or a luxury?

Dick—Both, if the girl has money.

ECZEMA ON FACE AND SCALP

4400 Utica St., Denver, Colo.—"My eczema came first with pimples and a rash on my face, then on my scalp, ears and neck. It itched so bad that I could not sleep. I was a mass of sores and my eyes were so I could not see out of them. It broke my heart to look at my face. Every bit of skin came off where the disease was. I suffered awful between the burning and itching, and whatever part of my body it was on would be swollen. I treated for three months and would get better for a week, and then I would be as bad as ever.

"I saw in the paper about Cuticura, so I sent and got some Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I had the eczema for five months before I began to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment, but I got well in a short time after I started to use them. It is a sure cure as I have not been troubled with it since. You ought to see my face now. I have such a nice complexion, as soft as a baby's." (Signed) Mrs. Mary Glendinning, Dec. 23, 1911.

GENUINE
DURHAM
Smoking Tobacco
W. T. BLACKWELL
SMOKING TOBACCO

The story of a muslin sack

THE real wonder-story of the tobacco that is smoked by more millions of men than all other high-grade tobaccos combined—

GENUINE "BULL" DURHAM SMOKING TOBACCO

Forty "rollings" in each 5c muslin sack

In quaint old Durham, North Carolina—that's where the story starts.

That's where those golden leaves first grew in the sunny fields of Greene's farm. That's where they first filled those simple muslin sacks with good, sweet, native tobacco—fifty-two years ago.

No thought then of fancy packages—nor of "processes" for improving on Nature.

Just surprisingly good tobacco! That was what they had discovered—that was what interested those critical Southern smokers who gave a rousing welcome to "Bull" Durham as the greatest tobacco they had ever tasted.

And then the soldiers came. They came—and smoked—and were captured!

Scattering to their homes all over the nation they carried the fame of this wonderful smoke.

Wasn't that Durham postmaster busy with letters from up and down the land asking how to get more of that "Bull" Durham!

And—for over half a century, just because it's so downright good—it's been earning and winning and holding new friends, both among pipe and cigarette smokers, faster than any other tobacco ever grown.

Faster! Twenty-two million pounds—352,000,000 packages—were sold and smoked last year! Yet this was merely the normal growth over the year before.

That sack might have been displaced by a fancy box. But the increasing millions of smokers who have an affection for this plain, convenient, muslin cover have shown that they want the value where it belongs—in the tobacco. You can't smoke the cover, and you can't get better quality for pipe or cigarette in the fanciest of packages.

"Bull" Durham has stood the long test. Its purity, its natural, undoctored goodness as a smoke, have held and splendidly multiplied its friends—have won for it the leadership over all the tobaccos of the world.

Be a booster—not a knocker.

"Peevish Collins" the Minneapolis Journal calls him; but he got to be a candidate for governor, anyway.

One scheme of the county seat ring got its quietus last week, and a little later on some more of their hopes may go glimmering.

There isn't any of them more "progressive" than P. M. ringdal, the democratic nominee for governor. In this, we speak from personal knowledge, not from hearsay.

The Panama canal will be finished two years sooner than was expected, and is to be opened to the world next fall. Which goes to show that Uncle Sam can move along some when there is really occasion to hurry.

Judge C. M. Start, justice of the supreme court, was re-nominated at the primaries, but has declined to run because he doesn't think he got a big enough vote. Too bad the people wasted their energy marking their ballots for him.

Through failure of the voters to attend the primary election, and the fact that very few of those who did attend registered their second choice vote, Eberhart is again the Republican nominee for governor. Then the progressive "committee of fifty" met and nominated P. V. Collins. Truly, P. M. Ringdal, the Democratic nominee, is fortunate.

In putting a new state ticket in the field in this and other states, the Roosevelt managers explain that he has insisted upon such action on the grounds that not to do so, where the old bosses had secured the nomination of the machine favorites, would be simply compromising with the forces of corruption and attempting to win votes at the expense of the progressive principles. In other words, Roosevelt does not want to be president again if it permits even the suspicion of dickering with politicians of the Eberhart type.

For Representative.

(Paid adv. $5.00. Published in behalf of and authorized by Walther Anderson.)

I wish to announce to the voters of the 63rd Legislative District that I am a candidate for the office of Representative on the Republican ticket.

If intrusted with the duties of this office it will be my aim to institute and support progressive measures, and I pledge myself to be ever mindful of the welfare of this district and our state at large.

Yours Sincerely,
WALTHER ANDERSON.

Card of Thanks.

I desire to take this opportunity and this means of thanking all of my friends for the excellent vote given me at the primary election.

This vote convinces me that the people of Marshall County are well satisfied with my work as Probate Judge and that this is one instance wherein honesty and efficiency are appreciated.

Thanking you for past favors, I remain,

Very truly yours,
PETER H. HOLM.

NOVELTY IN BOATS.

A glass bottomed boat now building at Camden, New Jersey, for use in scientific expeditions, is a distinct novelty. It is sixty feet long and has a bottom, from stem to stern, of plate glass fully an inch thick. A submarine radio light will illuminate the ocean depths beneath, and in addition there are to be incandescent lamps which can be lowered for more articular observations. It is expected that the craft will be useful in examining wrecks; meanwhile it is to be used this winter for marine exploration in the Gulf of Mexico and about the Bahama Islands. It may point the way for further development of submarine vessels, making them useful in peace as well as war.

ONCE PARTS OF A METEOR

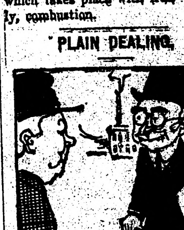
Component Parts of Diamonds Have Thus Been Traced by Investigating Scientists.

It is perhaps not generally known that the "blue stuff" in which diamonds are found in South America is the disintegrates and disorganized mass of vast meteor that once fell from the sky. A decomposed meteor of immense size is reported to have been found in Arizona. It contains iron, nickel, platinum and diamonds. It is supposed to have been, before it decomposed, 500 feet in diameter and to have weighed several hundred million tons. They may be fragments of comets and finding themselves under the influence of the attraction of gravitation of our earth they fell upon it.

The theory is that their speed may be as high as forty or fifty miles a second. If it be a strong meteor it may be crushed into a dust by the air pressure in front of it. Even if of iron it may be torn into fragments as if an explosion had occurred in front. If, however, it is a rounded piece of iron like this lump, then it would take a tremendous pressure of air to crush it, and there is no doubt whatever that most iron meteors of rounded form would escape fracture unless they were moving at the very highest speeds.

At such speeds the air pressure developed in front of them may blow them to pieces, but if they are moving, say one-third as fast, they may, and probably will, survive unless they succumb to another action, which takes place with iron—namely, combustion.

PLAIN DEALING.



Reformer (earnestly)—Let's have an honest election.

Politician—That's what I say. Let's have it all fair and square, straight up and down. Let's don't expect any votes we don't pay for, and let's don't pay for any we don't get.

KEEPING UP WITH TIME.

The city chap who had hired out as extra farm hand during the harvest was not quite able to respond to the 4 o'clock pounding on his bedroom door the first morning as promptly as he had anticipated. He lingered with the pillows for a quarter of an hour past the appointed time and then dragged himself out, and by half-past 4 he was stumbling across the field where the old farmer was hard at work.

"Fine morning," said the newcomer briskly.

The old fellow looked up sourly.

"Yes," he grunted; "it was."—Lippincott's.

CONSIDERABLY CHEERED.

"Mr. Muggs, is your wife out of town.

"No. A man just now paid me $10 he owed me. That's why I look so happy."

SQUEEZED.

"I tell you, I was in a tight place this morning."

"What was the matter?"

"My wife wanted all my loose change."

AN EXPERT.

"I've given that ex-policeman a job in my orchard."

"Grafting the apple trees, I suppose?"—New York World.

HIS JOB.

"He's one of our leading citizens."

"That so? What does he do?"

"He leads the glee club at all political mass meetings."

INEVITABLE CONCLUSION.

"There is the day breaking!"

"Then I'll bet it is something in China."

The heavy storm last week created a flood in the Thief river sufficient to wash out the dam ahead of the big Stevens dredge and leave the machine stranded. Foreman John Chapman and his crew got busy rebuilding the dam but the dredge was idle for two days and a half.

Ed Ellingson and Erick Kittutson came in from Gatzke yesterday and brought help enough along with them to keep their threshing rig humming until freezing up time. They have been home resting up during the spell of bad weather which stopped all threshing operatsons.

On Thursday evening Harry Heinze, son of C. E. Heinze, had [illegible] accident that might have ended seriously. He was on his way home riding a hayrake and met an automobile in which O. A. Matson and B. L. Backe were returning from a hunting trip. The horse attached to the hayrake got frightened some and the wheel of the rake struck a large rock in the road, breaking the wheel and throwing the boy from the rake. The horse got home home in a hurry and the boy escaped without injury.

For Judge of Probate

(Adv., paid by H. O. Berve.)

I am a non-partizan candidate for Judge of Probate for Marshall County. I am a resident of the eastern part of the county, where I am now engaged in farming, but have been a teacher in the schools of this county for nine years.

On account of the backward condition of farm work this year, I shall not be able to make any extensive personal campaign. For that reason I want to here state that, if elected, I shall discharge the duties of the office fairly and impartially, giving all possible assistance to those who may have any business to transact in the probate court. As a non-partizan candidate, I shall appreciate and be thankful for the support and vote of all political parties.

Yours truly,

SEVERAL HURT IN I. W. W. RIOT

TWO POLICEMEN STABBED AND ONE BEATEN—MILL WORKERS ARE INJURED.

DEMONSTRATION PARADE

Fight Ensues When Officers Attempt to Stop It—24-Hour Protest Strike—More Trouble.

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 1.—A battle with knives and clubs between Industrial Workers of the World and the police, in which two officers were stabbed, one severely beaten and several rioters injured, occurred on one of the principal business streets of Lawrence.

The fight began when the police tried to stop an informal parade of textile operatives preceding a demonstration in honor of Anna Lopizzo and John Ramy, who were killed during last winter's strike riots.

Further trouble is feared by the police when the order for a general strike of 24 hours, which has been called by the Industrial Workers, goes into effect. It is intended as a protest against the imprisonment of Joseph J. Ettor, Arturo Giovannitti, I. W. W. leaders, and Joseph Caruso, a mill worker. These men have just been placed on trial in Salem in connection with Miss Lopizzo's death.

Expect Widespread Effect.

The general strike order is expected by the Industrial Workers' leaders to have a widespread effect. In many other New England manufacturing centers leaders of the organization say they are waiting for Lawrence workers to go out.

Wm. D. Haywood, one of the national organizers, issued an appeal on Boston Common two weeks ago for Workers all over the world to stop work as a mark of protest. Telegrams are said to have been received from various parts of the country promising to answer the call.

After the parade ended in front of the Industrial Workers' headquarters, there were addresses by various speakers in different languages.

The following telegram was sent to Paris, France, by the Franco-Belgian branch of the Industrial Workers:

"Paris, France, General Confederation Labor:

"General strike begun. Monster demonstration Caruso, Ettor, Giovannitti. We count on international aid. Spread news everywhere. (Signed) Langlet."

Langlet is one of the Franco-Belgian leaders.

Trial of Labor Leaders.

Salem, Mass., Sept. 30.—Joseph H. J. Ettor, a former Pennsylvania iron worker, and Arturo Giovannitti, editor of a New York Italian newspaper, who for eight months have been held without bail on charges of being accessories to the murder of Anna Lopizzo, a Lawrence mill striker, are facing their accusers in the Essex county superior court here. At the same time Joseph Caruso, who is alleged to be one of the leaders of the Industrial Workers of the World, influenced to do the actual killing, was placed on trial. Ettor and Giovannitti were prominent figures in the great Lawrence textile strike last winter. Caruso was a striker.

Trouble Feared Today.

Reports that a body of Lawrence mill operatives, who will refuse to work as an expression of loyalty to the imprisoned leaders, were planning to march to Salem, have resulted in preparations being made to prevent any riotous demonstration.

A notable array of legal talent has been assembled to defend the labor leaders and behind them is a defense fund of $50,000, contributed by members of the Industrial Workers.

Riots in Four Cities.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 1.—Violence marked the beginning of the 24-hour strike demonstration which the Industrial Workers of the World called in four Massachusetts manufacturing cities as a protest against the imprisonment of two of their leaders. Demonstrations, ranging from parades to serious rioting, occurred in Lawrence, Lynn, Haverhill and Quincy, where it is estimated that 15,000 workers were out.

Forest Fires Raging.

Seattle, Oct. 1.—A terrific forest fire in the eastern part of King county is threatening the towns of Snoqualmie and Fall City, the south camps of of the Pacific Lumber & Timber company of Seattle and the power lines of the Puget Sound Traction, Lige & Power Co., which operates streetcar lines in Seattle and Tacoma.

United States Senator Newlands of Nevada is presiding over the deliberations of the national irrigation congress now in session in Salt Lake City.

TO HAVE DISTINCTIVE POSTAGE

GOVERNMENT TO PRINT UNIQUE STAMPS FOR PARCELS POST.

So Different as To Avert Any Possible Confusion With the Ordinary Postage.

Washington, Oct. 1. — Arrangements have been made by Postmaster General Hitchcock for the engraving and manufacture of stamps, unique in size and novel in design, for exclusive use in the forwarding of packages by the parcels post. The special parcels post stamps will be so distinctive as to avert any possible confusion with ordinary stamps which cannot be used for this purpose.

The new issue will be in three series of designs. The first will illustrate modern methods of transporting mail, the stamp showing the mail car on a railway train; another on ocean mail steamship; a third, an automobile now used in the postal service; and a fourth, the despatch of mail by aeroplane.

The second series will show at work in their several environments, the four great classes of postal employes—postoffice clerks, railway mail clerks, city letter carriers and rural delivery carriers.

The third series will represent four industrial schools showing the principal sources of the products that probably will be transported extensively by parcels post.

The stamps will be ready for distribution Dec. 10 in order that the 60,000 postoffices may be supplied with them before the law becomes effective Jan. 1.

CRIPPLE TO GIVE LEG.

Generous Offer Accepted for Skin-Grafting.

Gary, Ind., Oct. 1.—When William Rugh appears again at his newspaper stand he will be supported by two crutches instead of one. When Miss Ethel Smith is able to go home from the Gary general hospital, she will have an excellent chance to get well.

Both these conditions will be the result of the generous offer of the 41-year-old newsboy to submit to an operation which will remove his left leg, that live skin may be obtained to graft upon the body and legs of Miss Smith. The girl was burned while riding on a motorcycle recently.

Rugh was placed upon the operating table Sunday. In an adjoining surgery, doctors prepared Miss Smith for the delicate process of grafting live skin upon the places that were burned.

Rugh went happily about his business of selling papers at Sixth avenue and Broadway Saturday night. He is crippled by the shortness of the leg which the surgeons are to take from him and he uses one crutch in walking about the news stands.

"I'll get another crutch and get along nearly as well," Rugh said.

"But you'll be in the hospital some time after the operation and you'll probably suffer a lot," was suggested by one of his customers.

"Yes," smiled Rugh, "but I'll be saving a girl's life, and there's a lot of satisfaction in knowing that."

Schools May Bar Football.

St. Joseph, Sept. 30.—On account of the death of Hugo Geil of Oregon, Me., fatally injured in the game between St. Joseph and Oregon high schools at Oregon Saturday, an agitation against the game was started in northwest Missouri. The game Saturday was the first Oregon had played in three years. Geil was 17 years old, captain and tackle of his team.

Chicago Car Strike Threatens.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Possibility of a street car strike began to be imminent in Chicago again when Judge Kickham Scanlan, one of the arbitrators selected by the committee of the men and the employers several weeks ago, resigned, stating that he saw no possibility of completing the board of arbitration. Judge Scanlan and H. B. Fleming, president of the Chicago City Railway company, were the arbiters chosen with the instructions to agree on a third. Judge Scanlan refused to accept any suggested by the men.

HOME RULE HAS BEEN PROTESTED

THOUSANDS GATHER AT BELFAST WHERE COVENANT IS SIGNED.

ENTHUSIASM IS GREAT.

More Shown Than Displayed at 1892 Convention—Talk of Armed Resistance.

Belfast, Sept. 30.—The singing of the national anthem by an audience of 3,000 persons, comprising everybody representative of Belfast's great industrial, mercantile, civil and religious community, brought to a close a great anti-home rule meeting in Ulster hall, amid a fervor which was not equalled even by the anti-home rule convention of 1892. The meeting renewed the adoption of the resolution passed at that convention protesting against a home rule parliament for Ireland.

The supreme dramatic moment of the memorable gathering was the unfurling and presentation to Sir Edward Carson, the chief propagandist against home rule, of the flag carried by King William at the battle of the Doyne. The flag was greeted with frenzied cheers, contrary to expectations.

No Resistance Hinted.

No new pronouncement of unionist policy was made at the meeting. In comparison with the demonstrations held elsewhere during the last week, the absence of talk of armed resistance was noticeable. Also there was less display of the military spirit in Belfast. The day, however, gave a remarkable indication of Ulster's determination not to accept home rule, expressed in an orderly and enthusiastic manner, which can hardly fail to provide the government with food for serious reflection.

The Weekly Outlook made the startling announcement that one-third of the officers in the British army are Irishmen; that over 90 per cent are union protestants, and that they are now considering how to resign their commissions in order to lead Ulster in army against the home rule.

People Quickly Crowd Hall.

When the doors of Ulster hall were opened there was a wild rush of ticket holders who speedily filled the seats.

There was a dramatic scene when Sir Edward Carson arose to speak. The entire audience stood and cheered him. Then Colonel Wallace, representing the orangemen, advanced to the platform and presented to Sir Edward Carson the flag which was carried to the front by King William at the battle of the Boyne. In making the presentation Colonel Wallace announced:

"This flag will be borne before Carson at the signing of the covenant."

Audience Cheers Wildly.

The audience broke into a storm of cheering which lasted several minutes. Sir Edward Carson replied to Colonel Wallace:

"I accept this flag as a token of victory for civil and religious liberty. I hand it back to you and ask you to keep it as a sacred trust until we have killed the conspiracy that confronts us."

A silver casket containing the scroll of the covenant and a silver pen with which he was to sign it were accepted by Sir Edward, who then proceeded with his speech.

The resolution denouncing home rule for Ireland was carried by acclamation.

20,000 People Greet Carson.

When Sir Edward Carson stepped out to address the overflow meeting he found the street below a compact mass of cheering people, estimated to number 20,000.

Sir Edward, in concluding his speech, said:

"We wish peace, but not at any price."

Hutchinson to Celebrate.

Minneapolis, Sept. 30.—Portraits of Indians who took leading parts in the Sioux outbreak of 1862 will be displayed in Hutchinson, Minn., Monday and Tuesday, when the fiftieth anniversary of the Indian attack on that village will be observed. The portraits are from the collection painted by H. H. Cross, which are owned by T. B. Walker.

Police Chief Is Discharged.

Koekuk, Ia., Sept. 30.—H. M. Schevers, chief of police, was discharged by the commission of public safety as a result of an investigation begun several weeks ago. Sensational charges against the police department were filed by the ministerial association.

DR. L. O. HOWARD

Dr. Howard, government entomologist, has returned to Washington from Europe, having induced England, Belgium and Holland to agree to put into operation a system of government inspection of plants.

CONDITIONS BEST IN YEARS

INDUSTRIAL OPERATIONS MOVING BRISKLY.

Trade in Iron and Steel Breaking Records—Labor Scarce.

New York, Sept. 30.—Bradstreet's says:

Buying in person, by mail or through the medium of road salesmen continues active in various lines of distributive trade. Shipments on orders previously booked are going forward in volume, and one of the most significant features of the general situation is the insistent call for prompt deliveries.

In a host of lines one hears the expression that conditions as regards sales are better than for some years past.

The shortage of cars is becoming more noteworthy and some coal mines in the west have been compelled to temporarily cease operations until cars can be obtained. Industrial operations are moving along at a brisk rate. Steel plants are well sold ahead, and as a general rule no more orders can be taken for delivery this year. Buying of bars for 1913 is going forward, steel making pig irons are higher, additional furnaces are preparing to go into blast, buying of nails is a feature, car plants are well sold up and coke is very active, with future business in plates and structural shapes presenting the quietest aspects of an exceptionally strong situation.

Labor Scant.

Labor continues in very scant supply. Collections range from fair to good, although payments from the south are still slow, chiefly because of wet weather and the lateness of the cotton crop.

R. G. Dun and company's weekly review of trade says:

Proof accumulates on every hand of a developing national prosperity, broad, wholesome and quite independent of controversial issues that usually breed uncertainty and hesitation.

In the iron and steel trade the pressure in the market for deliveries is reflected in the sharp demand for pig iron this week, quotations tending higher and the market as a whole being in a very strong position. Orders continue to come in freely and the mills are provided practically to the close of the year.

Aviator Furnishes a Thrill.

Wahpeton, N. D., Sept. 30.—A sensational glide from an elevation of 1,000 feet to earth with a crippled biplane furnished a thrill not looked for when Aviator Glenn L. Martin of Los Angeles met with a mishap while in the air. Martin was giving an exhibition before a crowd of 5,000 people at the Richmland county fair. He had been in the air 15 minutes when he lost control of his biplane. Not two minutes before he had completed a vertical spiral drop from an altitude of 5,000 feet and was preparing to land when a pulley fastened, controlling the management of the steering planes, broke.

Weideman Case to Jury.

Whitehall, Wis., Sept. 30.—The case of Mrs. Charles Weideman, charged with the murder of her 70 year old husband at Independence, Wis., last April, has been given to the jury. Mrs. Weideman told her story in her own behalf on the stand. She said that on the day of the alleged murder that she found her husband's body lying on the cellar floor, when she went there on an errand. She did not realize that he was dead, but thought him only seriously injured.

Woodman Hearing Is Ended.

Des Moines, Sept. 30.—The Modern Woodmen hearing which has been in progress in the Polk county district court for nearly two weeks has been concluded and Judge Bradshaw took the case under advisement to determine whether an injunction should be issued restraining the head camp from enforcing the increased rates. His decision probably will not be announced for several days. Attorneys for the insurgent wing of the Modern Woodmen made a strong fight on the issues involved.

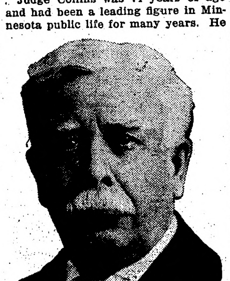
JUDGE L. W. COLLINS IS DEAD

WAS ON MINNESOTA SUPREME BENCH FOR 17 YEARS.

Man of National Note in G. A. R. Circles—Stricken Returning From Meet At Los Angeles.

Minneapolis.—Judge Loren W. Collins, who had resigned as a justice of the Minnesota state supreme court in 1904 after seventeen years' service and who was one of the best-known members of the Minnesota bar and a man of national note in G. A. R. matters, is dead, following an attack of heart trouble with which he was seized at San Francisco, Sept. 18, while returning home from the national encampment of the G. A. R. at Los Angeles.

Judge Collins was 74 years of age and had been a leading figure in Minnesota public life for many years. He was a candidate for the republican nomination for governor in 1904. He declined an appointment to the United State senate to succeed the late C. K. Davis. Before his appointment to the supreme bench he served as district judge in the seventh district. He was mayor of St. Cloud, Minn., for four years and was a member of the legislature thirty years ago. He had a notable record in the civil war. He enlisted as a private in the Seventh Minnesota volunteers and came out of the army a brevet captain at the close of the war. He served as military chief-of-police at St. Louis during the troublous times when the Missouri metropolis was under military rule.



Judge L. W. Collins.

G. A. R. Leader Many Years.

Judge Collins had been for many years active in the affairs of the Loyal Legion and G. A. R. From June, 1908, to June, 1909, he was commander of the state G. A. R. and at the time of his death he was a member of the national executive committee of the G. A. R., a body of seven men that guides the commander-in-chief in his duties, and had served on the committee under six commanders-in-chief.

In this capacity he took an important part in the work of the recent national encampment at Los Angeles. He left Minneapolis for the coast city Sept. 2 with former Commander-in-chief Eli Torrance and other leading Grand Army men of Minnesota. On his way home he visited San Francisco, and it was there that he was stricken on Sept. 18 with the heart attack which ultimately proved fatal.

Judge Collins married Ella M. Stewart at Berlin, Wis., Sept. 4, 1878. His wife died in 1894.

Was 74 Years Old.

Judge Collins was born Aug. 7, 1838, at Lowell, Mass., and was able to trace his ancestry back to the beginnings of New England. In 1854 his father moved with his family to Eden Prairie, Minn. The young man for a time was a school teacher. He began to study law in 1859, and in 1861 enlisted in Company F, Seventh Minnesota volunteers. Until the fall of 1863 the regiment took part in the Minnesota Indian campaigns and then was ordered south, where Judge Collins saw service in the battles of Nashville, Spanish Fort, Tupelo and others.

Child Poisoned by Matches.

Brainerd.—Playing with matches, Rosella, the two and one-half year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Magnan of St. Mathias, near Brainerd, sucked and absorbed the poison and died.

CAR SERVICE ORDERED.

Lack of Service Not for Want of Protection.

Duluth, Sept. 26.—Under an order of the district court the Duluth Street Railway company must resume full and adequate street car service. Judge Homer B. Dibell filed his decision in the city's mandamus suit against the street railway company to force a resumption of the old service such as was offered prior to the strike.

MINN. APPOINTMENTS.

Northern German Conference of the Methodist Church.

Menomonie, Wis.—The Northern German conference of the Methodist Episcopal church finished its work here. Bishop Quayle ordained Rev. G. A. Wolff as deacon and Rev. Gerd Bruns as elder. The bishop was assisted by the board of conference examiners and the superannuates.

Memorial services were held for Rev. Christian Nachtrieb of Minneapolis, Rev. Mr. Singenstrue of Morristown, Rev. H. Ziegler of Warrenton, Mo., and Dr. J. F. Froeschle of St. Paul.

The appointments for the ensuing year are: Minneapolis District: C. H. Sauter, superintendent; Ada and Averill, W. J. Grummelin; Arlington, F. Brinkman; Brownton, William G. Baab; Echo and Johnsonville, F. C. Schulz; Fairfax, J. Berger; Gardena and Movina, G. H. Bruns; Jordan, J. G. Sohm; Le Sueur, H. A. Potthoff; Mankato, G. A. Rabe; Minneapolis, Central church, C. L. Lehnert; First and Greenwood, A. Peik; North church, G. Raihle; Montrose, W. G. Boemmels; Morgan, A. F. W. Krienke; Morris, C. Schoenheider; New Ulm, C. G. Hohn; Sleepy Eye, J. Schneider; Springfield, A. Biebighaeuser; Valley City, C. F. Bublitz.

St. Paul District: J. J. Hoffmann, superintendent; Albert Lea, Herman Netwig; Bertha, A. G. Wolff; Blooming Grove, D. Pfaff; Cannon River, R. J. Simon; Chippewa Falls, W. H. Koenig; Duluth, W. A. Weiss; Faribault, F. E. Meierbachtol; Hokah, C. A. Thiel; Lake City, E. P. Christ; Menomonie, Carl Krueger; Owatonna, H. Clement; Pepin, H. E. Young; Princeton, W. C. Achterkirch; Red Wing, L. W. Diedrich; Rochester and Deer Park, H. Grosse; Salem, E. G. Meierbachtal; St. Paul, First church, C. F. Blume; St. Paul Park, W. E. Mahle; Rice street, G. Dosdall; West Side, A. H. Koerner; Washington, W. F. Koerner; Waseca, J. F. Steiner; Winona, W. F. Fritze.

NORTHWESTERN WRECK.

One Hurt When Mixed Train Jumps Track.

Winona.—While traveling at a speed of about forty miles an hour down a steep grade, the bare truck of a freight car, near the front of the Plainview branch of the regular mixed Northwestern train, became defective and derailed the car. It carried with it five other box cars and two passenger coaches and tore up the rails for fully 600 feet.

The engine and two box cars just behind it remained on the track, but three of the cars turned completely over and the passenger coaches were thrown at right angles with the roadbed. One passenger, Henry Engl of Elgin, was injured, but will probably recover.

Big Feeder for Coast Line.

Pipestone.—That officials of the Milwaukee road intend to make the southern Minnesota division one of the main routes for freight to the Pacific coast is no longer in doubt. For months gangs of men have been at work along the line west from Austin and the road has been placed in excellent shape for heavy traffic. At Jackson the roundhouse is to be enlarged by the addition of six new stalls. A new turntable will be put in and a new "Y" has just been built. New engines will also be brought to this division.

Finke to Be Opposed.

Pipestone.—In spite of the rumor that the republicans would have no fight in this legislative district if either Finke or Thorson were nominated at the primaries over Harrison White, it now develops that the prohibitionists are to carry the legislative fight to the polls in November and that Rev. H. N. Hanson will make an aggressive campaign against A. C. Finke, the republication nominee. Finke has been known as a prohibition republican, and it was generally thought his nomination would mean the withdrawal of Rev. Mr. Hanson.

Judge Collins Is Stricken.

Minneapolis. — Loren W. Collins, former judge of the state supreme court, G. A. R. veteran and one of the best known men in Minneapolis, is critically ill.

$25,000 for Inspection.

Minneapolis. — The city board of tax levy tentatively allowed an appropriation of $25,000 for the extension of medical inspection in the city schools.

Ginseng Farm Raided.

Mankato.—The second extensive theft of ginseng plants this week in this county was perpetrated in Garden City township, when Charles Peterson's ginseng farm was robbed of about $100 worth of roots. About $200 worth of plants were destroyed by being stepped on and broken. Tracks of a light wagon and the footprints of a small man were found. Mr. Peterson has notified the Ginseng Growers' association of the state and it will offer a reward of $300 for the apprehension of the thief.

IDEAL FOR THE FISHERMAN

Gunnison River, Colorado's Famous Stream, Has Reputation That Is World Wide.

Denver.—The Gunnison river flows, or rather leaps, down the western slope of Colorado and is famed for its trout. Enthusiastic anglers frequently journey there from England to whip its turbulent waters during the fishing season, as the trout in this ice cold stream are celebrated for their exquisite flavor, and for their fighting qualities as well.

This picturesque stream after flowing placidly through a beautiful broad valley, hemmed in by snow capped peaks, suddenly breaks its leash and plunges into a series of rapids and cascades where it enters the Black Canon at Sapinero, whose granite walls rise on either side to a perpendicular height of from two thousand to three thousand feet above the foaming stream. It continues its tortuous course through this chasm for upward of thirty miles before it emerges into another valley at State Bridge, three thousand feet lower than where it entered the canon.

In the Black Canon.

The trout fishing is along the upper half of the canon, which is traversed by a narrow gauge railroad. The lower half of the canon is impassable. Only three men ever made the trip through it. They were government engineers who were reconnoitering for a location for the Gunnison tunnel to irrigate the Uncompahgre Valley. Their strong raft was wrecked, their instruments and clothing were lost and they were rescued in an exhausted condition.

Below the canon so much alkali and soil are discharged into the stream by the irrigating ditches that trout cannot live in it, but suckers flourish there, often attaining a length of from eighteen to twenty inches. During the latter part of May the suckers go up the small tributaries to spawn. After spawning they return in schools, tail first, to the river. These small streams are rocky and swift, and if the fish did not slacken speed by swimming against the current they might be bruised against the rocks.

In the pools where the water was two or three feet deep the fish were so numerous that it was no uncommon occurrence to throw out three and four fish with each thrust of the fork. The fish were weak and sluggish after spawning and did not make much effort to get out of the way. The old woman brought out two washing tubs, a washboiler and a large dishpan, all of which were filled within half an hour with fish from twelve to eighteen inches in length, which she skinned and salted down for future use. She lamented that the fish were "a-gettin' skeercer every year."

"Why, at comin' down time three years ago me and my old man got nigh onto a wagon load in no time," she said.

TAKES BEAR IN BATHING

Maid in Silk Bathing Suit, When Dared to Take Bruin Along, Promptly Does So.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Miss Anna Fredericks, a comely beach girl, went swimming through the breakers at Venice accompanied by a half-grown cinnamon bear.

Miss Fredericks was one of the thousands of bathers along the ocean front She was clad in an attractive silk bathing suit and was accompanied by several friends, when R. I. Pierce of Pasadena strolled by, leading two half-grown cinnamon bears, which he secured in Northern California when the bears were only a few weeks old.

"I dare you to take one of the bears in swimming," said a friend to Miss Fredericks.

The young woman took the dare Her escort, after futile attempts at dissuasion, secured one of the bears. The little animal was quite tame and trotted down to the surf line with Miss Fredericks.

Thousands of beach visitors thronged the water front to watch the novel performance. At first the little bear snorted and fussed as the spray splashed over his nose, but finally, with a little grunt, he ducked into the breakers and followed the leash which Miss Fredericks carried.

96-Year-Old Man Buys His Tombstone

Albany, Mo.—Samuel Stewart, ninety-six years old, of Gara, this county, who has lived in the state seventy-two years, has purchased the stone to adorn his grave and excavated a mausoleum in a large rock near his home, giving instructions to his relatives that it serve as a receptacle for his coffin.

COLLAPSIBLE UMBRELLA

In Paris no walking costume is complete without the "Stick." One has just been invented that is convertible into a parasol. One would not dream that the stick could conceal such a large sunshade.

EASY TO FRESHEN UP SUIT

Touches of Trimming With the Requisite Cleaning, Will Make It as Good as New.

Perhaps you have a perfectly good suit that was fresh from the tailor's hands last season and which you will want to wear now, provided it can be freshened a bit and altered to conform to the mode of the present. Naturally, you will want this change made with as little expense as possible, for it is not, after all, a last year's costume?

At a glance you see that the coat is too short, the skirt too narrow and the collar and cuffs quite different from the newest patterns, and the question at once arises, "How can it be remodeled?"

The coat, requiring the most attention, we will attend to first.

Taffeta silk, or one of the many fancy linen braids, and new buttons will be all the trimming required. A new collar, either of the shawl or sailor variety, will do much to bring the coat up to date. The addition of a broad band around the bottom will give the required length.

By mitering the corners, braid four or six inches wide can easily be made into a square sailor collar and brought in a broad band over the shoulders and from there down the front of the coat. Cuffs of braid finish the coat trimming.

If braid is used on the coat carry out this effect on the skirt by opening the side seam half way from hem to waist line, and over this stitch the wide braid, allowing it to continue to the waist over the skirt.

With a band of braid around the bottom of the skirt this makes an effective trimming, especially if buttons matching those used on the coat are placed at intervals of four inches on the side band of braid.

A belt of braid or soft girdle of silk completes the remodeled suit, which will be found satisfactory in every way to the woman with a limited purse.

Feathers vs. Flowers.

The rage for feathers which has marked the summer millinery has given a serious setback to the artificial flower industry, and an attempt is to be made to introduce flower bedecked hats in the coming winter.

At the beginning of the season many attempts were made to popularize floral millinery fashions, but women insisted on having feathers or perky bows of ribbons for the adornment of their headwear. All kinds of beautiful blossoms were introduced in colors true to nature and in colors unknown to nature, with the object of luring women back to their old allegiance to the flower decked summer hat, but women would have none of them.

Feathers or nothing at all, that was the decision, and flowers were relegated to the top shelf.

Fascinating Color.

Plaited white maline make up into a collar that is positively fascinating. Incidentally, it is wondrous becoming. First you take a six-inch-wide strip of white tulle and "knife" it into plaits of infinitesimal depth. When you have a length long enough to set smoothly —in plaits—about the shoulders, you attach one side of it to the lower edge of a band of folded satin or velvet and upon the upper edge of that band, you put an inch and one-half broad plaiting of maline. Finally, you join the ends of the neck-band under a bow of velvet or satin. This neckpiece is lovely in black tulle over white tulle, in all black or white or in white with a black collar band. And it goes charmingly with any sort of simple little frock which has not a stock collar.

Setting Lace Insertion.

When lace insertion is set crosswise in a thin skirt the weight of the cloth below soon causes it to tear. This may be remedied by putting a piece of net a little wider than the insertion back of it. The net strengthens the insertion, but does not detract from its daintiness.

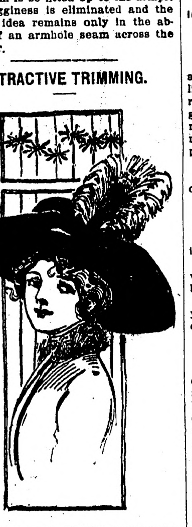
SLEEVES IN MANY SHAPES

No One Idea May Be Set Down as the Fashion Decree of the Season.

Sleeves are increasingly broader, but are in many cases put in full but flat into a small armhole and then are allowed to widen toward the bottom, ending in a wide cuff and fall of lace or net at the elbow. Or they are put into the armhole full, are adjusted to the inner arm by little tucks and are allowed to droop on the outer arm over a close-fitting lower section reaching to the hand.

The little oversleeves of coats or tunics are often cut in one with the shoulder, but the kimono sleeve really has lost prestige at last and is seen less than it was at the beginning of the season. When it is used the under-arm seam is so fitted up to the armpit that bagginess is eliminated and the kimono idea remains only in the absence of an armhole seam across the shoulder.

ATTRACTIVE TRIMMING.



All manner of odd trimmings are being placed upon the hats brought out for this autumn. While some of these garnishings are a bit outre, many of them are really attractive, as in the case with the shape in black velvet. On the low and rather wide crown is not an tom of trimming, but the flaring brim is turned flatly back, under an Egyptian fan plume of white ostrich spirals rooted in a pump bow of black velvet ribbon. A ruche of white ostrich flues, banding the throat, fastens under a black velvet chou.

Clever Idea.

"Necessity is the mother of invention," and with stockings so extravagantly sheer and therefore so frightfully expensive, one clever woman has devised a scheme whereby she always appears to be clad in the most daintily transparent black hosiery, whereas in reality she is wearing a dark London smoke colored stocking at about 35 cents a pair. The cleverness of this idea must be demonstrated before it can receive appreciation. Not only does the smoke color give the effect of extreme transparency, but it also suggests the daintiest of feet and ankles, minus the usual unattractive number of swollen veins and bumps that are so obtrusively apparent.

Transparent Guimpe.

If a girl feels that she absolutely must wear a transparent guimpe even though the day chance to be unseasonably cool, let her get a "chicken-skin" under guimpe. This contrivance is a fake neck of pale flesh tinted leather of a quality finer than the material used for the best of gloves, and really leads the casual observer to believe that the thinly-veiled neck is on view. Incidentally, the "chicken-skin" may prevent a case of pneumonia.

A BLESSING IN DISGUISE

Nervous Breakdown Is a Warning That You Must Heed to Avoid Something Worse.

Nervous exhaustion, or breakdown of the nerves, is more often a blessing than anything else. The nerves have rebelled and you should be thankful it is no worse than it is. Let it serve as a sharp warning to relieve the strain and to take a treatment that will build up your nerves.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a real nerve tonic. They supply plenty of nourishing red blood to the exhausted nerves and do not excite and urge them on to do work which they have already shown they cannot do. Medicines which whip on the tired nerves do more harm than no medicine at all. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People not only start in immediately to give relief but continue to strengthen the nerves until they are able to do their work once more.

Mrs. J. E. Udelle, whose address is Box 130, R. F. D. No. 1, Osseo, Minn., says: "I was so completely worn out from overwork and nervousness that I was unable to continue at my work as dressmaker. I was very weak and my back ached continually. My stomach was so weak that I could eat nothing but light food and even then I would have pains like cramps. Gas formed on my stomach. I was short of breath and had palpitation of the heart. I was in bed for three months. At Davenport, Iowa, I was under doctors' care but received only temporary relief so gave it up. I then used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. When I began using the pills I had no strength at all and had lost a great deal in weight. I did not have to take the pills long before I felt better. I gave the pills a fair trial and was entirely cured."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are guaranteed to be free from any harmful or habit-forming drugs. They have given the most gratifying results in nervous headaches, neuralgia, nervous dyspepsia, St. Vitus' dance, and even in partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia. Write for the free booklet, "Diseases of the Nervous System."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Adv.

EVIDENTLY OUT OF PLACE

Indignant Frenchman Had Some Fault to Find With Postmaster, and Said So.

A Frenchman with a name spelled a la Paris and pronounced something like Ca-choo had never learned to read or write, but he managed to disguise the fact pretty well until he moved to a new community where the name was not common. Going to the postoffice one morning he inquired:

"Got any mail for Joe Ca-choo?"

"What's the name?" inquired the clerk.

"Ca-choo, Joe Ca-choo."

"How do you spell it?"

"Can't you spell Joe Ca-choo?"

"No," said the clerk, "I never heard it before."

Then the disgust of the Frenchman, which had been constantly rising, boiled over and he snorted:

"Well, if you can't spell, why don't you sell your old postoffice to someone that can?"

Potteries Prospering.

The output of the pottery industries of the United States had a value of $34,518,560 in 1911, according to the United States geological survey chart of clay products production, by states, compiled by Jefferson Middletown, the pottery production for 1911 was greater than for 1910, when the output was valued at $33,784,678, the increase being $733,882. Of the total production, Ohio was first, with an output valued at $14,774,265; New Jersey second, with $8,401,941; West Virginia third, with $2,880,202; New York fourth, with $2,178,364; Pennsylvania fifth, with $2,156,817, and Indiana sixth, with $1,004,737. The output of no other state had a value in excess of a million dollars.

HARD TO SEE.

Even When the Facts About Coffee are Plain.

It is curious how people will refuse to believe what one can clearly see.

Tell the average man or woman that the slow but cumulative poisonous effect of caffeine—the alkaloid in tea and coffee—tends to weaken the heart, upset the nervous system and cause indigestion, and they may laugh at you if they don't know the facts.

Prove it by science or by practical demonstration in the recovery of coffee drinkers from the above conditions, and a large per cent of the human family will shrug their shoulders, take some drugs and—keep on drinking coffee or tea.

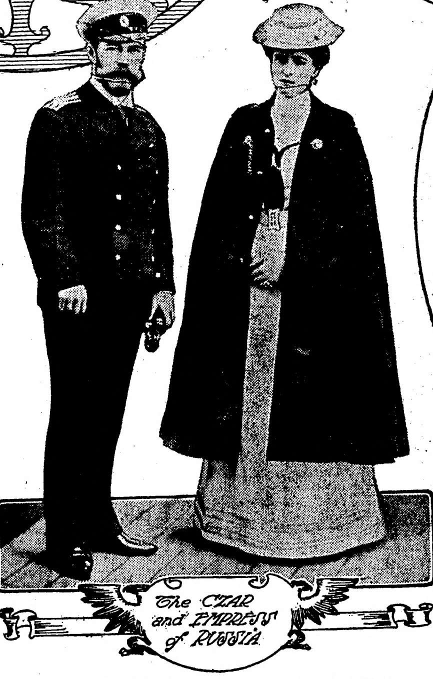
"Coffee never agreed with me nor with several members of our household," writes a lady. "It enervates, depresses and creates a feeling of languor and heaviness. It was only by leaving off coffee and using Postum that we discovered the cause and way out of these ills.

"The only reason, I am sure, why Postum is not used altogether to the exclusion of ordinary coffee is, many persons do not know and do not seem willing to learn the facts and how to prepare this nutritious beverage. There's only one way—according to directions—boil it fully 15 minutes. Then it is delicious." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest. Adv.

MOST UNHAPPY QUEEN of the WORLD

The EMPRESS of RUSSIA



The CZAR and EMPRESS of RUSSIA

HEIR TO RUSSIAN THRONE

FROM time to time the press of Europe has recorded accounts of the ailments of the Russian empress. The Russian press, even now that there is supposed to no censorship in Russia, is forbidden to print anything concerning the imperial family aside from the official reports distributed by the official news bureau. From the various fragmentary reports it has become known that the czarina, who had come to Russia with lofty ideals and a liberal western education, is an invalid and a martyr, alone in the palace of the czar, misunderstood and tormented with melancholy and fear.

Now a chronicler, intimately familiar with the home life of the Russian czar, has described vividly the sufferings of the woman who had hoped to reform the Rusisan czar and the Russian land, and it may be said without exaggeration, that Alexandra Feodorovna is today the unhappiest of all queens.

Princess Alice of Hesse-Darmstadt, according to the biographer of the czarina, lived amid ideal and idyllic surroundings throughout her childhood. The small, good looking princess, dressed as beautifully as her dolls, was told that the flowers daily presented her were so beautiful and fragrant for her sake, and that when she was crying, the little flowers were also shedding tears, and when she was laughing, the little flowers were kind hearted and obedient, and she did all she could to refrain from crying, for she recalled that every tear drop of hers would cause so much pain to all those who loved her.

But the tears she repressed in her childhood days she is shedding now within the walls of the palace, as the queen of the long suffering Russian people. Being of a sensitive, impressionable and artistic nature, the princess was deeply interested in the best kind of literature. She familiarized herself with the most important works of the masters of fiction in Europe and she even made some attempts at writing poetry and dramas.

As she was frail, the physicians feared that she was undermining her health by devoting most of her time to books, and she was told that her health was more important than all the books in the world, and then for the first time she learned that she was not free. The books were now selected for her by physicians and she was permitted to read only a very limited number of such books. To while her time away she took up the study of drawing, and soon showed considerable talent in that direction.

Little by little she commenced to notice the life beyond the boundary of her fairyland; she saw the life of the people who were suffering and starving, and she learned that what was new to her was not new to her father, to her mother, to her aunts, to all those who lived contented in her fairyland of luxury. And she began to ask herself the question which she was for a long time unable to answer:

"How can they all remain care free and so shamelessly cheerful when beyond the windows of this palace is the moan of an entire suffering nation?"

Princess Alice became the czarina of Russia. She came to the Russian land at a time when the people, exhausted by the burden of absolutism, were returning from the funeral of Alexander III., and were hopefully waiting for a more merciful reign on the part of the new czar, Nicholas, who was reputed at that time to be a liberal.

The first day of the new reign was marked by the Khodinka tragedy, when thousands of people lost their lives amid the festivities. The tragedy made a profound impression upon the czarina. It seemed to her a foreboding of a terrible future.

The superstitious inclinations and weaknesses of the czar, manifested in his eagerness for a male heir to the Russian throne, filled the czarina with untold grief.

She had to obey the orders of various charlatans who were welcome advisers of the czar. And the intrigues directed against her in the palace added to the misery of the young empress. She noticed that the czar was angry at her because she was "endeavoring to introduce in Russia western reforms and that she considered herself more intelligent than the entire household in the palace."

In the meantime storms of unrest had broken out in the land, and orders were given to pacify the discontented at all cost. The empress did not know of the horrors that were perpetrated in Russia, and when she learned of them she consoled herself in the thought that all the cruelties directed against the Russian people were not committed by order of the czar. She believed that the czar, like herself, was ignorant of what was going on in the land.

But she soon found out her error. Then her suffering grew ever more intense. She looked with disgust upon the clique surrounding her, upon their hypocritical smiles and greetings, but she was unable to change anything even in the palace. It was then that she became seriously ill.

When the empress had recovered she divided her time between her children and her desk. She turned once more to the reading of books and also devoted considerable time to writing. Nevertheless the feeling that she was alone and misunderstood in the palace weighed heavily upon her. She grew ever more and more melancholy.

One day, after having worked for some time upon the tragedy she was writing, the empress entered the czar's study. She found him seated at his desk looking over numerous documents. He brightened up when she entered and he kissed her hands.

"Why are you so sad?" she asked.

"I am thinking of the future of our children," he replied.

The empress looked at him surprised.

"I do not understand—" she began, looking into his troubled eyes.

"A plot has just been unearthed," he said cheerfully, yet with a shade of confusion.

"Oh, I know about it—"

"No, I mean another plot—a new one. They have just learned of it today." And shaking his head he added:

"Do you understand now?"

And he described to her in detail the conspiracy of the terrorists against his life. They became more sad than before. The shadow of danger was still hovering over their heads.

They endeavored to calm each other, but somehow their words were uncertain.

"Thank God, it is all over now," said the empress, heaving a deep sigh. "I had a terrible presentiment during the last few days. Wherever I went I could not rid myself of the terrible thoughts that haunted me."

"Really. Do you know," answered the czar, "I also felt ill, feverish, weak. They keep me in a constant state of terror."

The empress tried to calm him again. He smiled bitterly and handed her a document bearing numerous notes in red ink.

The empress made an effort to appear calm as she read the document, for she felt that the emperor was watching her closely.

"What wicked people! Savages!" said the empress as she looked up to him.

"That is exactly what is troubling me," replied the emperor with a sad, forced smile. "I should not like to leave to my son a heritage in such a dreadful state!

"Do not speak of this, do not speak of this!"

The empress advanced to him and took his hand.

"With the help of God all will be well. All will be well!" she repeated.

"And you, would you want to remain a widow?" the czar suddenly smiled strangely. His eyes were cold and moist.

The empress shuddered at these words. She released his hand and looked at him fixedly.

"My dear," she said in tremulous voice, "I have wanted to speak to you seriously for some time. This is impossible! Do you understand? This life we are leading is impossible. You must do something to change it. You must decide to do something!"

The empress' voice quivered and there were tears in her eyes.

"For my sake and four yours, for the sake of our dear children, do something! Even if you have to—even if you have to yield. Do it!"

"What can I do?" asked the czar. "Tell me. Do they know what they want? Some of the people want one thing, others want another. Don't you know that yourself?"

"Will you deny that there is a system of provocation and spying in Russia," she demanded.

The empress spoke with firmness and authority.

"There is an infernal machine in your hands," she said, "and you look upon it as a plaything. I know that upon some occasions you speak with authority, but when a matter requires energy and determination you yield to the first adviser who knows how to influence you!"

Then the empress spoke more softly.

"I understand that you often find yourself in an embarrassing position. But you believe everything that should be repulsive to you. You yield to flattery and—"

"My dear, do not talk to me about these fables. You and I cannot think of anything that will change all this. The laws of nature cannot be changed. Some of the people will demand water, others will demand fire. All I could do would be to make some concessions. Otherwise everything must remain as it is. It must be so. Do you understand?"

The czar seemed pleased with his words. He leaned back in his armchair and added angrily:

"I have tried everything!"

"But I cannot go on like this," cried the empress. "I cannot. I am going away. I have no strength any longer. I am afraid to look at myself! When I see myself in a mirror I am seized with terror."

"What can I do? You must consult the physicians."

The empress looked at him angrily and shook her head.

"Perhaps things will run more smoothly when you will be a widow," said the czar, rising from his seat and running back and forth in his study.

"That is nonsense," he said suddenly and rang the bell, pausing in the center of the room perplexed.

When the servant entered the czar shouted and stamped his feet. The empress had fainted. She was taken to her room and remained for a long time under the care of her physicians.

The czar neglected all important affairs of state when the empress was ill. In the evening the minister of the interior arrived at the palace with an important report. When he was ushered into the czar's study the czar shouted at him nervously:

"For God's sake leave me alone! The empress is ill! Do whatever you like! It is all the same to me."

When the minister of the interior offered a few words of consolation the czar interrupted him:

"I know you! I know everything! I know you all!" and he waved his hand.

The minister of the interior walked out of the czar's study confused and humiliated.

And the minister of the interior heard the czar shouting to himself: "Monarchy, constitution, anarchy. Even my nearest are against me."

The health of the empress was shattered and for a long time she was suffering from a nervous breakdown.

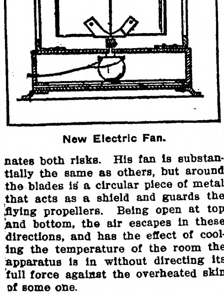
During that illness various rumors were spreading in the palace. It was said that the czarina was planning to leave the palace and return to her native land. It was then also rumored that she wanted the czar to abdicate and leave Russia. But all knew that she rebuked the czar for his lack of will power and determination.

The ELECTRICAL WORLD

NEW ELECTRIC FAN UNIQUE

Eliminates Danger of Contracting Cold and of Cutting Fingers on Revolving Blades.

Only two objections have been raised to portable electric fans, and neither of these is serious. One is that there is danger of cutting the fingers on the revolving blades in a moment of carelessness, and the other is that the direct draft from these fans sometimes brings on a cold. Either can easily be avoided, but a Louisiana man has invented a fan which eliminates both risks. His fan is substantially the same as others, but around the blades is a circular piece of metal that acts as a shield and guards the flying propellers. Being open at top and bottom, the air escapes in these directions, and has the effect of cooling the temperature of the room the apparatus is in without directing its full force against the overheated skin of some one.



New Electric Fan.

FANS CIRCULATE WARM AIR

Householder Raises Temperature of Room Twenty-Five Degrees in Short Space of Time.

In very cold weather it is often the case that the radiators are warm, yet not hot enough to start and maintain a circulation of air. The result is that the air in a room remains stagnant and does not reach the radiator to be warmed.

By directing against the radiator a current of air from an ordinary small electric fan placed on the floor, all the cold air in the room will become heated by contact with the radiating surface in a few minutes.

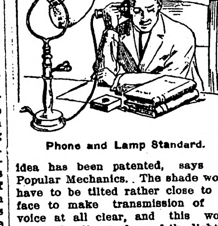
One householder reports that he raised the temperature of a room 25 degrees in half an hour by this simple method and without expending a greater amount of energy for heating, simply making the radiator more efficient by directing a constant stream of air against it.

The use of electric fans to keep frost from forming on show windows of stores is a well-known and very practical winter application.

TELEPHONE AND LAMP STAND

Unique Feature Is That the Transmitter Is Located in the Top of the Shade.

The desk telephone and lamp standard in one is shown in the accompanying illustration. The unique feature lies in the fact that the transmitter is located in the top of the shade, the shade also serving to gather up the sound of the voice and concentrate it upon the transmitter. The idea has been patented, says the Popular Mechanics. The shade would have to be tilted rather close to the face to make transmission of the voice at all clear, and this would throw the direct glare of the light on the person using the instrument.



Phone and Lamp Standard.

Useful Electrical Toy.

An electrical engineer of Paris gave his little daughter a toy which performs an actual service as well as being a source of amusement to her, says an English exchange. It consists of a miniature electric train, which carries dishes along the passage from the kitchen to the dining room. By touching a button on a circular ivory indicator messages are electrically transmitted to the kitchen for such articles as bread, knives, forks, water, napkins, etc. The cook places them on the car and the train is started for the dining room. The outfit cost about $200, and the train will easily carry a load of 25 pounds.

Fixing Metals Permanently.

Two Italian chemists have perfected a process for depositing metals of any character permanently upon almost any insoluble surface by electricity, zinc, lead and tin being used as easily as silver, nickel or copper.

WIRELESS FROM A BICYCLE

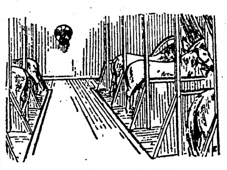
Interesting Experiments Conducted by Young Massachusetts Inventor—Make-up of Apparatus.

While others have been experimenting with wireless telegraph apparatus adapted for use on aeroplanes and automobiles, Mr. I. Wolff, a young inventor living in Cambridge, Mass., has been endeavoring to develop a system that can be used successfully on a bicycle. He has succeeded in maintaining communication between his own wheel and that of an associate three and one-quarter miles away. This communication was obtained without a ground, for the rubber tires insulated the apparatus completely from the earth. For an aerial, he uses three double spreads of phosphor bronze wire, each 12.5 feet long, joined in one loop at the top of a ten-foot mast, which is tied to the back of the bicycle. The sending apparatus comprises an induction coil giving a three-inch spark, a series of Leyden jar condensers connected in multiple, a battery secured under the instrument board, and a sending key. The receiving set comprises a tuning coil of variable inductance, a silicon detector, and a receiver wound to 2,000 ohms resistance. For the aerial, a three-wire single spread of phosphor bronze is used. Experiments with this apparatus were inducted at night in order to avoid too much publicity. The greatest distance was obtained at the hour of 2 a. m. The assistant with the sending instrument rode ahead, sending messages as he went, while the receiver managed to keep in constant touch with him.

ELECTRIC FANS IN A STABLE

Barns of Large Chicago Concern Made Paradise for Horses During Summer by Stirring Air.

The stables in the fine modern barn of a large concern in Chicago have been made a paradise for horses during the warm summer months by the installation of electric fans. Oscillating fans are mounted on the wall at the ends of the passageways leading between the rows of stalls, and the movement of air which results keeps the stables comparatively cool.



Fans Cool the Stable.

Electric Fans More Reliable.

Although it costs but six cents a day in India for men to wave fans to keep the air circulating in houses they are gradually being replaced by electric cans as cheaper and more reliable.

DEER SOME FIGHTER

Truthful Tale Told by Veracious Wes Peterson.

Deer Was Killing the Stage Driver When Horse Kicks Him (Deer) to Death—Extra Ration For Horse as Reward.

Ukiah.—Here is the gold medal deer story of the season:

It is the tale of Wes Peterson, the amiable stage driver of Anderson valley, who has a scrupulous regard for the game law and a kind heart for all deer—out of season—and of Wes' dapper bay mare, Diana, who loves her master with deep affection and cares naught for the fact that deer are immune from the death penalty after August 31.

As Peterson was driving his stage near Philo he espied two deer in the road ahead of his team. Evidently the deer knew that they were protected by law, for they made no effort to flee before the stage. Wes had his trusty rifle with him, but he is a conscientious stage driver and would not succumb to temptation, as many another man in the remote fastnesses of Anderson valley might. He merely said "Bo" to the deer, or "Get thee behind me, Satan," or words to that effect.

When the deer had grown tired of tantalizing the law abiding Wes they turned from the road and leaped up an embankment. A wire fence was strung along at the edge of the bank, and this the deer sought to clear. One of the animals hurdled the fence without difficulty, but the buck, who carried a heavy head of horn, became entangled in the wire and could not extricate itself.

Peterson could not bear to see the deer in anguish and left the stage, intending to free the animal and start it off happily on its journey with its mate.

He had no difficulty in extricating the deer, but there was no reward for him. Instead of showing gratitude, the deer turned savagely with its horns and attacked its liberator, sinking the prongs into the stage driver's body. Wes wished that the legislature had taken pains to pass a closed season law for men, but it was too late then to call an extra session. He must fight for his life with the ungrateful and infuriated beast. He grappled with the animal, clutching its head and a foot to save himself from the horns and sharp hoofs. Together the two rolled down the embankment to where the team was standing.

Peterson thought that the deer would become frightened by the proximity of the team, but this wasn't that kind of a deer.

Mr. Buck backed off a few paces and prepared to charge Peterson, who had fallen exhausted to the road.

With head bent low and its horns at charge, the graceless brute plunged toward Wes. But it did not count on Diana, the game bay mare.

As the deer leaped by the team, and just as it was about on top of the prone stage driver, Diana kicked out her foot and caught the deer where it would do the most harm, breaking the neck. The deer fell dead with its horns just touching Peterson's body.

Peterson was badly cut up by the deer, but his injuries are not serious. His faithful horse will be rewarded with an extra ration of oats each day. The authorities say there is no law to punish a horse for killing a deer out of season, so venison is enjoyed in Anderson valley in an aroma of arnica and to the tune of high praise for the game mare Diana.

The Rejoicing Eunuch

By REV. PARLEY ZARTMANN, D. D.,
Secretary of Extension Department of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT: Acts 8:39—"And he went on his way rejoicing."

On his way rejoicing. Why not? He had found Jesus Christ as a personal Saviour and instead of going home dejected and despairing, he could go saying with the Psalmist, "I waited patiently for the Lord, and he inclined unto me and heard my cry. He brought me up also out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay; and he hath set my feet on the rock and he hath put a new song into my mouth, even praise unto our God." This may be your experience ere you close this day, and it may be your privilege to sing

O happy day that fixed my choice,
On thee, my Savior and my God.
Well may this glowing heart rejoice,
And tell its raptures all abroad.

This story tells the secret of the eunuch's happiness and refreshes the soul as we read.

The Servant.

Philip, the evangelist, is one of the chief actors in this dramatic incident. He was one of the deacons who had been converted in the early days of the apostolic church, and having found Jesus he was busy in making him known. He is associated in our minds with Peter as we read the Acts of the Apostles. But he is so different in his temperament and methods, and this illustrates how Christ chooses the man for the task. Philip was aggressive, many-sided, flexible, capable of adapting himself to divers temperaments. He had just been preaching in Samaria, and perhaps the incident of Simon Magus may have disturbed him. If so the message from the angel to leave Samaria would be some encouragement. God is behind all our movements; let us be quiet in our souls and quick to hear when he speaks, follow where he leads or go where he sends us. In that direction lie joy, power and victory. The paths may be as diverse as those of Peter and Philip and the places may be as strangely different as Samaria and Gaza. The word of the Lord came to Philip to leave the populous city, preaching of the divine truth and responding thereto, and to go to Gaza, a desolate and desert place, and preach the gospel to one man. But there God met them; "And he blesesd him there," Gaza was the gateway to Palestine from the south, and Ethiopia was now to stretch out her hands to God. Your prompt and joyous obedience may open a new kingdom for your Lord. No doubt that was a strange journey to Philip, and he must have wondered why he was leaving the city and going down to Gaza; but at the end of the day his soul rejoiced in what had been done. It is a blessed thing to have so infallible a guide, so wise a teacher, so safe a master, and to know that in following him we are safe.

The Seeker.

As Philip waits on the lonely road he sees a chariot approaching and he may have wondered whether the man in it would be the object of his own journey. The chariot contains not an Israelite, but a man from Ethiopia, and probably a descendant of Ham. The eunuch was a man of importance, a treasurer in the court of Queen Candace. No doubt he had wealth, high position, great influence and fame, but evidently the spirit of God made him dissatisfied with all these. He had occasion to go to Jerusalem; may it not have been a part of God's plan to bring him to the clear realization of his need, in fact, to have some promise and encouragement to go up to the temple of Jerusalem.

But even there he did not find peace, and he was returning to his own country still longing for God, when the Spirit said to Philip: "Go join thyself to this chariot." Undoubtedly the eunuch was distracted and anxious, but in his hand he had the message of God. At last God's messenger, God's word, and the seeking soul have met and the result is glorious and gratifying. The seeking soul always will find. Do not be lazy or indifferent about your own eternal welfare. Have some real concern about yourself. Follow God as far as he leads. New light will fall upon the path just ahead of your present step.

"If thou believest, thou mayest." "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." God has declared it; nothing hinders its fulfillment except your own belief. Come, let the spirit of God through the word reveal Jesus to you as the Saviour from your sins and as the keeper of your life; claim what he promises so freely, accept what he offers, and enjoy what he imparts and reign in life through One, even Jesus Christ. "And he went on his way rejoicing."

Suffering, shame and scoffing rude,
In my place condemned he stood;
Sealed my pardon with his blood,
Hallelujah, what a Savior!

Keep Smiling

Many Little Helps in Calling Fate's Bluff

By Rev. FRANK CRANE, Chicago

IT IS wonderful what you can do if you will only keep your chin up.

This is a strange world, and one of the strangest things about it is the way it sympathizes with success.

We are supposed to sympathize with failure and grief, but we don't.

I am going to tell you the truth about this naughty world, and the truth is that whichever way you're going, up or down, people want to help you along.

If you are going up we all want to boost; if you are going down we all want to push. That is what we call sympathy.

You hear complaints that the rich are growing richer and the poor poorer. That has always been the case, simply because it is human nature. Society has always been organized to increase the wealth of the wealthy and the power of the powerful; also to make the weak weaker.

There's no use whining about it. It is simply one of the flinty laws of nature. The only thing to do with nature's laws is to adjust oneself to them and not complain.

This might be called the law of the inertia of prosperity.

You are guilty yourself. Whom do you want to see? The man everybody wants to see. And you read the book everybody's reading and go to the store where it is "the thing" to go.

"Follow the crowds," says the advertiser, with the shrewd knowledge of our makeup.

If you have a hundred dollars ahead to whom do you want to hand it? To the poor man who needs it? Not at all, but to the rich banker who doesn't need it.

If I ask you for the loan of a quarter you will pass it over to me without a word if you think it is a trifling matter to me; but if you suspect I really am in want and need the quarter to buy a little food with, that's quite another affair; you can't encourage that sort of thing; I should go to the Associated Charities.

Now, the way to use this law is to feign prosperity even if you have it not. Keep your chin up.

Wear good clothes. Don't withdraw from the society of the prosperous. Look pleasant. Don't let yourself get down at the heel. Don't get that poor beggar look on your face.

It isn't hypocrisy. It isn't pretense. It is sheer courage. It is letting the world know that while you live you propose to fight, and that like old General Taylor you "don't know when you're licked."

Keep smiling and an unfriendly universe will not know what to do with you; so it will crown you.

Says Alfred de Vigny: "All those that struggle against the unjust heavens have had the admiration and secret love of men."

Fate is a bluff. Face her, defy her, and she will fawn on you.

Fate is cruel, but only to the quitter.

Problem of the City is the Greatest

By James P. Burnett, Atlanta, Ga.

The greatest problem which confronts the economists and the social workers of America today is the problem of the city.

Every year the population of the cities is increasing and that of the counties diminishing. Men are deserting the country in droves to come into the city. They are leaving the green fields for the dirty highways, the clear atmosphere for the pollution of the city, and with every new recruit the problem of handling them and the vice which grows among them becomes more difficult and more intricate.

Men are casting about for reform, and they don't know where to begin, so vast and so deep is the problem.

Figures compiled each year show that the denser the population, the greater the death rate—in other words, the closer men live together, the quicker they die.

In a certain English city, to prove that congested dwelling-places caused death, a certain area in the slums was demolished and modern, sanitary tenements erected in their place. The death rate sank something like 75 per cent. as a result. And yet the hordes of men crowd into the city, and conditions grow more congested, crime gains a new impetus and death increases at a horrible rate.

Understand me, I do not mean that every new recruit into the city means that that person is evil and that crime increases as a direct result. The point is that wherever conditions are congested and where poverty reigns crime increases, as figures have proved, and poverty is one of the most prolific sources of crime.

The problem of the city is a hydra headed one, and sociologists are beginning to realize that, while it demands instant attention, they do not know how to cope with it.

Let Bachelor Forget His Lonely Misery

By JANE ERICKSEN
Sacramento, Cal.

I cannot see the advisability of tagging a man because he is a bachelor. In the first place, it is cruel, to say the least. Just because a fellow has been so unfortunate as to be left outside of matrimony's hospitable gates there is no reason why we should throw it up to him. There are very few men who have not met at least one girl whom they would like to marry, and that they have failed to qualify up to the lady's requirements is no sound reason for unseemly mirth and merriment from the world at large.

Did you ever get turned down? Then you know what a delightful sensation it is. How would you like to have that hideous experience, which has caused you much inward anguish, to say nothing of humiliation, blared abroad to an unsympathetic public?

How would you like having to wear a button or a badge boldly displayed on your coat lapel signifying that you belong to the great wandering family of Turned Downs? It wouldn't set well, would it?

So I declare, in the cause of common courtesy, that it wouldn't be fair to tag the bachelor.

Let him forget his lonely misery if he can.

Don't doom him to remember his troubles every time he puts on his coat.

Let him alone and maybe some day when nobody's paying much attention to him he may manage to slip through the big gates. You never can tell.

SEA SERPENT REAL

Hiram Maxim Is Firm Believer in Monster.

Famous Scientist and Inventor Thinks Time Has Come When Monstrous Creatures Should Be Credited—Two Kinds Seen.

London.—Sir Hiram Maxim is a firm believer in the sea serpent. The other day he gave out this interview:

"I think the time has arrived when we must submit that there are certain large animals living in the sea that are not described in any works on natural history. Messrs. C. A. Nichols & Co., Springfield, Mas., published in 1882 a very remarkable work. In this I find that in 1851, and for some years following, the sea serpent, or sea serpents, appeared very often off the New England coast.

"It appears that there were two kinds of these monsters. On one occasion the animal that was seen had a fishlike head, very large eyes, gills, and a continuous fin extending the whole length of its back, supported by numerous spines, after the manner of a stickleback. It was simply a very large fish of an unknown variety.

"The monster that was seen a great number of times by numerous people had a body from eighty to ninety feet long, and about the diameter of a large cask, with a head closely resembling that of a snake.

"According to these witnesses, the monster was from eighty to ninety feet long, his head usually carried about two feet above the water; of a dark brown color, the body with thirty or more protuberances, compared by some to four-gallon kegs, by others to a string of buoys, and called by several persons bunches on the back; motion very rapid, faster than that of a whale, swimming a mile in three minutes, and sometimes more, leaving a wake behind him; chasing mackerel, herrings, and other fish, which were soon jumping out of the water fifty at a time as he approached."

"It has been suggested that this creature is a mammal. If so, it would have warm blood, and would have to breath at least as often as a whale, but as it remains below the water for days and weeks at a time, it is safe to say that it has cold blood, and is probably some kind of a snake."

Business School for Girls.

New York.—In accordance with the will of Miss Rosine M. Parmentier of Brooklyn, who left the Parmentier mansion and $5,000 in cash to the Catholic sisters of St. Joseph, the sisterhood is about to erect on the property a building for the higher training of Catholic girls for business life. The new institution will be called the Parmentier Memorial High school.

PUTS OUT BOMB WITH MILK

Quick-Witted Milkman Prevents Disaster in New York Tenement District.

New York.—Antonio Janke, a milkman, of 123 East One Hundred and Thirteenth street, was making his rounds before daylight, when he came to 231 East Ninety-Ninth street. He carried his case of milk bottles in one hand and a lantern in the other to guide him up the darkened stairways of the tenement, which houses twenty-seven families, to the top floor, where Vincent Piccio lives with his wife and children.

As Antonio reached the top of the stairs he saw something red sputtering away in the darkness. He turned his lantern upon it and saw it was the end of a lighted fuse that was rapidly eating its way to a percussion cap of an infernal machine.

Antonio quickly ripped off the cover of one of his milk bottles and drenched the fuse. Then he ran downstairs and found a policeman, who went to the tenement with him and took the bomb to the East One Hundred and Fourth street police station.

The entire tenement was thrown into a panic when it was discovered that the house had been marked for destruction.

The bomb weighed about eight pounds and was filled with dynamite and nitro-glycerin. Experts of the bureau of combustibles say that if it had exploded it probably would have wiped out every family in the building.

TAKES UP PROSECUTOR'S BET

Husband Accepts Wager of $5 That There Is an Affinity in Case.

Washington, D. C.—George Hamil, a clerk in a big department store and living in Kennelworth, D. C., who, according to his wife's charge, does not properly clothe her, is being shadowed constantly for the corporation counsel's office in consequence of his wager of $5 with Assistant Corporation Counsel George that there is not another woman in the case.

"Who is the other girl?" asked the prosecutor after the wife, Mary, had related her story of alleged neglect.

"There is none," the husband replied.

"Oh, yes, there is; I'll bet $5 on it."

"You're on!" snapped Hamil as he covered the bet. He said he earned only $20 a week, but Mrs. Hamil was certain that he received more.

"I am going to have you watched," said Mr. George, "and if I catch you with an affinity it will go mighty hard with you."

AIR SCOUT IS PRISONER

Turks Capture Italian Flyer When Dead Motor Causes Descent in Hostile Country.

Tripoli.—The Turks, who on several occasions have tried vainly to smuggle into Tripoli an aeroplane for scouting purposes, are at last in possession of a machine through a mishap to Captain Moizo of the Italian army. Captain Moizo was making a flight from Zouara to Tripoli when the motor of his machine stopped and he was obliged to descend in a hostile country. He was made prisoner.

FRAUD OF OBESE MILKMAN

Water From Cow Puzzles Paris Inspectors Until Secret Is Discovered.

Paris.—For many weeks complaints have been received that the milk sold by a Paris dairyman was too thin; samples were taken by the police, and on each occasion the milk was found to contain a large proportion of water.

Despite this, the man vehemently protested his innocence and invited the police to visit his dairy at any time to see the cows milked. Two inspectors did so, and after witnessing the milking carried away the milk, which on examination was found to contain a large proportion of water. The visits were repeated, but each time the milk which came straight from the cow was found to be too thin.

The police were much puzzled until one day Inspector Debout noticed that the milkman, who was very fat, milked with only one hand. Another curious point was that he also seemed to grow thinner as the milk pail grew fuller. Inspector Debout at once ordered the milkman to undo his waistcoat, when two indiarubber bladders and a system of piping were revealed. One bladder contain air and the other water. By pressing the air bladder the milkman caused the water to trickle out of the water bladder through a pipe into the milk pail, the operation being concealed by his artificial obesity.

Solid Ivory, This Fellow.

New York.—While twelve persons were trying to resuscitate Philip Greek, a salesman, who had tried suicide by inhaling gas, some one lit a match and the gas in the room exploded. Seven persons were injured, one seriously.

Blames Insane Wife.

New York.—Complaining that his wife, who is now in an insane asylum at Middletown, got him to marry her through fraud, Alfred Kopetre is now asking for a divorce.

FREE ADVICE TO SICK WOMEN

Thousands Have Been Helped By Common Sense Suggestions.

Women suffering from any form of female ills are invited to communicate promptly with the woman's private correspondence department of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established a confidential correspondence which has extended over many years and which has never been broken. Never have they published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which they have to draw from, it is more than possible that they possess the very knowledge needed in your case. Nothing is asked in return except your good will, and their advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. KNOWLEDGE OF FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES NEEDED FOR SUCCESS IN PIGEON INDUSTRY

When Breeding for Profit It Is Necessary to Curtail All Unnecessary Expense—Birds With Vigorous Constitutions Required for Breeding.

Pigeons are found wherever man has set his foot in any part of the civilized world. This bird has been used for sporting and for food for many hundreds of years. There are eleven recognized distinct breeds and the variety of these breeds is almost endless.

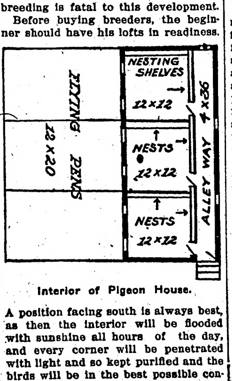
There is a great difference of opinion among breeders as to the best varieties for squab raising for the market. The Homer probably stands at the head of the list, and there are large plants in the United States that raise no other kind. Then there are several crosses between the Homer and other breeds, and each variety has its admirers.

Perhaps today the white Homers are in greater demand than any other breed.

A cock pigeon should be selected for his activity and good disposition. If he struts about a good deal and is continually cooing he will generally make a good breeder.

The bird that is stupid, sluggish or negligent in the care of his plumage or vicious in his actions toward other birds should never be selected. A bird that is related to its mate or bred from blood relatives should never be used for breeding purposes. Birds with vigorous constitutions are necessary for successful market breeding and inbreeding is fatal to this development.

Before buying breeders, the beginner should have his lofts in readiness.



Interior of Pigeon House.

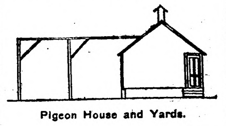
A position facing south is always best, as then the interior will be flooded with sunshine all hours of the day, and every corner will be penetrated with light and so kept purified and the birds will be in the best possible condition.

As a general thing, a single-story house is best, with the floor one foot or more from the ground. The house should have a pitch roof, with the higher side for the front. Windows should be made in front only, as all the available space at the back and sides will be needed for the nests. The loft can be made larger or smaller, as space and other circumstances direct.

A proportion which has almost come to be the standard among those who breed pigeons for squab raising is nine feet in front with a drop to three feet to the back and about ten feet wide inside; the depth may be somewhat greater than the width. A succession of these lofts may be built as the business progresses, or they may be put up at the same time.

The partitions between the lofts are of boards or of wire netting, as may be preferred. There should be doors leading from one loft to the other with nests up the back and around the sides as far as the doors permit. A window that goes across a space one-half the width of the front of the house and wide in proportion should be made in front—and it should be kept clean, not, like too many that we see, allowed to be obscured by dust and filth until only a dim light can penetrate the inside.

An aviary or fly of wire outside is necessary to the completion of the accommodations for the pigeons that are to be kept by the breeder. The fly should be larger than the loft itself. It should be the same height as the house and twice as long. That is, a house of which the board part is ten feet across in front should have the wire fly twenty feet long.



Pigeon House and Yards.

A single loft with a wire fly can be made very simply. A succession of four lofts would make a building forty feet long and twelve feet wide. With such a loft the wire fly should extend across the front up as high as the roof and about twice as deep as the house proper; that is, for a house of four rooms of the same depth as the one suggested, the wire should be twenty to twenty-four feet wide across the whole front of the building.

The nests for the pigeons are arranged along the back and side walls. They should run from twelve inches from the floor to within the same distance from the roof, and be a little more than three feet wide, so as to divide the back space of ten feet into three equal parts. Be careful not to overcrowd, as it requires skill to handle a large number of pigeons in one loft successfully.

Each compartment should be fixed in such a way that one end can be darkened, and the nest should be placed at this side.

It will be found best to use the earthen nest pans that can be bought from dealers in pigeon supplies, and these should be supplied material like shavings, pine needles, etc., such as would be suitable for the birds to rest upon.

When breeding for profit it is very necessary to curtail all unnecessary expense. A building such as that described can be put up of plain matched boards at the lowest cost possible. If more money is spent on the building itself it may be papered and clapboarded, which might be better in sections where the winters are extremely severe. The cost of good Homers from a reliable dealer is $2.00 per pair, and it does not pay to get poor stock. Economize in your building and general equipment if necessary, but get good birds if you want to be sure of profitable results, and be sure that they are properly mated.

SOME ADVANTAGES OF CROP ROTATION

Whole Supply of Soil Food Utilized and Organic Matter Maintained.

Advantages connected with the adoption of rotation are:

1. The whole food supply of the soil can be utilized. This is not possible when only one crop is grown, for some crops feed only in the surface soil, leaving stores of food deeper in the soil untouched.

2. The amount of valuable organic matter in the soil can be maintained and even increased.

3. The free nitrogen of the air can be made use of.

4. Insect, fungus and weed pests can be destroyed or controlled.

5. Provision can be made for the economical distribution of labor throughout the year.

The rotation suitable for the wheat farmer is one in which wheat is grown alternately with a fodder crop, says Rural Homes. This implies wheat growing combined with stock raising. On small holdings in most districts of 20 inches rainfall and over, this may be so arranged dthat a crop is grown each year. Such a plan, however, has the disadvantage of entailing that some of the land be prepared in great haste and possibly at an unsuitable time.

Millet Hay for Horses.

A western experiment station found that millet cut just before it matured and used exclusively as coarse fodder for horses caused lameness, swelling of joints and softening of bone structure. In a few cases it resulted fatally. On the other hand, there are those who say it can be fed at any time in any condition and any quantities to horses without ill effects.

SUDDEN CHANGES IN FEED DISTURBS HOGS

Going From Old to New Corn Quickly Disarranges Digestive Organs.

Sudden changes from old to new corn disturb the hog's digestive apparatus and make him subject to disease, even if they do not cause it.

Green corn fed with the old corn, effecting the change gradually, is very beneficial, cooling the hog and furnishing an appetizer. It may be at this time the hogs will neglect the old corn if their teeth and gums have been sore on account of its hardness; if so, soak it. A stalk of corn per hog, even when the corn is in silk, is good practice, as at this time the stalk contains most of the nourishment that will go into the ear. By the time hogs cease eating the leaves and stalk, the ear may be snapped for them. Such preparatory feeding is specially beneficial where corn has to be hogged down later, a practice which often has much to recommend it if the area is not so large as to allow the animals to waste the field.

Locating Turkeys.

I put bells on the old turkeys and find them a great help in discovering the birds, as the tinkle shows the direction to look and the bright metal is easily seen, says a writer in an exchange. It is a great help to find them when turned on the range. We go after them every night about four o'clock until they learn to come home, which they will in one or two weeks. The bells are nine cents apiece.

Benefits of Machine Oil.

Remember that one of the greatest economies to be practiced is the judicious use of machine oil. It lightens labor and lengthens the life of the farm tools.

MAIN CITY OF CEYLON

COLOMBO ALWAYS INTERESTING TO THE TRAVELER.

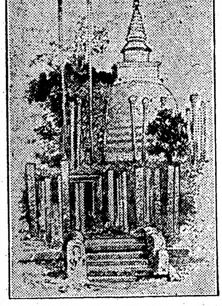
Its Origin Goes Back Beyond the Pages of History and Has Record in Writings of the Earliest Geographer.

Colombo, Ceylon.—Apart from its importance as the chief city of Ceylon, Colombo, in consequence of its selection as port of call on the Australian route, has a special significance. To so many English eyes it is the first glimpse of tropical luxuriance, and, however much a man may afterward explore Equatorial regions, it still remains in his recollection as essentially typical of the Tropics.

One day early in November I had my first view of Colombo, and beheld the low promontory which Ptolemy the geographer marked on his map in the second century A. D. as "Jovis Extremum." I thought on this, by first day in Colombo, as I stood in the streets—streets as busy as Cheapside at one o'clock—that it might well be called "The City of the Silent Feet," for the fact that nearly everyone goes barefoot lessens enormously the amount of noise. The heat and the extreme humidity at first press hard upon the stranger, and a baffling envelope of lassitude seemed trying all the while to clog and hamper every movement of body or of limb.

Two-wheeled bullock-carts innumerable passed along at a leisurely pace, many of them loaded with tea-chests and some with plantains or other fruit. The bullocks were little creatures for the most part, sometimes black and sometimes fawn or a reddish brown, and the wooden yokes that lay across their necks were heavily fashioned. A thatch of palm-leaves protected the goods from rain and sun. In the main thoroughfares tramways echoed the modernity of shops and office buildings, but the old order jostled with the new. A herd of water buffaloes obstructed the tramlines; on the steps of the pretentious general postoffice native letter-writers, under wide umbrellas, scribbled missives for their clients, and at every street corner squatted the sellers of betel, generally women.

Of the wonderful Dagobas remaining at Anuradhapura space will permit no description—not of the Thuparama, the most beautiful, where the right collarbone of Buddha was enshrined, of the vast mass of the Ruanwell and the four statues recently discovered among its ruins of the great Abhaya-Giri, the Jetavanarama, or the Lankarama. They and the scattered ruins in the depths of the forest show still the extent of the buildings of that sacred city beside which ancient Rome and Byzantium were but pigmy towns.



Where the right collar-bone of Buddha was once enshrined: The Thuparama Dagoba Anuradhapura.

BEAR IS UNINVITED GUEST

Enters Sleeping Room, Whose Occupant Vacates Instanter Without Waiting to Dress.

Hood River, Ore.—The citizens of the Oak Grove district, armed with the family weapons and followed by all of the dogs that qualified for the event, are passing the time in a bear hunt. A big brown bruin came down out of the Green Point hills a few days ago, raided a raspberry patch at the ranch of Esquire C. C. Lemmon, destroyed the apiary of another rancher and entered the kitchen of the Appledel.

Robert Shinn, a graduate of the Oregon Agricultural college, who is caring for the Appledel tract, keeps bachelor's hall there. His slumbers of the early dawn were disturbed by the noise of the bear raiding the culinary department.

In a few seconds the bear had entered his sleeping apartment. Shinn left hurriedly through an open window by his bed. The flapping of his night shirt waving an adieu so suddenly in the cool morning breeze frightened the bear, which turned over a cupboard of jams and canned fruits in its hasty exit through the pantry.

The bear is said to be one of the largest ever seen in this region, and the ranchers fear that unless it is killed it will begin to raid barnyard

Nothing More to Live For.

Without question, the Scots curler of whom Lord Lyveden tells in Fry's Magazine placed the proper value on his sport.

During a recent curling match in Switzerland, the skip of one of the teams, who happened to be a Scotsman, was so delighted with the accurate shot of one of his team, that he was heard to address him in the following manner: "Lie down and dee, mon; lie down and dee. Ye'll never lay a finer stane nor that if ye live to be a hundred."

Appointed Day of Judgment.

A horse dealer in an English town had lent a horse to a solicitor, who killed the animal through bad usage. The dealer insisted on payment, and the lawyer, refusing cash, said he would give a bill for the amount, but it must be at a long date. The lawyer drew a promissory note, making it payable on the day of judgment. An action was raised, and the lawyer asked the sheriff to look at the bill. Having done so, the sheriff replied: "This is the day of judgment. I decree you to pay tomorrow."

EPIGRAMS.

The average married man does as he pleases—after consulting with his wife.

One of the advantages of being a woman is that she doesn't have to spend her time trying to give up injurious habits.

If you would size up a woman correctly, listen intently to what she says about her dearest friend.—Rose Melville, in Green Book Album.

SOME DAY

Some day the city is going to look after things a whole lot better than it does now.

Some day all untenanted apartments and houses will be properly sterilized and fumigated.

Some day the use of wall paper in apartment houses will be prohibited.

Some day our playgrounds, parks and public buildings will be the tip-top standard of the United States, if not of the world.

Everyone from everywhere comes here to see how we do everything. We ought to show them the best.

Some day there'll be no graft, or if there is, every one will get a slice.

Some day everything's going to be so nice every one'll be glad to be living, so let's all help to that end.

Wanted a Bite.

Oh, yes; it was raining—had been all day. But they didn't mind that so much; you see, they were fishermen. All the same, they were trudging home, with weary steps and very weary-looking faces.

Their baskets were empty, and, to be candid, they were in a very bad temper.

As they entered the little village a large dog ran at one of the party. The dog had a ferocious look, and was barking furiously. But the fisherman did not take much alarm at the animal. He just kicked it away carelessly.

"Aren't you afraid he'll go for you?" inquired another of the party, somewhat anxiously.

The one who had kicked at the dog looked at his companion in a sorrowful manner.

"I only wish he would!" he replied. "I'd chance almost anything to be able to g ohome and say I'd had a bite!"

BABY IN MISERY WITH RASH

Monroe, Wis.—"When my baby was six weeks old there came a rash on his face which finally spread until it got nearly all over his body. It formed a crust on his head, hair fell out and the itch was terrible. When he would scratch the crust, the water would ooze out in big drops. On face and body it was in a dry form and would scale off. He was in great misery and at nights I would lie awake holding his hands so that he could not scratch and disfigure himself. I tried simple remedies at first, then got medicine, but it did no good.

"Finally a friend suggested Cuticura Remedies, so I sent for a sample to see what they would do, when to my surprise after a few applications I could see an improvement, and he would rest better. I bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Cuticura Soap and before I had them half used my baby was cured. His head is now covered with a luxuriant growth of hair and his complexion is admired by everybody and has no disfigurements." (Signed) Mrs. Annie Saunders, Sept. 29, 1911.

Be a booster—not a knocker.

With Martin O'Brien, of Crookston, as chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee the candidates need have no fear but that when their political finish comes in November, the dead ones will make "beautiful corpses".

The democrotic candidates met at St. Paul on Tuesday to select a state central committee and adopt some plans for the coming campaign It was a lively meeting. Murphy, O'Brien, Sullivan, Hartigan, Lawler and Daly were all there. If Casey or O'Connor had been present 'twould undoubtedly have been an elegant reproduction of Donnybrook Fair—and it came near being that same, anyway.

It is clear that the leaders of the democratic party consider Taft's cause as being already hopelessly lost, and democratic newspapers all over the country are concentrating their efforts to defeat Roosevelt. We believe that the country is capable of saving itself, no matter who is president, but it certainly appears that both old parties are afraid of the Progressive movement, which proves that they both realize that the new party has a hold on the people that is exceedingly dangerous for the old partie systems. Instead of it being Wilson and Roosevelt against Taft, as the fight was early in the campaign, it has now developed into an united effort of Taft and Wilson against Roosevelt. This condition can exist only because the confidential reports from all over the country to the headquarters of both old parties show Roosevelt to be the strongest candidate with the people.

JUST SUITS THE FAR NORTH

Peculiar Boots Worn by Men and Women in New Brunswick Are a Necessity in That Region.

A New York man has on view a pair of boots which he brought home with him from a fishing trip in New Brunswick this season and which are a curiosity, although familiar footwear with the hunters and trappers of that faraway region.

They are known there as "moose shanks," and are the skin of a moose's hind legs, cured without tanning, and made up into the foot and leg covering as seen in this pair. The ankle part of the moose's leg skin constitutes the foot, the elbow or bend in the leg the heel and the lower part of the thigh the leg.

The hunter keeps these queer looking boots pliant by ample greasing with deer tallow, and wears them over three or four pairs of woolen stockings. They are water and cold proof in the most severe weather.

The New Yorker also brought back as a companion to these boots a pair of boots of the kind backwoods women wear in the cold and long winters of New Brunswick. These are made from the skins of a caribou's hind legs after the same manner as the moose shank boots are made, but are more delicate and ornamental.

TOOK HIM TOO LITERALLY

According to Shuster's Expressed Wishes the Offending Baker Was "Gotten Rid Of."

In his book, "The Strangling of Persia," W. Morgan Shuster, the American who took such a prominent part in Persian affairs a few months ago, tells this: "In connection with the bread supply a rather grewsome incident occurred. The chief baker of Teherau was one of the principal grafters in the 'municipal bread ring' and a great trouble maker for the treasury. He was a man of evil record, and reputed to have baked an offending subordinate to death in his own oven on more than one occasion. Speaking of him and his intrigues one day to several prominent nationalists, I remarked that he was the cause of most of the trouble with the bread supply in the capital, was feeding inferior bread to the people, and that he should be 'gotten rid of.'

"A morning or so afterward, on entering my office rather late, I was informed by one of my Persian assistants that 'the chief baker had been killed in accordance with my wishes.' I leave the reader to imagine my surprise and feelings. As a matter of fact he had been assassinated, and though I have no reason to believe that my own remarks had anything to do with his taking off, I determined thenceforth to be more cautious and precise in my language.

"The unfortunate man was a murderer, and had waxed wealthy by stealing from the poor; often starving people of the city, so no great injustice was, perhaps, done, but the interpretation put by my young Persian friend on his untimely end gave me quite a shock. From that time on the control of the bread became much easier."

HAD TO EAT THE REWARD

Woman Really Didn't Want To, But Dislike Had Entered Into the Matter.

A woman of limited means, who had never indulged in luxuries of any kind, suddenly took to regaling her callers with candied fruits and confectionery. "Don't think I am running into criminal extravagance," she explained to an intimate friend. "These things don't cost me a penny. I get them in the queerest way imaginable. One day I found a very valuable diamond brooch. It was advertised for, and a liberal reward was offered for its return. I returned the brooch.

"It belonged to the wife of a confectioner. She hemmed and hawed about the reward and lamented hard times. Before I had time to decline the reward that had been offered she said: 'Money is so dreadfully scarce. How would you like to take out the $25 in trade—so much candy a week until it is paid off? I think my husband would agree.'

"Then I changed my mind about refusing the reward. I did not particularly want the candy, but I disliked the woman so heartily that I couldn't stand it to let her off without paying something, so just to spite her I am ruining my complexion by trying to eat up that reward."

HORSE NOT DISAPPEARING.

At the present time more than 20,000,000 horses would have to be replaced before the automobile could be in absolute monopoly. In 1900 there were over thirteen and a half million horses in this country. Ten years later the number had increased to 21,040,000. A most pleasing fact is that their quality steadily improves.

CAN YOU BLAME HER?

"Why are you giving up your flat?"

"My wife's got so stout that she can't get into the kitchen, and she's sensitive about it."

EVEN HE FAILED.

SUBJECTIVELY.

"All men look alike," simpered the fluffy young thing.

"To you?" queried the mere man.

"No; at me."

WOULDN'T MATTER THERE.

Had to Have Operation

On Tuesday Mrs. P. A. Risberg took her little son, Walmer, to Thief River Falls for a surgical operation on his right knee. During the fair at Thief River Falls in August Mr. and Mrs. Risberg and family were visitors there and Walmar stepped through a defective sidewalk injuring the knee. Since then he has suffered intensely from time to time with the injured limb and the doctors in attendance decided that he would have to submit to an operation. This was done on Wednesday and it was found that tuberculosis of the bone had developed. Reports yesterday were to the effect that the operations had been successfully performed and that the lad is progressing favorably, but may have to lose the use of the knee joint for life.

WHEN A TONIC IS NECESSARY

If You Are Run Down and Debilitated the Health Can Only Be Restored by Building Up the Blood.

When the body is weak and the blood thin it is sometimes difficult to find the cause unless a wasting illness has preceded the decline in health.

Obscure influences, something unhealthful in one's surroundings or work, may lead to a slow impoverishment of the blood and an enfeeblement of the whole body. When a serious stage has been reached there seems to be nothing that will account for it.

In such cases a complete change of climate or of work will sometimes effect a cure. It takes a long time, however, and for the great majority of sufferers is out of the question.

Mrs. G. P. Boutwell, of Clear Water, Minn., whose husband is a hardware merchant there, says:

"About two years ago, when I was living at West Union, Iowa, I was all run down through hard work and worry. I called a doctor who said I was suffering from general debility. He treated me for some time but was unable to do much for me. I had cold chills all of the time and seemed to be nearly bloodless. I could not keep anything on my stomach and lived on eggs and milk for some time. My stomach was sour and the gas on it kept me from getting much sleep at night. The doctor's medicine made my stomach feel worse.

"My father had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with benefit and advised me to try them. After a week or so I could notice a change. I soon became stronger, my appetite came back and the headaches disappeared. I was then able to eat without distress and began to do my work. I had a good color and gained in flesh. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cannot be praised too highly."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a general tonic and are useful in all diseases arising from poor blood or weakened nerves, such as sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, pale and sallow complexions and many forms of weakness. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y. A booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent free upon request. Adv.

UNTOLD AGONY WITH ECZEMA

170 N. 16th St., Portland, Ore.—"The eczema which started about two years ago, broke out in my wrists, then spread to my fingers. I suffered untold agony with them until I began to use Cuticura Remedies. It would appear in little pimples or blisters like, and when I scratched them, they would appear in little scales. The itching would be so bad that I could hardly sleep of nights. I would scratch my hands until they were most numb, then when the blood would course through them again the burning and smarting would be so bad that I could hardly stand it, and I got to be so easily irritated that my husband had to use all of his patience to get along with me.

"I believe I had tried just about every remedy offered to the public for such diseases, without any relief whatsoever, until my mother recommended Cuticura Remedies to me. I only used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment once when my cure began, and in a month of use it was gone entirely." (Signed) Mrs. Thos. Walsh, Oct. 11, 1911.

Getting Along Fine at School.

Now that school has been "going" several weeks parents are beginning to inquire of their young hopefuls as to their progress. The other day a mother out on Harrison boulevard, while eating luncheon with her six-year-old, asked:

"And how are you getting along in school, Dorothy?"

"Oh," replied Dorothy between mouthfuls of bread and milk, "just fine! I and Frances Smith are the smartest and best dressed girls in the school."—Kansas City Star.

WHITMAN SEES PLOT IN KILLING

DISTRICT ATTORNEY DIFFERS WITH DEPUTY COMMISSIONER DOUGHERTY.

VICTIM'S END PLANNED.

"Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louie" Declare They Think So.—Trial of Police Lieutenant Becker Opens.

New York, Oct. 8.—Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty declares that he is satisfied the motive for the murder of "Big Jack" Zelig by "Red Phil" Davidson here Saturday night was not to seal Zelig's lips against Former Police Lieutenant Charles Becker, who will be placed on trial for the murder of Herman Rosenthal.

After questioning Davidson for several hours and investigating events leading up to the killing of Zelig, the deputy commissioner said he was inclined to credit Davidson's story that he killed Zelig in revenge because the latter had robbed him.

"Lefty Louis," "Gyp the Blood," and other gunmen who are awaiting trial for the murder of Rosenthal ridiculed Davidson's story when seen in their cells and instisted that Zelig's taking off was planned and the plot executed to prevent his appearance at Becker's trial. It was reported that "Bald Jack" Rose, who will be a state witness against Becker, had warned District Attorney Whitman that Zelig never would live to testify against the police.

Whitman Sees Conspiracy.

District Attorney Whitman though admitting that no proof has yet been found to indicate that Zelig's death was the result of a conspiracy, is inclined to regard the murder as "more than a coincidence." The prosecutor insists that he had subjoenaed Zelig in the Becker trial and said he had expected his testimony to have an important bearing on the case. He added, however, that he had other witnesses who knew the facts he had planned to reveal through Zelig.

Investigation of Davidson's story revealed the fact that the revolver he used in killing Zelig had been the property of a Brooklyn policeman. It was purchased in a Jersey City pawnshop. The policeman, called upon to explain, declared he had lost the revolver. The pawn broker corroborated Davidson's story that he purchased the revolver Saturday. The broker said the weapon had been pledged more than a year ago.

Tells Two Stories.

Commissioner Dougherty broke down Davidson's first statement that Zelig had held him up in a hallway and robbed him of $400. Zelig, Davidson asserts, held him up at the point of a revolver in the cloak room of a Bowery dance hall Friday night, and took about $17 from him.

Davidson was arranged and remanded without bail to the Tombs. He was placed on the same tier with Becker and some of the gunmen charged with Rosenthal's murder. Both he and Becker denied they know each other. Davidson admitted acquaintance with "Lefty Louie" and "Whitey" Lewis.

He also told Dougherty he came from Toledo 12 years ago and had successive jobs as harness maker, dance hall performer and jewelry and clothing peddler.

Miners Agree to Wage Increase.

Great Falls, Mont., Oct. 8.—Coal miners of Montana by a referendum vote, have decided to accept the increased scale of wages agreed upon by the operators and representatives of the miners at a recent conference held here. The scale will take the place of the wage contract which expired on Oct. 1. Since the expiration of the old contract the miners have been idle, but it is expected they will return to work at once.

Miss Elkins May Be Bride.

Washington, Oct. 8.—Is Miss Katherine Elkins, daughter of the late senator from West Virginia, married to William F. Hitt? That is the interesting question which is exciting Washington.

Found Murdered in Taxi.

Salt Lake, Utah, Oct. 8.—Thomas E. White, known as Eddie White, a taxicab chauffeur, was found murdered in his taxi in the residence district. He had been shot twice through the head and beaten with a blackjack.

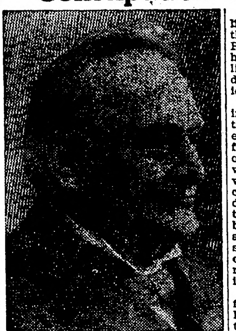
Kansas Postmaster Killed.

Louisburg, Kansas, Oct. 8.—George McElheney, postmaster here, was shot and killed at his home by an unknown assassin. The slayer used a shotgun.

Minister Urges Death Penalty.

Minneapolis, Oct. 8.—That capital punishment should be re-established in states where it has been abolished and that a failure to execute murderers is a dishonor to God, were statements made by Dr. Earle V. Pierce, in a sermon preached at the Central Baptist church. Dr. Pierce concluded a series of sermons on the general theme of "The Rights of the Individual and of the State Over Human Life." The text was, "Has the State the Right to Execute Murderers, and if so, is it Expedient?"

Constipation and Catarrh



S. B. HARTMAN, M. D.

You are constipated. You have taken laxatives a great many years. You have tried to select a diet that would keep your bowels regular. In this you have failed and were obliged to go back to your laxatives again. This, I say, has been going on many years.

You also have a slight catarrh in the head and throat. You never imagined that the catarrh had anything to do with the constipation. Suppose I were to tell you that as long as you have that catarrh you will never get better of your constipation. Would you believe me? Well, whether you would believe me or not it is the truth.

For many years I have been wrestling with the problem of furnishing the public an internal catarrh remedy. Peruna has been the remedy that I have devised and it has certainly relieved many thousand people, yes hundreds of thousands of people, of chronic catarrh.

Constipation was my chief difficulty in treating these cases. I often felt that it would be better if a laxative element were added to Peruna. I feared to do so, however, first because of the number of catarrhal patients who needed no laxative, and second I was afraid of making such a radical change in a remedy that was already doing so well. Thus it was that I continued to prescribe with the Peruna a bottle of Manalin to those who needed a laxative. At last, under circumstances explained in my booklet, I was constrained to add the laxative element to Peruna. This constitutes what is now known as the revised Peruna.

Now those who take Peruna will, first, find themselves promptly relieved of their constipation. Second, the catarrh will gradually disappear. And once the catarrh is cured the constipation leaves permanently. Then if you follow the advice given in my book, you will never have to take pills any more. Cathartics and laxatives you can ignore. You will be permanently relieved of both your catarrh and the constipation.

SPECIAL NOTICE:—Many persons inquire for The Old-time Peruna. They want the Peruna that their Fathers and Mothers used to take. The old Peruna is now called Katarno. If your druggist or dealer does not keep it for sale write the Katarno Company, Columbus, Ohio, and they will tell you all about it.

New Stage in Inebriety.

Mr. Borden has been telling an anecdote concerning two "brither Scots" who used to foregather in a "dry" district, each bringing with him a portable spring of comfort in the shape of a bottle of whisky.

One of them was asked one day by a "third party" whether the other, Jock Anderson, did not get a little drunk sometimes.

"Drunk," was the reply. "Man, the last time I was wi' him Jock was that drunk I couldna see him."—London Mail.

IT'S THE FOOD.

The True Way to Correct Nervous Troubles.

Nervous troubles are more often caused by improper food and indigestion than most people imagine. Even doctors sometimes overlook this fact. A man says:

"Until two years ago waffles and butter with meat and gravy were the main features of my breakfast. Finally dyspepsia came on and I found myself in a bad condition, worse in the morning than any other time. I would have a full, sick feeling in my stomach, with pains in my heart, sides and head.

"At times I would have no appetite, for days, then I would feel ravenous, never satisfied when I did eat and so nervous I felt like shrieking at the top of my voice. I lost flesh badly and hardly knew which way to turn until one day I bought a box of Grape-Nuts food to see if I could eat that. I tried it without telling the doctor, and liked it fine; made me feel as if I had something to eat that was satisfying and still I didn't have that heaviness that I had felt after eating any other food.

"I hadn't drank any coffee then in five weeks. I kept on with the Grape-Nuts and in a month and a half I had gained 15 pounds, could eat almost anything I wanted, didn't feel badly after eating and my nervousness was all gone. It's a pleasure to be well again."

Not Such a Hot Speech.

A candidate for congress had been making a speech in one of the towns of his district where he was not well known personally, says the Kansas City Star, and in the evening while waiting for a train he strayed into a butcher's shop, and, without saying who he was, began to pump the butcher to find out how he stood.

"Did you hear that speech this afternoon?" he inquired, after some general talk.

"Yes," replied the butcher, "I was there."

"What do you think of it?"

"Pshaw!" said the honest butcher, "I've made a better speech than that a hundred times trying to sell 15 cents' worth of soup bones."

The candidate concealed his identity. ty.

He Knew.

"'Where there's a will there's a way,'" avers Taylor Holmes, appearing in The Million. "The way, however, varies, as in the case of a certain pickpocket, who was convicted and promptly fined.

"The lawyer of the pickpocket took the fine imposed upon his client very much to heart.

"'Twenty-five dollars?' he expostulated. 'Your honor, where is this poor, unfortunate man to get $25?'

"His honor did not know, or if he did he refrained from saying so, but the prisoner was less discreet.

"'Just let me out of here for ten or fifteen minutes,' he said, 'and I'll show you!'"—Young's Magazine.

DAVID STARR JORDAN

Dr. Jordan, president of Stanford university, Berkeley, Cal., has announced that he will resign in 1915 and devote his time to the promotion of international peace.

NEW ENGLAND TRIP FOR TAFT

TOUR WILL LAST SIX DAYS AND COVER 400 MILES.

After Trip, President Will View the American Fleet Off New York.

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 7.—The summer capital officially will be a lonely place for the next two weeks. President Taft is taking a six-day automobile trip through Vermont and New Hampshire and will rest in Beverly for a few hours on his return before he boards the Mayflower to review in New York the biggest fleet ever assembled in American waters.

The return from New York will be where he has a speaking engagement Oct. 16 and the president will have only 10 days' more vacation in Beverly before he journeys southward for the winter. Mrs. Taft will accompany the president on nearly all of these trips and while Miss Helen Taft will be at Paramatta for several days the president's cottage will be comparatively quiet for a fortnight.

Miss Mathel Boardman and Major T. I. Rhoades, theh president's personal aide and physician are the only guests of the Taft family.

On Monday the presidential party will turn northward into Vermont. The first stop in that state will be at Brattleboro, where Governor-elect Fletcher and F. C. Williams will be hosts at luncheon. That afternoon the president will pass through Townsend, Vt., the birthplace of his father, and Monday night will be spent at Manchester as the guest of Robert T. Lincoln.

On Tuesday the president will make a long jump from Manchester to Montpelier, spend the night there and on Wednesday morning address the joint assembly on "The Common Soldiers of the Civil War." This is the only set address of the trip.

Leaving Montpelier the president will motor through to Bretton Woods, N. H., and passing the night there arrive at the home of Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh in Dublin, N. H., Thursday. After a night there the president expects to get back to Beverly Friday afternoon, leaving a few hours later for Woods Hole, Mass., to spend Sunday night with W. Cameron Forbes, governor general of the Philippines. He will reach New York Monday and remain two days, leaving for Worcester on Wednesday.

MORE MEN IN FIELDS

Fargo Industries to Close; Employes To Help.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 7.—In order to meet the demand for farm labor in the state, managers of business houses and factories in the city agreed at a mass meeting to close their establishments and send their employes into the harvest fields. Several concerns will pay wages to their employes in addition to what they can earn on the farms.

As a result of the closing of the business houses and factories about 1,000 more men will be sent to the fields within the next few days. One large concern will supply 100 laborers. Stores, offices and even banks will send a part of their employes.

Wages are the highest in the history of the state and a movement has been started here to urge the farmers to provide better board and sleeping accommodations for laborers.

St. Paul Gets Convention.

Denver, Col., Oct. 7.—The American Association of Passenger Agents in convention here selected St. Paul as the meeting place for 1913.

Declared to Be Sound.

New York, Oct. 7.—R. G. Dunn and Company's Weekly Review of Trade says: In no section is definite complaint of deficiency in trade now heard while in most sections there is pronounced buoyancy with the volume of business in excess of former years, an urgent demand for immediate delivery and a satisfactory demand for future delivery reaching well into next year. The more even geographical distribution of industrial and mercantile agency is now a marked feature.

WHY THE FIFTH MAN LEFT

He Wore a Wig and the Other Four Men at the Table Were Bald —and Talkative.

In the smoking room of a westbound ocean liner two days out from an English port, five men sat at a "small game" of poker. When the chips had been cashed in the men retained their places, and presently one of the party said: "This is funny; four bald heads out of a possible five," and then there was a discussion as to the causes of baldness, in which all took part except the unafflicted man, who was a good listener for a while. He then bade the others good night. When he had gone the youngest of the group, who was less bald than the others, said: "Do you know why Mr. Blank made the getaway? He wears a wig, and is probably as bald as any of us." And for the rest of the journey Mr. Blank's head was the object of study—at a distance—for he never again appeared in the smoking room.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONY.

The Rev. Edmund Heslop of Wigton, Pa., suffered from Dropsy for a year. His limbs and feet were swollen and puffed. He had heart fluttering, was dizzy and exhausted at the least exertion. Hands and feet were cold and he had such a dragging sensation across the loins that it was difficult to move. After using 5 boxes of Dodds Kidney Pills the swelling disappeared and he felt himself again. He says he has been benefited and blessed by the use of Dodds Kidney Pills. Several months later he wrote: I have not changed my faith in your remedy since the above statement was authorized. Correspond with Rev. E. Heslop about this wonderful remedy.

BRAGG WINS GRAND PRIX RACE

WINNER AND RIVAL COLLIDE IN FINAL LAP.

De Palma Was Making Last Desperate Effort to Take Lead.

Wauwatosa, Wis., Oct. 8. — Caleb Bragg, a wealthy young Cincinnati driver won the fourth International Grand Prix automobile road race with a Fiat car, after a sensational last lap brush in which Ralph De Palma's Mercedes car was overturned and De Palma was seriously injured.

Bragg's time for the 410 miles was five hours, 59 minutes, 27 seconds, an average speed of 69.3 miles an hour. Edwin Bergdoll, in a Benz, was second and G. Anderson, in a Stutz, was third. Twelve drivers started the race and six finished.

The accident in which Ralph De Palma and his mechanician, Tom Alley, were injured happened on the final lap of the race. In desparate effort to pass Bragg, De Palma collided with him, and his machine was run into the ditch and overturned.

Both De Palma and Alley were pitched over the front of the machine, De Palma landing 20 feet away and Alley in the ditch. Ambulances were summoned and both men were removed to the Trinity hospital, where at a late hour last night the following bulletin was issued:

Milwaukee. — The condition of Ralph De Palma, who was injured while driving in the Grand Prix automobile race, when his car hit the machine being driven by Caleb S. Bragg, winner of the race, is said by physicians at a local hospital to be as good as can be expected.

De Palma's main injury consists of an abdominal puncture and unless infection sets in, the chances are very bright for his recovery. The patient is perfectly conscious but no one is allowed to see him. While he sustained severe bruises about the body, physicians say no bones were fractured, as at first reported.

7 DIE IN AUTO CRASH.

Three Machines Collide on a Bridge in Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Oct. 8. — A collision on a bridge in which three automobiles were involved resulted in the death of seven, and possibly eight men.

One of the machines, containing nine men, came on the bridge at great speed. Its approach was seen by John J. Spade, a contractor, who was going over the bridge in the opposite direction in a motor. He tried unsuccessfully to avoid the machine.

A third automobile was directly behind the speeding car and ran into it, with the result that the first machine was catapulted over the bridge in a coal yard alongside the railroad tracks. The drop was about 40 feet. The other two cars were damaged, but their occupants were uninjured and immediately went to the rescue of the others. Spade was under the impression that the two cars were racing for the bridge.

Alleged Embezzler in Toils.

Oakland, Cal., Oct. 8.—Robert Holt alias Clixton, surrendered to the Oakland police and is said to have confessed to embezzling $75,000 from the Australian government while employed as a clerk with the Royal Australian artillery at Sidney, N. S. W. Holt, according to the police, said he took $15,000 from a safe and later stole and cashed a draft for $50,000.

Rabies Are Menace.

Minneapolis, Oct. 8.—Rabies in animals in Minnesota especially dogs, is increasing at so alarming a rate, according to the Pasteur Institute conducted here by the state board of health, that it is an acute menace to the state. The institute is housed in the Pathology building on the university campus. Dogs running at large in closely settled communities are held accountable for this increase, and killing of many dogs and restraining dogs by leash is advocated as necessary to insure the safety of human beings.

THE CHILDREN'S HEALTH

In observing the physical characteristics of her children, the careful mother soon learns that health is dependent on the regularity of the bowels. When the bowels become clogged with the stomach's refuse, loss of appetite, restlessness, irritability, and similar evidences of disorder are soon apparent. Keep the bowels regular and a healthy, happy child is assured.

At the first sign of constipation the mother should administer a mild laxative to carry off the congested waste from the stomach that is fermenting and forcing poisonous gases into the system. A simple compound of laxative herbs with pepsin is highly recommended as being very mild, yet positive, in its action, a teaspoonful at bedtime usually serving to bring an easy, thorough, natural movement next morning. This compound is known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and is sold by druggists everywhere for 50c a bottle. A larger bottle, put up especially for the family medicine chest, costs one dollar.

The use of salts and violent purgatives and cathartics should be avoided. They are too harsh and drastic, tending to upset the entire system. Write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 203 West St., Monticello, Ill., for a trial bottle of his Syrup Pepsin, if you have never used it. He will be glad to send it without any expense to you. Adv.

Vegetable Fiber for Shoes.

A Haverhill (Mass.) shoeman has obtained patents giving him the right to make vamps and tops of vegetable fiber which he has invented and perfected to be used in the manufacture of shoes. A few cases of shoes have been made of this material, which appears to be a good substitute for leather. The fiber is said to be particularly adaptable for warm weather wear because, being of a woven material, air can penetrate the vamp and top. The inventor also claims that a shoe made of this material is waterproof.

Exactly That.

"Why does he wear such a swimming suit as that?"

"For divers reasons."

Women

From Forty-Five to Fifty Are Much Benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The "change of life" is a most critical period in a woman's existence, and the anxiety felt by women as it draws near is not without reason.

When her system is in a deranged condition, she may be predisposed to apoplexy, or congestion of some organ. At this time, also, cancers and tumors are more liable to form and begin their destructive work.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness, are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

These symptoms are calls from nature for help. The nerves are crying out for assistance and the cry should be heeded in time.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is prepared to meet the needs of women's system at this trying period of her life. It invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried many women safely through this crisis.

Mrs. Estella Gillispie

ONE CASE OUT OF MANY TO PROVE OUR CLAIMS.

St. Anne, Ill.—"I was passing through the change of life and I was a perfect wreck from female troubles. I had a displacement and bearing down pains, weak fainting spells, dizziness, then numb and cold feelings. Sometimes my feet and limbs were swollen. I was irregular and had so much backache and headache, was nervous, irritable and was despondent. Sometimes my appetite was good but more often it was not. My kidneys troubled me at times and I could walk only a short distance.

"I saw your advertisement in a paper and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I was helped from the first. At the end of two months the swelling had gone down, I was relieved of pain, and could walk with ease. I continued with the medicine and now I do almost all my housework. I know your medicine has saved me from the grave and I am willing for you to publish anything I write to you, for the good of others."—Mrs. ESTELLA GILLISPIE, R.F.D. No. 4, Box 34, St. Anne, Illinois.

As between Ringdahl and Eberhart, its sure to be Gov. Ringdahl, if the people of Minnesota have not lost their self-respect.

Isn't it startling to what lengths some newspapers will go to mislead the public and injure a candidate? Now we have the Duluth Herald in its news columns saying in shrieking headlines, "Scott Says Bliss Told Him Oil Trust Gave to Help Teddy" and in modest sub-heads, "Former West Virginia Senator Tells Clapp Committee of Campaign Fund," "Describes Talk over Telephone With Man He Thought Was Roosevelt." Think of it. The rankest kind of hearsay, and a telephone talk with he didn't know who, are boldly headed so as to convey the impression that the Standard Oil Co., was largely responsible for Roosevelts election before. Such efforts as this show how much the old parties hate and fear Roosevelt.

The Democratic National Committee is specializing on the "spiels" that they want to raise a campaign fund for Wilson's election by popular contibutions, as, without this means they cannot raise money enough, as they are opposed to the trusts and the trusts are against Wilson. We have received some letters from this committee telling us all this, and asking that we publish, free of charge, a lot of advertising plates which they furnish through the American Press Association. Further than that, they have had the plates shipped to us by express, prepaid. We refused them, as we dont take much stock in their truthfulness when they have a lot of money to spend with the A. P. A., but not a cent for the country editor—the man they want to do the actual work of their deceptive campagning. They favor and pay tribute to Big Business, and are simply grafting the common people.

KOLDEN'S LUMBER YARD
D. PAYNE, Mgr.

For Representative.

(Paid adv. $5.00. Published in behalf of and authorized by Walther Anderson.)

I wish to announce to the voters of the 63rd Legislative District that I am a candidate for the office of Representative on the Republican ticket.

If intrusted with the duties of this office it will be my aim to institute and support progressive measures, and I pledge myself to be ever mindful of the welfare of this district and our state at large.

Yours Sincerely,
WALTHER ANDERSON.

For County Auditor

(Adv.; paid by P. B. Malberg.)

To the voters of Marshall county.

I hereby announce that I am a

Progressive Democaatic candidate for the office of County Auditor and will appreciate your help and influence during this campaign and be thankful if you have me in your vote on election day Nov. 5th.

And if you elect me I shall conduct myself, and serve you in the future as I have in the past.

Yours Truly,
—P. B. Malberg.

OSCAR WAHLUND
Candidate for
STATE LEGISLATURE
Sixty-third Legislative District.
Marshall, Kittson & Roseau Counties
ELECTION, NOV. 5, 1912

For Register of Deeds.

(Adv.—Paid by Carl Hanson.)

Having received the Republican nomination for Register of Deeds of Marshall County, I respectfully solicit the support of the voters at the ensuing General Election. I pledge myself, if elected, to continue to discharge the duties of the office faithfully and to the best of my ability.

CARL HANSON.

For Register of Deeds.

(Adv.; paid by August A. Johnson.)

AUGUST A. JOHNSON
Candidate for Register of Deeds
on the Democratic Ticket. Will appreciate your vote and influence.

For Judge of Probate

(Adv., paid by H. O. Berve.)

I am a non-partizan candidate for Judge of Probate for Marshall County. I am a resident of the eastern part of the county, where I am now engaged in farming, but have been a teacher in the schools of this county for nine years.

On account of the backward condition of farm work this year, I shall not be able to make any extensive personal campaign. For that reason I want to here state that, if elected, I shall discharge the duties of the office fairly and impartially, giving all possible assistance to those who may have any business to transact in the probate court. As a non-partizan candidate, I shall appreciate and be thankful for the support and vote of all political parties.

Yours truly,
H. O. BERVE.

Card of Thanks.

(Adv.; paid by Carl Holm, Sec.)

I desire to take this opportunity and this means of thanking all of my friends for the excellent vote given me at the primary election.

This vote convinces me that the people of Marshall County are well satisfied with my work as Probate Judge and that this is one instance wherein honesty and efficiency are appreciated.

Thanking you for past favors, I remain,

Very truly yours,
PETER H. HOLM.

NEED IS FOR SPECIALIZATION

Work of Years Has Shown That Education of Children Cannot Be Standardized.

If the children came into the world standarized like the parts of an automobile, the educating of them would be a much simpler matter than it is today. Likewise, it would be a deal less interesting.

Fortunately or unfortunately, children are not so standarized. One has a ten-candlepower intellect, so to speak, and one a three. Moreover, even those who have substantially the same brain power, require different treatment to get that brain power in action.

To vary the metaphor, one child has the entrance to the house of his mind on the front porch, where everyone can see and reach it. Another, with quite as large a house, may have the entering door hidden in some side angle, where the casual passerby will never see it.

The boy of 15 who drags in his class in fifth grade can grasp an electrical problem better than his father or his teachers. In that line, he is ahead of the average high school student. The house of his mind has its door in an electrical recess.

The world did well to insist on education. The world will do better when that education is more individualized, more fitted to each special case.

REALLY NOT WORTH HAVING

Average Person Will Think Suitors Were Foolish to Quarrel About This Woman.

She was a beauty of a somewhat cow-like type—phlegmatic and indifferent—and she had lived in a little suburban town all her life. Her circle of admirers had dwindled down to two suitors—one in a distant city, who did his courting by letter, and the other on the spot—and she couldn't make up her mind which she would have.

"You don't know what a bother it is, Cousin Mary," she remarked to a relative who was trying to sound her on the subject, "this decidin' between James and John. They're both of 'em good enough fellows. Some people want me to have James—he's the one out west. He's right well off an' could give me a good home; but I guess I kinder favor John the most. Pa likes him, too. Pa don't care for James; but then John ain't got much money. Well, I don't know what I'll do. Maybe it would be easier to have John, he lives right next door, an' I wouldn't have to go travelin' 'way out west after I was married. But then James is so well off! Say, Cousin Mary, s'posin' you jest decide for me. I'll take whichever one you say!"

NOT ALL GUARDSMEN.

It is not infrequently said that a British Guardsman, or "Guardee," as an officer of the household troops is familiarly called, enjoys an advantage over his poorer neighbors in the rest of the army. If he has, he does not take advantage of it. The majority of well-known generals never served an hour in the elite corpse of the army. Lord Roberts was an artilleryman; Lord Kitchener an engineer; Lord Wolsey, the late Sir William Butler, Sir Redvers Buller, and Sir George White were infantrymen; Sir John French, Sir Robert Baden-Powell were in the cavalry, and Sir Evelyn Wood has been in both cavalry and infantry. Lord Methuen is the best known of those who were promoted from the Foot Guards.

IN DOUBT.

Post—Is her father a country gentleman?

Parker—I really can't say. I've only seen his behavior in town.—Satire.

TWO MEANINGS.

Ethel—Did you get tanned much on your vacation?

Archibald—No; mamma lost her slipper.—Judge.

WHAT HE'D BEEN DOING.

"What's the matter—been whitewashing a fence?"

"No, just cleaning my wife's white shoes."

ALL SOUND.

"My heart is a sound organ."

"Yes, and I know the belle who can wring it."

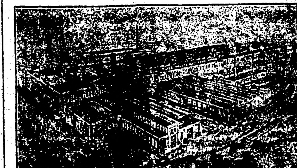
Selling Victor Safes and fire-proof boxes to merchants, doctors, lawyers, dentists and well-to-do farmers, all of whom realize the need of a safe, but do not know how easy it is to own one. Salesmen declare our proposition one of the best, clean-cut money-making opportunities ever received. Without previous experience YOU can duplicate the success of others. Our handsomely illustrated 200-page catalog will enable you to present the subject to customers in as interesting a manner as though you were piloting them through our factory. Men appointed as salesmen receive advice and instructions for selling safes, giving convincing talking points which it is impossible for a prospective customer to deny. Why don't YOU be the first to apply from your vicinity before someone else gets the territory. We can favor only one salesman out of each locality.



Our New Home. Capacity 20,000 Safes Annually.

The 25th anniversary of our company was celebrated by erecting the most modern safe factory in the world. Wide awake men who received our special selling inducements rendered it necessary to double our output. We are spending many thousands of dollars enlarging our sales organization, but to learn all particulars, it will cost you only the price of a postal card.

WILLIAM FORSBERG

An Explanation Is Necessary

Some Questions Regarding Mud Lake Drainage Matters.

It is an indisputable fact that a large tract of land lying between ditches 11 and 200, of the big Mud Lake drainage system, is at present most horribly wet, and that some of the settlers are moving out because of the surplus water. Freezing up time is so close that no adequate relief can be furnished this fall, and the contract for this drainage work in Marshall County expires this year.

Of course an extension of time will be asked by the contractor, and the engineer will undoubtedly insist that it be granted. The engineer has a nice, fat position—and some opportunities—and an extension would pay him well. But, the settlers are forced to pay the drainage tax this year and THEY GET NO EXTENSION. The engineer and the contractor knew what they were doing when the contract was made, and, in justice to the taxpayers, the letter and terms of the contract should be rigidly adhered to. It is common talk that the contractor has taken and completed other ditch contracts in this county, since taking the Mud Lake contract, and has had at least one dredge standing idle for the past two months or more. It is fair to assume that the engineer knew this, and paid no attention, instead of insisting that the Mud Lake work be hastened to completion according to contract.

Why is it that no work whatever has been done on the smaller ditches having a direct outlet into the Thief river (State Ditch 83)?

Why is it that no attempt has been made to drain Green Stump Lake, which lies directly in the way and spoils the road for settlers who want to come to Holt, and which is largely responsible for the present flooded conditions?

It is stated that all the lateral ditches in the immediate vicinity of the engineer's homestead are entirely completed. Why has this been done while there is a great expanse of territory south of Ditch No. 11 left entirely without a ditch or road of any kind?

Is it true that the contractors have been doing the work as fast as the engineers were prepared, and in the places directed by the engineer?

Is it due to negligence, incompetence, or agreement between the engineer in charge and the contractor that the work is so far from completion, except in favored localities?

These are some of the things that the engineer will have to explain to the satisfaction of the settlers, and, in his own interest, they should be fully and fairly explained, without evasion, before any extension may be asked or granted.

Our columns are open for an answer by the engineer.

A Boost for Judge Holm

(Adv.; paid by S. Erickson.)

We fail to see wherein there is any license to change our probate judge. Judge Holm has certainly made an efficient probate judge, whose integrity, honor and ability is a recognized fact, not only in our own county, but throughout the state. In fact throughout the state Marshall county is credited with having one of the most efficient probate judges in the state. When outside people recognize this fact, why should the people of Marshall County go blind all of a sudden [illegible] time. Steph[illegible] Leader

A While for a Time.

A Cleveland school teacher writes that she asked her class what was the difference between the expressions, "a while," and "a time," says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Nobody seemed to have any ideas on the subject. Finally the light of intelligence was seen to shine in the eyes of one little boy, and the teacher called upon him to save the intellectual honor of the class.

"I know, teacher!" he cried eagerly. "When papa says he's going out for a while, mamma says she knows he's going out for a time!"

That's one way of looking at it.

Wise Young Man.

"I say," he said, "are you asleep?"

"Why do you ask?" queried the other, sleepily.

"I want to borrow a sovereign."

"Yes," said the other, turning over and closing his eyes. "I'm asleep."

ROOSEVELT SHOT

ATTEMPT MADE TO LYNCH MAN WHO FIRED SHOT PREVENTED BY VICTIM

MANUSCRIPT SAVED HIS LIFE

X-RAY WILL BE USED TO LOCATE THE COURSE OF THE BULLET

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 15.—Theodore Roosevelt was shot and slightly wounded last night as he was leaving the Gilpatrick hotel for the Auditorium to make a speech. The man who fired the shot was arrested and gave the name of John Schrank, and his address as 372 East Tenth street, New York.

After seeing the man arrested, Mr. Roosevelt was rushed to the Auditorium, where he made his speech at 9:45 and was then taken to the Emergency hospital, where six physicians examined the wound and decided to take an X-ray photograph.

The bullet struck the colonel in the breast, a roll of manuscript saved his life.

The crowd at the Auditorium was nearly panic stricken when it was informed that Roosevelt had been shot but was quieted by the appearance of the colonel a moment later. He seemed to be growing weaker during his speech, but said, "Let me alone, I'm all right," when friends came to his assistance.

"I Will Make Speech or Die"

Physicians who attended the colonel implored him to postpone his address but he answered:

"I'll make the speech or die."

Got Big Reception

Colonel Roosevelt arrived in Milwaukee at 5 o'clock last evening and was given a rousing reception. He had dinner with a party of friends in the private dining room on the main floor of the hotel. At 8:20 o'clock the party stepped from the hotel into a waiting automobile to go to the Auditorium. An immense crowd had gathered outside to greet him. The cheers were so great that the shot was scarcely heard.

Bullet Hits Manuscript

Roosevelt was standing in the automobile waving his hat to the crowds when Schrank stepped up and fired the shot, the bullet striking the bundle of manuscript.

Secretary Leaps on Man

The colonel scarcely moved when the bullet struck him. Albert Martin, the colonel's secretary, leaped upon Schrank, preventing him from firing a second shot. Martin grasped him by the shoulders and bore him to the ground. Capt. A. O. Girard of Milwaukee, who was seated in the front seat of the machine, leaped on the crazed man, disarming him.

"Lynch Him," Is Cry

"Lynch him!" was the cry that went up from the crowd which had fallen back at the sound of the shot and the commotion, but which had quickly pressed around the automobile.

Colonel Asks That He Be Spared

The colonel implored them to spare the would-be assassin who was immediately taken in hand by Harry F. Cochems, who held him until the police arrived. He was taken to headquarters.

Against Third Term Idea

Schrank is small of stature and according to the police he made statements which showed him to be radical on the subject of Roosevelt running for a third term. He admitted firing the shot, according to the police, and said:

"Any man loking for a third term ought to be shot."

Visited by McKinley's Spirit

In notes found in the man's pockets at the station were statements that he had been visited in a dream by the spirit of the late President McKinley who had said, indicating Roosevelt:

"This is my murderer; avenge my death."

Early reports stated that Schrank was a socialist, but these were not borne out by later statements.

News Spreads Quickly

The news of what had happened quickly spread. The shooting was the only topic of conversation on the streets, in the cafes and wherever men assembled. In an incredibly short time people gathered at the hotel where the shooting occurred, and the circumstances were told many times over.

Bulletins Bring Cheers

An enormous crowd gathered outside of Emergency hospital, where Colonel Roosevelt was taken after his address in the Auditorium. Bulletins on his condition were watched for eagerly and when encouraging news was brought from the hospital, cheers rent the air.

MAN WHO SHOT COLONEL IS GOTHAM LAUNDRYMAN

New York, Oct 15.—John Schrank, who shot Colonel Roosevelt, formerly lived here. He is a laundryman. He left home a month ago. His family lives here. The police are investigating his history.

WHEAT SHIPPED TO ORIENT

Portland, Ore., Oct. 15.—Within the last few days 3,000 tons of wheat were taken from the North Bank warehouse and transferred to the Northern Pacific for shipment to Puget Sound to be trans-shipped out of Tacoma to the Orient because Tacoma has Oriental service and Portland has not.

It is known that the Harriman lines are having the same difficulty as the North Bank, but the 3,000 tons is only a drop in the bucket compared to the 60,000 or more tons of wheat which will be shipped to the sound and transshipped to the Orient this year, out of the Inland Empire, in part because Portland lacks the Oriental service.

SHE COULD ANSWER FOR HIM

Little Comfort for Candidate in Reason Assigned by Wife for Her Being Confident.

Mr. Williams, one of five candidates for the office of sheriff in one of the northern counties of Wisconsin, was making a house-to-house canvass of a rural district, soliciting votes. Coming to the house of Farmer Thompson, he was met at the door by the good housewife, and the following dialogue ensued:

"Is Mr. Thompson at home?"

"No; he has gone to town."

"I am very sorry, as I would have liked to talk to him."

"Is there anything I can tell him for you?"

"My name is Williams, candidate for sheriff, and I wanted to exact a promise from him to vote for me at the coming election."

"Oh, that will be all right. I know he will promise, for he has already promised four other candidates the same thing."—Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.

Pure From Start to Finish.

There is perhaps nothing in daily use in the home in which purity is so important as it is in baking powder. On its purity depends the purity of the materials used, the success of the bakings, etc. And possibly the one thing that has served to make Calumet Baking Powder so much of a favorite with the critical cooks of the country, is the fact that Calumet is pure from start to finish.

You can rely on Calumet's purity for the simple reason that every ounce of the materials used is first tested by experienced chemists and then mixed with the utmost care to insure its uniformity. And standing in the can or changes of weather, etc., cannot alter it in any respect.

But perhaps the best thing of all, is the fact that Calumet never fails. Every baking in which Calumet is used, is sure to come from the oven as light and as fluffy as you can wish. This not only means wholesome, tasty foods—but a big economy as well. Try Calumet next bake-day—it's the best baking powder made—for two World's Pure Food Expositions, one in Chicago, 1907, one at Paris, France, 1912—have given it the highest awards. Adv.

Reason Was Plain.

"My husband has deserted me and I want a warrant," announced the large lady.

"What reason did he give for deserting you?" asked the prosecutor.

"I don't want any lip from you. I want a warrant. I don't know what reason he had."

"I think I understand his reason," said the official feebly, as he proceeded to draw up a warrant.

Righteous Indignation.

Little Ruth was the youngest daughter in a very strict Presbyterian family that especially abhorred profanity.

One day little Ruth become exceedingly exasperated with one of her dollies. In her baby vocabulary she could find no words to express adequately her disapproval of dolly's conduct.

Finally, throwing the offending dolly across the room, she cried, feelingly:

"My gracious! I wish I belonged to a family that sweared!"

BACKACHE NOT A DISEASE

But a Symptom, a Danger Signal Which Every Woman Should Heed.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Read about Mrs. Woodall's experience.

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

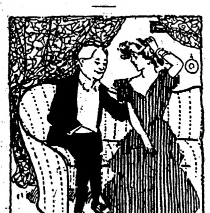
SUGARED.



Kitty (blushing)—I am angry with Horace, and I only gave you that kiss through revenge.

Harry (laughing)—It reminded me of revenge.

Kitty—In what way?

Harry—Well, you know, "revenge is sweet."

Eggs Clotworthy Ate.

Harry Clotworthy, who is an expert on military affairs, entered the dining room of the National Press club one morning and carried with him a ravenous appetite. Having eaten one breakfast, which consisted largely of eggs, he ordered another breakfast, which consisted even more largely of eggs. After his repast he went to the writing room to get off some letters. Half an hour later the steward of the club found the colored waiter loafing about the entrance of the writing room and asked him what he meant by being absent from his post.

"I got a good excuse," exclaimed the waiter, exhibiting the check for the egg breakfast. "Mr. Clotworthy done eat $2 worth of eggs and I ain't goin' to let him git away from here without payin' for them, high as eggs is now."

Protected Both Ways.

Two conservative ladies of old-fashioned notions were traveling in the west and, becoming interested in a young girl on the train, finally asked why she was making so long a journey alone. They were greatly shocked at her blithe explanation:

"Well, you see, my mother and stepfather live at one end of the journey, and my father and stepmother live at the other. They send me to each other twice a year, so there isn't a bit of danger with four parents all on the lookout!"

"GOOD STUFF."
A Confirmed Coffee Drinker Takes to Postum.

A housewife was recently surprised when cook served Postum instead of coffee. She says:

"For the last five or six years I have been troubled with nervousness, indigestion and heart trouble. I couldn't get any benefit from the doctor's medicine so finally he ordered me to stop drinking coffee, which I did.

"I drank hot water while taking the doctor's medicine, with some improvement, then went back to coffee with the same old trouble as before.

"A new servant girl told me about Postum—said her folks used it and liked it in place of coffee. We got a package but I told her I did not believe my husband would like it, as he was a great coffee drinker.

"To my surprise he called for a third cup, said it was 'good stuff' and wanted to know what it was. We have used Postum ever since and both feel better than we have in years.

"My husband used to have bad spells with his stomach and would be sick three or four days, during which time he could not eat or drink anything. But since he gave up coffee and took to Postum, he has had no more trouble, and we now fully believe it was all caused by coffee.

"I have not had any return of my former troubles since drinking Postum, and feel better and can do more work than in the last ten years. We tell everyone about it—some say they tried it and did not like it. I tell them it makes all the difference as to how it's made. It should be made according to directions—then it is delicious."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

News of Minnesota

Interesting Items Gathered Throughout the Gopher State.

DRAINAGE IMPRACTICAL.

It Would Be Necessary to Deepen Two Rivers.

Crookston.—Congressman Steenerson has returned from his trip through Red Lake reservation. The party consisted of Mr. Steenerson, Mr. Shipe of the Indian bureau, Mr. Kinney, forester of the interior department, and Mr. Dickens, Indian agent at Red Lake, two teamsters and a guide.

They started from the agency and drove around the south side of the lake to the outlet and thence to Thorhult and went into the "Eleven Towns," where they inspected the ditches and drained swamp lands, and thence across the Red Lake river at Neptune to Clearwater river and back to the agency.

They had two teams and carried a full camp outfit. They traversed some country never before traversed by teams.

The greatest difficulty in reclaiming the land by drainage was found to be the fact that both the Red Lake and Clearwater rivers have so low banks that there is hardly any perceptible fall from the adjoining lands.

The streams are now about bank full and in order to serve as drainage outlets would have to be deepened. The Red Lake river is in this condition for 12 or 15 miles west of the reservation boundary and to drain the land on the reservation the channel would have to be deepened from the outlet clear down to Highlanding.

DOCTORS BANQUET.

Interesting Papers Presented Before Upper Mississippi Medical Society.

Brainerd.—The Upper Mississippi Medical society's meeting in the city was followed by a banquet when papers were read and discussed. Papers were contributed by Drs. Desmond and Witherow, and among the members of the society present were Drs. B. F. Van Valkenberg of Long Prairie, Smith of Cass Lake, Millspaugh of Little Falls, Kenyon and Coulter of Wadena, Lowthian and Desmond of Akeley, J. A. Thabes of Brainerd, Roberts and Hall of Little Falls, Knickerbocker of Staples, Will of Bertha and Hart of Pequot.

Dr. Alfred Day Attends Convention.

Lakefield.—A successful session of the Jackson County Sunday School association was held at Alpha. Addresses were made by Dr. Alfred Day of Syracuse, N. Y., and J. A. Mansfield of Lakefield. Special music was given by Miss Harriman of Mankato, Mrs. Malebow of Wilder and Mrs. J. A. Mansfield of Lakefield. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. J. S. Crawley; vice president, Professor J. B. Arp; secretary, Ed Moe. The next convention will be held at Heron Lake.

Colonel Hits Wilson Again.

Duluth.—Gov. Woodrow Wilson's writings on immigration were taken up by Colonel Roosevelt, who charged that the Democratic candidate had offered explanations of his views of such a character that he did not see how any man could be expected to believe them. Colonel Roosevelt also criticised Governor Wilson for a statement attributed to him that the United States Steel corporation was supporting the "Bull Moose ticket." Colonel Roosevelt came here from Michigan.

South Dakota Farmer Killed.

Pipestone.—Julius Rider, a farmer residing over the South Dakota line, is dead as the result of injuries received while at work about a gasoline engine. His coat sleeve caught in the gearing of the engine and he was thrown to the ground with such force that his skull was fractured.

Damaged Steamer Proceeds.

Duluth, Minn.—The Kissman steamer Onoko which has been beached on Basswood island of the Apostle group early Monday morning to prevent her from sinking has been released and has proceeded to Buffalo to discharge her cargo of grain.

Houston Taxpayers Protest.

Caledonia.—Houston county taxpayers are to organize a tax review league the first Tuesday in December. Citizens of the county contend that the assessment of real estate, as equalized by the county board, is too heavy.

Soo Auditor Dies.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 12.—Robert Toombs, auditor of the Soo line, was stricken with heart failure as he was returning to work on a street car, and died a few minutes later.

Hill Signs Check for $1,240,000.

St. Paul, Oct. 10.—Signing his name to a personal check for $1,240,000 as carelessly as a school boy would sign his daily lessons, James J. Hill purchased outright the Second National bank of St. Paul for this amount of money. He will become sole owner of the property when a special meeting of the board of directors is held for the purpose of making an official transfer. Mr. Hill's check for $1,240,000 will be split among 4,000 stockholders who will receive $310 a share for their holdings.

RAID "RAILWAY OFFICE"

An Extensive "Get-Rich-Quick" Scheme Alleged.

Minneapolis.—In the recent raid on the Minneapolis headquarters of the North & South Railroad association, capitalized at $2,500,000, located in a hall room at the Fairmont hotel, Ninth street and Hennepin avenue, and the arrest of John M. Wiley, president and treasurer; Fred Breckley, secretary and chief engineer, and A. I. Buell, an associate, the postal authorities have broken up, they say, what they charge is one of the greatest and farthest reaching "get-rich-quick" schemes that has developed for years. By a series of moves extending from Friday night to yesterday, the entire official staff of the association and the records were taken into custody.

The plan of the three promoters was the construction of a railroad from Winnipeg to New Orleans, the exact location of which, through Minnesota, shifted from time to time, Assistant United States District Attorney Joel M. Dickey said, according to the willingness or unwillingness of particular localities to buy stock. For some time past, acting upon reports from Little Falls and elsewhere that the men were using the mails for fraudulent purposes, Rush D. Simmons, chief postal inspector, said the government had been after the men.

The bail of John M. Wiley was fixed at $5,000, and that of Fred Breckley and A. I. Buell at $2,500 each by United State Judge Page Morris.

Moorhead to Send Delegation.

Moorhead.—Secretary Wright of the Moorhead Commercial club has asked for twenty-five reservations for local business men and manufacturers for the "get-after-new business" special train, which has been arranged for by the Commercial club of Fargo for the purpose of making a trip over the Surrey-Minot cutoff of the Great Northern. Moorhead was invited to participate and join the commercial men of Fargo in making social calls on the busines men in the new towns. One of the invited guests of the Fargo club is S. G. Comstock of this city.

Refuses to Meet Strikers.

Duluth, Minn.—After making a final statement Tuesday offering to take back all old employes who had not participated in the rioting incident to the present car strike here, Manager Warren of the Duluth Street Car company declared that he would not meet a committee of the men. The committee declared that the strikers are ready to go back to work on Manager Warren's announced terms and ask Mr. Warren to receive a committee before they will return to work.

Reusswig Hearing Oct. 15.

Grand Rapids.—The preliminary hearing in the case of F. E. Reusswig, charged with knowingly passing fraudulent claims against School District No. 1, while acting as director of the school board, will come on for hearing Oct. 15. Bail in the case was fixed at $750. The arrest of Reusswig followed the report of accountants, as the figures showed that several warrants had been paid for which no services were given.

Car Goes Over Embankment.

Owatonna.—Lack of lights on an automobile was the cause of an accident near Hayfield when a car with two passengers ran off a bridge, severely injuring both and demolishing the car. The car was being driven by Benjamin Overlie and was owned by Carl Glady. Tony Hanson was the other occupant. The car was running without lights and the driver was unable to see the bridge.

Search for Lost Hunter.

Eveleth.—About fifty men left here for Zim to search for J. H. Corbett, 65 years old, the Adams mine captain who disappeared Sunday while hunting partridges with two companions in the Stone lake country. It is feared he is lost in the big swamp in that locality and may starve. His two companions fired guns all night, and came across the place where he had camped last night.

New Settler Kills Himself.

Wadena.—Joseph Lamer, a farmer who came here a year ago from Marshall county, Iowa, was found dead in a swamp along Wing river. He had shot himself through the heart. He recently sold his farm and had been acting strangely. He had been missing since Saturday and was found only after a systematic search by Sheriff Irwin.

Moorhead Has New Ordinances.

Moorhead.—The city council passed an ordinance allowing the Tri-State Telegraph & Telephone company the right to string wires and cables along certain streets and alleys for its long distance service exclusively. An ordinance was passed also, providing for the licensing and governing of motor vehicles used for the transportation of passengers. Another ordinance passed provides for the licensing of theaters, moving picture shows and kindred amusements. The theaters fee is $25 a year.

AFTER THE GRIP PURIFY THE BLOOD

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Are the Best Blood Builder and Will Cure You as They Cured This Woman.

It is of the utmost importance to your health, if you have suffered from the grip, that you cleanse the blood of the lingering germs and put it in condition to resist disease.

After the acute attack the sufferer is left with a debilitated system, is short of breath upon the slightest exertion and is affected by every change of weather. The system is in such a weakened condition that it is powerless to resist the attack of such diseases as pneumonia and bronchitis.

This is a condition which emphatically calls for a tonic for the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine for this purpose for they act directly on the blood which they cleanse of all impurities. They tone up the nerves and give health and strength to the debilitated system.

The debility which follows an attack of the grip can only be cured by making the blood rich and red. This Dr. Williams' Pink Pills never fail to do promptly and it explains how they cured Mrs. F. R. Boyd, of No. 607 South Ninth street, Minneapolis, Minn. She says:

"I was never well after an attack of the grip a few years ago until I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before this I had found nothing that helped me. I was all run down, pale and thin. My appetite was poor and my head ached continually. I didn't feel like myself at all.

"Someone finally recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to me and I found them just the medicine for my case. They gave me a hearty appetite and a good, clear color. I got back my vitality and was soon a well woman. I can safely say that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do all that is claimed for them. I heartily recommend them."

If you are suffering from after-effects of the grip or other wasting disease, try the remedy that has cured so many stubborn cases, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, upon receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. A copy of our booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," is free on request. Adv.

INTENSE ITCHING WITH RASH

336 W. 20th St., Los Angeles, Cal.—"The skin affection began in a little red colored rash on my right leg, and gradually spread to other parts of my body. Then small pimples appeared and later several boils on my leg. The skin around the boils was at first bright red, and afterwards became darker colored. The clothing irritated the sores. The pain caused nervousness and loss of sleep, and the itching was intense. After using various remedies for about six months I saw how a person afflicted with skin disease was cured by using Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

"I bathed the sores with Cuticura Soap and hot water and then applied Cuticura Ointment and after about six months' constant treatment the sores gradually healed, leaving the skin soft and smooth. Cuticura Soap and Ointment effected a complete cure." (Signed) H. A. Robinson, Feb. 24, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston." Adv.

Explains the Undertaker's Grouch.

"Who is that fellow sitting humped up and muttering to himself out there on the horse block?"

"Aw, that's Ezra Toombs, the undertaker," replied the landlord of the Skeedee tavern. "He's feeling sore over the way his business has been going of late. You see, the doctor gave Judge Feebles two weeks to live; that was six weeks ago, and the judge is up and around now and figgerin' on marryin' agin. Every time Ezro meet the doctor he askes him, 'How about it, hey?' and they have a row. And now he's sittin' out there watching a tramp painter gilding the weathervane of the church across the street. Ezra says, by Heck, he's about ready to move away, things is so dead here."—Kansas City Star.

Theodore Roosevelt told an absolute truth when he said that the malicious attacks made upon him by the opposition newspapers were responsible for the cowardly attempt to assassinate him. This is notably true of the big daily newspapers of the cities. They are nearly all owned by corporate interests and edited by hirelings who must obey orders, regardless of consequences. Their vile and bitter misrepresentations are flung broadcast and if they incite weak minded readers to the murder point, the corporation owned paper says, "he is insane." But—how about the newspaper editor who has deliberately tried to influence those weaker minds without caring that their pernicious teachings might lead to murder, if they could only carry their point? We have no doubt but that a lot of these chaps feel terribly disappointed that the assassin's bullet did not find a lodgement in Col. Roosevelt's heart.

It is becoming evident that a strenuous effort will be put forth to keep Judge Bunn on the supreme bench in this state. A concentrated effort is now being made by the St. Paul Dispatch to work country editors to publish a supplement on behalf of Jubge Bunn, and, if he should fail of election, another plan being worked is to have C. L. Brown, a present member of the court, elected as chief justice. If Brown is elected it will leave a vacancy to be filled by Gov. Eberhart, as Justice Brown would undoubtedly resign immediately after election. Judge Bunn is an Eberhart appointee and would undoubtedly be appointed again, if defeated. It will be safer to defeat both Brown and Bunn at the polls on Nevember 5.

There seems to be some standpat republicans and democrats who will vote for the socialist candidate in an attempt to defeat Congressman Halvor Steenerson. Merit or results cut no figure with that class. Their strongest characteristic seems to be a hatred of any good man because he is not their kind, or will not do their bidding.

For Judge of Probate

(Adv., paid by H. O. Berve.)

I am a non-partizan candidate for Judge of Probate for Marshall County. I am a resident of the eastern part of the county, where I am now engaged in farming, but have been a teacher in the schools of this county for nine years.

On account of the backward condition of farm work this year, I shall not be able to make any extensive personal campaign. For that reason I want to here state that, if elected, I shall discharge the duties of the office fairly and impartially, giving all possible assistance to those who may have any business to transact in the probate court. As a non-partizan candidate, I shall appreciate and be thankful for the support and vote of all political parties.

Yours truly,

SEEK THE GARDEN OF EDEN

Many Have Joined In That Unsatisfied Quest Since First the World Was Young.

The location of the Garden of Eden has been determined so many times with such absolute and authoritative finality, albeit each time in a different place, that not all the critics will take seriously the announcement of Sir William Willcocks, the English engineer who has been for several years in the employ of the Turkish government engaged in irrigation and reclamation work in Mesopotamia. Sir William is of the old-fashioned school that firmly believes Eden was a definite region, and his work in the valleys of the Euphrates and the Tigris convinces him that the historical and biblical Eden was below the junction of these two rivers, and not far above this point, as many scholars and archaeologists have believed.

He has recently set forth his view in great detail before the Royal Geographical society, and is in no wise disconcerted by the comment that he makes the site of Eden identical with the region of the Arabian Nights. Sir William believes, moreover, that the ancient Eden was the same engineering methods as are now being employed there again after the lapse of ages, and he is so enthusiastic that he urges England to bargain Egypt for Babylonia.

In the meantime the land for Eden will go on—a never-ending search in which every human heart seeks the earthly paradise by methods and pathways all its own.

GET REFORM THROUGH SHAME

New York Friends of Animals Have Really Novel Scheme Which Has Worked Well.

At noontime the energetic member of the S. P. C. A. set out with a bundle of grain bags with which he replaced the stuffy antiquated bags tied to the necks of several horses which were trying in vain to get a bite to eat. On each bag the letters "S. P. C. A." were printed in red.

"These things are not much of an advertisement for your society," said a bystander. "They are not much better than the bags you took off."

"They're good enough," said the society's representative. "They will answer the purpose all right. By tomorrow or the day after the owners of these horses will have grain bags of the latest pattern. This is the surest way to make them invest. We may rant around and threaten arrest, but they pay no attention. We dare not confiscate their bags without providing others. It is the appearance of these others that works the reform. Any man who has enterprise enough to own a horse has too much pride to advertise the fact that his grain bag has been provided by the S. P. C. A. so he hustles around and buys a new one."—New York Press.

SCIENTISTS GET SPECIMENS.

With a sugar barrel full of snakes, lizarzds and unusual specimens of fish, a large collection of birds, about 10,000 insects and spiders and the carcasses of three large bears and two cubs, Prof. C. R. Crosby of the department of entomology at Cornell university, and Dr. H. A. Wright, members of the Cornell expedition into the Okefenokee swamp have returned to Ithaca. Prof. Crosby, four other local scientists, E. L. Worshman, state entomologist of Georgia, and his assistants enter the swamp about June 1 for exploration and study. The snakes, lizards and fish taken were hardened in formaline and packed in a barrel. The birds and game brought back will be mounted. The trip taken by the party was the first of its kind in the interests of the state entomological department.

Crop Losses Amount to Thousands of Dollars

Grygla Man Blames Heavy Losses to Parties in Charge of Mud Lake Drainage Work

Grygla, Minn., Oct. 22, 1912.
Charles Latta.
Holt, Minn.

Dear Sir:—I noticed an article in your paper concerning Judicial Ditch No. 11, Marshall County, and I was pleased to know that you were not afraid to champion the cause of the poor settlers in this part of the county, and that there was one newspaper man in this part of the county who has not been "fixed."

There seems to be something radically wrong with the management of this whole work on No. 11. The work has been carried on in such a way as to unnecessarily allow the drowning out of thousands of dollars' worth of crops in the country to the east of Mud Lake. Many miles of ditches have been dug at the upper end which collect the water and carry it down to Mud Lake, and there the ditches are only partly dug or filled with mud and other obstructions and the water is dammed back and overflows thousands of acres of land. The parties in charge of the work seem to be entirely indifferent and act as though the settlers ought to be glad to be allowed to live.

I have been over many miles of the upper end of the No. 11 ditches and I think it is about as poor a job of ditching as I ever saw. The ditches are uneven and ill-shaped, and no attempt has been made to follow a regular grade line; water stands two or three feet deep in some places, and in other places there are humps which nearly fill the ditch. The only good roads that have been made are the roads along the main line between Thief River Falls and Grygla; back from the main road the roads and ditches are a poor job, to say the least. The roads are narrow, full of pitch holes, and rounded on the top like a hog's back. The ditch was to be all finished this year, and it is safe to say it is not half finished and will not be finished next year. If it is ever properly finished, much, if not all, of the work that has been gone over up to the present time will have to be gone over again.

The people in charge of the work seem to be riding on the crest of a wave of great prosperity. In a few years one of the engineers has grown to be a wealthy land holder and banker. One of the attorneys advertises for sale 5,000 acres of his own land, drained by this ditch, for which he asks $20 per acre, or $100,000. He is also heavily interested in banks, houses and lots, etc. Others connected with the work seem to be unusually prosperous; automobiles are to them small luxuries.

The contractors are carrying on the work with what would appear to be the most reckless extravagance, and seem to be supplied with an unlimited amount of money to meet all expenses. All of which suggests to me that it would be wise on the part of those who are paying for this ditch to see that a full and fair accounting be made of every expenditure, and that the contractor be paid only for what he actually and honestly earns under his contract, and that those who are bearing the burden and putting up the money for the work be given simple justice.

CARL J. HANSON

Ringbo Rumbles

On account of the unsettled condition of tee weather the farmers are eagerly looking forward to the time when their grain shall be safely stored away in grainaries, and the threshing machines are busy early and late, doing excellent word in spite of dampness.

A hunting party consisting of Martin Matson and Bernard Larson was seen in this vicinity last Sunday. Due to some accident they were obliged to stop in at the Erick Johnson home where they, together with the Misses Knutson, Johnson, Larson and Bjerk spent a very enjoyable evening. The hunters reported that they would be back in this territory before long.

Misses Belle and Ruth Knutson returned last Friday from Dakota where they have been busy until recently cooking for harvest hands.

Margaret Rankin attended the teachers convention at Middle River.

Jens Sorter's little boy was kicked by a horse the fore part of the week. We hope he was not seriously injured.

A numbea of ladies visited wirh Mrs. Skibley on Sunday afternoon.

The election and threshing are the most important talk at present. Who shall we elect? The man who will serve the people.

A Boost for Judge Holm

(Adv.; paid by S. Erickson.)

We fail to see wherein there is any license to change our probate judge. Judge Holm has certainly made an efficient probate judge, whose integrity, honor and ability is a recognized fact, not only in our own county, but throughout the state. In fact, throughout the state Marshall county is credited with having one of the most efficient probate judges in the state. When outside people recognize this fact, why should the people of Marshall County go blind all of a sudden at election time.—Stephen Leader.

ARE SHORT BUT INTERESTING

Brief Mention of What Is Transpiring in Various Sections of Our Own and Foreign Countries.

Political Notes.

Governor Wilson accuses republicans and progressives of juggling with the trust question.

News of the attempt on the life of Roosevelt caused a shock among his friends at Washington.

Colonel Roosevelt, deploring the antagonism of La Follette, accused the senator of inconsistency.

Republican progressive quarrels in many states on the question of electors have been cleared away.

A noisy throng greeted Woodrow Wilson at Chicago, with supporters and opposition adding to the din.

In a sweeping denial of charges against him, Roosevelt said he never asked a penny for his campaign.

Taft's friends claim that he is now making rapid gains all along the political line. Progressives claim otherwise.

Congressman Kinkaid of Nebraska has withdrawn his resignation and will make the race in the Sixth district.

Gov. Wilson has cancelled all political speech-making engagements for the present, owing to Col. Roosevelt's condition.

The finances of the democratic preconvention campaign of this year will be inquired into by the senate campaign contributions committee.

Democrats of the state of Washington will again nominate a candidate for governor, it having been decided that its former nominee is ineligible.

Gov. Johnson of California, candidate for vice president on the progressive ticket, by speechmaking, will keep the bull moose ball rolling until the day of election.

Secretary of State Philander C. Knox, addressed a republican meeting at Seattle, defending the record of the Taft administration and appealing to republicans to stand by the president.

One of the greatest needs of the country is a merchant marine, declared Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor, in an address in Hannibal, Mo., in behalf of President Taft.

The republican state committee of Missouri filed a petition in the county circuit court to enjoin the secretary of state from printing on the official ballot the progressive party's presidential electors.

Before the senate investigating committee it was brought out that upwards of $400,000 was expended in the efforts of Governor Woodrow Wilson, Governor Judson Harmon and Representative Underwood to secure the democratic presidential nomination.

In the home city of the late William McKinley, Governor Johnson stood on a platform beneath a picture of the murdered president and pleaded with progressives to double their efforts in behalf of the new party, in order that the absence of Colonel Roosevelt in the political battle may not be felt so keenly.

ALLIED FORCES WINNING BATTLE

BULGARIANS TAKE SEVERAL POSITIONS AT THE POINT OF THE BAYONET.

SERVIANS DRIVE TURKS.

Routed Army Pushed Across Morava Valley—Greeks Victorious in Four-Hour Battle of Mt. Olympus.

Sofia, Oct. 22.—The Bulgarian forces operating against Adrianople have driven the Turks back to the forts forming the outer line of the defenses. They took 100 prisoners. The general advance of the Bulgarians continues. Several positions on the heights were taken at the bayonet point. In the villages the Turks are seizing Bulgarian officials and holding them for ranson.

Replying to a telegram from his cabinet, King Ferdinand sent the following message: "I am convinced that our incomparable and valiant army, sprung from a people like the Bulgarians whose self-sacrifice for their national ideals is without equal in history, will fight and destroy the eternal enemy of the Bulgarian race. Our brothers from the other side of the Rilo Dagh and Rhodope mountains will at last receive light from the aurora of liberty. Long live the valiant and victorious Bulgarian army; long live the valorous Bulgarian people."

Servian Forces Victorious.

Belgrade.—The Servian army under the crown prince has captured Rulya Heights, a strategical position to the south of Bujanoratz, some miles below Vranya.

An official report from the general staff at Nish says the Servians have taken all the trenches in the Turkish territory around Vranya and the Turks have been driven back across Morava valley.

Details have been received of a treacherous act by Albanians on the Servian posts near Prepalatz, forty miles to the south of Nish, on Thursday. Albanian irregulars who constituted the attacking party, were repulsed and hoisted a white flag when a Servian captain with a white flag approached the regulars opened fire, killing an officer and 12 men and wounding 40. The Servian artillery immediately shelled the enemy, killing 200.

Turks Flee Before Greeks.

Athens.—After a four hours' engagement the Greeks Saturday dislodged the Turks from the strong positions which they had taken in the defense of Ellasona, at the foot of Mount Olympus, and occupied the town. Crown Prince Constantine was in personal command and received a baptism of fire. The Greek troops showed great courage. Their losses were small.

London, Oct. 22.—Cass Gilbert, former president of the American Institute of Architects and designer of the Woolworth building, is in London enroute to Munich, where he will arrange for a model of the tallest building in the world to be placed in the Deutsches museum there. Asked whether he thought the Woolworth building was the last word in skyscraper building, Mr. Gilbert replied: "There isn't any last word. The only question is one of economical success. Provided there is room for a sufficient base, there is no reason why a 100-story building could not be erected as far as safety is concerned, but the question is whether it would be a paying investment."

RHEUMATISM A DISEASE OF THE BLOOD

The Treatment Which Is Most Successful Is Directed Toward Building Up and Purifying the Vital Fluid.

That rheumatism is a disease of the blood is shown by the fact that it is hereditary in certain families, and that there is a marked thinning of the blood immediately following its attack.

In the following brief statement are described symptoms which every patient will recognize and the means by which a cure was effected in this case is described with equal fidelity.

If you are suffering from any form of rheumatism with loss of flesh and strength, and thinning of the blood, the remedy that was so effective here deserves a thorough trial.

"About fifteen years ago," says Mrs. Rhoda Pettit, of Louisville, Neb., "after exposure to dampness and wet and being in a run-down condition from overwork, I began to suffer from inflammatory rheumatism. Both my father and mother were sufferers from the same disease. My right side was afflicted and had I no use of my right limb. The cords of the limb seemed to be drawn up. Often the pains would shift from one part of the body to another and, while they were worse in my right limb, they were very severe through the small of my back. There was a sensation as though I was being cut with a knife. My limbs and feet were swollen so that I could not put on my shoes. I suffered intense agony all of the time and when the attacks were severe I was confined to bed for weeks. My stomach was in bad shape. I was troubled with heartburn and gas. I lost weight and my strength was all gone.

"I took medicine from a doctor and tried several other remedies and liniments but nothing helped me until I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had taken them only a short time before I could feel the new blood and after a fair trial I was able to walk. The pills made me a strong, healthy woman and I am entirely cured of the rheumatism. I know I would not be living today if I had not tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. The genuine are sold only in packages bearing the full trade-mark. Adv.

A DOCTOR'S TRIALS.

He Sometimes Gets Sick Like Other People.

Even doing good to people is hard work if you have too much of it to do.

An overworked Ohio doctor tells his experience:

"About three years ago as the result of doing two men's work, attending a large practice and looking after the details of another business, my health broke down completely, and I was little better than a physical wreck.

"I suffered from indigestion and constipation, loss of weight and appetite, bloating and pain after meals, loss of memory and lack of nerve force for continued mental application.

"I became irritable, easily angered and despondent without cause. The heart's action became irregular and weak, with frequent attacks of palpitation during the first hour or two after retiring.

"Some Grape-Nuts and cut bananas came for my lunch one day and pleased me particularly with the result. I got more satisfaction from it than from anything I had eaten for months, and on further investigation and use, adopted Grape-Nuts for my morning and evening meals, served usually with cream and a sprinkle of salt or sugar.

"My improvement was rapid and permanent, in weight as well as in physical and mental endurance. In a word, I am filled with the joy of living again, and continue the daily use of Grape-Nuts for breakfast and often for the evening meal.

"The little pamphlet, 'The Road to Wellville,' found in pkgs., is invariably saved and handed to some needy patient along with the indicated remedy."

"There's a reason."

SENATOR BRIGGS

Frank O. Briggs, senator from New Jersey and Republican candidate for re-election, is seriously ill in Philadelphia.

TAFT SAYS HE SEES VICTORY

BASES OPINION ON INCREASING ASSURANCES.

Gives Out Statement and Figures Showing Prosperity of Nation.

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 22.—President Taft issued a statement predicting Republican victory next month and declaring it "obvious that either the Republican or Democratic nominees will be elected." He asserts it to be an open secret that "the third party does not expect success."

The president reviews the conditions of the country which he says are unprecedentedly prosperous and asserts the belief that sober judgment of the voters will continue present conditions. The statement reads: "Fifty-two years ago seceders from the Union thought they were facing a divided North and would win an easy victory. There had been division among the loyal people, but all united in face of the common danger and in addition a great number of Democrats joined the Republicans in the successful struggle for the nation's life. Then it was said by hostile critics that the ship of state was drifting.

"Our friends, the enemy, say that the Democracy has learned its mistakes and does not mean to repeat them. In some measure true as to the past; and the Republican party has had a difficult, if successful task in teaching the Democracy its mistakes, so far as it has been taught; but somehow the obstinate pupil comes forward every four years to be taught again.

"Democratic business men feel the same way. They know that when industries languish their business languishes too. The pay envelopes are the feeders of trade in every form. When they are empty or scrimpy the biggest department store feels the effect, as well as the corner grocery.

"Our home market has drifted from $7,000,000,000 in 1870 to $3,000,000,000—not a bad drift, that. And it is this magnificent home market, without equal in the past or present, that the Democrats propose to dismember and disorganize and invite every nation in the world to prey upon, while those same nations keep the barriers to their own markets juts as high as they please.

Foreign Trade Flourishing.

"Then look at our foreign trade. A favorite Democratic argument is that Republicans build up and cultivate the home market at the expense of our foreign commerce when the fact is that the growth of foreign trade has almost kept proportionate pace with the domestic—from $1,000,000,000 in 1870 to $4,000,000,000 in 1912.

"Our exports for the past year amounted to $2,170,319,328, of which $674,302,903 were manufacturers ready for consumption, the largest export trade and the largest proportion of manufactures ready for consumption the country has ever known.

"The American manufacturer and the American worker would not have much spirit left for invading the foreign market if deprived by a Democratic 'tariff for revenue only' of the best market of all, more than equal in purchasing power to all Europe, the home market which they now control, thanks to the Republican protective tariff.

WOMAN SICK TWELVE YEARS

Wants Other Women to Know How She Was Finally Restored to Health.

Louisiana, Mo.:—"I think a woman naturally dislikes to make her troubles known to the public, but complete restoration to health means so much to me that I cannot keep from telling mine for the sake of other suffering women.

"I had been sick about twelve years, and had eleven doctors. I had dragging down pains, pains at monthly periods, bilious spells, and was getting worse all the time. I would hardly get over one spell when I would be sick again. No tongue can tell what I suffered from cramps, and at times I could hardly walk. The doctors said I might die at one of those times, but I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got better right away. Your valuable medicine is worth more than mountains of gold to suffering women."—Mrs. BERTHA MUFF, 503 N. 4th Street, Louisiana, Mo.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

GREEN LIGHT FOR JEWELERS

May Be Obtained by Using Special Water Lens—Lamp Is Suspended Opposite to Globe.

It is an interesting fact that green light seems to be the best adapted for fine jewelry work. A simple way to obtain such a light for the work bench is to use a special water lens, colored green, as shown in the drawing, says the Popular Electricity. This may be on the order of the large colored globes seen in drugstore windows. The lamp is then suspended on the opposite side of the globe from the work in hand.

ELECTRIC GUN IN WARFARE

Pittsburg Man Has Discovered Method of Hurling Shell with Greater Power Than by Powder.

There is no other sphere of achievement in which scientific invention and discovery keeps up its quick pace of progress more assuredly than in the arts and methods of warfare. There is not one of the half-dozen leading nations of the earth that is not interested in the problem of air navigation mainly because of the understanding that aeroplanes and steerable balloons will be mighty convenient for purposes of devastation and destruction. More than a hundred chemical experiments, probably more than a thousand, have during the past ten or fifteen years been endeavoring to find some yet more diabolic explosive than any before known, and some of them have succeeded.

Now a Pittsburg man comes forward with the bland suggestion that he has discovered a method of hurling by electric power a shell "with greater velocity than it can be driven by powder." Not only so, but he claims that a single motor will furnish electric force to operate a whole line of guns or a whole battleship aggregation of guns. He proposes shortly to make a test with a field piece, and if his invention does what he thinks it will do, the science of war will have made one more long stride in the direction of quick annihilation.

A solid missile hurled by electricity does not suggest a havoc quite so fearful as some of the prophets have forecasted as a proable method of destructiveness to which artificially generated lightning will some day be applied. There is illustration every summertime of how naturally generator electricity can blast and destroy. It only remains for some genius to work out the problem of the artificial and dirigible thunder-storm. Let us hope that before he succeeds the universal peace agreement will have been signed.

ELECTRICAL TRAP FOR RATS

Exterminator Is Simple in Construction—Circuit Operated Automatically by Little Rodent.

The Scintific American, in describing a rat exterminator, invented by J. W. M. Carmichael of Wellsburg, W. Va., says:

The exterminator is simple and cheap of construction, and one, which, by means of an electric circuit arranged to be automatically closed by the animal as it passes into and through the apparatus, will kill the rat. A further object is to construct the apparatus so that the rat as it is killed will fall from the entering passage, and in which the circuit will be automatically opened preparatory to another operation. The engraving shows a longitudinal section view through the apparatus.

Telephone plants represent a total investment of $1,729, 000,000(, and the number of yearly'phone connections is estimated at 22,000,000,000.

TO ELIMINATE ALL DRUDGERY

Chicago Housewives Form Club and Buy Electric Cleaners, Washing Machine, Flatirons and Fan.

A women's club has been formed in Chicago which might well be called the "Women's Anti-Drudgery club."

The club is not incorporated, has no officers or clubrooms, and consists of only six members. But the club has a purpose and this purpose is the eliminating of drudgery in the respective households of the members.

The club is the possessor of an electric vacuum cleaner, one electric washing machine, two electric irons and a fan for drying the washing The only dues are those required for the upkeep of these labor savers, and this amount has been estimated to be about three cents a week. The "initiation" fee consists of the price of the apparatus divided into six equal parts.

The members have the use of any or all of the apparatus one day a week. For instance, Mrs. Brown may do her cleaning on Monday and her washing on Wednesday. She will have the vacuum cleaner on Monday and the washing machine, iron and fan on Wednesday.

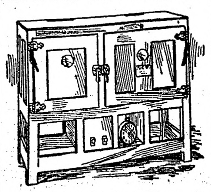
The scheme works out to everybody's satisfaction, it is reported. A small boy has been hired to take the apparatus to the different houses, which are all in one neighborhood.

HANDY ELECTRIC COOK STOVE

Fireless Principle Is Employed in Operation of Cooker—Heat Is Automatically Controlled.

A new automatically operated electric cook stove, manufactured by a Michigan concern, employs the fireless principle of operation, the heating elements of which are inclosed in thermally insulated compartments, and cut off automatically when the ovens have reached the predetermined temperatures for the cooking operations required.

The installation comprises two separate cooker ovens, one for boiling and the other for baking and roasting, says the Popular Mechanics. Each oven is fitted with a dial-type thermometer, the pointer of which, upon making contact with an adjustable hand, momentarily closes an auxiliary circuit, tripping out the heater switch. The temperature at which the heating element is thus disconnected can be set at any desired point by means of the thumb-controlled contact pointer, For the boiler the cutting-out point is ordinarily set at 212 degrees Fahrenheit and for the roasting oven, at 375 degrees. After the temperature required to operate the cut-out has been reached, the cooking proceeds with the heat already stored in the oven, the stove thus becoming a fireless cooker.



Electric Fireless Cooker.

By reason of the alarm clock provided, the housewife may place the articles to be boiled, baked or roasted in the stove, and go away for the afternoon, knowing that the oven will begin heating at the time she has set the alarm. When the alarm operates, a lever on the winding key throws a switch closing the circuit to the heating elements. Later, when the predetermined temperatures have been reached in the ovens, the circuit is broken, and the ovens go on cooking with the heat they have stored up.

Offensive Optimism

Why People Go Out Looking for Trouble

By REV. FRANK CRANE, Chicago

THERE is such a thing as a pestiferous optimist.

Perhaps it is the mood you are in that makes you sometimes hate the sight of cheerful, bright eyes.

The fact is sugar is good, but one can't stand too much of it, and when they put sugar in everything, in the soup, fish, meat and salad, it is rather trying.

We all want pleasure. But there is another want fully as impressive. We want trouble. We may think we don't, but we do.

Tannhauser by and by could not endure life eternal in the lap of Venus. He longed for suffering and danger and struggle, along with the rest of humankind.

In these piping times of universal peace we should not forget that one of the old inborn tastes of mankind is fighting. Boys fight as the expression of a natural instinct, and girls quarrel in their way, and grown-ups often spoil for a row.

It is quite the fashion these days to tell one another to cheer up, look pleasant, and all will be well. All is good, there is no evil, pain is nix, anguish is all in your eye. Maybe. But it grows monotonous.

It is a relief occasionally to meet the confirmed pessimist. He clears the air. He breathes ozone like a thunderstorm. He is aggressively miserable. That kind of person rouses you. He causes such a reaction in you that you come away glowing with more real cheer than you would gather in a week from a soothing syrup soul.

Optimism inclines one to laziness. Why worry? Then why work?

A missionary was urging a lazy native of the Philippines to arouse and do.

"Why trouble one's self?" asked the native.

"If you toil you can make money."

"What for?"

"With money you can buy property, enlarge your business and be a great man."

"What for?"

"Why—why, then you can be happy," said the white man.

"But I'm happy now," returned the heathen.

And the tropics are full of optimism. That's why nothing is accomplished there. There is too much comfort and sunshine. It takes fog and rain and snow to make men hustle.

Pessimism has been peculiarly prolific in literature. There are Nietzsche, Schopenhauer, Ibsen and Omar. These fellows flip up like a cold bath. They restore the circulation and make a healthy glow. They stimulate us into a militant, protesting happiness far more active than the all-is-well kind of happiness.

The human heart has strange appetites. It must have its tragedy and tears and bitter herbs.

Like the old woman, we "loves our murders" in the daily papers.

It is a mistake to suppose we want to be happy and avoid trouble. We want to be miserable. Happiness is the reaction, pleasant but temporary.

Man Often Has High Opinion of Himself

By Mrs. R. J. Robinson, Sacramento, Cal.

As a rule man has a pretty high opinion of himself. If then, his wife had the good sense to choose him in the first place should not this be proof sufficient to convince him that she would make an equally good match upon her second venture?

Man should give to her the credit she deserves—accredit her with the cool, calm, sense of sound reasoning, that broadens and develops with age and experience. Taking for granted that a man has married a reasonably intelligent woman—a natural mother—there need be no cause for worry. The whole world knows that a natural mother will never desert her offspring.

If, however, a man feared adventurers he could set aside a certain amount for each child, should he have any, and leave the remainder to his wife without terms or conditions.

Having provided for his family to the best of his ability he has done all that mortal man can do and it then becomes the wife's duty to use it wisely and well.

As for asking his wife to remain single. Does this not seem selfish? He is asking her more than the sacred rites—"until death do you part."

"As man's control stops with the shore," so ought he be willing to yield his control when death calls him and leave his wife free as the ocean.

Of all human vices and weakness, selfishness seems to be the one most common to all and were I a man I would not want to go to my grave carrying the sin of selfishness far beyond it.

Common Sense Needed With Marriage

By A. B. Richmond, San Francisco

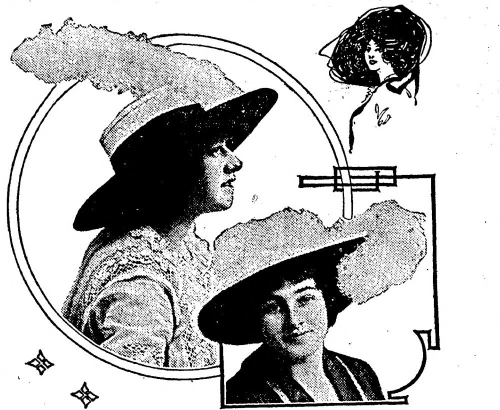
Whom shall we marry, the young or the old? Just as if we women could pick and choose as we wish. Is it not for the man to woo and win? And the woman? She has no right to refuse. In these enlightened times, when women are racing equally with men in all paths of life, a woman considers when a proposal comes. Love is a beautiful thing, is it not? But alas! were it not for the practical side of life, and were women free to choose, how many different marriages there would be!

The old saying is "An old man's darling or a young man's slave." Not having tried both, I presume I am not capable of answering which is preferable, but this much is true: an older man makes less demands on a young woman than a young man. Naturally he sees life in a different way. He is more lenient, not so exacting, far truer, and he tries to live up to the marriage obligation far more than the average young man.

For those who are brave enough to say "All for love and the world well lost" I would say, choose the young man, because he would be brave enough to face all the trials and troubles and sacrifices, of which there will be many. But is it always worth while?

For those who prefer life with some of its burdens shaken off, who look at life in a philosophical way, choose the older man and you will not go amiss.

COME IN SAILOR SHAPES



Among the new importations for fall are moire hats with velvet facings in regular sailor shapes. Straight crowns and flat brims are among the smartest models, developed in white and black. The brims of these flat shapes are wide and the trimming very simple, but very chic.

A pretty example of this style is shown here with crown of moire and brim of velvet. A collar of velvet ribbon and a long stiff plume of ostrich made up the trimming.

A similar shape has a narrower brim and lower crown. It is covered with real brown velvet and trimmed with long augur feathers that encircle the crown and curve over the brim. It is one of the finest of the new hats.

A pretty French sailor with slightly rolling brim is all white except for the facing of black velvet. The low crown is rather small and admits the very graceful trim of ostrich feathers, without destroying any outline of brim or crown. A feather band, like a long plume, about the crown, and a half plume at the left side, curving over the brim edge and on the facing, make up an excellent example of the best millinery art.

GREAT VARIETY OF FABRICS

Fashion Allows Wide Choice of Material for Fall Suits—Imitation Furs Are Being Worn.

For suits this fall the "velours de laine," or woolen velour, occupies first place. This comes in striped effects, checked and undecided figured patterns, a good two-tone effect being produced by the raised pattern's contrast with a bright warp.

Velours de laine is supple and admits of drapery, gathering and pleating without obtrusive bulkiness. It is a triumph of the weaver's art.

Boucle cloths are also highly favored. These are the weaves that show little rings of thread that give a soft, rough effect.

Peau de suede has the softness of silk and the full finish of suede.

Velvets, corduroys and velveteens are important for afternoon suits, and the corded effects seem to be most generally used in costumes.

Imitation furs are taking the place of the expensive peltry. These fur cloths form little vests, cuffs and collars on jackets.

Materials are, as a rule, supple, soft and wide. The tones are soft and neutral, allowing for the introduction of the color note by means of the vests, girdles, velvet collars and ornaments so much in vogue.

To Press Plaits.

Now that plaited skirts are creeping back to the realm of fashion, women who like to attend to their own clothes will want to know just how to go about keeping them well pressed and in good condition.

First of all, you must baste the plaits in place just as they were when the skirt was new; run a line of basting on the outside edge of each plait the full length, catching it down firmly to the material underneath. Lay it over the ironing board wrong side out, place a damp cloth over the plaits and press with a hot iron until the damp cloth is dry.

Allow the basting threads to remain in the skirt after it is pressed for several hours; then remove them, and your skirts will keep their shape and look nicer for a long time.

This same rule applies to all plaited garments.

French Economy.

The French woman understands the art of dress instinctively and by training, and is the most economical woman in the world—both as to housekeeping and the style of dress that will best bring out her good points—the framing that will make her an attractive picture. The perfection of a growth is not its elaborate details, but the grace and harmony of its effect. The best appearing woman at a recent and famous French dinner wore a shimmery green silk draped with gray chiffon, with creamy French lace sparingly used and a girdle finished with embroidery of cut steel.

Dark Background.

A black background makes warm colors, such as orange and red, appear warmer, but diminishes the effect of cold colors such as blue and lemon. On the other hand, a white background makes warm colors appear cooler, and throws into more brilliant relief all cold colors.

Adjustable Tuck.

I put an adjustable tuck in my petticoat just above the flounce. Instead of sewing it in, I confine it with buttons and buttonholes or snap-fasteners, says a contributor to the Modern Priscilla. It is let out readily for a long dress, and just as readily shortened for a shorter one.

AS TO SKIRT AND WAISTLINE

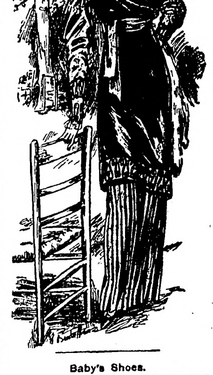
They Refuse to Change Materially—Lapels and Coat Collars Are to Be Small, Is Decree.

Of all the variables that refuse to vary the raised waistline is the most tantalizing. In Paris practically nothing is used except the raised or high waistline, but over here women are more divided in their opinion. One sees a great many normal waistline skirts on smart women, but they are usually the women who think they are too tall or too stout to wear the raised line successfully.

The cry of fuller skirts and normal waistlines is always taken up with great vigor at the beginning of each season, but it subsides quickly after an examination of the new models. There is no doubt at all that the leading dressmakers are producing fuller and more bouffant effects by means of their draperies and panniers, but they have not added a centimeter to the actual widths of their foundation skirts. The silhouette is as narrow as ever, and is likely to remain so for some time to come.

In morning suits one sees the plain notched collar, a little larger as to the lapel than it would have been a few years ago, but much smaller than the collar and revers of an afternoon coat. In hacking suits the long plain sleeve is used altogether, but in silk and velveteen costumes and suits of that type the sleeve is a little short and wide at the bottom. The long sleeve is smart in day dresses of the simpler type, but in a dress or suit that is at all elegant either in cut or materials the shorter sleeve is preferred.—From the Delineator.

AUTUMN WALKING GOWN.



Baby's Shoes.

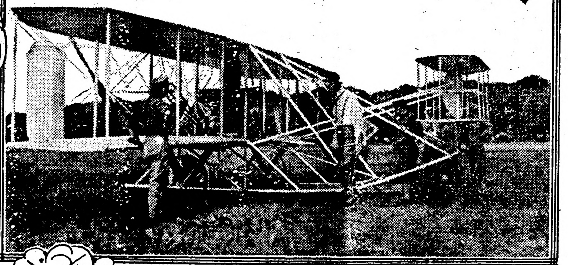
Soft suede makes delightful little baby shoes, and it is quite easy for the deft fingered woman to make them and to decorate the leather with tiny flowers or dots. A clever woman says she uses the tops of kid gloves to make the little shoes, and finds it a very useful way of using them up.

The stitching should be done by machine, and the pattern should be very simple.

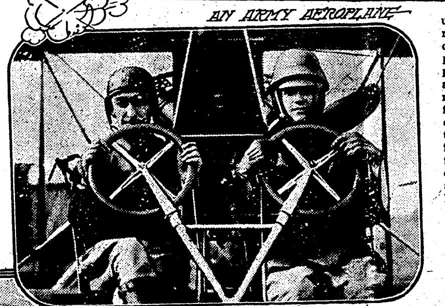
A NEW FORCE IN MILITARY SCIENCE

BY ROBERT H. MOULTON

THE LEWIS AEROPLANE GUN



AN ARMY AEROPLANE



ARMY OFFICER LEARNING TO FLY

CAPT. E. B. HENNESSY OF THE AVIATION SQUAD

IN THE early part of last June a group of United States army officers stood watching an aeroplane as it soared aloft from the Army Aviation school at College Park, Md. The machine carried two men, Capt. Charles De Forest Chandler, commandant of the school, and Lieut. Thomas De Witt Milling, one of the army aviators, who acted as pilot. Between the knees of Captain Chandler was strapped a queer-looking object, resembling somewhat a large inverted telescope with a disk-like attachment at the near end.

When the aeroplane had reached a height of 600 feet and was skimming along at a speed of fifty miles an hour, suddenly above the roar of the engine there came to the watchers below a quick ripping sound. At the same instant a score of little dust clouds spurted up from the ground a few hundred feet away. This was repeated twice. Then as the aeroplane glided to earth, at the spot where the dust had arisen, the officers ran forward to meet it.

On the ground lay a piece of cheese cloth, three yards by fifteen, punctured with numerous small holes. And then the secret was out. The curious-looking object carried by the passenger was an aeroplane gun and the piece of cheese cloth was the target at which he had aimed while flying above at almost a mile a minute.

Careful examination of the target showed that out of the full magazine of fifty cartridges discharged by the gun operator, forty-five shots had hit the mark. The other five shots, the gunner explained, had been sent into a nearby fish-pond in order that he might get, by the splash of the water, an instantaneous report of the accuracy of his aim. The fact that this was the first time the gun had been taken aloft, together with the trueness of the aim as shown by the examination of the target, spoke emphatically then and there of the great possibilities of fleets of aeroplanes loaded with these rapid-fire guns, soaring over a column of the enemy's troops.

The potential result of swooping air-craft, armed to the teeth with death-dealing bullets, is staggering to ordnance officers of the army and navy who discuss it. "Where will this lead?" they ask. It is possible that the air is to harbor the greatest destructive forces in modern warfare? There seems nothing to prevent it.

This remarkable aeroplane gun is the invention of Lieut.-Col. Isaac N. Lewis of the United States army coast artillery corps. Curiously enough, the gun was designed primarily for infantry and cavalry use. Later, however, Colonel Lewis was impressed with its possibilities for use in aeroplanes.

Heretofore the difficulties which have stood in the way of serviceable guns for aeroplanes have been difficulty in manipulation, too great weight, terrific recoil which would knock the frail craft out of gear, and flame from the rifle which would endanger the machine.

In the Lewis gun these difficulties are eliminated. There is no smoke—no flame—only the sound of the explosion tells that the gun has been fired. There is no recoil and the gun is so balanced by the magazine that the aim is not even interrupted while the gun is being fired. It can be fired at as high a rate as 750 shots a minute, but the rate may be reduced to 350 shots per minute, or to any number between these limits, by a simple adjustment of the gasport valve controlling the admission of the gas to the piston cylinder. When firing at full speed it takes approximately four seconds to discharge a magazine of fifty cartridges, and the empty magazine may be replaced by a full one within two seconds.

It might naturally be supposed that such rapidity of firing would soon overheat the barrel of the gun and render it temporarily useless. One of the distinguishing features of the gun, however, is a device whereby the barrel is kept continually cool by automatically produced blasts of air. The barrel of the gun is surrounded by a close-fitting aluminum jacket, cylindrical in form and having some twenty deeply-cut longitudinal grooves extending from breech to muzzle. Outside of this jacket is a light steel tube, three and three-quarters inches in diameter at the breech and two and seven-eighths inches at the muzzle end of the gun. The grooves in the steel jacket have full access to the atmosphere at the breech, thus forming a series of inclosed air ducts running the entire length of the barrel. Each time the gun is fired the ejector action of the discharge blast sucks through these ducts, from the rear, a draft of air which serves to carry off the heat transmitted to the jacket from the barrel. The cooling is automatic in action, without the use of water or other cooling liquid and without mechanism or moving parts. As aluminum has six times the heat conductivity of steel and but one-third its weight, this very effective method of cooling the gun adds but a few pounds to the total weight carried.

Another novel feature which differentiates the Lewis gun from all other gas-operated guns is the small inclosed operating spring which is locatetd near the trigger-piece at the breech far removed from all injurious heat effects. The temper of this spring cannot be affected by either direct or transmitted heat, no matter of rapid and long-continued firing.

The development tests of the gun, which have been in progress for two years, show that the barrel does not become overheated under continuous fire at full speed, and that it will not therefore be necessary to carry along an extra barrel when on the firing line. Since no cooling water is necessary, and no special mount except a small stake or "cowboy" mount weighing about eight pounds, the field equipment of the Lewis gun is reduced to a minimum. The gun may be fired from any natural support found in the field, such as a rock, log, stump, tree or mount of earth. It is even possible to empty a magazine while holding the gun to the shoulder or from the hip, as the recoil effect is scarcely noticeable.

It is a matter of note that one of the most conspicuous things on the battlefield in South Africa was the jet of steam from the boiling water which was being used on the barrels of the rapid fire guns for cooling purposes.

The gun is simplicity itself. It has only forty-seven parts, as compared with twice that number for other rapid fire guns. On the battlefield or in the air where tools are necessarily scarce, and where they are needed more than anywhere else when they are wanted, the Lewis gun would certainly cause no worry, should some piece of the mechanism be broken or otherwise get out of working order, since the only tool required to dissemble or assemble the gun is the point of a bullet.

The sustained rapidity of fire of which the gun is capable makes it a far more dangerous and effective weapon than any bomb-dropping device as yet devised.

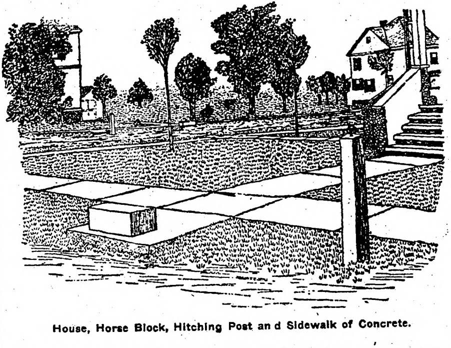
The accuracy of the firing of the Lewis aeroplane gun on its first test was not only surprising in itself, but has aroused attention on the part of our army and navy experts to the fact that our battleships and the disappearing gun batteries of our coast defenses are completely unprepared for attack from the air. In the opinion of many, including Colonel Lewis, who is also the inventor of the Lewis depression position finder now employed in the coast artillery service, it marks the beginning of a development that is destined to produce radical changes in our land defense and coast armaments, both for offense and defense.

According to Colonel Lewis, an aeroplane costing not more than $5,000 will easily be able to carry the gun, 2,000 rounds of ammunition, the gun operator and the pilot. At a height of one mile or greater, and while moving at a speed of fifty miles per hour, it will be possible with this gun to pour in the most destructive fire upon the deck and fire control masts of battleships, and upon unprotected personnel of land defenses, without endangering the aeroplane or its crew, it being practically impossible to attack successfully the rapidly-moving aeroplane from below. The gun also opens a new field of attack and defense in that it will be used as an effective weapon against other aeroplanes similarly armed. It means that hereafter unarmed aeroplanes will no longer be used in war, even for scouting purposes.

A new 75-millimetre gun, designed for the destruction of aeroplanes, has just been tested at Toulon, France and proved satisfactory.

CONCRETE MAKES EXCELLENT MATERIAL FOR CONSTRUCTION OF FARM BUILDINGS

Substitute for Wood Has Shown Its Worth Becalse of Moderate Cost, Its Durability and the Ease With Which It Is Handled—Its Many Uses.



House, Horse Block, Hitching Post an d Sidewalk of Concrete.

Some of the increased cost of living may be traced directly to the decreased producing power of the farm lands. This condition has been largely brought about by delivering the harvested crop direct to the market and returning nothing to the fields. The problem of restoring the soil to its former fertility, together with the advanced price of meats, makes it highly profitable for every farmer to raise a certain amount of live stock. The manure thus produced, properly cared for and distributed, returns to the cultivated land a large part of the fertility which the crop of grain removed. From the sale of his live stock the farmer realizes a direct profit on his grain consumed, and also, through the use of the manure, increases the fertility of his fields.

During the period of cheap lands and grains, animals were generally allowed to run at large and were fed for the market only when they happened to be large enough. Feeding consisted in hauling out the feed and dumping it down in what seemed the least muddy spot on that particular morning. This method, as compared with feeding on the bare ground in lots, had this merit: Whatever the stock did not eat, together with the droppings, was scattered over the pasture instead of being allowed to pile up and to leach or wash away with the heavy rains. However, from the present standpoint of high-priced lands and grain, such methods of feeding are too wasteful. The feed becomes mixed with mud and is not so good for the animal. By tramping and rooting for fragments the next season's growth of grass is damaged by the animals and weeds are given an opening. In addition, the stalks, husks, cobs, and other manure from feeding should be returned to the cultivated fields which are in immediate need of fertilizing material.

The value of the feeding floor was long ago recognized. The difficulty has been to contain a floor that would possess all of the necessary qualities without any acompanying disadvantages.

Such a floor must save the fragments of feed dropped upon its surface and keep them clean, so that such particles may be eaten by some animal. It must be capable of being easily cleaned and disinfected, so that it may never become dangerous to the health of the animal feeding from it. Its surface must be such that none of the manure deposited on it will be absorbed and that all of it may be easily removed for storage. The cost of the floor must be moderate.

As a building material concrete is most valuable for floor construction. Concrete floors are moderate in first cost, they last forever. All of the manure deposited upon them is easily removed for storage.

The surface of these floors is such that they can be cleaned and disinfected with ease. Through their use the farm is freed of foul, muddy barn lots, the breeding place of disease-spreading gnats, flies and mosquitoes. Likewise, rats and other destructive animals can find no home about concrete floors.

The saving of grain, of labor, and of manure is so great to the feeder that concrete floors may pay for themselves in the short space of one year. These floors may be placed anywhere they may be needed.

With the use of concrete floors the general appearance of the farm is improved, the disagreeableness of wading through mud and mire is obtained, and farm life in general is made more attractive.

What is true of the concrete feeding floors for hogs, cattle and sheep, is also true of the use of this most excellent material in many other ways on the farm.

Houses and barns and all other buildings may be constructed of concrete and sidewalks, and hitching and clothes line and fence posts of concrete are superior to any other kind. Dipping vats, manure pits, silos, troughs of all kinds, for feed and water, water tanks, culverts, cisterns and almost everything that is needed on the farm, may be of concrete and are more durable, cost less and are much more satisfactory in every particular than wood.

TELEPATHY AMONG ANIMALS

Birds and beasts receive information through the medium of earth vibrations, John D. Quackenbos, M. D., writes in the North American Review: Certain game birds and animals are sensitive to the faintest earth tremor, and are approached only by the hunter who steps slowly and carefully, without jarring the surface of the ground. The nature of the vibrations also conveys a notion of the direction from which the danger is coming, and wild game depend as much on their apprehension of this as upon detection by the ear. When it comes to cosmic vibrations, the subtle movements communicated to the earth's crust by the tides or the pull of heavenly bodies, animals are mysteriously affected as to appetite, sleep, nervous poise and possibly procreation and migration.

Recent experiments have proved moths and other insects to be capable of thought transference so far-reaching as to impress their fellows miles away with a knowledge of their whereabouts.

It is well known to whalers that a cetacean struck by a harpoon has power instantly to convey intelligence of the presence of an enemy to a spouting school a half mile distant, so that the individuals composing it immediately disappear below the surface. Every angler is aware that if one trout in a pool has caught a glimpse of him all are instantly apprised of his presence, so that his most attractive lures are offered in vain. What one knows all know at the same moment through an interchange of subconscious states. Aristotle noticed that the female partridge is affected by a distant male bird through what he described as a breeze from the male's direction.

Some twenty years ago the late Austin Corbin purchased 25,000 acres of farm and wood land in New Hampshire and stocked the estate known as Blue Mountain park with elk and deer. In 1897 is was predicted that the extinct carnivores, whose natural food is venison, would return to the region. Not long afterward the presence of pumas, or mountain lions, was reported in the park and vicinity, and the black bear lynx and wildcat are conspicuously in evidence today.

PAYING FOR THE SPOONS

If it were not for the souvenir thief no hotel manager would be gray-headed or bald Their lives would be one long dream of bliss, broken three times daily by a spasm of happiness when they sell 35 cents' worth of food for $1.25. But the memento grabber ages him. "We tried to make the waiter protect the silver," said one the other day. "And we found that after the waiter worked for us a month he owed us money, because of fines for stolen silver. That wouldn't do. That same waiter would do his waiting elsewhere—first trying to break even with the establishment before leaving. And it is very unpleasant to lock the doors of a private dining room until we audit the teaspoons."

So all hotel managers have adopted a new plan. The cost of stealing silver is included in the bill for the meal you take in the public dining room. That is a matter of average. When you dine with a merry little party—or several merry little parties, as it sometimes happens—in a private room, it is also included in the bill. Not long ago the man who entertains out-of-town buyers in a certain wholesale line ordered a private dining room and a special dinner for a half dozen guests. The hotel manager gave him a figure.

"Tell your cook to spread himself on this dinner," said the prospective host, laughingly. "My guests are all from the west."

"Pardon me," said the manager, hurriedly. "I forgot an item. Your bill will be $2 more."

The host looked at the memorandum and found an item marked "spoons."

"Much better to charge for the spoons in advance," said the hotel man, without a blush. "The ladies from out of town all take 'em. So do the ladies from in town. This way we're safe and they're saved a sin."

SWEET POTATOES NEED MUCH CARE

Bruise at One End Will Affect Quality of Sound Portion —Keep Them Dry.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

Sweet potatoes need to be handled carefully if they are to be kept through the winter, and unlike most other vegetables, sweet potatoes should be kept in a warm, dry place.

In the first place sweet potatoes must be dug at the right time. They should be dug before the frosts have killed the tops for this injures the quality of the tubers somewhat.

After digging, the potatoes must be handled as carefully as though they were eggs. Irish potatoes can be shoveled around rather carelessly and often a bruise in one of the potatoes, or even a decayed spot will not affect the other part which is left in sound condition.

But not so with the sweet potato, for a bruise at one end will affect the quality of the sound portion at the other end and will render it unfit for use. This fact is not generally understood by many growers who handle sweet potatoes as carelessly as they do Irish potatoes.

This fact is responsible for many of the potatoes of poor quality which are served during the winter.

After being handled, the sweet potatoes should be stored in a warm dry place. A temperature of 60 to 70 degrees is about right for the proper keeping of sweet potatoes.

Some persons have stored them in the sand or dust from the country road to help preserve an even temperature.

If the potatoes are stored in sand or dust, care must be taken that the sand is perfectly dry.

Handled carefully, sweet potatoes can be kept for some months and will be found of good quality late in the winter.

EXCELS AS KILLER OF NOXIOUS WEEDS

Buckwheat Is Valuable Crop Also for Grain and Green Manure —Clover Sod Is Best.

Buckwheat is a valuable crop for grain, for green manure and as a weed killer. Six pecks, drilled in with 200 pounds of phosphate to the acre, will give a yield of 25 to 35 bushels. Buckwheat occupies a position in our farming which it would be very difficult to supply. German millet is in some respects very much like it, especially as it may be sown in July and a crop of grain or hay harvested. Buckwheat is a grain which makes the most of few privileges, a sort of self-made crop. If sown on thin soil, it gives a moderate yield. But if it has all its needs supplied, and especially if the grain is drilled in with some good bone fertilizer, and the season is favorable, the grain will be of extra quality and the yield large. Manure should not be used as it will cause a weak growth of straw. Clover sod plowed under and well harrowed and rolled several weeks before seeding will nearly always give the best returns.

For green manure and for clearing land of weeds, sow two bushels to the acre; harrow the seed in both ways of the field and roll; the crop should be plowed under when in full bloom. Roll the buckwheat down and plow the same way the field is rolled; the vines can then be turned under without difficulty.

Buckwheat should be harvested as soon as the first grain is ripe; if crop is left until ripe much grain will be lost in handling. Cut with binder, make small sheaves, set up in medium shocks and as soon as grain is hard and dry haul in; if the crop gets wet the grain will be stained, and it won't make the best flour. The straw makes an excellent winter forage for sheep.

CALIFORNIA'S CHAMPION WOMAN SWIMMER

MISS NELLIE SCHMIDT of Alameda, Cal., the first woman to swim Golden Gate strait at San Francisco and who also was the first woman to swim across San Francisco bay, has added to her laurels by swimming around the famous Seal rocks in the Pacific ocean off the Cliff house, San Francisco. The course was 200 yards short of a mile and was made in the remarkably fast time of 34 minutes and 50 seconds, against strong tides and treacherous current rips.

TELLS OF HORRORS

Terrible Experience of Wrecked Party Is Revealed.

Woman and Child in Open Boat With Crew in Ice Off Cape Horn—Seventeen Men Lose Their Lives in the Disaster.

London.—The terrible experience of a party of shipwrecked sailors who spent a week in an open boat in the icy neighborhood of Cape Horn are described in a letter which has just been received from Port Stanley, Falkland islands. The men were accompanied by the captain's wife and child, and no fewer than six of the original occupants of the boat succumbed to cold and exposure before the exhausted survivors reached the Falkland islands.

At the same time comes the news that Captain Thomas, his wife and child and three sailors reached Liverpool on the Pacific liner Orepesa.

During a storm which broke suddenly the large sailing ship Criccieth Castle, belonging to Carnarvon, met with disaster off Cape Horn. The rudder post gave way and the rudder damaged the sternpost so much that the vessel was filling with water. The captain, Robert Thomas, his wife and son (aged four years), the second officer and 13 of the crew left the ship in the large lifeboat, while the first and third officers and five of the crew left in a smaller boat.

The experience of the former party during the first night in the open boat was terrible, the captain describing it as the worst he had known during the 22 years of his seafaring life. That night, the captain thinks, the second boat must have been swamped, as nothing was seen of it afterward. Captain Thomas was washed out of the lifeboat, but was saved by his wife, who caught him by his clothing, enabling two of the men to pull him aboard. Three of the men died during the night and they were followed by three others before the survivors reached land, seven days later.

Those who know any thing of the icy region around Cape Horn in winter can imagine the sufferings of the unfortunate people who were for seven days in an open boat, which, moreover, was leaking badly as the result of striking the ship's side while it was being lowered.

On the second day a Finn, a French cook and a Japanese died; on the third day a German and an Englishman died, and on the morning of the fourth day those who remained were horrified to find that during the night another man, a Welshman, had died.

By the fourth day nearly all who remained were frostbitten. All suffered agonies. Then the water supply gave out. So exhausted were they that no one seemed to care what happened to him.

All hope of rescue seemed to vanish, but on the seventh day an outlying island in the Falklands was sighted. Fire was lighted as soon as they landed and the survivors were able to enjoy a drink of melted snow. But the relief afforded by the islet was only short lived, and the party put out to sea again in the hope of finding an inhabited island.

This quest was attended by misfortunes, and the boat was blown out to sea and beyond sight of land. Ultimately Port Stanley was reached. Altogether 17 men perished.

UNCOVER ANCIENT CEMETERY

Excavating for a Wine Cellar an Italian Makes a Discovery of Historical Value.

Rome.—An ancient Christian cemetery has accidentally been discovered in the neighborhood of the remains of the Church of the Holy Apostles at Spoleto, in the province of Perugia. The church, one of the first Christian temples erected in that part of Italy contained the bones of many who suffered martyrdom under the Flavian emperors, but had not been used as a place of burial for more than 15 centuries.

Since modern times, having been little more than a ruin, it passed as private property into the family of the Sinibaldi, of whom the present head, the Italian deputy of that name, decided to enlarge the extensive basement for use as a cellar for storing wine, he being a wine grower on a large scale. Excavations had hardly begun a few days ago, when one of the workmen struck a solid block of stone about three feet below the surface, and this proved to be the cover of an ancient sarcophagus of unusual size.

Twenty-one sarcophagi with massive covers in monolith were unearthed, all belonging to the third or fourth century, A. D. They were opened in the presence of a group of public officials and archaeologists from different parts of Italy, and each was found to contain a skeleton in a perfect state of preservation.

TO SEND WIFE TO SCHOOL

Husband of Thirteen-Year-Old Girl Warned He Cannot Disobey the Education Laws.

Philadelphia.—"You must send your wife to school until she is fourteen years old, or you will be arrested and fined," warned Magistrate Boyle after imposing a fine in the case of John Palasis, whose wife, Annie, is only thirteen years of age.

The young wife and her father were arrested on a warrant charging them with failure to comply with the compulsory education law.

When asked why she did not attend school, Mrs. Palasis, who wore short dresses, said she had no time to go to school, as she had to get her husband's meals and look after other household duties.

AGED COUPLE IN BOX CAR

Former Missionaries Share Privations and Hardships—Are Found in South Dakota.

Jamestown, N. D.—Sharing privations and hardships with her husband, Mrs. K. W. Shepp was found in a box car in the Northern Pacific yards barn.

She and her husband were traveling from South Dakota to Idaho, and had intended going the entire distance in the car in which they had loaded their few belongings. Cold weather, however, made the trip hard, and they were suffering greatly because of their scant protection from the elements.

Both are more than sixty years old. They were formerly missionaries.

WATER TO CHRISTEN SHIP

New York W. C. T. U. Urges Libation From Niagara for Battleship New York.

Ogdensburg, N. Y.—The New York state convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union forwarded a resolution to the secretary of the navy, asking that the new battleship New York be christened with water taken from Niagara falls. If the request is granted the union will furnish the water and the receptacle.

BLOND ESKIMOS LONG KNOWN

Old Revenue Cutter Captain Says Stories of Burning Mountain Were Laughed At.

Tacoma, Wash.—Captain Francis Tuttle of the revenue service, retired, says that for thirty years or more stories of Stefansson's blond Eskimo tribe have been told by old-time whalers who were sometimes driven into Bankland by ice floes. Whalers were laughed at when they described Eskimos with red hair seen in the far north.

In the early nineties Captain Tuttle, commanding the cutter Bear, met the whaler Ballene, commanded by Captain Bert Williams, now residing at Irondale. Williams told Tuttle of a strange tribe in Bankland, which came out to the whaler. Some of them went aboard. Williams could not understand their language and learned little about them. From his winter quarters Williams could see a burning mountain of coal. The natives led him to a place where he obtained enough coal to supply his vessel that winter. By signs they made Williams understand that the great mountain had been burning for 200 years. Captain Tuttle believes Williams is the man of whom one tribe told Stefansson.

During his thirty years of service on the Alaskan coast Captain Tuttle heard of blond tribes from other whalers, but the stories were generally given little credence.

GIRL ON TRIAL WINS SUITOR

Pays Fine of Girl Convicted of Theft, Proposes Marriage and Is Accepted.

New York.—Eva Rioux, the demure French-Canadian girl who spent four strenuous days in the superior court at Bridgeport defending herself against a charge of theft preferred by Mrs. C. E. Page of New York and Sound Beach, is to become a bride within a week or so.

Her trial resulted in a fine being imposed. A man who is said to be the owner of two Connecticut theaters and who listened to all of the evidence, paid her fine and then proposed marriage. His name is not divulged. He is forty-five and a bachelor.

Miss Eva was all smiles when seen in the office of Mrs. T. Carnelio, who had befriended her at the time of the trial.

"Ooui," she replied to the question whether she was to be married. Then in broken English she expressed pleasure, saying she had written home to get her parents' consent, and if they agreed the marriage would take place at once. The man who is to marry her has already taken steps to reopen the case in the superior court and have Miss Eva's reputation cleared.

ASKS DIVORCE, HAS A GUARD

St. Louis Woman Who Sues Husband Protected by Police—Escorted To and From Home.

St. Louis, Mo.—Every morning for a week a policeman called at 1422 Semple avenue, and after ringing the doorbell, met Mrs. Delia Monica Black and escorted her to the nearest street car line. There he put her aboard a car, tipped his cap and went his way.

Every evening a policeman met Mrs. Black as she got off the car, returning from her work in a downtown millinery house, and saw her safely to her door.

Mrs. Black's reason for asking the police escort was revealed when she filed a divorce suit against Charles E. Black, proprietor of a drug store at Arlington and Ridge avenues.

Mrs. Black told a reporter that she believed it necessary to protect herself on her way to and from her home. Black has refused to make any statement about the case, except to say he has hired a lawyer.

The Resurrection of Christ —Its Results

By REV. WILLIAM EVANS, D. D.,
Director of Bible Course of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT: I Cor. 15.

I. The resurrection of Christ was the seal of God's approval upon the truthfulness of the claims of Jesus.

The claims of Christ imply either divinity or blasphemy. Jesus Christ, in view of his claims, was either God or the most colossal fraud, or the greatest impostor that ever lived. His claims stand unequaled in the history of the human race, and on the absolute fulfillment, even to the very letter, of all these claims, Christ bases his right to divine recognition. He claimed that it was his prerogative to forgive sin; that he was the only way to God; that outside of him there was no peace and no way of access to the Father; that unless he was trusted and believed in with a whole heart there was absolutely no hope of seeing heaven; that he was the divinely appointed Redeemer of the world, and that the world's redemption and salvation depended absolutely upon him alone; that the power of life and death was in his hands; and that all the Old Testament predictions received their fulfillment in him. So strong were these claims that on one occasion the Jews were exasperated with him and said, "What sign showest thou us if thou be all that thou claimest to be?" In answer to this challenge, Christ referred to his resurrection and said, "If I do not rise again from the dead, do not believe my claim." On his resurrection, therefore, Jesus Christ based the vindication of all his claims—as Paul says, "He was declared to be the Son of God by his resurrection from the dead." So long as Christ's resurrection remains an accredited fact of history, then that Galilean peasant, Jesus of Nazareth, is indeed and in truth the Son of the Most High God, and the Saviour of the world.

Christ's enemies realized the importance of Jesus' resurrection, and because of this, bribed the soldiers to say that the disciples came and stole away his body.

What a comfort the resurrection is to the believer, who has placed his hope and confidence in the life to come in Jesus Christ the Savior of the world! The world may deride, and mock, and sneer, and ridicule, but the believer exclaims, "I know that my Redeemer liveth," and this is ample evidence that the believer's faith has not been misplaced.

II. The resurrection of Christ is a guarantee of our own resurrection.

Paul's thoughtful and inspired inference from Christ's resurrection is this: "Because he lives, we shall live also." In the words of Dr. Parker, the apostle is continually amplifying. Place an acorn in his hand and immediately he feels the weight of a mighty oak. Give him one little bulb, and immediately you have touched the fountains of his eloquence and he describes gardens and paradises and heavens. Paul saw the whole in the part—he saw our resurrection in Christ. If Christ rose from the dead, then the graveyard is not a permanent thing. The apostle will have every little child brought back. The resurrection shall be accompanied by a shout—does this shout intimate or signify the spirits leaving heaven and going to the graveyard claiming their bodies? Who knows?

Without the resurrection of Christ, there is no certainty of our own resurrection and that of our loved ones. If Christ be not risen then all who have died have perished eternally. Then we have no hope of seeing those who have gone before. But we have a better hope than that. "Because I live, ye shall live also." As in Adam all die, so in Christ shall all be made alive. "For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised."

Firm and fast as the grave now seems to held the bodies of our dear loved ones, it is now doomed as a fruit of Christ's resurrection, and will be compelled one day to relax its grasp, and yield them up to us again. Empty as was Joseph's sepulchre when the angel stood before it, so shall one day be every grave on earth, when another angel shall sound his trumpet and it shall ring through all the regions of the dead, and still all to life again.

III. The resurrection of Christ manifests his victory over death and the grave.

Up to this time, death's claims had been undisputed. All opposition to that dead enemy had been without effect. Sin reigned in the realm and sovereignty of death, and death reigned in sin. The purpose of Christ's coming into the world and assuming human form was that he might by his own death abolish death as the wages of sin. It was when he rose and left the dead that Satan's empire fell. Christ's victory over death was dramatically complete on the day of his resurrection.

DR. CALDWELL'S GUIDE TO GOOD HEALTH

The natural tendency of people in this busy age to demand of the digestive organs more than nature intended they should perform, frequently results in throwing the entire digestive system into disorder. When the stomach fails to freely digest and distribute that which is eaten, the bowels become clogged with a mass of waste and refuse which ferments and generates poisonous gases that are gradually forced into the blood, causing distress and often serious illness.

Dr. W. B. Caldwell says that if the bowels are kept regular there will be much less sickness, and prescribes a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that is most effective in relieving any congestion of matter in the bowels. This compound can be bought in any drug store under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and costs only 50 cents a bottle. It is mild in its action, pleasant to the taste and positive in effect, a dose at night bringing relief next morning, naturally and without griping or other discomfort. A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in the house will save many times its cost in doctor bills. Your name and address on a postal to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 203 West St., Monticello, Ill., will bring a free trial bottle by return mail. Adv.

VOTES FOR FEDERATION.

Crookston Votes for Federation. Same Thing Is Rejected in N. D.

Crookston.—As the result of three joint meetings of conference committees named by the Congregational and Presbyterian church, not a single vote was cast by the committees in opposition to a plan for a union of the two churches. By the plan proposed the two congregations are to be united as one Congregational church, the members of the Presbyterian church to be admitted by letter; the property of the Congregational church to be the property of the United church, and the property of the Presbyterian church to be disposed of in such manner as that church may designate. Upon the union of the two churches all the present officers of the Congregational church are to be chosen by the members of the united church.

Now that the plan for union has been adopted by the joint committee, the proposition will be submitted to the vote of each congregation and it is believed both denominations will be practically unanimous in approving the recommendation of the committee. When this is done, the necessary legal steps to perfect the union will be taken.

This is the first definite step to a church union in Crookston, the plan of last year to unite five or six of the protestant churches having been abandoned. It is believed that after the Congregational and Presbyterian churches have united others will join them.

State Ballot Is Rearranged.

St. Paul.—Acting on an opinion which he received from the state legal department Secretary of State Schmahl has revised the make-up of the state ballot by placing the candidates for chief justice and justice of the supreme court at the foot of the list. As first arranged they preceded candidates for railroad and warehouse commission. The change is made because of the non-partisan feature of the new election law. All other officers have a party designation and the removal of the judges serves to keep the party list intact.

Europe Wants Wheat.

Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce.—Very sensationally bullish cables greeted the domestic grain trade. Europe was visibly disturbed over the sinister developments in the near East. All markets were up from 1 to 3 cents a bushel and the strength held throughout their sessions. A large export business since last Friday in wheat and flour was reported and while the very large Northwestern receipts tended to check the full response but 1¼ cents advance was scored before the buying power began to lag behind the offers.

Lodge Ritual Changes Here.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Walter B. Richie of Lima, Ohio, George L. Lusk of Bay City, Mich., and George P. Tawney of Winona, Minn., members of the ritual committee, Knights of Pythias, were in Minneapolis preparing the revised ritual for the printer. Several slight changes were made, which required a meeting of the committee and reprinting. Mr. Richie has been identified with Ohio and national politics for many years. In 1889 and 1890 he became prominent by successfully managing the late Senator Brice's campaign.

Thrown Off of Bridge.

Mankato.—Enticed upon the Minnesota river bridge at midnight, robbed and then thrown over the bridge into the deepest part of the stream, is the story told to the police by Peter Ulmen, a farmer living near the city. Ulmen says there were three men in the gang, who had been drinking at various saloons. He managed to get out after sinking twice. One suspect has been arrested, but he denies any knowledge of the affair.

Stranger Killed on Track.

Detroit.—The mangled body of an unidentified man was found on the Northern Pacific tracks four miles west of here Sunday. A printer's apron and a few pieces of jewelry were found near the body. It is thought he fell from a train while stealing a ride.

Big Barn and Grain Burn.

Pipestone.—The barn on the George E. Millard farm, with nearly all of its contents, was destroyed by fire at a loss of nearly $5,000. Seventy-five tons of hay, 200 bushels of buckwheat, 4,000 bushels of oats and a large amount of farm machinery were destroyed.

South Bend Man Slashed With Razor.

Mankato.—Tom Moon is under arrest, charged with assault in the first degree upon Ernest Sorrell of South Bend. The quarrel was over something trivial, but resulted in Moon drawing a razor, according to witnesses, and slashing Sorrell across the face from his left eye back through the middle of his ear and down to his neck. The ear was cut in two. Sorrell lies in a hospital with forty-two stitches in his face, but it is thought the chances are good for his recovery.

SUSPECT IS HELD.

Police Capture Man With Safe-Blower's Outfit.

International Falls.—Chief of Police Christianson and Officers Lowess and Langdon of the local police force have made an important capture in the arrest of a man who gave his name as Lewis Williams of Superior, Wis.

He had in his possession a bottle of nitro-glycerine, two 38 caliber revolvers, a bunch of skeleton keys, an electric flash light, a book of postoffice money order blanks and a rubber dating stamp with the name Lengby on it.

He purchased an overcoat at Greengard's Clothing store and paid for it with a $47 money order on the Lengby office. He then bought drinks in the U. and H. saloon and paid for them with a $22 order and then went to the John Harrison saloon, where he paid for a drink with a $25 money order. Harrison got suspicious and had him shadowed to the Bancroft saloon where he was cashing a $22 money order.

The police were notified, and after a chase rounded him up. Going to his room they found a new suitcase which the alleged yeggman said belonged to his pal, Joe Devine, whom he left in Bemidji. Most of the things named were in his suitcase.

He says two of his pals, who are yeggmen by the name of Jes. Foley and Chas. Roy, have started for Chicago. The postoffice authorities have been notified. It is believed that the prisoner is a bad man.

BONDS FOR SCHOOL.

Six Districts in Anoka and One in Isanti Combine.

St. Francis.—The St. Francis consolidated school district has voted $25,000 bonds for school purposes. Only four votes were cast against the bonds. The amount voted, with the money already on hand, will buy a suitable tract and put up a fine brick and stone building with every modern improvement.

Six districts in northern Anoka county and one in Isanti county were recently consolidated here, giving strong support for the establishment of an agricultural high school. At present the high school classes are being taken care of in the Methodist church, but the equipment, after this year, will include ample laboratory facilities, rooms for manual training and domestic science, and over five acres for agricultural purposes.

Anoka bankers have rented a building here in which they will open a bank in a few days. It is also expected the new railroad from Minneapolis to Duluth will go through here. There is large waterpower here, only a small fraction of which is in use, so there is a safe foundation on which to build a good town.

FRAUD IS ALLEGED.

Kimball, Minn., Man Arrested by Postoffice Inspector.

Minneapolis. — David Stanley, of Kimball, Minnesota, was arrested in Minneapolis by Postoffice Inspector Hughes on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

Stanley is the inventor of a coupling device and submitted a sample of his appliance to Secretary Cooley of the safety appliance department of the interstate commerce commission, asking for an indorsement. Mr. Cooley replied that the device was no better than others in use.

It is charged that Stanley used the letter head obtained from the commissioner and forged an indorsement, taking this way of securing several thousand dollars from capitalists, whom he succeeded in interesting in a plan to put the appliance on the market.

Wiskic Bound Over For Murder.

Hastings, Minn., Oct. 16.—Ivan Wiskic, the alleged murderer of Mrs. Mike Blazich at South St. Paul, had a hearing and waived examination, being held to the next term of the district court. P. H. O'Keefe, county attorney says the prisoner made a confession of his guilt Monday.

Mad Cat Bites Children.

Minneapolis. — Walter Rahradka, aged four years, and Irene Waknitz, aged three years, were attacked and severely bitten by a mad cat. Andrew Jordan came near being the cat's third victim, but finally succeeded in killing the animal.

Runaway Lad in Aitkin Jail.

Aitkin, Minn. — A twelve-year-old boy, giving his name as Harold Girard, and his home as Chicago, was brought to Aitkin by a train crew who discovered the boy at Klondike, Minn., where he had spent the night on top of the water tank and was suffering from cold and exposure. The boy claims to have run away to try to locate an uncle whom he supposed lived at Klondike. The lad is now in the county jail, awaiting the arrival of his father from Chicago.

NORWAY LOG CABINS

Picturesque Abodes Are Being Done Away With.

Modern Clapboard Buildings Taking Their Place—Typical Examples of Old Style Buildings Are to Be Preserved.

Christiania, Norway.—No one knows when the first log cabin was built in Norway, but it must have been about 1,500 years at least. At first they were windowless, chimneyless things, then they gradually became light and airy, acquired chimneys and floors and developed into one and one-half and then into two story houses, becoming the homelike abodes of enlightened people. Their development and transformation are easy to understand, thanks to the efforts of Dr. Sandvig of Lillehammer, Norway.

Born in the country, he had from his boyhood a passion for the old homes of peasants, and even as a child it pained him to see them set aside or torn down to make way for the nondescript buildings of clapboards which appeared in their stead. It became his ambition to collect before it was too late the most typical examples of the different log cabins.

In these old houses is wonderful furniture belonging to the period represented and always arranged according to ancient traditions. For instance, there are examples of old Norwegian beds, which are appalling contrivances. Rarely are they more than four or five feet long and often almost as wide. It seems that in the fourteenth, fifteenth and even sixteenth centuries people in Norway did not lie down in their beds—they sat in them. A person was propped up, so to speak, by four or five feather beds and as many more pillows under his head.

Those who have traveled in Norway, if they have been out of the beaten track and have walked across barren mountain tops or through pungent pine forests, will remember coming some evening when the sun was still high to a little log chalet looking strangely picturesque from the outside.

And they will remember when the door was opened how they entered a large room where the white wooden floor was strewn with sprigs of fresh juniper and where an armful of green birch filled the fireplace ready to burst into a pungent flame when a match was set to it.

Norwegian Bride and Groom at Door of Log Chalet.

In Norway these houses are made of heavy pine logs. The bark is carefully taken off and then the logs are hewed square and of the same size from one end to another. It takes some experience to notch them at the ends so that they fit exactly. The logs are usually either stained or oiled and their rich yellowish or brownish color is in harmony with almost any surroundings.

The old-fashioned Norway log cabin had a sod roof. It is hard to express the poetry those words should convey except to those who have seen the sod roofed cabin. "I have come across roofs that were a riot of wild pansies," says a writer in the Craftsman, "and I have seen wonderful roofs where wild rose bushes hung over the eaves or a daisy roof the effect of whose white, starlike flowers topping the dark brown structure was exquisitely picturesque.

"Some roofs produce only pasture grass, and the story runs in Norwegian folk lore that a lazy man led the cow on the roof—the cabin was built against a hill—instead of taking her to pasture. I have no doubt that the story is true, for I have often seen a couple of white kidlets gamboling on the soft green housetops, while the mother goat, grave and ruminative, was tethered to the chimney."

Mrs. Sage Saves Birds.

New York.—Mrs. Russell Sage has purchased Marsh island, on the gulf coast southwest of New Orleans, and has dedicated it as a guarded refuge for the migratory birds of America. At a cost of $150,000 she has taken control of the most popular haunt of the southern market gunner and has given protection to the game birds that flock there in millions every winter. The island is about eighteen miles long and nine miles wide.

SUCCESS FOLLOWS JUDICIOUS FARMING

IN WESTERN CANADA IT IS CERTAIN.

The story of the Big Farmer in Western Canada, and the immense profits he has made in the growing of grain, has been told and retold. He has been found in all parts of the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. His splendid farm buildings have been pictured, his traction outfits described and his princely surroundings, resultant of his success in growing grain, have been portrayed by letter, press and camera. It certainly is not to his discredit that by successfully applying common sense and up-to-date methods to the conditions that climate, a good soil, and splendid market have placed at hand, that he has made the best use of them. He is not too proud to admit that he came to the country a very few years ago handicapped as to money, leaving behind him unpaid mortgages in his old home land (which are now wiped out), and he is still today the same good-hearted fellow he was in the days that he had to work for a neighbor, while the neighbor broke the land on his homestead, which went to make up the settlement duties.

Then, there, too, is the farmer and the farmer's son, already wealthy, who has bought large holdings in Western Canada, in either Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, who has made forty to one hundred per cent. on his investment, whose big grain crops and whose immense cattle herds are helping to improve the country. Health and strength, energy and push, and bull dog grit are as essential in Western Canada as in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, or any of the states from which so many of these people come, and then, when you have added to that a fair amount of means, with which to make a start, the land which is only waiting for the skill of the husbandman will quickly respond.
